"Well, little Lady," she laughed merrily. "Whatever your name is, we welcome you to our nursery. Where did you come from anyway? I've never seen a dolly like you. This is Wooden Soldier."

Wooden Soldier, like Raggedy Jane, felt very sorry to think French Doll had been so impolite so he strutted up, his wooden sword clanking his heels as he walked, and shook the newcomer's hand.

"Indeed I'll not shake hands with that horrid doll," snapped French Doll. Tears filled the slanty eyes and Raggedy Jane hugged her and laughed. 'Don't you cry," said Raggedy Jane kindly. "I think you're lovely. What's your name?"

"I'm Tuts-San from China," sighed the little strange dolly. "I came from China. Little Chinese girls think I'm lovely."

That afternoon French Doll was taken out for a ride. The little mistress forgot to bring her into the house. A storm came up and French Doll was a sight when the dog found her and after dragging her over the yard, pulled her into the nursery.

She didn't stick her French nose up in the air any more. She was glad to be tucked into bed by Raggedy Jane and take the cup of hot tea the little Chinese Dolly gave her.

She was ashamed of the way she had acted, and that night she let Chinese Dolly sleep with her in the little white crib. That was the last time French Doll ever made fun of anyone.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

Recently I heard some very sophisticated young ladies discussing the various coiffures of the moment. This conversation was very interesting to me, for the people involved were those who always look sleek and well-groomed. They are the type who make the best of what good looks they have, and because of this, inspire others to go home and try a new way of doing the hair, or wearing the necklace, or of planning the lines for that gown one is considering having the dressmaker do over.

These carefully turned-out women seemed to agree that the sculptored coiffure is still the only one, whether the hair be long or short.

"But, how can I do my hair?" asked a feminine listener, less adept at following the latest fashion. "I've always done a flat figure-eight high at the back of my head, and I simply don't know how to do anything else," she wailed.

Now, it's rather difficult to follow instructions on arranging the hair, but with the aid of the accompanying sketches, I think my readers will understand the simple coiffures described here.

The first one allows for the hair being parted on the right side. It could be parted at the left, but most people seem to prefer the right, so I will describe it from this angle. Part it with your comb as far back as the top of your head. Then draw the right side back softly over the ear, double the hair under in a little knot midway on the back of your head and fasten it securely. This is to be simply the foundation for holding the hair in place, and it must be flat and firm. Now draw the hair from the other side of the part becomingly over your left ear and swirl it about to the back of your head, remembering that this is the side which will show, and which must give the so-called sculptured line. Smooth it out flat toward the back of your head as you draw it upward and tuck the ends in. Pin it here securely to the hair which is underneath. This smoothly curved line at the back is smart at any time of day, and is particularly good for evening wear.

The second coiffure starts with the same side part and arrangements, but is drawn low to the back instead. Then the hair is twisted in coils, twisting outward from each side, and formed into tiny "biscuits." This low coiffure is becoming to many who cannot wear the single low knot at the back.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SATURDAY, APRIL 10.

Changes of importance are the forecast made from the powerful and possible revolutionary stellar activities. Following the breakdown of a long-standing congestion, there may be a radical change involving a new environment, either in business or residence. It should bring decided financial benefits. Employment as well as the health are favored by the day's benefic sway.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of important events, with old obstacles removed to make way for the many worth-while benefits. A change of environment as well as business is prognosticated, with the financial outlook fortunate. A child born on this day should be industrious and ambitious and may carve a fortunate position in life through its excellent qualities.

We hardly find any person of good sense save those who agree with us. —La Rochefoucauld.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

BLOOMERS.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 9 (United Press) —Alas, these Southern gals! New York may set fashions but it remains for the Southern lassies to start styles of their own. First it was little ankle-length socks called "puppy warmers." Now it's belled bloomers. Bloomers that tinkle but that remain unseen.

One hears a wee appealing chime that is muffled by a flapper's outer skirt. The louder the sound, the fewer outer garments covering it. A faint, wee sound suggests an old-fashioned bell with petticoats. A combination of sounds means that both combination and petticoat is belled.

So far, belled lingerie has not tinkled on Broadway. There were belled garters last Winter but they soon sounded their last toll. Traffic noises sort of cramped their style. The New York flapper believes that she can get further with a noisy-looking costume than with one that is actually noisy. Even the Salvation Army lassie knows that the bell she rings on Fifth Avenue wouldn't get her any place without the accompanying red-capped costume. Noise itself doesn't draw a crowd in New York. It takes clothes!

Perhaps in towns outside of New York where sleigh-bells and cow-bells are familiar sounds, bells may go fine. In New York it's the Lulu Belles that do the work!

And in speaking of bells, little tiny ones can be bought in the ten-cent stores, whereas real silver ones may be purchased in some of the department stores. Real silver ones, by the way, could be used on the ends of string ties which finish the collars of sports frocks. Or they could be used in place of buttons down the side of a one-piece frock. It seems useless effort to wear them on underthings, girls!

LITTLE MAPLE SYRUP.

Farmers Now Hope For Short Season—Anxious To Get on Land.

EAST EMILY, April 9. —There hasn't been much maple syrup made in this district this spring so far. What has been offered for sale was priced at $2.50 per gallon.

A great many of the farmers are hoping that the syrup season will be short, as they are anxious for the snow to go off as they want to get on the fields.

PETROLEUM IS OF IMPORTANCE

Interesting Talk on Development and Possibilities of Industry.

KIWANIS LUNCHEON.

An excellent address on the petroleum industry was given at Kiwanis luncheon in the Empress Hotel today by C. I. Grierson, technical engineer of the Imperial Oil Co., Ltd., Toronto. He recalled the early history of the business and told of the gradual development of the power and basis of automobile and other internal combustion engines.

There was a good attendance at to-day's luncheon, but not the hundred per cent. required during the attendance contest. President John J. Craig presided, and the booster of the day was Harold Perry. Prize-winners were Ernie Smith, Harry Dicken and Jim Doran.

There were several visitors, including Rev. Canon Sawers and John Maxwell of Toronto, guests of John J. Turner; Frank P. Sills, guest of A. R. Reynolds; and Bill Hickey, guest of Art Blade.

It was announced that on Saturday week the Kiwanis Club will erect a news stand at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets for John R. Brownlee. The work will be done by Kiwanians themselves during the afternoon if the weather is fine.

An Old Industry.

Mr. Grierson pointed out that the petroleum industry goes back as far as the records of man. Noah used the material to make his ark water-tight, and Alexander the Great told of the burning lakes. Moses, the great emancipator, was saved by a petroleum product which made his frail ark of bulrushes water-tight. The history of petroleum is picturesque, and the product has helped substantially in the progress of the world.

The first oil well, the speaker said, was drilled in Roumania in 1857, and Canada had the fourth to be drilled in the world, at Lambton County, Ontario. Due to the application of science and engineering skill and varying ways of manufacture, crude petroleum is yielding four or five hundred distinctive products to-day. So widespread are the uses of petroleum that everyone is interested to some degree, and it has a wide influence upon everyone's life.

The petroleum of the world is principally produced on this continent, but because of the mechanical developments here, the 90 per cent. of the world suppy produced in the American continent is used here.

Immense Production.

At different temperatures different products are distilled from crude petroleum, and 250,000 tank cars a day would be required to transport the crude oil produced. Pipe lines are generally used to conduct the crude oil to the refineries. The twenty million motor cars on the continent consume one billion barrels of crude petroleum a year.

The automobile engine of to-day is inefficient, the speaker said, consuming a large quantity of gasoline, and the problem of the refiner has been to supply a grade of gasoline applicable to this engine. All improvements in the engine have been met by an equal improvement in the gasoline supplied.

Though Canada to-day produces only two per cent. of the crude oil requirements of the Dominion, there are wonderful prospects for the future.

In the Athabaska region of Alberta there are miles of tar sand containing sufficient crude petroleum to supply the whole world at the present rate of consumption for two hundred years. The extraction of this petroleum under present methods is uneconomical, but will come as a matter of course with depletion of United States resources and increasing prices. While Canada to-day is importing crude petroleum at comparatively low prices, she will be in position when the stocks in the United States are reduced to produce and export at much higher prices. Even to-day, a great industry has grown up around the refinement in Canada of crude petroleum imports.

The speaker told the auto owners that they are using only about eight or ten per cent. of the value in the gasoline they burn up, and ninety per cent. is loss. Automobile builders and petroleum refiners are working hand in hand to eliminate the waste.

STIRLING PEOPLE OBSERVE EASTER

Special Services Held in All Churches—Institute Meeting.

STERLING, April 9.—The Easter Sunday services, in all the churches were fittingly observed, with large congregations present. In St. John's Anglican Church, the Holy Communion was observed. Miss Marion Halliwell sang a solo. The regular quarterly communion service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, with a very large attendance. Seventeen new members united with the church.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the Agricultural rooms on Thursday evening, April 1st on account of the inclement weather the attendance was small.

Five dollars was donated to the Beck Memorial Fund. A baseball outfit is to be purchased for the use of the boys of the public school. The programme consisted of a paper on "Menus" by Miss Cena Spry. Readings: "The Oil of Gladness" by Mrs. W. S. Martin "Table Manners" by Mrs. Harold Martin. Lunch was served and a social half hour spent. ¶On the eve of the departure of Miss Oualeigh Van Allan for her new home, the Sunday School class of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of which she was a member, met at her home, last Thursday evening and presented her with a fountain pen. Lunch was served and a social evening spent.

The young men of the village held a dance at the Opera House on Monday evening for the benefit of the Memorial Fund. Owing to other attractions the attendance was not as great as expected. The receipts were $75.00.

Mr. Harry Wickett has moved his family to the village occupying the rooms over Roy Thrasher's store. Mr. Wickett is succeeding Mr. Charles Van Allan as representative for the Massey-Harris Company.

POWER IS SUBJECT OF CAPTAIN BEST

Interesting Address Given in Murray Street Church To Large Audience.

"Power" was Captain Tom Best's subject at Murray street Baptist church last night.

No matter how low a man or woman might have fallen in sin there was power in the cross to save. There wasn't any such thing as a man being beyond the unlimited power of Christ to save.

"The same power keeps," said the speaker. "So often we run across men who are afraid to try the Christian life for fear they could not stick to it."

"Trusting to one's own strength and will power is not always enough. But at times of emergency God's power, unlimited, plus our own will power would give man victory every time."

The attendance last night was the largest yet. Many people have been there every night this week and intend to hear Captain Best again to-night and twice on Sunday. They were all urged to bring a friend to-night for the last meeting of this special mission.

The choir, under the direction of Francis Sutton, has been particularly faithful during the services this week, twenty-five and thirty being present each evening.

The song service under the leadership of Joseph Wearing, continues to be a popular addition to the regular service.

WEDDING BELLS.

FAEIRS—MASTERS.

The marriage took place at 104 Lansdowne avenue, the home of the bride's father, John Masters, on Wednesday, April 7th, of Tressa Lena Masters, to William J. Faeirs, of Peterboro.

The sacred rite was performed by Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., minister of St. James United Church of Canada.

The young couple will reside in Peterboro.

HUSSEY—McCARTHY.

The wedding took place at eight o'clock yesterday morning in St. Peter's Cathedral, of Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, 305 Reid street, and John V. Hussey, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Costello. The wedding march was played by Miss Hurley and Miss Annie Simons sang an Ave Maria.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming ensemble costume of blonde satin-faced canton crepe, trimmed with gold lace. Her hat, shoes and stockings were of the same color and her coat was of blonde twill, in cape effect. She carried a bouquet of columbia roses and lily of the valley.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Davenport of Trafalgar. Mrs. Davenport was in blue georgette, with black hat and bouquet of ophelia roses.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast for the bridal party and immediate relatives was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Hussey leaving later by motor for a honeymoon trip to Detroit and other cities, after which they will reside in Parkdale, Toronto.

During the World War only 1,849 American soldiers were affected by chlorine gas and only seven died.

HARDSHIPS OF EXPLORERS TOLD

Japanese Member of Party Sent Back With Story.

Wiseman, Alaska, April 9. Canadian Press. — A tale of hardships experienced by Alexander Malcolm Smith and his party, who are struggling northward across virtually unexplored wastes of Northern Alaska, with supplies for the Point Barrow base of the Arctic Air Expedition of Captain George H. Wilkins was told here to-day.

James Minano, a 70 year old Japanese, who has lived north of the circle nearly all his life, travelled with the party from Bettles, for 200 miles northward along the John river and returned to Bettles after Smith turned Minano and number of others lose after the food ran short.

Minano was without food for three days before reaching Bettles, and arrived there exhausted and famished. He said the party encountered numerous snowstorms and the temperature averaged zero. All were wet during the day and enjoyed little or no comfort at night.

Fifteen miles a day was average along the John River, which runs northwest into the Anaktuvak, a large tributary of the Colville River. The lowest temperature recorded was 37 below zero.

Wild game was expected for dog food but none was seen, not even snowshoe rabbits, which are usually common in the Arctic.

No one rode a step as the rapidly ebbing energy of the dogs was needed. Smith lost two dogs from his team after reaching the summit. Minano declared there was no fire on the trip except in the cook's tent, where corn bread and coffee were made.

WAS SECOND TALK.

Through an inadvertent error, it was stated yesterday that Miss M. English's talk on "India" was the first of a series of Empire talks to be given at the meetings of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. This was the second address, the first being given at the last meeting of the Chapter, when Mrs. W. J. Clow gave a very interesting address on "Africa," illustrated by an exhibition of souvenirs of the country, gleaned during the speaker's residence there.

COMMITTEE HEARS MORE OF ALCOHOL

Imported To Canada as Chemicals To Evade Excise Duties.

OTTAWA, April 9 (Canadian Press).—Reversing the usual order, a syndicate has been smuggling alcohol from New York into Canada during the last few years to evade Canada customs and excise. High-power, over-proof, high wines are shipped as "Textalon" and chemical ammonia compounds. Two separate consignees between them apparently got a considerable quantity through the customs before the fraud was discovered. This was disclosed at the customs probe today.

Sergeant Salt described the seizure of drugs billed from New York as ammonia compound. They contained 65 over-proof alcohol. Shippers could not be located from the name given and the consignee, one Pecchia, live in a hotel and easily got away.

Cigarettes on which no duty or excise had been paid, were smuggled from a ship arriving in Montreal from Europe. A mounted policeman bought some from a Mrs. Marie Vandermaren, of Montreal, "posing as one of her regular customers."

The Mounted Police wanted to prosecute, convinced that Mrs. Vandermaren was an habitual smuggler of cigarettes, said Sergeant Salt. J. E. Bisaillon, former Chief Customs Inspector in Montreal, accepted her statement that she was selling cigarettes to realize the room rent unpaid by a roomer who had left without paying her, and left the cigarettes behind in his room. She was charged $50 as a penalty duty on the smokes, and no prosecution was entered.

The Third Peterboro Troop held its weekly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night. The meeting room being rather small the programme had to be cut down. The meeting opened with flag break and inspection. A quiet game followed. Instruction on signalling, signs and salutes. Bridge building and compass work followed. The council fire was then held, the Hawks putting on the evening stunt. The meeting was adjourned and a Court of honour for the patrol leaders and seconds was held. The business of the preceding two meetings was disposed of. It was moved that "Vimy" would be adopted as the Troop name. The Wolves were heading the competition list by 3 points.

FOURTH PETERBORO TROOP.

The meeting opened with flag break and was followed by inspection. Then the Troop had patrol instruction for ten minutes. This was followed by a game. The Patrols then demonstrated how to carry an injured person. This was followed by another period of ten minutes for patrol instruction.

The Troop then held Council Fire, and the meeting closed at 9 o'clock. The Patrol Leaders and Seconds held court of honor, which closed at 9.30 o'clock.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

M. A. H.—Yes, you should be quite successful in any business enterprise, as your natural leaning is toward a commercial life. You will not do so well, however, alone. A partnership in business would be better for you, as you will achieve more success when associated with someone else than when trying to stand alone. As I am not a fortune teller, I cannot tell you what the future holds for you. Life is mainly what we make it, in any case, and what we will it to be. You are of the type that is independent, active and persevering, and life therefore should hold much for you. You are not easily cast down by defeat, and you have great reserve power. In fact, you may not have realized all your potential resources yet. You are magnetic and draw others to you by a natural law, although you dislike much demonstration of affection. You will be most successful and happiest when you gain self-poise and strive at all times to control your temper. Follow out your own original ideas and steer clear of fault-finders and scolders. Self-reliance is your watchward. March and November are your lucky months, Tuesdays and Saturdays your good days. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are canary, tan and buff, also opal shades formed of blue and gold mixtures.

M. A. D.—This little girl has quite a different temperament to that of her sister, and has some conflicting elements in her personality that will make her life rather variable. Born with a natural tendency toward pleasure and good cheer, with an aptitude for the fine arts, and a liking for singing, dancing and painting, she has a contrary element in her makeup which will make her apt to morbid introspection, reserve and retirement. She will be shy unless her real individuality is carefully cultivated. This child should never be deceived, for when her confidence is lost, it will be difficult to regain it. She must be made a companion of and praised and told of her parents' love. As her mind is active, she should be kept busy at tasks which she enjoys and must be led always with the hand of love, although that hand must be firm, also. They should have many companions and playmates and should be taught loyalty to friends. She will have a great love for people and her friends should not be criticized. Teach her punctuality, dress her well and do not let her drink tea or coffee. Teach her to do things slowly, to practice self-control. Never punish her when angry and only when you are sure that she is absolutely in the wrong. Give her a good education and let her choose her own career. She was born on Sunday. Her color is black.

E. M. E.—You have a peace-loving, kind nature, affectionate and charming, without much efficiency. The way in which you can best work out your destiny is in serving others—the service inspired by love. You should have a good deal of musical ability. You live mostly in the realm of your sensations and emotions and your treatment of a person depends rather on your mood and feeling at the time than upon any fixed regard, hence, you are not always reliable and steadfast. You are, however, loyal and magnanimous to your friends and you are very fond of good living. You are quite determined and stubborn in your own mild way, and you are rather easily irritated by opposition. You are well adapted to the study of mathematics and literature. You are inclined to have quite a strong temper when angered and should guard against this. You have a very intuitive mind and are a receptive centre for more projective minds around you. You are inclined to diseases of the neck and throat. You should marry a man born in December, June and July are your good months and Tuesday your good day. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are gold and violet. The day you enquire for, a Wednesday, is one for original thought and expression, and for taking advantage of every opportunity offered you.

O. P. E.—You have a strong, active nature, inclined to be self-centred and to disregard the rights of others. Your life, to be well rounded-out, should be one full of sympathy and understanding for those about you. Others will expect much from you, and will be disappointed if you fail to live up to their expectations. You have rather a nervous, anxious temperament, and when ill, find it very hard to keep quiet long enough to effect a proper recovery. You are not always as constant as you should be, always fearing that some evil will result as a consequence of leaving certain tasks undone. This fear of negligence drives you to continued and restless action of mind and body. Your mind is ceaselessly busy, even when the body is at rest occasionally, and you are apt to be easily irritated. You are inclined also to nag, whine and scold, very disagreeable traits. In fact, although you have all the foundations of a splendid character, at times you do not live up to what should be expected by you of yourself.

You were born on Thursday. You do not ask about any particular date, only "Monday," in September next. This is too indefinite. Your colors are the variations of flame. April and August are your good months, Friday your good day. Marry a man born in February or November.

Tony: You have quite a high degree of mentality indicated in your reading, and should be able to achieve something in the line of a business or profession, if you would take stock of your keen mind and habits of observation. You gather much practical information as you go through the world, have a good memory, and would make an excellent teacher. I do not think that you use all the faculties you possess in your present sphere of life. You are very fond of fine music and of clean, harmonious surroundings. Anything discordant in conditions about you tends to give you a feeling of illness. You have so many good qualities yourself that you are inclined to be critical with those who do not possess as many as yourself, and you are also apt to be selfish and to incline to self-gratification. The way in which you can achieve success is by the use of cleverness and diplomacy, rather than force. The velvet glove is the thing for you to use at all times. You were born on Monday. The date you enquire about is past. Your colors are tans and buffs.

J. B. F.: You have a strong nature, well equipped to meet the circumstances of daily life. If you live up to the highest measure of which your nature is capable, you will have a marked degree of integrity and virtue in your character. But do not try at any time to control the affairs of others. Your attempts will always fail. And do not try to stand alone. For you, in union there is strength. You have a great liking for gathering knowledge on any subject that interests you at the moment, and have a habit at times of asking unneccessary questions and of demanding and giving always a reason for your actions and for those of others. This is not necessary and is liable to be irritating. You are industrious, sensible and persevering and have strong ideas of justice. You are liable to self-censure and despondency and are not as self-assertive as you might be, for your own advancement. You are nervous and exacting in small things and inclined to find fault in domestic life. At all times, you have difficulty in obtaining comfortable footwear. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is a good one on which to acquire knowledge. Do not engage in any important business enterprises on this day. Your colors are red and brown.

Buster Brown: Your life should go along in smooth fashion, if you follow out the destiny mapped clearly for you. You have a conservative disposition, with a rather retiring bearing. You have a sensitive, somewhat poetical nature and finish things entrusted to your care in a careful, competent and conclusive manner. Repose and comfort are indicated in your reading. You will make an excellent husband, and the way in which you can find happiness is in service to others, the service inspired by love. You have strong emotions and when angry, are apt to be very cutting in your speech. Guard against this tendency. You are well adapted to the study of languages and music, but, in business life, you would make a good merchant or real estate dealer, having remarkable foresight in the buying and selling of commodities. Speculation will always appeal to you immensely, but you will be careless about money and very slow in paying your bills. Nervous worry will bring on serious digestive disturbances in later life, unless you are careful. Strive to cultivate patience and do not depend so much on your intuitions, which may lead you to become a gambler later on. Try to turn your talent for commerce into some more legitimate channel. Marry a girl born in February, May, August or March and commence undertakings in August or December, and on Friday, if possible. You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are grey and heliotrope.

MILK PRODUCTS PATRONS MEET

First Annual Dinner and Convention Held Yesterday.

TIMES BETTER

The first annual meeting of the patrons of the Peterborough Milk Products was held in the G.W.V.A. Hall yesterday. A dinner was served at noon, after which speeches were made. G. A. Gillespie, in his opening remarks said that both sides, patrons and Milk Products, have passed through a difficult period since the war, but to-day things look better, and markets are opening up. "The whole breakdown of our business conditions has been the lack of confidence of the men engaged in the business," stated the speaker.

William Newman, of Lorneville, presided, and in a few well chosen words, showed the great strides the dairy industry had made in the western provinces lately. In 1910 there was not enough milk produced to supply the cities there, but to-day vast amounts of butter and cheese are being exported.

H. E. Carol, of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, spoke about the growing of alfalfa. "In alfalfa you have a crop which will increase the profits. You will get just as great returns and you will not do as much work," said Mr. Carol. To-day a type of plant has been developed that will withstand the winter frosts, and now the farmers of Ontario are able to export the seed. Alfalfa in the last five years average five and a quarter more tons of hay per acre than any other kind of hay grown. Alfalfa produces more than twice as much protein matter as any other hay crop growing, barring sweet clover. Alfalfa is rich in both returns and minearls, especially lime. Last year in Western Ontario the hay crop was dried out, but those having alfalfa had a good hay crop. Alfalfa improves the soil, opens it up and is a great fertilizer. A nice acreage of this crop makes any farm sell better, and it is a good pasture crop if pastured moderately. Mr. Carol recommends getting hardy seed for sowing. It can't be expected to grow on acid soil, that is soil which requires lime. From twelve to fifteen pounds should be sowed on each acre and it is better sowed with barley and oats as a nurse crop. Sometimes it can be sowed on a summer fallow in June or July, but it should not be pastured late in the fall.

G. H. Barr, dairy commissioner for Ontario, was the next speaker. "The weak spot in the dairy business has been in the creamery butter," said Mr. Barr. "The other provinces have been surpassing Ontario in this respect. Ontario is starving cream grading and expects the bill to come into force next month. Mr. Barr has given the province three years to be the first creamery butter producing province in Canada. The facts are that the man who has been sending in cream that is not sweet and has acidity in it has been getting the same price for his butter fat as the man sending in number one cream with the same butter fat. "You are paid for the condition in which your cream arrives at the creamery," he said.

G. G. Publow, one of the oldest cheese makers in this province, was the next speaker. He pointed out that the great thing to discover was to see if you had the right kind of cattle, which would give the very best product to make cheese from. "Under the laws of nature milk never was meant to see the light of day," he said. Thus we should keep it as clean and as cool as possible, especially keeping it cool as the undesirable plants in the air will not increase so quickly in cool milk. The great percentage of the people are practising in the dairies sanitary conditions, but there are eight or ten per cent who are causing the trouble that is making so much second grade cheese and low grade creamery butter, said the speaker.

T. D. Young was the next speaker. He is one of the oldest patrons of the Milk Products. Five years in succession Mr. Young's dairy has never missed their daily trip to the Milk Products with milk. He spoke very favorably of Mr. Gillespie, saying that he always tries to do the right thing.

Mr. Gillespie, in closing the meeting, said that there is no section in Ontario where there is a greater percentage of first class milk coming in, than in Peterborough. The sterilized milk is tested twice a week at the Board of Health laboratories and the tests have been fairly high.

HUDDERSFIELD AND SUNDERLAND GAMES ENGLISH LEAGUE FEATURE

League Leaders Meet West Ham United—Huddersfield Have Good Chance.

PRESENT STANDING.

LONDON, April 9 (Canadian Press Cable).—Two games in the first division of the English League that will attract considerable attention to themselves are slated on Saturday, for Huddersfield and Sunderland. In the former, the league leaders will attempt to repeat their earlier success with West Ham United, and the latter will practically decide whether Arsenal are to stay in the championship battle or see it go once more to Huddersfield Town.

As the situation stands at present only two clubs are left in the fight, Huddersfield Town and Arsenal, and the chances for the Highbury team are remote, but not impossible. Their standings are:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Arsenal	37	20	7	10	78	57	47

It is noted that Arsenal have a game in hand over the leaders, the encounter that had been scheduled for February 20, the day of the fifth round of the English Cup, with Bolton Wanderers, not yet being fulfilled.

Two more victories for Huddersfield would put them safe, while Arsenal would have to win all their remaining games and reduce the fractional disparity in goal-average if they are to scrape through. This task would seem to be impossible, but it is the impossible that not frequently happens in league football—and particularly in the closing weeks of the season. For this reason the games at Huddersfield and Sunderland are invested with a special interest.

Hammers Below Form

In West Ham, the league leaders would seem to have something that should reassure them, for the Hammers are somewhat below form. Their game recently has been mediocre, although it has to be recalled that they defeated Sunderland last Saturday. That game, however, was at Upton Park. How they will fare tomorrow at Huddersfield is another question. In their last twelve starts, the league leaders have dropped only two games, one to Blackburn Rovers and the other to Leicester City. They also drew with Burnley and Bury in that period. This fact indicates that they are travelling at top form, and with so much at stake few chances are likely to be taken with West Ham.

Arsenal seem to have risen out of their slump. In the last week of January and the first two weeks of February they ran into a row of three defeats, Liverpool, Burnley and Leeds United taking their scalps in succession. On Good Friday at Villa Park they succumbed to Aston Villa, but took their revenge on Easter Monday at Highbury. Sunderland, however, is a diferent proposition. The Durham club have lost all interest in the league race and must be satisfied with nothing better than third place. Recently they have been in a slough, dropping five out of their last seven games. Everton, Burnley, Cardiff, West Ham and Bolton Wanderers have acquired point at their expense in recent contests, which would indicate that Sunderland are not now the team they were at the beginning of the season. To further inspire them in their encounter on Saturday, Arsenal cherish the memory of a 2—0 victory gained at Highbury last November.

Probable Relegations

It is necessary to move to the other end of the league table to find more games invested with as much interest as the foregoing. Three teams, Notts County, Manchester City and Burnley, are fighting to keep in the first division. To all present appearances, two of them must be relegated to the second string at the end of the season. But the question is: Which two? Manchester City have a strange task at hand. One phase of their season's career sees them facing Bolton Wanderers in the final of the English Cup—the "blue riband" of soccerdom, while at the same time their league game has been so poor that they are going to have great difficulty in keeping in the division at all.

Saturday's game may not help them much, for they are playing Aston Villa, a team that is strong and weak by turns. It remains to be seen whether the Villa are going to have a strong or a weak day in their encounter with the City.

Burnley also have a hard task, playing Birmingham, while Notts County have the hardest of all at Tottenham.

Second Division.

In the second division, the feature game is at Stamford Bridge where Chelsea, running third in the race with Sheffield Wednesday and Derby County, met the Wednesday. In order to replace the two clubs relegated from the first division, the two highest of the second string move up to the senior division. The battle rests among the three named, with Swansea Town skating along the edge.

The positions of the first four are:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Wednesday	38	24	5	8	81	47	53
Derby C	37	22	7	8	71	36	51
Chelsea..	37	17	13	7	71	42	47
Swansea..	35	18	8	10	71	50	44

The Wednesday's lead would be eliminated were Chelsea to gain the points tomorrow and if Derby County should defeat Preston North End. At the same time, such a victory would bring the Pensioners within striking distance of the leaders. Earlier in the season the Wednesday defeated Chelsea, at Sheffield, by the odd goal in three, but there have been recent indications of a weakness in the Sheffielders' game and a tightening up in that of Chelsea. Curiously in their last five starts, the Pensioners divided the points in four of them, but resumed their winning stride last Monday at Southampton.

Whichever way the cat jumps, the tilt will be of absorbing interest.

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

A local golfer, an enthusiast over the game, has handed The Examiner the following article which is taken from "Golf Illustrated", and is a portion of a lengthy article by G. E. Jensen entitled, Question: Has the Professor Been Robbed? The local golfer has also suggested the heading, "Look Before You Leap" and would like all golf members in the city to read it carefully.

Ten years ago, after twenty years of golf, I cleaned my clubs, oiled them and put them away. I knew very well that my golfing days were over and that my bag would stand in the corner unusued except on those rare occasions when I might be invited but for a round. Since that day I have played precisely twelve widely-separated games—twelve wretched travesties. To be frank, I must admit that I have become used to the deprivation and that I have adopted other less interesting forms of exercise to relieve the pressure and to preserve my health. But for a professional man with summer leisure it is something of a calamity, and from a less personal point of view, an affront to the profession. I do not mean that we teachers have been made to feel that we are socially unfit to mingle with the sport-loving parents of our pupils, nor do I refer to the obvious fact that a yearly golf membership is in these difficult times financially impossible for the average teacher. The calamitous price of golf is but a symptom of the luxurious decadence of our age, and the affront lies in this and many other unhappy confessions that our attempt to teach simple democratic ideals is not only a failure but something of a joke. The Parson has more cause to complain; but if we teachers have learned to suffer the affront resignedly, we will not endure all the deprivations that the evil times have thrust upon us. In my recreation that hurts the most; I have been robbed of my golf.

The solution is fairly simple. It does not lie in retaliation, for no group of persons has willingly pauperized our profession and added insult to deprivation. No college or school has been goaded to demand the payment of the full cost of tuition and a more than adequate recompense for the teachers. And it will hardly do to scold the children for the sins of their fathers. Raising the tuition and stiffening the requirements are, after all, the weapons of common-sense and righteousness, and would be so regarded by those who pay the bills and counsel their offspring. Not that we professors want to sit in the lap of luxury—that is the very seat of the whole trouble. Certainly I, for one, would not care to associate with the lost souls who waddle ineffectually over million-dollar courses, even though I could afford the price. The remedy is constantly the burden of our pedagogical chorus; and if it is not possible to convert the world of lost souls, we can at least save our own. What I propose is that we practice, or better, exercise our own philosophy. And thus I have hopes of resuming the ancient sport.

I want to play golf regularly on one of those old-fashioned, simple courses that still are to be found in a few fortunate communities—but no longer exist in cities like that in which I now live. There is one of that description in a village eighteen miles away, but I have no car. I live within view of a palatial eighteen-hole course; my friends play there (including my parson); and I stay at home golfless. Now any honest man will confess that something is wrong; but I am quite sure that I do not want the obvious remedy. And it is no fault of mine. As a teacher I make enough money to afford the kind of golf club I want to join. In my small way I have tried to fight the evil social tendency of my times, and can bear the larger indignity with a clear conscience. The world tells us that we have failed, and treats us as failures; but we have the usual philosopher's reward. As a golfer I have a long and interesting history in which the cessation of activity and loss of prestige fill an unhappy chapter. But in neither pursuit have I yet confessed defeat. You are likely not interested in my teaching, but may be curious to hear something about my golfing history and what I proposed to do to solve the problem. It is more than a personal matter.

Shortly after the Chicago World's Fair, as a young boy, I began to learn the game. Those were the early days of golf in the United States. In my home town several business men secured a cow-pasture near my home, and under the enthusiastic eye of one convert began knocking around the gutta ball. The fairway was clipped by the cows; the holes were simple excavations in the earth; the dues nothing. Then came Jimmie Campbell from the old country to lay out a real course, to make us our first real clubs, and to teach us the game. It was a beautiful, hilly course of six holes interestingly and naturally laid-out, and a constant delight—at the modest sum of ten dollars a year. Those were the days of wooden clubs and few irons, and the full St. Andrews swing. No locked grip; no arrested up swing—a wholehearted wallop in the drive and at best two-hundred yards. Do you remember the baffy and the spoon, the Silverton ball, the red coats with green facings? And the gloved damsels in long skirts swishing frantically on the old dirt tees? And the sheep fastidiously mowing the fair green, and putting-greens cut after the manner of the front lawn? These pioneers certainly missed some of the thrills of the later years; but even when the rubber-cored ball and the daily caretaker came to our lot, golf was still a comparatively simple and inexpensive diversion. No restaurant; no drinks; just a simple shack in the woods, a few lockers, and a piazza for the weary.

Such was our third course. Simple, accessible and cheap. Our membership was still small, but we managed to pay our bills with dues at only fifteen dollars. It was a well-kept, sporty course, varied and zestful. Here we played for nearly ten years. To allay our alarm at the gradual increasing expense of maintenance came a democratic growth in membership. By passing the hat each October we paid our arrears and kept the fee at the old level. But at length we knew that we had come to the end. Our course was usually uncomfortably crowded, our expenses alarming, and dissension arose. Some of the older members resented the extravagant tastes of the new generation and counseled simpler ways of economy.

Our fourth course was in my judgment a step in the wrong direction. The country club element had their way and dragged the simpler golf lovers to a site five miles from town, and talked persuasively of an eighteen-hole course, tennis courts, skating rink. And then we dug down in our pockets and bought several expensive farms. The stock pays no dividends as yet. We then built a club house, planned a restaurant, dug a well, put in showers, and solemnly voted to allow spirituous and intoxicating private stocks. All the while an army of men was dredging,d raining, leveling unwelcome hills, tearing up forests, and pioneering in general. Nine wasteful and luxurious holes were all that we could achieve in those first few years. Some of us had our doubts about the future. When I moved away the dues had tripled. Some of my friends gave up the game and cursed their folly. The club had grown too luxurious and successful (in the worst sense of that word) to be tolerated by the real golfer. Since that day the club has become enormously prosperous and expensive; they now are adding nine holes, doubling the fees, and losing their souls. I am glad that I moved away.

Fearing that I may offend some of my readers I must confess here that I believe every man has a right to be dammed in his own way. I am not deeply resentful nor intolerant. No gesture of mine will miraculously alter the form and character of the modern country club. It is also futile to dream of the good old days; and if in my weaker moments I bewail my lack of funds for automobile and club dues, I am aware of my folly. In this day money alone cannot buy membership in a readily accessible, simple, and unambiguous golf club, unless, as I have said before, one lives in some remote community that has not changed its ways. Public courses are a step in the right direction, but a town of thirty thousand such as that in which I live, cannot support public golf. Playing in a pasture has lost its charms. In almost every small city there is, however, a solution for the difficulty. If you are in my predicament you will search for a few acres not farm from the center and near some trolley line, you will organize a company of one hundred men like yourself—you will find them in the banks, stores, and the schools—and with a charge of thirty-five dollars a year you can lease the land, gradually contruct a playable course, and maintain it within your budget. A preliminary fund for construction could be derived from a sale of bonds in denominations of twenty-five, fifty and one hundred dollars. The club house can wait. The upkeep is, of course, the main problem. No real golfer ever demands a manicured and marcelled course; a decent fairway, fair putting greens, and simple equipment are suficient for the amateur. If you know the golf courses in the old country, you will understand. And then there is the membership to consider. If you are inclined to shudder at the democratic personnel of my proposed club, your zeal is misdirected, and I suspect that you are no golfer.

JOCK HUTCHISON—GOOD GOLF EXERCISES

It is possible to do this without the aid of a golf club at all. Stand up before a mirror and place your hands on your hips. Take your stance just as you would if you were going to hit the ball. With your hands on your hips and your thumbs dug into your side, turn as far to the right as possible. This will be when your left side is facing the way you are looking. Your left elbow will be pointing in that direction also.

When you turn see that the left knee points outward, not toward the other knee. See that the left heel leaves the ground gradually and, as you pivot back to the opposite side see that the left heel returns to the floor at the exact moment you face square again. Keep on going until you are in the same position on the other side.

After this is gone through day after day, the pupil will be astonished how much he has accomplished toward a real foundation for a golf game and he will find it a lasting foundation.

DOUBLE PLAYS 1926 FEATURE

Major League Teams Have Given Attention to Kingston Section.

SPEED DEMANDED.

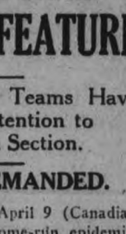
NEW YORK, April 9 (Canadian Press). — The home-run epidemic, threatened by resin and a less lively ball, may give way to a new major league malady in the form of a double-play fever this season.

The Washington Senators, whose success has been attributed in large measure to a sensational double-play producing combination in Roger Peckinpaugh and Stanley Harris, are credited with responsibility for the innovation. Their record of twin put-outs, critics aver, has brought about concentration on the construction of fast keystone combinations which has resulted in the sacrifice of many strong hitting infielders for younger, faster fielders and quicker throwing players. Washington holds the major league record of 182 double plays for one race.

The spring season has developed an unusual number of keystone changes. Ty Cobb has displaced Emery Rigney at shortstop with the sensational Jack Tavener. He also has threatened to remove Frank O'Rourke, a fair hitting second baseman, for young Gehringer, a strong-armed Toronto youngster who has not been able thus far to contribute much to the Detroit team's offensive power. Rigney, now with the Red Sox, may take the shortstop post from Lee.

George Sisler has been trying out his recruit find, Melillo, at second, while Thevenow will work regularly alongside Hornsby in a new keystone combination for the Cardinals. Other changes will find the veteran Everett Scott at shortsop for the Chicago White Sox, Robert Maranville teamed with Milton Stock for Brooklyn, and Maurice Shannon hooked up with Adams for the Cubs.

The NUT Cracker



By JOE WILLIAMS

The surprising thing is not that those four jockeys confessed to throwing races, but that anybody should get excited about it.

Anyone who imagines the business of hoss-racing is conducted on a saintly and righteous basis is either goofy in the garret or torpid in the turnip.

The entire structure of this racket is built on the premise that a sap never gets over being a sap and a sucker thrives on perpetual punishment.

It seems the boys were sugared to the extent of $1,000 to pull the favorites. . . . Still, it costs more than that sometimes to get a pull in Congress.

HOW "THE GREAT OLCOTT" MADE HIS COMEBACK

By NEA Service.

HOLLYWOOD, April 9.—This is the story of a man who fell to the depths and was rescued before obscurity drowned him.

A few years ago Sidney Olcott was one of the biggest directors in the motion picture business. From this pinnacle of command and fame Olcott fell to failure.

And now after an interim of several years Sidney Olcott is again "The Great Olcott" that he was in the yesterdays. Of the proud old school of great picture-makers Olcott is the only one who has staged a comeback.

When Olcott slipped to oblivion a few years ago he buried himself in a three-dollar-a-week room in New York City.

It was William Randolph Hearst who found Olcott in his dingy lodging place—broken in spirits and health.

"I've been hunting a director whom I think can make 'Little Old New York,' starring Marion Davies," Hearst told Olcott. "I've looked at thousands of pictures trying to find the right man. The other night I saw a little picture you made a long time ago.

"I think you are the one man who can direct 'Little Old New York,' You have the human angle that I want."

A few weeks later Olcott walked out on to the motion picture set for the first scene of "Little Old New York." Hundreds of persons were there—the lowliest extra, prop man, electricians, carpenters and the star, Marion Davies.

Thus began the director's return and the making of "Little Old New York," Marion Davies' greatest picture. And to this day there isn't a motion picture troupe that wouldn't wade in hot coals for Olcott.

Following this picture Olcott leaped to fame onee more. Every picture company bid for his services—$3,000 a week. He directed Rudolph Valentino in "Monsieur Beaucaire," Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird," Pola Negri in "The Charmer," Betty Bronson in "Not So Long Ago," Warner Baxter in "The Best People," and then Norma Talmadge. Now he is directing Richard Barthelmess in "Ransom's Folly" for First National Pictures.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done.—Longfellow.

He who would reach the desired goal must, while a boy, suffer and labor much, and bear both heat and cold. —Horace.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Can Washington win its third straight American League pennant?

Will the Athletics, after disappointing in the home stretch of the 1925 race, come through to a championship?

What about the Detroit Tygers? For years Ty Cobb and Company have threatened but since 1909 have always fallen short of the mark.

Also give a thought to the St. Louis Browns and the Chicago White Sox, please. Then there is New York, Cleveland and Boston.

Doping the American League race appears to be a trifle tougher proposition than figuring the National League. There isn't a team in the junior organization that outclasses the field.

Manager Stanley Harris, not inclined to be boastful, expects to make it three straight. Connie Mack thinks it is an Athletic year and Ty Cobb is of the opinion that the Tigers are about due to win.

If Washington gets pitching of the brand furnished by the veteran twirlers last year, it is going to be hard to defeat.

Washington has a great infield, an equally capable outfield, more reserve strength and plays smart baseball. Stanley Harris is one of the best managers in the game.

Last year three veterans, Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie and "Dutch" Reuther, pitched remarkable baseball, the trio winning about 60 ball games. Johnson went as well as expected and the other two vets did far more.

This year Harris has added another veteran twirler to his antique staff in the person of Joe Bush. He takes the place of Southpaw Tom Zachary, sent to St. Louis.

Ten years ago a staff composed of Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie, "Dutch Reuther and Joe Bush would practically insure a pennant. All were at the peak of their game then.

Each year takes something out of a pitcher and none of the four are quite as good as they were back in 1916. In spots, yes; consistently, no. However, if these four veteran stars can win something like 20 games each, it's going to be a difficult job to turn back the Nationals. That's asking considerable.

Failure of two of the four to win consistently would just about wreck the chances of Washington. So, without a question, the hope of Manager Harris is centered around his veteran pitchers.

The Athletics will be better this year, perhaps just enough more to win. The team lacked confidence in itself last season, that very important asset deserting the club in the pinch.

The coming of "Kid" Gleason as assistant to Connie Mack is going to be a big help. Gleason is an optimist and a fighter. The club is going to take on some of his spirit and it is going to prove helpful.

The showing of "Lefty" Groves is also going to be a big factor. Groves has the stuff to win from 20 to 25 ball games. If he turns the trick the Athletics will be up there.

Ty Cobb admits that his pitching doesn't quite satisfy him. Perhaps the Detroit twirlers may surprise Ty. That wouldn't make him sore and might mean a pennant. In all other departments the club is strong.

The White Sox, under Eddie Collins, will play smart baseball and on form should get good pitching. If Collins holds up and Scott fills the bill at short the club will prove most troublesome.

Every year the St. Louis Browns have been touted as strong pennant contenders, only to falter at the finish. Once again Manager Sisler has a strong club and may upset the dope by winning. It is a team with great possibilities.

The critics as a whole are ridiculing the Yankees, but I don't think the club is nearly as weak as some of the scribes are painting it. The Yanks will be as good as they want to be. Spirit will determine the standing of the club more than any other factor.

Neither Cleveland nor Boston loom up as pennant contenders, although each club is much improved.

SPANISH FLIERS NOW AT CAIRO

Two Members of Party Arrive Last Night—Third on Way.

LEAVE TO-MORROW.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 9 (Canadian Press).—After a flight of 800 miles across the desolate wastes of Cyrenaica in the boiling sun, Captains Gallarza and Lorigal, Spanish aviators engaged in a flight to Manila, alighted at Heliopolis flying field, near here, at 3.30 o'clock last evening. They had left Bengasi at 8 o'clock in the morning.

During the last two hours the aviators rose to a height of more than 6,000 feet.

Captain Estevez, third member of the party, reached Bengasi and expects to catch up with the expedition today. They hope to leave together on April 10 for Bagdad.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

"HOOT" GIBSON IN "THE ARIZONA SWEEPSTAKES."

One of the exciting "race" features that always carry a certain attraction for movie fans is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end, in "The Arizona Sweepstakes," starring "Hoot" Gibson. Evidently, pictures may come and pictures may go, but the "race" feature we shall always have with us. However, the directors have thought up some new stunts for this production, and there is a good deal of kick in the presentation of the somewhat uncouth hero riding, "hell bent for leather" to victory over a wide stretch of Arizona countryside.

As Larry Cadigan, the smiling, awkward "Hoot" has the usual series of misadventures that aim to prevent him from capturing the race and his sweetheart, but he overcomes them all with great courage and fortitude, and emerges, homely and victorious, at the final moment. The luck of movie heroes in these matters never fails them.

The programme also includes the usual likeable short reels, and a Hal Roach comedy.—Jeanette.

AT THE GRAND.

"CHARLEYS AUNT"

Local theatregoers will be glad to learn that the most famous of all comedies, "Charley's Aunt", is to be presented here at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, April 10th. by a specially selected company which comprises a number of well known and deservedly popular Broadway artists.

No play ever written in the English language has enjoyed such prolonged prosperity or such widespread popularity. Wherever English is spoken, "Charley's Aunt" has been played. It has been translated into more than one foreign language. It has been running for thirty-four years, and is as much in demand today as ever. With the solitary exception of "Chu Chin Chow" during the war, "Charley's Aunt" has the record for the longest continuous run on the English-speaking stage.

The secret of the play's long life is its clean comedy. It breathes a wholesome atmosphere, and it evokes hearty laughter throughout. Its comedy is constant, and its story a consistently diverting one. The people who play it enjoy it as much as those who watch them, and it is as popular with amateurs as it is with professionals. Moreover, its appeal is to all classes and to the young, middle-aged, and elderly people.

For the presentation here a company of quite unusual quality has been organized, which will tour Canada until the summer comes. Prominent among the artists who will be seen here is Jay Holly, in the leading male role. He has played comedy from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and was juvenile to David Warfield. He recently closed a season's run in "Clouds" in New York.

Miss Leah May, who will fill the leading feminine role, is popular both in New York and on the road. She was featured with Eleanor Painter last season in "The Chiffon Girl." She headed her own act in vaudeville on the Keith circuit for three years. Her wardrobe is a notable one.

Walter Dickinson, who plays the English butler, is also the director of the company, a clever comedian for five years with Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'". Frank Camp, formerly with Margaret Illington in "Mindling," was later for five years in stock in Winnipeg and the west, and last year on tour with Francis Bushman and Beverly Bayne.

Edith Spencer, a former very popular member of the Orpheum stock company in Montreal, is well known throughout Canada as a delightful comedienne. Edward and Gay Seabrook are two clever juveniles. Mr. Seabrook was last year featured in the Greenwich Village Follies, and Miss Seabrook played the little lame girl in "The Fool." Jerry Kennedy, featured with Wilton Lackaye in "The Bomb", is another member of the cast.

It will be seen that "Charley's Aunt" will be played here by a company of outstanding merit.

AT THE REGENT

"THE MERRY WIDOW."

Coming on Monday.

The New York Evening World says:

"The Merry Widow' is a positive gem. It is by far one of the best things seen on a Broadway screen in months, and will prove one of the sensations of the season. And it has done for John Gilbert what 'The Four Horsemen' did for Rudolph Valentino. It has lifted him to the very pinnacle of stardom. Mae Murray never has approached the heights she attains in this picture. In spots she does work that compares with any ever done in films, and she is made positively beautiful by photography that is breath taking. Of course the secret of all this is the ingenious direction of Erich von Stroheim. This man's deft hand is everywhere evident. He has brought a touch to his picture that is positively alluring. Throughout the picture is simply crammed ith beauty, and its climax, which is done in natural colors, is positively gorgeous. On several occasions last night's audience burst out into applause that was nothing if not spontaneous. Probably no male screen luminary could have carried off this picture as did John Gilbert. The man was simply great throughout. Garbed in the trappings of Prince Danilo, he is bound to make feminine hearts flutter wherever this film is shown. 'The Merry Widow' is in for several months of unprecedented success, and those who saw it last night certainly wish it all that."

OBITUARY.

DEAN DOWNEY.

WINDSOR, April 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Very Rev. Dean D. J. Downey, pastor of St. Alphonsus' church here, and one of the most widely known priests in Western Ontario, dropped dead shortly after arising from his bed in the parish house this morning.

GEORGE RUSSELL.

The death occurred at the family residence, lot 8, concession 4, Douro, on Friday morning, of George Russell, aged 69 years.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon, at 2.30, from the family residence o Warsaw cemetery, where interment will be made. Service will be conducted by the Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

DANIEL JAMES MOHER

In the death of Daniel James Moher, New Toronto loses one of its highly respected citizens. Taken suddenly ill at his work March 12th, he died within a few hours after reaching the hospital.

Born in Douro township in 1850 he lived there until 1885, when he moved to Peterborough. Eight years ago he took up his residence in New Toronto where he was connected with the Public Utilities up to the time of his death.

On February 28th last his eight children, seventeen grandchildren and a host of friends gathered at his home on the occasion of the celebration of his golden wedding. He was apparently in good health and sang several of the old songs for which he was noted in his youth. Exactly two weeks later the same assemblage attended his funeral. The many spiritual bouquets and floral tributes received were testimony of the esteem in which he was chld and of the sympathy extended to the family.

Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his loss four sons: Redmond, Peterboro; James, Chicago; Robert, Belleville; William, New Toronto and four daughter: Rev. Sister M. Roberta, Sisters of St. Joseph, Toronto; Mrs. M. Hennessey, New Toronto; Mrs. J. E. Plouffe, Ottawa and Kathleen at home.

The funeral took place from St. Teresa's Church, New Toronto, Monday, March 15th. Requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Clancy assisted by Rev. Fr. Kelly of Weston. The combined choirs of St. Leo's Church, Mimico and St. Teresa's, New Toronto, attended. The pall-bearers were his four sons and two grandsons, Gerard Moher and Albert Hennessey. Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Port Credit, where Rev. Fr. Sheridan officiated.

MRS. EDITH M'NEELEY REMOVED IN HYSTERICAL COMA FROM COURT FREED ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Frenzied Attack on Constable at Millbrook—Dr. Turner Attended Her.

IN FATHER'S CARE.

Witnesses Relate Incidents of Her Activities as Gilbert's Dupe.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MILLBROOK, April 10—A scene unparalleled in the history of the local Court House took place here yesterday on the occasion of the trial of Mrs. Edith McNeeley, 23 who was arrested in Peterborough on March 30 by Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker on two charges of aiding and abetting Harold Gilbert in threatening to publish defamatory libel with intention to extort.

Gilbert was sentenced on three charges of extortion at Cobourg on March 15 to 18 months' imprisonment in the Ontario Reformatory. The offences for which he was sentenced took place in Millbrook when he threatened to blackmail three prominent citizens of that town.

Mrs. McNeeley elected to be tried by the Magistrate, and pleaded not guilty.

Magistrate W. H. Floyd presided and the Crown was represented by W. F. Kerr, K.C. The accused was not represented.

So great was the local interest in the case that many citizens were unable to obtain entrance to the Court. The interior was packed and even the windows were in demand, so that every available point of vantage was occupied.

Hysterical Outbreak

Magistrate Floyd had completed his summing up of the case and had just stated that he would remand Mrs. McNeeley for sentence until April 19 when she broke into a frenzied attack of screaming and violence. She struck the constable in the face and was so vehement in her actions that it required the combined efforts of two men to subdue her. In a few minutes the accused developed another fit, even worse than the first, and finally became so bad that Dr. Turner was telephoned to come to the scene. Dr. Turner arrived in a few minutes and pronounced it a case of hysteria and was of the opinion that it would be dangerous to keep the girl in custody.

Magistrate Floyd with the consent of the Crown Attorney immediately reopened the case and after getting guarantees from the girl's father, who was present in the Court, agreed to let her go on suspended sentence.

During this time the accused was lying in an unconscious condition and was still apparently in that state when she was removed to the railway station. Upon arrival of the train at Peterborough she was removed to her father's home in a state of coma.

Accompanied Gilbert

James Peel, the first witness called, stated that Gilbert and Mrs. McNeely called on he and his daughter at his house during January, 1926. Gilbert said, in Mrs. McNeeley's presence, that they had been investigating about my daughter, witness said, and stated that it would cost me $500 if I did not settle. Gilbert said that on account of him being a poor man he would let him off with $35, and said that "If I did not pay, that he would publish it in the papers. Upon being questioned by the Crown Attorney as to what Gilbert said that he would publish, the witness stated that it was about his girl going to places he didn't like and about his daughter taking his car to Peterborough without his permission. Gilbert then asked Mrs. McNeeley if she would O.K. the matter if I paid $35, and he said that she would, continued the witness. "I then went out and borrowed the money and later in the day gave it to Gilbert direct, $35 and an additional $10 for my daughter's initiation fee into the Ku Klux Klan," witness said.

Mr. Kerr: Was Mrs. McNeeley present when you gave him the money?

Witness: No.

Daughter's Evidence

Etta Peel, the next witness called, stated that she was the daughter of the former witness. She stated that she was present when Gilbert and

Mussolini's Assailant To Be Confined To Asylum

ROME, April 10 (Canadian Press)—It was learned last evening that the British Embassy has been officially informed that Hon. Violet Albina Gibson, sister or the Irish Lord Ashborne, who shot Premier Mussolini through the nose on Wednesday morning, will not be charged with the attack before the court but will be committed to a lunatic asylum. Doctors who have examined her since her arrest agree that she is completely irresponsible for her actions.

"Permanent Insomnia at $600 a Year" Not Reasonably To Be Expected.

OTTAWA, April 10 (Canadian Press).—Cigarettes, overproof alcohol and automobiles, smuggled into Canada in the teeth of Customs barriers, were discussed in the Customs probe Friday. The cigarettes were carried ashore from ships in the port of Montreal, after passengers and cargoes were landed and the vessels were lying at their docks. The raw alcohol, evading the Canadian Customs and Excise charges, was brought in from New York as chemical compounds, and presumably was afterwards diluted, colored and flavored for home consumption or export. The automobiles, often stolen, were brought from the United States with serial and motor numbers changed by means of metal stamping machines, and legally passed through the Customs for use in Canada.

The tale of several smuggling exploits was told to the committee of the House of Commons which is investigating the conduct of the Customs Department, by officers of the Mounted Police. Their evidence showed that there had been a clash from time to time between their jurisdiction and that of the Customs officers and that sometimes prosecutions begun by the Mounted Police did not always meet with the approval of J. E. A. Bisaillon, former chief inspector of Customs preventive service for the port of Montreal, since dismissed.

Autos Released.

The release, on the recommendation of Bisaillon, several years ago, of two autos seized with contraband on the Quebec-New York border two years ago, to a Montreal garage owner named Falcon, came up just before adjournment. Hon. H. H. Stevens criticized the action of the Customs people in letting Falcon have these cars, on payment of duty. He claimed that Falcon was "well known to be the biggest dealer in stolen and smuggled cars in Montreal." W. I. Blair, on behalf of the Customs Department, replied that the release had been made on the recommendation of a "trusted officer of the Department" (Bisaillon).

Delegated Duty.

A sub-collector at Frontier Corners, where the cars were intercepted as they were about to be smuggled into Montreal, and where they were duly cleared through Customs, was on the stand at the close of the morning. He admitted that he sometimes delegated somebody else to check the serial numbers on a car. In this case he did not know why wrong numbers had been noted in the Customs entry for one of the cars.

He submitted that a Customs patrol officer could not be on duty day and night. "Permanent insomnia at $600 a year" was not reasonably to be expected.

Women Candidates Make Hit With Advertisements

CHICAGO, April 10 (Canadian Press). — Women candidates for political office here are showing the men a thing or two in the way of campaign advertising. While Mrs. Bertha Bauer, society woman Republican candidate, was sending a wagon load of empty beer kegs through the Loop to advertise her stand for prohibition modification, Mrs. Laura Mullendore-Buchholz, seeking the Republican nomination in an ultra-aristocratic neighborhood, was taking up a campaign slogan in which the more artistocratic beverage, champagne, was given a word.

OFFICERS GIVE CAR AND PICTURE TO COMMANDER

Expressions of Affection For Victory of Vimy Are Presented.

AT ANNUAL DINNER.

Western Celebration of Great Battle Held at Calgary.

OTTAWA, April 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Officers of the overseas forces of Canada during the memorable years 1914 to 1918, gave two tangible expressions of their affection for Their Excellencies the Governor General of Canada, commander of the Canadian corps in 1916-17, and his gracious consort at the Vimy dinner held at Government House last night, at which were present over 200 officers who fought under General Byng. One was in the form of a 7 passenger, 75 horse power, Canadian-made limousine, and the other was a portrait of His Excellency, which was presented to Lady Byng.

The presentations were made in behalf of the officers by General Sir Arthur W. Currie, now president of McGill University, Montreal, who succeeded General Byng as commander of the Canadian corps.

Dinner At Calgary.

CALGARY, April 10.— (Canadian Press.)—"I would sooner have been a private in any regiment that served in the Great War than anything I have been. I envy you your share in that glorious fight," said Sir Frederick Haultain, Chief Justice of Saskatchewan, chief speaker at the Vimy dinner which was held last evening. He intimated, as did the other speakers, that Canada should be kept in a state of preparedness by sustaining a trained militia.

BODY OF CHILD TORN BY DOGS IS DISCOVERED

Shocking Discovery Made When Terrier Carries Home Arm of Infant.

NEW-BORN BABE.

Rest of Body, Badly Disfigured, Found Under House at Brighton.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

BRIGHTON, April 10.—Evidence of a shocking crime was uncovered by dogs here yesterday when a fox terrier, owned by Thomas Cheer, returned home carrying the arm of a new born baby and a search was instituted, which led to the discovery of the remainder of the body beneath the floor of a dismantled house. There was nothing which might serve as a clue, and Dr. Dure, the coroner, will conduct a post mortem examination to-day. Constable J. M. Spencer, of Brighton, and Inspector E. C. Garnett and Constable T. W. Cousans, of the Provincial police, are on the scene conducting an examination.

Constable Spencer was notified immediately after the nature of the dog's burden was discovered and had the terrier and another dog locked up for a few hours. He then released them, following one himself, while Thomas Kerr followed the other. That which Kerr followed went straight across the street to a lot owned by Richard Chatterton. In this lot there are the foundation and first floor of a house which had been torn down, and the dog went under the floor. About four feet inside the foundation Constable Spencer found the rest of the child's body.

The body was discovered lying on a piece of ice. It had been about half eaten and the face was entirely gone. Coroner Dr. Dure took charge and had the body taken to the town hall, where he is having a post-morten to-day.

Constable Spencer says that in his opinion the child had been born within the past 48 hours. The remains when he found them were not rigid.

Girl Confesses

BRIGHTON, April 10.—Further developments in the above case transpired today, when Norma McDonald, a resident of this village, confessed to Constable Cousans that she had given birth to the infant two weks ago last Sunday. No medical attention was given at childbirth and the mother, who is only seventeen years of ago, later placed the body beneath the foundation of the house, where it was uncovered by dogs yesterday. The dismantled house is near the residence of the

CREW ABANDONS SEALING VESSEL BURNING AT SEA

Steamer Sighted Blazing Furiously Off Coast of Newfoundland.

RESCUE SHIP SENT.

80 Men Spend Night on Ice Floes—Wireless Silent.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., April 10. — (Canadian Press).—Burning furiously and with smoke and flame pouring from her engine-room, the sealing steamer Seal was sighted eight miles off Bay De Verde early last night. The telegraph operator who witnessed the sight said the crew had left the vessel and were on the ice floes with their boats, awaiting assistance.

First reports said the steamer, which left here Thursday for her second trip to the ice fields, had been badly damaged by fire or explosion, and that the crew of 80 men were on the ice floes. The Government steamer Eagle was sent to aid the Seal and was expected to reach the burning ship to-day.

All efforts to communicate with the Seal by wireless failed, and it was presumed her apparatus had been put out of commission by whatever accident occurred.

No fears were felt here for the crew, even should they have to spend the night on the ice floes, as Newfoundland seal men are accustomed to that experience.

The operator at Bay De Verde, which is on the north side of Conception Bay, reported that the fog lifted long enough to give him a sight of the Seal and then shut down again.

MORE THAN 100 GRAIN ELEVATORS PLANNED IN MANITOBA THIS YEAR

Wheat Pool Also Expected To Erect Quite a Number.

OTHER ACTIVITIES.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 10 (Canadian Press).—More than one hundred grain elevators will be built in Manitoba this summer, it was learned in authoritative circles here Friday. To this total it is expected an additional number will be erected by the Manitoba wheat pool. The executive of the pool was in session here yesterday, and it is expected that some decision will be reached as to this season's building programme.

Further negotiations with the United Grain Growers Company are about to begin, it is stated, for the sale or lease of elevators under the company's control.

Announcement that the U.G.G. proposes to enlarge the Burrard terminal elevator at Vancouver, B.C., to 1,000,000 bushels capacity, is construed here as an indication that the company will not go over to the pool with their system without further negotiations.

Unconfirmed reports state that the Maple Leaf Milling Company is contemplating a wide extension of its elevator and milling interests in the West. It is also rumored that important changes are pending in the staff of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company. It is said that F. W. Riddell, general manager of the company, and H. Lowthian, treasurer, will resign and transfer their services to the Alberta Pacific Elevator Company, which was recently acquired by the Maple Leaf Milling interests. The report says that Mr. Riddell is to be manager of the company's business in British Columbia.

NOW, HONESTLY—

We're all entitled to wonder as we see fit—so I wonder if it really is a good idea to thrash out an argument with a child with a thrashing.

In other words, do a few good whacks, in the proper place, convince a youngster that a wrong is a wrong—and make him want to do right the next time?

If the answer is "yes"—then the child does right the next time because he's afraid to do wrong. And what have you gained? Made a coward out of him.

It's a good rule that works both ways. Why not try laying the rule aside—and explaining why wrong is wrong and why right is right.

Bet you'll get farther!

Mr. Dodds replied telling of his regret at leaving the bunch and assured that in his new capacity he would still have a chance of keeping them under his eye.

MINISTER OF FINANCE EXPECTED TO ANNOUNCE REVENUE INCREASE AND REDUCTION IN NATIONAL DEBT

EXPENDITURE UP.

About Four Million Increase In Spending—Payments on Debt.

OTTAWA, April 10.—(Canadian Press.)—When Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, brings down his budget it is expected he will announce an increase in ordinary revenue during the fiscal year ending March 31st of rather more than thirty millions and a reduction in the net debt of about twenty-four millions. These figures are based on the monthly statement of the public debt, revenue, and expenditure, which will be issued by the Finance Department during the week ended.. The statement is preliminary to the complete statement issued later in the year.

The ordinary revenue for the fiscal year was $367,958,495 against $335,426,748 in the year previous, an increase of $32,531,747. Ordinary expenditure was $300,669,860, as against $296,584,640, an increase of $4,085,220.

SEND FOR WU.

Ask Leader of Chihli Forces To Take Charge of City.

PEKIN, April 10 (United Press) —President Tuan Chi Jui of China was seized and made prisoner today by the Nationalist troops which control the Peking area, National leaders announced. The presidential body guard was disarmed.

The Nationalists telegraphically requested Wu Pei Fu to assume charge of the government. The capital is normal today except that troops and machine guns are distributed through the streets.

Other than Nationalist sources deny that Tuan has been captured or that the body buard has been disarmed. The palace gates have been opened and telephones reconnected.

There is great uncertainty as to the direction events will take. Artillery firing can be heard to the east, but the extent and nature of the engagement are not known here.

PARLIAMENTARY NOTES

A Resume of Recent Business Made For The Examiner By E. A. Peck, M.P. For West Peterborough.

On the resumption of Parliament, on Tuesday, an interesting statement was made by Mr. Kennedy, the representative of the Peace River Riding. Mr. Kennedy was returned as elected by a small majority in a three cornered fight. Certain charges of irregularity were afterwards made against the returning officer and some of his deputies. An investigation showed very serious irregularities indeed had taken place in the conduct of the election. Under the circumstances some newspapers had suggested Mr. Kennedy should resign his seat. His statement, however, showed that he had no intention of doing so. Under the rules of the House the matter could not be at the time debated further, but will no doubt be the subject of discussion later in the session.

The Tariff Advisory Board, which was promised in the Speech from the Throne, has now been appointed by Order-in-Council. There are three members, namely, the Hon. George P. Graham, chairman; Alfred Lambert, Manufacturer, of Montreal; and D. G. McKenzie, farmer, of Winnipeg. Mr. Daoust, whose proposed appointment was announced some time ago, has for some reason which has not yet been given to the house, decided not to act, Mr. Lambert taking his place. The Order-in-Council provided that the duties of the Board shall be to inquire into and hear representations of all matters pertaining to the tariff and other forms of taxation, as may be directed by the Minister of Finance, and to advise the Minister in regard thereto. It is to be noted that the Board is simply to make inquiries as directed and to report. There is no assurance that any report made by the Board will be acted upon by the government.

Another commission is also appointed to deal with the Maritime Provinces' grievances, so that these matters are probably shelved for the present session.

A matter of interest to the Civil Servants receiving salaries under $2,400 is that the report of the Civil Service Commission, to whom consideration of the matter was referred some months ago, will be made in the course of a few days.

Some time is now being spent on discussion of a bill introduced by the Minister of the Interior proposing to make loans to settlers on Crown Lands, based on the value of their improvements, the limit being $1000, and the loans to bear 5 per cent. In view of the fact that the Dominion Crown Lands are all in the Western Provinces, this is a matter that will be of little benefit to the Eastern provinces and British Columbia. The measure does not appear to be very popular in the House and may possibly be withdrawn from consideration.

No definite time has been mentioned for the introduction of the Budget. It will probably be brought in early next week.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

"It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows by like a song,
But the man worth while is the man who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong;
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with years,
And the smile that comes with the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears."

Who would question the philosophy of these lines? Surely it is sound. And many there be who have experienced what they so exquisitely express.

It is no easy task to smile when everything goes dead wrong! Yet it has been done again and again in the history of the children of men; and there is never anything done once that cannot be repeated.

Of all the people who pass my window I wonder how few are being tested by trouble. Trouble there must be, for it always comes with the years. And however distasteful to the flesh it may be, it is foolish, if not vain, to seek escape from it. Indeed, it often seems as if man were born for trouble.

There is an Old Book, of which I am very fond, because it never fails to say something worth while. It tells me that, "Out of the heart are the issues of life." I believe this to be true in a physical sense. But I also believe it to be true in relation to intellect, morals, emotions, and the things of the spirit. Therefore, if trouble be he test of the heart why should we not welcome it in view of what it can do for us at the very centre of our being.

The late Mr. Spurgeon, that Prince of Preachers, once said, "Some men owe the very grandeur of their character to the tremendous difficulties they have had to overcome." No doubt he was speaking out of his own ripe experience, "For the test of the heart is trouble, and it always comes with years."

All things and men are tested.

No bridge is thrown open for traffic that is not first tested to prove its capacity to carry the load for which it has been built. Every ship, from the least to the greatest, is tested in every part of it before it is sent away on its first real voyage. Even the cheapest make of an auto is subjected to a test of some kind before it is sold to those who will use it in pursuit of business or of pleasure. So it is with men. And it is only fitting that it should be so since men are so much greater than all other created things.

At the very beginning of human history this test was imposed, because it was unavoidable in the nature of things.

It has been asked more than once, "Was God just in permitting man to be tempted (tested) in Eden when He knew that it involved the possibility of failure?"

That question is well taken, and if an answer is not forthcoming it might easily make an atheist of any one of us. But there is an answer which fits as perfectly as lock and key when both are made by the same hand.

In seeking an answer it is well to recognise that the Scriptures state that man was made in the Divine image and after the Divine likeness. Now, just what is meant by that statement it may not, under our present limitations, be possible to say; but surely all are agreed that at least it carries the implication that man is morally a free agent. That is, that he has the power to say yes or no as he may see fit.

When he left the hands of the Creator his moral condition, we believe, was that of innocence. Innocence is a negative condition. While holiness is positive. For a moral being to go from one to the other there must be a test of some kind.

If man is so constituted that he cannot do anything else but what he does there is no merit in doing what he does and there can be no moral development. If he is so made that he cannot do anything else but love God then he is not really a free agent. But if, being a free agent, there be no rival for his affection then is there no test and there can be no development of his moral nature.

There must be two ways if there is to be any real merit in walking in one. So long as there is no other way than the one we cannot be sure that he is walking in that one as the result of his own free choice. But if there be two, a right and a wrong, and he selects the right in preference to the wrong, he has met the test and triumphed in it. It is when there is a variety of choice that something happens of a moral kind when once the choice is made.

So God said "Of all the trees in the garden thou mayest freely eat, but the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it, for the day in which thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." That was no harsh, arbitrary statement. It was made in the highest interest of the creature It is simply the expression of a law which governs in all parts of the moral and physical universe. It might be called, "The Law of the Nature of Things." And it works in some such fashion as this. Transgress any of the laws of health and you will have to pay the penalthy. Enter a palatial home, beautifully furnished, with evidences of culture and luxury on every hand. Close and seal every door and window; let no air in and no air out; and in spite of all your culture and wealth the end will be death. It is in the nature of fire to burn and of cold to freeze. And it is your attitude to these things that determines your right to be on the inside or the outside of an insane asylum or prison.

When Abraham offered up his only son as a sacrifice it was in obedience to the same law—the law of the test! Friend of God though he was called he could not escape it.

How different the course of history might have been if Abraham had refused to face this test or had failed in it. When he laid his only son on the altar, and lifted the knife to put him to death, he really was laying down every vestige of human hope. Surely he must have had unusual faith in God. In after years we find his name standing out in bold relief as one of the greatest heroes of faith.

"And the smile that comes with the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears."

We are told that he believed God was able to raise his son from the dead. And although no reason was given at the beginning as to why God wanted him to offer up his son, he seemed satisfied to believe that God must have some good reason for asking it or it would never have been asked.

Long after this we read: "Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted (tested.) Even the Son of Man could not escape the necessity of a test. He had to undergo what every full-grown son of Adam had passed through on the way to the coronation or wreck of his manhood. And in that hour we see a Man battling magnificently for his soul.

"For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with years."

But the glory of vital Christianity is that it enables us to smile when everything goes dead wrong. And it is not the smile that suggests a shallow mind but the smile of an assured faith that, "All things work together for good to them that love God," and live in harmony with His perfect will.

When the Christian Church was on the eve of being born it seemed as if everything had gone dead wrong! The One in Whom was centred all the hope of the disciples had been nailed to a cross and crucified, and it seemed as if all their hopes had been crucified and buried with Him. Indeed when Peter said, "I go a fishing," it was as if he were saying: "Men, I've made a mistake; things have not turned out as I had hoped they would; therefore I am going to give everything up and go back to the boat." It was his confession of inability to smile "When everything goes dead wrong."

However God does not give us up when we give up ourselves! And it was a very different Peter who went from the upper room to the streets and preached the first Christian sermon.

During those ten days of waiting after the ascension of Christ, Peter with the others must have been severely tested. The greater the task expected the more severe the test imposed.

Hitherto Peter had been weak when he ought to have been strong, cowardly where he ought to have been brave, ignorant where he ought to have been informed, indolent when he ought to have been active; and all the testing to which his nature was subjected was necessary as so much quarrying to get at the rock-like characteristics in his personality.

Look at him on the morning of Pentecost. If he does not illustrate the greatest miracle of transforming grace I am very much mistaken. In the face of a crowd of religious bigots, the most dangerous crowd to face, he displays the courage of a lion. And the book that had been sealed to him has suddenly been opened — made pregnant with meaning. With what abandonment does he throw himself into the work of winning men for Christ. I can almost imagine that I see him smiling now, as if he were saying to himself: "Now I know the meaning of all these trials and testings, and never again will I question the wisdom of Him who sees fit to make me pass that way."

"And the smile that comes with the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears."

—Allan Fairbairn.

Chips and Shavings

FROM THE WORKSHOP OF JOHN PLANE

I Would rather have a man with one unhealthy idea in his head which he proposes to reduce to practice or break a tug in the attempt than a thousand namby-pambya who are sure of nothing and can only swing round in the current like dead eels in an eddy.

Have you never observed that one-idea men are apt to be revolutionary? But it seems to me that even revolution were preferable to dry rot.

It were better to keep moving even though the goal be neither in sight nor certain than to sit patiently down beneath grevious abuses and petrify.

Better far to launch boldly out on the sea of experimentalism and trust to the winds and waves to bear us to the Isle of Somewhere than to putter around in unprofitable goose-ponds, playing minnows for sperm whales and bullfrogs for Alboraks, while Sanscullottism grows even more savage.

It is curious to reflect how many once popular highways to heaven and turnpikes to the terrestial millennium are now weed-grown and forgotten: and it would be a blessing, in disguise or otherwise, if many others were in a like plight. When a certain wise man said, probably out of his own bitter experience, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death," he uttered something which most folks are slow to believe.

Ritual and dogma, church and creed, belief and unbelief, query and theory, Christian and pagan—all fade and pale into insignificance before the unwritten history of one life savingly touched by the Spirit of God.

All life seems to be but a dream, mystic, wonderful, and we know not when we sleep nor when we wake.

Man was not made for himself alone, but all were made for each and each for all. Every man is debtor to some other man. And most men, if not all, must answer the question, "Am I my brother's keeper"? in the affirmative.

It is man's unrest, his heart-hunger, that drives him on to noble deeds—that lifts him out of the gutter where wallow the dumb beasts and places him among the gods.

Of suffering and sorrow were all life's beauty. The hope of immortality sprang from breaking hearts and was confirmed by Divine revelation. The kiss of Pyramus and Thisbe is an ecstacy of pain. Every great lifework is an agony. Behind every song there lurks a sigh. Even nations rise through a mist of tears. The Virgin Mother is known as Our Lady of Pain. The Cult of Christ is called the Religion of Sorrow. The first breath and the last gasp are drawn in suffering, and between the cradle and the grave there lies a monster-haunted Gehenna.

Nature plays no favourites. When she gives a man a lower-case brain she makes amends by providing him with a display-type mouth.

Methuselah lived 969 years—but that was before the development of the science of medicine.

From two things, Oh Lord, deliver me: one is a mannish woman, and the other a womanish man!

It is not until a young man suspects that he knows more than his father that he begins to doubt the religion of his mother. Young men, what are your suspicions?

Be careful how you greast the wheels of rumor. They don't need it, they are self-oiling.

It doesn't do you any good to hold the key to the situation if you are too lazy to turn it.

If you are mean enough to feel pleasure in another's trouble, you will be mean enough to feel trouble at another's pleasure.

The burden of suffering seems a tombstone round our neck, while in reality it is only the weight which is necessary to keep down the diver while he is hunting for pearls.

A stingy Christian is a living dishonor to Christ, and a stingy soul has to be pitied for its littleness.

The widow who gave her all did not starve to death. As long as there is one poor man in the world the money of a rich man will show what he thinks of Christ.

It is hard to tire the man whom Christ has rested. He may grow tired in the work but he will never grow tired of the work.

The man who never speaks of his religion in public is not getting much enjoyment out of it in private.

Many a prayer for revival has been defeated by a church entertainment. Nothing lies beyond the reach of prayer except what lies outside the will of God.

The smallest cottage has room for two lovers.

When God turned Adam and Eve out of the garden of Eden He sent an angel with them whose name was Hope.

If bitterness has crept into the heart in the friction of the busy day's unguarded moments, be sure it steals away with the setting sun. Twilight is God's interval for peace-making.

Of all bad habits, despondency is among the least respectable, and there is no one quite so tiresome as the sad-visaged Christian who is oppressed by the wickedness and hopelessness of the world.

Don't nurse opportunity too long—take it into active partnership with you at once, lest it leave you for other company.

Chilo, having had the question put to him, What is difficult? said.—"To be silent about secrets; to make good use of one's leisure; and to be able to submit to injustice."

Whether in large or small affairs, there must be perpteual adjustment. Neither men nor women, more than our finely strung musical instruments can escape the need of constant tuning.

"Of all work," said the Bishop of Exeter, "that produces results, nine-tenths must be drudgery. There is no work, from the highest to the lowest, which can be done well by any man who is unwilling to make that sacrifice."

Never argue with a man who talks loud. You couldn't convince him in a thousand years.

To speak wisely may not always be easy, but not to speak ill requires only silence.

Cold and reserved natures should remember that though not infrequently flowers may be found beneath the snow, it is chilly work to dig for them, and few care to take the trouble.

GOD IN CREATION

Text: Genesis 1:1-3, 26-31

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

And God said, Let there be light, and there was light.

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepth upon the earth.

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth.

And God said, Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat.

And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to everything that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat; and it was so.

And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 11. God in Creation.—Genesis 1:1-3, 26-31.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

From the studies in the Gospel of John we turn, during the coming quarter, far back into the story of Creation and of beginnings, in Genesis. The jump, however, is not as great as it might seem, for the theme of the Gospel of John is closely related to the theme of this lesson.

The book of Genesis and the Gospel of John begin with the same phrase, "In the beginning." The great purpose of the Gospel of John has been to reveal the meaning of creation, the spiritual significance until life itself is brought into harmony with God. Probably we have inadequately appreciated the Christian perception of progressive creation. God's life is a continuous process in which man shares, and the highest evidence of evolution is found in the way in which man becomes a partaker of the divine nature.

From the standpoint of this spiritual purpose of creation and the goal of human life in a salvation that makes God and man one in Christ, it is interesting to turn back to consider the process from the beginning. Just as in the Gospel of John, we begin with God, "the Word was with God and that was God," so here the writer of the first chapter of Genesis starts with God, "in the beginning, God."

Mystery of Life

Can man get far away from that assumption of a Creator? Of spiritual reality at the center and soul of the universe? It is true that it does not explain all that is to be explained. The more one thinks of the mystery of life, the more mysterious it becomes, and one can think about it in circles and circles until the head fairly swims with the problem of the meaning of life, how it came to be, where it is going, and all the questionings that quickly arise even in a child's mind.

Houses do not build themselves, and this is where Paul comes very directly in his argument for the reality of God's existence and for his conception of a spiritual being at the center and soul of the universe. "Every house," he says, "was builded by some man, but he that built all things is God."

Need of Creator.

It is in his own nature that man has found the need of a Creator, and the evidence for a Creator. And it is out of all that is best in man himself and especially out of the perfect man, Jesus Christ, that man has developed his conception of God. This was the method of Jesus. He taught men to understand the Fatherhood of God through all that was good and great in their own fatherhood. It is in grasping these simple truths, and the natural methods of approach to God, that we are able to understand the great truths of the Bible. They come to us with a reality and satisfaction, when grasped in this natural way, that they never possess for us a mere dogmas.

God and man, in the conception of this writer of Genesis, are distinctly linked from the very beginning, for man is made in the image and likeness of God. Do we fully grasp the spiritual daring of this early saint and seer who thus linked his own life and personality with that of the Creator It is one of the most sublime things in all literature and in all human experience.

PROTECTING THE WORKMEN.

The coroner's jury which investigated the death of William Irwin, killed by a cave-in in a Young's Point gravel pit, has suggested that greater precautions be taken to protect the lives of workmen in such places.

The warning should be heeded.

Gravel pits are not the safest place in the world in which to work under the best of circumstances.

"It's a caution the way they act; you can't depend on them," was the evidence of one witness in the Young's Point inquiry, a witness who testified that he had had many years' experience in working in gravel pits.

That being so, it becomes necessary for those in charge of the work in such places to see that every precaution against accidents is taken.

Without any reference to the Young's Point tragedy in mind, it may be pointed out that in this work, as in other fields, familiarity breeds contempt, and it is undoubtedly the case that men who have been long in this kind of work sometimes grow indifferent to the danger.

Yet, as the witness already quoted said of gravel pits in general, "You can't depend upon them," and the very fact that there is always an element of uncertainty should cause increased anxiety to see that proper safeguards are provided.

THE WORLD'S BEST SLAYERS.

In one department anyway the United States leads the world by a wide margin; it is the champion murder country of the universe.

There used to be a time when this title was pinned on Italy, but the land governed by Mussolini has been left far behind by our neighbors.

The chances of an American citizen being murdered as he walks down the street are likely enough to deserve consideration, inasmuch as the rate of slayings in the United States last year was a little better than one in 10,000, according to insurance statistics, about twice the rate in Italy.

There was a day when a murder was a national event in the United States and received notices in nearly every newspaper in the country.

Now with 12,000 killings in a year murders have become so common that only local slayings obtain much space in the papers.

One one-thousandth of the people of the United States went the way of the knife, the pistol or the poison vial in 1925.

It's no news if a dog bite a man, but it is if a man bites a dog, is the gist of a set of advice credited to James Gordon Bennett, a former famous New York editor.

Our neighbors are coming to the place where the newspaper story of a whole day without a murder will be a big scoop in the United States.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF VIMY.

Nine years ago yesterday Canada's overseas army won one of the most notable victories of the World War when under the command of Lord Byng of Vimy, now Governor-General of the Dominion, the Maple Leaf forces wrested the stronghold of Vimy Ridge from the Germans.

It is unfortunate that this anniversary of one of the outstanding exploits of the Great War should be allowed to pass unnoticed here—scarcely a flag was flung to the breeze yesterday and the occasion went unmarked.

Yet Peterboro troops played a prominent part in the great victory, which took from the enemy a position which he considered impregnable and the possession of which was of the greatest strategic importance for the balance of the war.

From the early days of the conflict this dominant position had been the scope of sharp fighting, and in 1915 and 1916 the French, at a cost of 100,000 casualties, failed to carry the ridge.

General Byng began in January, 1917, to make preparations for the capture of Vimy Ridge. After he had worked out his plan of attack he communicated it in detail to all under his command—an entirely new departure in British Army practice. For weeks the plan was rehearsed behind the front line, and the glorious result fully justified Sir Julian Byng's brilliant strategic conception and fine battle tactics.

The attack began at half-past five in the morning of April 9, on a 12-mile front, the final objective being the summit of the Ridge, two and a half miles from the jumping-off trench, at 1.28 in the afternoon of the same day. The Canadian troops were at the final objective to the second; the whole of Vimy Ridge, with the exception of one point known as "The Pimple," was then held by the Canadian corps. "The Pimple" was won and consolidated the next day. In no other battle during the war up to that period had there been such close co-ordination by all arms, nor had there been such a terrific and concentrated artillery barrage.

After the summit of Vimy Ridge was reached the Canadian corps and other units of the British army drove the Germans further backward down to the Douai plains below. In three weeks' fighting the Canadian corps captured thousands of prisoners, many guns and much material.

General Byng's pride in this great success of the Canadian corps is shown by his choice of title when elevated to the peerage in 1919—Byng of Vimy.

Much of the ground over which the Canadians so valiantly fought nine years ago has been given in perpetuity to Canada by the French Government, so that this terrain is now a bit of land in France that is forever Canada, and upon this is being erected an imposing war memorial to the Canadians who there fell.

TRANSIENT TRADERS.

(From the Hamilton Spectator.)

The Municipal Committee of the Ontario Legis- when it voted a twelve months' hoist on Wed- last of the bill to license transient traders and s, was displaying considerably more considera- the house-to-house and mail-order gentry than the retail merchants of the Province who had protested against a practice that, in many instances, smacks of rank injustice to tax-paying shopkeepers. The designing of a measure that will control all transient traders and house-to-house solicitors, without being unfair to legitimate industry, admittedly is difficult, but the merchants have a right to expect that, in the several months intervening since attention was drawn to the unfair competition they were being subjected to, a satisfactory solution would have been worked out. Mr. W. C. Miller, Secretary of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association, speaking for 48,000 retailers, who contribute substantially to the maintenance of the municipalities of the Province, was not making an unreasonable request when he asked the Municipal Committee for an act that would compel their competitors to bear their fair share of this burden. The committee recognized that the retail merchants had a grievance, but held that "time did not remain in which to satisfactorily remedy it this season." In other words, the committee, by a vote of 12 to 9, placed itself on record as favoring a continuance for another year of an unfair practice that affects thousands of taxpayers, rather than offend a few outsiders who find Ontario a fertile stamping ground. It may be depended upon that the transient hawkers will make the most of the year of grace that has been granted them.

AN ADVANCE IN PRISON REFORM.

It may not be wisdom to make prison life too attractive, but there will be little division of opinion about the advisability of keeping inmates usefully employed and in pursuits which are as congenial as may be consistent with the limitations of the industrial work carried on. Nor will there be much protest against the prisoner receiving some reward for his services while confined and that reward being granted to his dependents. Adoption by the House of Commons of the motion of Miss Agnes MacPhail concerning productive labor and compensation for the inmates of penitentiaries consequently betokens a new and more humanitarian attitude towards those who are deprived of their liberties in payment for offences under the criminal code and the unanimity of the House in granting its support just about represents the state of public opinion.

Prison reform has made marked progress even within the memory of many now living. All that used to be considered necessary when a man or woman had been found guilty of a crime was to sentence him or her to incarceration for a certain period of time and allow the prisoner to remain in confinement until the term of his sentence had expired. How the prisoner employed his time, whether he did anything at all to while away the long hours except to brood upon his misfortune, was scarcely thought about. The governing motive was one of revenge and the prisoner reacted to that motive. He left the prison harboring a sense of injustice and keen resentment against his fellow-man, accompanied by a firm resolve to "get even" by committing fresh crime and attempting to escape punishment. Gradually things have changed as public opinion has inclined towards a more humanitarian point of view. First it was the stone pile upon which the prisoner was ordered to get busy, and then other occupations were opened to him and gladly did he avail himself of the opportunity to employ himself usefully. Those without trades were taught them and when they left the prisons were able to re-enter industry with greater prospects of success. This movement has been extended gradually in the penitentiaries of Canada until today, upon the word of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, the Minister of Justice, it is possible for the following articles, of use in branches of the Government service, to be manufactured by prison labor; all classes of canvas goods; furniture of all descriptions, in wood; all classes of galvanized and tin goods; clothing and the manufacture of uniforms; leather goods, including harness; bookbinding; boots and shoes; hickory handles of all descriptions; blacksmith shop work; stone-cutting; broom-making, and so on. Organized labor used to be hostile to the products of penitentiary workshops coming into competition with goods manufactured by free labor, even for the requirements of the Government. But that attitude also has changed and today the Trades and Labor Council of Canada is friendly to the use of prison labor in so far as filling the needs of the Government are concerned.

Of what great service the provision of a useful occupation for prisoners may be is illustrated in the following paragraph bearing a Milwaukee date line which has just gone the rounds of the press: "Six years ago Walter McDaniels entered the State Penitentiary at Waupun, a convicted gunman, a daring, desperate young man, who believed that he never had had a chance in life. On May 28 McDaniels is to be released from prison by executive order, a qualified electrical engineer and the inventor of electrical devices for which he holds valuable patents. Back of the penitentiary walls, where most men give up hope and fall into routine until the day comes for them to go back into the world, McDaniels planned a new life, even though the court had ordered him confined for 25 years." What McDaniels has done is being done upon a minor scale by many inmates of Canadian penal institutions. Taught trades or furnished with other instruction the means is being placed before them of becoming useful citizens and hundreds are completely rehabilitated and fail to enter the "repeater" class.

What the motion of Miss MacPhail, who has been throughout a firm friend of prison reform, provides for is the carrying-on of sufficient productive work to keep the inmates of penitentiaries employed and a granting of a share of the proceeds to dependents. In cases where there are no dependents, such proceeds are to be held in trust until release. This is a forward step which must meet with the approval of all those who are interested in the work of prison reform. Not only will the continuous employment of the prisoner be assured, but his dependents, who are often a charge upon municipalities, will be kept provided with some funds. And when the prison gates slam behind the inmate as he takes his departure, he will have more to his name than a new suit of clothes and five dollars in his pocket with which to face the world.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Legislature is through, but the Ontario Temperance Act still marches on.

One citizen declares that there are enough wading pools on every Peterboro street this weather to satisfy everybody's wants for the present anyway.

Figures in regard to the amount of chewing gum manufactured on this Continent suggests to a contemporary that here is another parking problem to solve.

It would be as well for motorists to understand early in the season that the 1926 models are not likely to be any more successful in knocking trains off level crossings than any of their predecessors.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR NUMBERED DAYS.

Most of us talk about our "numbered days," then proceed to waste weeks in an effort to fool ourselves with the thought that it is a little early for our real success—that we must wait a month or more until the moon is full, or for some equally insane idea governed by—Time.

The time to begin is now, the place is here, and the thing to do is first to get your mind fixed on this truth: Time is a thing that passes over us in a cold and indifferent way. It knows nothing of our successes, our sorrows, or our failures. Time is an ice-cold hand that leads us to the grave—that's all. Time is a great ship that carries its cargo of humans, but it never anchors.

Time is of no value unless we put into each hour our individual and intense purpose to win the thing that we consider worth while.

Give some men a thousand years in the very center o fthe most fertile valley in all Canada, and they would come out of this garden spot with a handful of worthless weeds and a spray of poison ivy.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

ANIMAL FRIEND REPLIES.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir—Your paper last evening contained a letter written by "A Poor Sheep," which, I am sure, appeared ridiculous to the majority of people who read it, especially to those who know anything at all about humane work. My first thought when reading this "poor sheep's" letter was this: I wonder if this "poor sheep" ever owned or loved an animal? It is quite evident he has never loved a dog or he would not end his letter by asking: "Are we going to have another plague of dogs?" One cannot quite understand why anyone would say such disparaging things about man's most noble and faithful friend, the dog. Human beings are committing crime and causing tragedies every day, yet if a dog does not walk the straight and narrow path, designed by some people, they are classed as a "plague." To a very great extent, dogs are like children, if they are properly trained they will get into little trouble. Children are often blamed when parents are really at fault, dogs are often blamed when the owners are at fault. But, then, some "poor sheep" couldn't love a dog anyway.

In one sense of the word the "poor sheep's" letter was signed correctly, but, in another way of looking at it "the poor sheep" was condemning the humane society, which no poor sheep or other animal would do if they could speak. However, I have decided that this "poor sheep" does not know anything about humane work or powers of the humane inspector. Some people would load every kind of work on the policeman, just because they are officers of the law. Policemen all over the world support humane work and render assistance to the inspector when needed and, in most places, they are made honorary members by the local humane societies. Why not leave children's aid work for the policeman, too. It would be just as sensible but is not done, because it is a work by itself, just as the Humane Society is a work by itself. At the same time these societies and the police officers co-operate and why shouldn't they? Humane societies are not organized for the purpose of antagonizing people, but rather to educate into ways of kindness, especially the children who will be the future citizens, and it is the purpose of every humane society to form a junior society in each city and town for the education of the children. There are a lot of people, who will not be educated to kindness. Any person who is not kind must be cruel. Every cruel person, if seen being cruel, is given a chance by a warning from the inspector, but no officer of the law will continue to warn people. This is where prosecution steps in, for people who will not accept a warning must be punished. A humane inspector is a constable or officer of the law, which permits him to act any place in the Province of Ontario. He has jurisdiction in the country as well as the town, and his powers are so great that he can force entrance into any building, erection, enclosure, car, truck, vehicle or vessel in which he has reasonable grounds for supposing that any animal is being ill-treated or neglected, and may remove the animal.

Would like to contradict the "poor sheep's" statement regarding everyone being a member of the humane society. No person is a member who has not paid their membership fee of $1.00, with the exception of honorary members, which are made so by the society. If everybody was a member in the way the "poor sheep" speaks of, I feel safe in saying the society would need to be ashamed of a lot of the members. The "poor sheep" would show much more sense if he would learn more about what a powerful organization the humane society is, all over the world, before passing his very narrow opinion regarding such a society. Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 9. — The Old Country market are not too good this week, but last advices are hopeful of an improvement. For top export steers $8.25 a cwt. was paid, but only a few went at this price. The bulk were bought from $7.25 to $8 a cwt. Not many heifers were had and these cost $7 to $7.50 a cwt. Bulls were in good local demand and a little higher and one made $6.15 a cwt. For export the prices paid were $5 to $5.50 a cwt. The one exporting firm will want about a similar number of cattle next week.

Butchers' cattle were in fair demand until Wednesday. Packers' buyers were not anxious and to affect sales prices in many instances were dropped 25 cents a cwt. Choice butchers were sold at $7.25, good butchers at $6.75, medium $6 to $6.25 and common $5 to $5.50 a cwt. Butchers' cows remain decidedly steady and choice cows sold over $6 a cwt. Fair to good cows were $5 to $5.50 and medium quality cows $4 a cwt. up. The stocker and feeder trade was slow but prices are higher than on butchers' cattle. One load of short-keeps sold at $7 a cwt. and other 900-lb. feeders brought $5.75 to $6.25 a cwt. The market does not appear to be in shape to take more than arrived this week.

With the Jew buyers on holiday, calves weakened early in the week, but firmed again on buying for Buffalo. Choice calves are now 13 cents, good calves 11 to 12 cents, medium 9 to 10 cents and common calves 6 to 8 cents a pound.

This week's supply of lambs were mostly from the west. These were about the right weight, averaging 92 lbs. each and sold from 14 1-4 to 14 3-4 cents a pound. Some heavier Ontario lambs brought 14 cents and the market is around 50 cents a cwt. higher. Spring lambs are selling from $10 to $16 each and choice sheep are bringing up to 9 cents a pound.

There was a fair run of hogs this week but the packers needed them rather badly and the price advanced from $12.50 a cwt. last week to $13 a cwt. f.o.b. Commission men think that difficulties in getting in supplies may temporarily advance the price further.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 9 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market to-day was quiet owing to the fact that foreign buyers did not respond to the higher prices asked by exporters.

The feature of the local cash grain trade was the demand from exporters for Manitoba wheat on spot for May loading and a sale of a round lot of No. 1 Northern was made at twenty cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, and a round lot of No. 2 Northern at fourteen cents per bushel over the same future, c.i.f. Montreal. In addition to this sales of several loads of tough No. 3 Canadian Western oats were made at 4 3-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and it was reported that the pool made sales of wheat at one to two cents per bushel under the market.

Owing to the very light receipts of Ontario and Quebec oats the

FLAMING OIL THREATENING TOWN IN CALIFORNIA HALTED BY WIND

Second Huge Oil Blaze Seething at Brea—Reservoirs, Refinery, Orange Groves and Three Handsome Dwellings Included in Mounting Losses.

FIRST FIRE DAMAGE $7,000,000.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 10 (Canadian Press).—The greatest oil fire at the Union Oil Company tank farm in San Luis Obispo, 200 miles north of here, was a dying monster last night, while on the same company's storage area at Brea, 20 miles south of Los Angeles, the second huge oil blaze still was a seething menace to that settlement.

Five of the flaming reservoirs at San Luis Obispo, where lightning started the blaze Wednesday, had virtually burned out yesterday. One was still active, a dozen smaller surface tanks had burned out or were losing their fury, and six or seven others of this size remained intact.

Revised estimates of oil loss here placed the aggregate at approximately 5,000,000 barrels, valued at about $7,000,000. The equipment loss was not estimated. The death list stood at two, A. H. and W. F. Seeber, father and son respectively.

Town Menaced.

At Brea, three reservoirs of a total capacity of 2,500,000 barrels still burned last night, while the overflow from these, also aflame, had crept to within an eighth of a mile of the western edge of the town. Fire-fighters believed that with a continuance of the favorable wind there would be no danger to the town itself, which also is protected by a 20-acre orange orchard and a ravine between the burning oil and the outskirts of the settlement.

Other damage at Brea included the partial destruction of a small oil refinery with an estimated loss of $34,000, at least three gasoline and distillate tanks of 10,000 barrels capacity each, which exploded and burned Thursday night; two orange and walnut orchards overflowed by the flaming oil and three handsome homes likewise practically wiped out.

Oil Company Insured.

The total financial loss at Brea is fixed in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. No loss of life was reported at Brea.

Officials of the oil company declared it was too early to estimate accurately the damage or say what percentage was covered by insurance.

They did say, however, that the losses would be covered substantially by insurance.

Texas Oil Fire.

LULING, Texas, April 10 (Canadian Press). — Lightning struck a 55,000 barrel oil tank on the Magnolia tank farm near here yesterday and set it afire. Fire holes were shot into the tank with small cannon late in the day and fire walls were being thrown up to prevent the flames from reaching nearby tanks.

You Wonder Why You Cannot Sleep

IF you could only sleep at night there would be some chance of getting back the nervous energy which is expended during the day.

But you cannot sleep. In the mornings you arise feeling tired and played out. By evening you are all in. Your nervous system is entirely exhausted.

"Is there no way to get out of this condition?" you ask. There is. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly you can feed the nerves back to health and vigor.

Perhaps you have never realized the cause of your sleeplessness. But this is the outstanding symptom of exhausted nerves. You may also have nervous headaches, indigestion and spells of despondency. You may be unduly sensitive to light and sound. You may be irritable and inclined to worry when there is no real cause. But inability to rest and sleep is one of the surest signs that you need the help of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to get back to health.

Nervous disorders do not get better of their own accord. You must supply the elements of Nature which are required to build up the depleted cells and these elements are most happily combined in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 60 cts. a box, all dealers or The Dr. A. BANDIT SHRIEKED AFTER SENTENCE

Realized Five Year Prison Term Back in Cells.

MONTREAL, Que., April 10 (Canadian Press).—In the short space of two minutes from a resigned and emotionless prisoner, Louis Decimo, who was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for his part in a conspiracy to hold up a city pay car, became a shrieking madman.

Decimo gave a nonchalent "very well" to Judge Enright as sentence was pronounced, turned on his heels and was led down the stairs and back to the cells. There the bars of the door reminded him of the real meaning of the words he had just heard from the Judge.

With a piercing scream he broke the silence of the court-house. "I am innocent. I swear by the body of Christ I am innocent. I've been framed. If I ever catch that —— I am no stool pigeon anyway. There is no justice in this town."

A moment later and he had thrown his coat off and it seemed that he would become violent. His shrieks increased in volume and he hurled a torrent of foul abuse at the Judge. All the other prisoners in the cell with him were cleared out and he was left alone with two guards to see that he did not harm himself.

When he was found it was believed his wound had been caused by the accidental discharge of his rifle, when he was at target practice in the woods.

MALVY TO FIGHT IN OWN DEFENSE

Freed From Restrictions as Minister By His Resignation.

SUCCESSOR NAMED.

PARIS, April 10. — (Canadian Press). — The instability of the French Cabinet, which formerly manifested itself particularly in frequent changes in the finance portfolio, switched to the Interior Department Friday when the Cabinet decided to transfer Senator Jean Durand from the Ministry of Agriculture to the Ministry of Interior, to succeed Louis Malvy, who resigned Thursday "for political reasons."

M. Malvy's departure from the Cabinet is regarded in political circles as a challenge to his adversaries in Parliament. He had told friends that his hands were so tied as a member of the Briand Cabinet that, when he was attacked, he was unable to fight back as he wanted.

Senator Roussel made it known that he intended soon to interpellate the Government on the trial of Malvy before the Senate, sitting as a high court, in 1918, which resulted in Malvy being convicted of defeatism. Announcement of this interpellation is said by many to have been largely responsible for M. Malvy's decision. He declared that he was adverse to having a defence made for him by M. Briand; he wanted to speak in his own behalf without the hindrance that attaches to a member of the Government, who is obliged to consider the political situation when fighting opposition under the present circumstances.

KING'S WHARF NEWS

KING'S WHARF, April 10.—The reecnt storms of the past two weeks made the roads in this locality impassible, but just at present the roads are in excellent shape. All hope for fine weather as feed is getting scarce as the winter was so long. The trappers are getting uneasy as the season now will be very short for the ice is sound yet. People are still crossng the ice here on Pigeon Lake.

Mr. William Powers, a former resident of this place, who has been in the West for the last two years has rented the farm of the late Andrew Morrissey and intends to farm again.

Mr. Patrick Dorgan is at present busy with his sawing outfit sawing wood in this locality.

The many friends of Mr. Richard Murtha regret to learn he is in a very serious condition at present and no hopes are held out for his recovery.

SAILOR LIABLE AS RUM RUNNER

Montreal Judge Decids Foreign Seaman Not Exempt From Law.

"JUMPED" HIS BAIL.

MONTREAL, April 10 (Canadian Press).—If foreign seamen sell liquor from their ships in Montreal then they must go to jail like any other law-breakers, Judge Cusson decided Friday when he found Feodor Jacobsen, seaman of the Norwegian ship Hastings County, guilty of a liquor law infraction and sentenced him to one month in Bordeaux, a fine of $200 or three more months.

As the accused jumped his bail of $500 soon after his arrest and has since changed ship, he was not there to hear the sentence, and counsel stated that there was no chance of getting him there. Forfeit of the $500 cash deposit was therefore ordered.

Under Foreign Flag.

The case that was thus settled has excited a great deal of attention at the courts, owing to the argument advanced by Joseph Cohen, counsel for the defence, who claimed that the province of Quebec had no jurisdiction when liquor was sold by sailors from a ship flying a foreign flag, as the principle of extra-territoriality protected the sailors from prosecution except in the courts of their own country.

Counsel for the Liquor Commission at once drew an alarming picture of a "rum row," not 12 miles out, but anchored in the harbor of Montreal.

Every Ship "Wide Open."

This state of affairs, with every ship "wide open" would be perfectly legal if the contention of the defence was upheld, they said.

Judge Cusson stated that while any offence connected solely with the administration of the ship might be governed by the principle of extra-territoriality, this could not apply when dealing with an offence such as selling liquor, in which the citizens of the province might be concerned.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 10.—Seven children, all under the age of fourteen years, were saved by their fourteen year old sister when the house and store of Mrs. W. G. Percy, postmistress at Boston Creek, was destroyed by fire. The girl managed to get the children out, though they were all sleeping on the second floor and the staircase was ablaze.

The origin of the fire is believed to have been overheating of the stove. Mrs. Percy was absent at the time but T. A. Cass, post office assistant, was in the house. He escaped without injuries.

The damage amounts to 15,000.

Justice - Mercy - and Humor In Police Court

LIFE PASSES IN KALEIDOSCOPIC PICTURE BEFORE MAGISTERIAL DAIS DAY AFTER DAY WHILE LAW'S GUARDIANS PLAY THEIR PARTS

City Police Court Is Haven Of Refuge For Many Unemployed on Cold Mornings of Winter—Others Come, Willy-Nilly, To See Justice Dispensed.

PETERBOROUGH OFFICIALS DILIGENT IN PROSECUTION OF ONEROUS DUTIES

Excuses Given in "Drunk" Cases Are as Foolish as Some Stories Told in "Having" and "Selling" O. T. A. Hear—Saturday Night Gatherings.

The law is a funny thing. It says you must do a certain thing, and, then instead of rewarding you if you do it, satisfies itself by sitting back and waiting for you not to do it, or to do it the wrong way. Then a little slip of paper, tastefully printed, is signed and sealed by the Magistrate, and delivered at the hand of a Police Constable. It reads something like this:

"Whereas you have this day been charged before the undersigned, a Police Magistrate for the City and County of Peterborough, for that you, at the City of Peterborough on the umteenth day of Septober did . . . " (here follows a recital of the offence with which you are charged).

"These are, therefore, to command you, in His Majesty's name, to be and appear before me at the Police Court in the said City to answer to the said charge, and to be further dealt with according to law. Herein fail not."

And, being a sensible citizen, you fail not.

At Police Court.

When you arrive at the Police Station on Water street sharp at ten o'clock in the morning, you are escorted to the court room upstairs. Of course, if you are a serious case you have been detained in the cell overnight, and have not trouble in finding your way to court. The cell is large and roomy, but not particularly home-like. Within the main cell are two or three steel-barred structures that have little use, and are mostly filled with bicycles and odds and ends of equipment. These are for the hard cases that seldom appear so far from the water front.

If you are one of the aforesaid serious cases, you are photographed and fingerprinted in the detective's office, where the glass in the door is guarded by wire and there is a fancy bolt to prevent a too-early departure.

But for the sake of friendliness in this article it is taken for granted that you are "up" for some minor infraction of the law, and in that case you will find the Magistrate, the Chief of Police, the Crown Attorney, and several lawyers and policemen, chatting and swopping stories in the Chief's office o on the lobby.

Promptly at ten o'clock the Magistrate enters the Court Room, and order is called. No more joking now, and the only stories told are from the witness box. In the spectator's sents are a number of visitors, varyi g according to the interest of the docket and the coldness of the morning. If the day is cold and raw there will be a dozen or so men who have nothing to do and seek relaxation in hearing the sometimes drab but often scintillating tales of witnesses and passages at arms. The witnesses are skilfully led by counsel, who see to it that the oath administered as they step into the box, specifying that they tell "The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth" is not violated, at least, not on their opponent's behalf.

No Rush Here.

Peterborough's police court is not one of the hurly-burly "next please" affairs that characterive some big cities, where twenty "drunk" charges are disposed of in half an hour and short shrift is given many accused in order to get through a heavy docket. Despite the care given to every case to see that justice is done, but not exceeded, the session seldom lasts beyond the sounding of the twelve o'clock horn from the C.G.E.—unless, indeed, a lengthy O.T.A case is being heard.

Magistrate O. A. Langley presides, his desk being raised a foot above the court room floor. To his left sits Chief Constable Samuel Newhall, and at his right is the witness box. Facing him are, first, the table for lawyers and reporters, then the prisoners' dock, and behind that the gallery.

The Chief calls for order, and everyone stands until the Magistrate has taken his seat, with a comprehensive nod to the lawyers. The docket is handed up to the occupant of the bench, who probably is already acquainted with many of the facts of cases, a percentage of which have been held over at the request of either defence counsel or the crown or by wish of the magistrate himself, who is not satisfied with certain statements and wishes to have them verified, or perhaps seeks time to think over a knotty legal problem.

Crown Prosecutor.

Next in importance to the magistrate in court is the Crown Attorney. This position, conscientiously upheld by George W. Hatton, K.C., in this jurisdiction, entails a lot of work, with the discouraging feature that there is often little to show for it. The crown attorney attends all charges that are called indictable offences, and conducts the case for the people. He sees to it that all witnesses are compelled to attend the court when wanted, and he institutes and carries on the part of the Crown in the prosecution of those who violate the laws of the land. He advises the coroners, consults with them as to the necessity for holding inquests, attends all inquests and sees that all possible evidence is secured that the jury may return a proper verdict. In the O.T.A. cases he handles all charges that are laid by the provincial constable, the city O.T.A. cases being pressed by City Solicitor Joseph Wearing, when called by Chief Newhall.

J. F. Strickland prosecutes the O.T.A. cases brought in by License Inspector Joseph Stewart. The chief constable attends to see that the magistrate has all the evidence before him, and to give his counsel when needed.

Upon the crown attorney devolves the responsibility for the prevention of crime and misdemeanors by properly prosecuting those guilty of breaking the laws, and between him and the magistrate the people are assured that justice, the pride of British peoples, will be meted out with fairness to both complainant and accused. The present incumbents of both offices in Peterborough are fearless in the despatch of their duties.

Record Is Kept.

Except in important cases, the magistrate himself keeps the record of evidence, Peterborough city court having no full-time reporter. In cases from which an appeal is likely to be taken, and in the preliminary hearings of indictable offences, a reporter is brought in to take the evidence verbatim. Usually the services of W. F. Johnston, himself a lawyer of experience, are requisitioned, and he takes down every word spoken by magistrate, witnesses, accused, and lawyers.

Whoever takes the evidence, all objections by counsel must be noted. If the case is appealed copies of the evidence must be supplied to all interested parties, so that the previous hearing may be intelligently reviewed. The record must be correct in every detail, since much may hang upon the interpretation of a single word.

It has often been remarked in the Peterborough court that the acquisition of a stenographic reporter would be of great value to all interested in almost any case. The lawyers lose a certain amount of value through having to wait between questions, the magistrate no doubt finds it difficult to follow the trend of the evidence while employed with the mechanical business of writing it down, and much valuable time is lost. As an instance of the intrinsic loss to a lawyer may be cited the difficulty of cross-examining in certain cases. Everyone knows the advantage of getting a witness "on the run" with a series of swift, incisive questions. This is impossible in the absence of a short-hand-equipped reporter.

Then, with the magistrate who has other important and often pressing duties to perform elsewhere; with two lawyers whose time is of high dollar and cent value; and with perhaps several witnesses who are losing time from their employment, the monetary loss aggregates a considerable sum.

Minor Charges.

What is not generally known to the public is the fact that hundreds of infractions of the law are never aired in police court. Every Saturday night Chief Newhall holds an informal reception in his office, and sometimes, when the guests are exceptionally numerous, in the court room. To this select affair are summoned scores of persons who have been guilty of slight misdemeanours during the week, and literally hundreds of young people of both sexes are carefully handled by the chief in a quiet personal n a uner in the course of a year.

There are many cases where people, acting in the heat of the moment, after some trouble, wish the police to step right in and arrest the supposed offender. But when the parties are brough together under the guidance of the chief, it is very often the case that they settle their differences and depart, if not actually arm-in-arm, at least on friendly relations once again. Then too there are unwary motorists who disregard the rules of the road and traffic regulations. A warning, says the chief, will, in most cases, prove as effective as a five dollar fine, and has the added advantage of keeping the respectable citizen from having a police court record and perhaps a grudge against the law. Such offences are often committed in an unwary moment, and for lapses of thought to which all are subject it would not be the best policy to push the case to the law's limit. So, says Chief Newhall, and there are hundreds of men adn women in Peterborough who have had his friendly warning and have never again offended.

The children—sometimes twenty-five in one evening—are brought in for all kinds of petty misdemeanours, and ends of equipment. These are for the hard cases that seldom appear so far from the water front.

If you are one of the aforesaid serious cases, you are photographed and fingerprinted in the detective's office, where the glass in the door is guarded by wire and there is a fancy bolt to prevent a too-early departure.

But for the sake of friendliness in this article it is taken for granted that you are "up" for some minor infraction of the law, and in that case you will find the Magistrate, the Chief of Police, the Crown Attorney, and several lawyers and policemen, chatting and

Things Are Not Always .....What They Seem

Or—

The Mysterious Bottle.

(By Jeanette.)

He scowled savagely into the mirror. It was growing intolerable, this pain. For three days and nights now it had bothered him and, with characteristic indifference, he had refused to recognize the danger signals. But now something must be done. Today he must end it somehow. He jerked his tie from the overhanging bracket on which it reposed and the portrait of his fiancee fell with a dull thud to the floor and found a dusty lodging behind the trunk under the window. He heeded it not. With a fierce jerk that threatened to disrupt the delicate silk threads of his purple four-in-hand, he finished his dressing and slammed his way out of the room.

With a conventional politeness that had become habitual, when he said "good morning" to his landlady, he started to smile. Then he remembered and quickly his lips resumed their frigid cast. Frowning from the pain that his momentary effort had cost him, he attacked his egg with vigor. It was very softly done and the yellow contents splashed out unexpectedly and dribbled down the side of the egg-cup. His landlady, awed by his severe demeanor, asked him timidly, "Shall I cook you another egg, Mr. Green?"

"No," he answered shortly and proceeded to pepper his bacon very generously. When he lifted a piece to his mouth, the pepper reminded him of his disability and a few unaware specks caused him to groan aloud. Precipitately he put the piece back on the plate.

"What is the matter, Mr. Green?" said the landlady, putting her head in the swing door from the dining-room to the kitchen.

"Nothing," he shouted savagely and rose with haste, kicking the fat Pomeranian under the table and spilling his morning newspaper into the gooey egg. With a stifled oath, he rushed from the room, grabbed his coat and hat and emerged into the open air. The rush of a raw March gale caught him unaware and again he groaned and raised his hand helplessly to his mouth. Yes, something must be done at once. He strode down the block, entered the nearest drugstore with a purposeful demeanor, and, after a short and snappy altercation with the clerk, emerged with a small bottle.

Back at his boarding-house, the landlady soothed her fat pet's feelings and mournfully regarded the remains of Mr. Green's breakfast. "And him such a nice man usually," she reflected. "I wonder if something has happened between him and his young lady? There was no letter from her in the mail this morning."

She made her way upstairs and carefully inspected all of Mr. Green's unlocked bureau drawers, in an effort to discover anything damaging in the way of a broken engagement. Her search was fruitless until she came to the trunk. Here she retrieved the dusty photograph of the fair Beatrice, the lady love of the irascible Mr. Green, from its hiding-place behind the trunk. She nodded her head as she replaced it on the dresser.

Later, hanging out the clothes, for it was a blue Monday morning, she confided to her next-door neighbor, Mrs. Kraut, that Mr. Green and his girl had been having a falling-out. "He threw her photograph behind the trunk in his room and then he came downstairs and kicked Fluffy and marched out, slamming the door awful hard."

Mrs. Kraut nodded her head solemnly. She was a large woman of few words but a nod can convey much. She sighed as she went indoors. She was a great believer in the impermanency of love's young dream.

Mr. Green's stenographer jumped. She was used to her employer's somewhat hasty use of the call-button which summoned her to his office, but this morning saw him in a peculiar mood. It was the fourth time within fifteen minutes that she had been called in. There was something wrong with Mr. Green this morning. His mouth was twisted in a peculiar way and he appeared to have great difficulty in enunciating his words. Twice, she had gone in and found him regarding a small bottle with a fixed expression of countenance. Once he was smelling the contents speculatively. She confided some of her fears to the office boy and together they approached Mr. Green's door gingerly and peered through the keyhole. But he was only reading his mail, with a scowl on his usually unperturbed brow.

Later in the day, Miss Jenkins found her employer once more regarding the bottle with a peculiar look. It was a small bottle, she reported to Bert, the office boy, and was filled with a white liquid. When Mr. Green refused to go out to lunch, saying that he could not eat anything, Miss Jenkins grew alarmed. Coming back from her own luncheon, she told her friend Patrolman Murphy all about it.

"A small bottle, eh? and him that bad-tempered you don't know what to say to him? And refusing to go out for lunch. Well, now, let me see. I heard yesterday that he was caught short on the market and was trying to unload some of that Bolder Creek mine stock. I wonder ——" He rubbed his chin reflectively.

About mid-afternoon, Miss Jenkins grew very apprehensive. When Patrolman Murphy strolled in for a chat, she beckoned him to the door of Mr. Green's office and he applied his eye to the keyhole. Then, with a swift movement, he threw open the door and rushed in.

"No, you don't," he said loudly, seizing Mr. Green's hand, which was in the act of raising the small bottle to his lips. "Not if I can help it, me lad."

"What the ——" said Mr. Green savagely. He lowered his hand and eyed the officer of the law with suspicion and contempt.

"Suicide?" said Mr. Green. He commenced to laugh, then, remembering, contracted his face into a frown. Slowly he turned the bottle about and the officer read the label. Mr. Green pointed significantly to his mouth, and, with a red face, the policeman took his cap and withdrew. Without deigning a glance at the surprised Miss Jenkins, he left the office immediately.

Presently, Mr. Green emerged from his office. "You may go home now, Miss Jenkins," he said mildly. He did not smile, but, after casting one look at his determined countenance, the stenographer put on her coat and hat and went timidly out.

Mr. Green went home later. He regarded the little bottle for quite a while before he finally decided to leave. "Tonight will do," he muttered as he put it in the pocket of his coat. His unsmiling countenance did not brighten as he marched out. "Crabby cuss," murmured the elevator man who took him to the lower floor.

Still without smiling, Mr. Green partook of his evening meal. "He wouldn't touch my curried chicken and the only thing he seemed to enjoy was his tea. He had three cups." So his landlady reported later to Mrs. Kraut, who ruminated mildly, "They must have had a terrible fight."

Alone in his room, Mr. Green, with a glance at the bottle on his dresser, sat down firmly to read the paper. But he did not appear to be peaceful in mind. Constantly his glance strayed to the small bottle, and occasionally he would murmur under his breath. Once, when he commenced to laugh at a particularly funny saying in the "Wise and Otherwise" column, he changed the sound to a groan and smothered his mirth resolutely.

At last he threw the paper down and approached his dresser. With swift movements, he took off his collar and tie and then with a determined air, he took up the bottle. He regarded it fixedly.

"That druggist said this would do the trick," he muttered under his breath. "Well, we will see." With quick nngers, he removed the cork.

Then he applied the soothing lotion n the bottle to his badly cracked upper ip.

Interest in The Living Room

Panels can make a barr en room cozy and cheerful

Large expanses of wall space are always a problem when it comes to decorating. If they are left plain, they seem cold, barren and barnlike. If they are papered, the size of the wall requires a strong, large design, whose vigorous repetition all over the wall may prove irritating, unless great care is shown in the choice of design.

But, with the new style panels which are now coming into vogue, this problem fades into insignificance, for by the use of these new flexible panels, you can safely decorate your walls with any of the beautifully colored, vigorous designs so popular at present. This is possible simply because the paneling breaks up the continuous repeat of the design whose bright colors would be dangerous, if their recurrence was not interrupted in some way. Th panels, however, set off the bright color and strong figure into sections which look like so many beautiful paintings or hangings on a plain wall, and give the room a new and fascinating interest.

What more interesting treatment could be found for the large living room, illustrated above, than the handsome three-to-one panels into which it is divided? They support and enchance, not only the furniture, but the architecture of the room as well.

The lovely details of the mantelpiece and objects d'art are even more beautiful when accentuated by these mural panels. The whole room has a pleasant, friendly atmosphere and a sense of perfect proportion, neither of which could be obtained were the walls plain or completely covered with a pattern.

The latest development in panelling is the combination stile, or field and border, which can be applied over a completely papered wall in dozens of different ways, and produces a wonderful effect at a very small cost

Some have broken windows some have "swiped" small articles from lawns or back-yards some have used bad language. All are talked to kindly but firmly and set on the right path without the stigma that attaches to even a juvenile court hearing.

Unofficial, all of this, but regarded by many who have had experience as one of the best features of the administration of justice in Peterborough.

On being arraigned in the dock, the prisoner hears the charge read aloud by the magistrate. Sometimes the accused is not present in the court when his name is called, and in such a case a policeman repeats the name in the hallways at front and rear of the court room, so that no one may mistake the fact that he is wanted, if he is anywhere withing hearing. He has previously been served with the information that he will be wanted, and on the back of this paper is a declaration to be completed by the constable who serves it. On the non-appearance of the accused, the constable swears to serving the information, and a summons is issued. If necessary the person required is brought by force, but this seldom occurs, since the reluctance to appear might very well be taken as an admission of guilt.

When the charge is read in court the accused is asked if he is guilty or not guilty. There is no evading the answer. "Well, I guess I did it, but . . ." does not satisfy the court, and "I didn't mean to do it" is no answer. "Guilty" or "Not guilty" must be the reply. If the plea is "guilty" then there is nothing for the prosecution to do but state the facts to the court, if this is necessary. If the plea is "Not guilty," then the complainant proceeds to present the case before the magistrate.

The Witnesses' Oath.

Every witness must be sworn according to the time-honored custom in British courts. On entering the witness box the witness is handed a Bible, which he must hold in his right hand. It often requires a struggle on the part of a constable to get this part of the ceremony right, since many persons become excited and endeavour to change the Book to their left hands so that they may grasp the edge of the box with their right hands. The oath is administered by the magistrate: "In the case of the King against. . . . you swear that the evidence you shall give will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God." The witness kisses the Bible, and examination commences.

In Peterborough police court there are frequently witnesses of the Jewish faith, and in their cases a departure is made from the usual custom. While a New Testament is sufficient to bind a Gentile, it is necessary for the Jewish witness to be sworn upon one of the books of the Old Testament. And, during the ceremony he must wear his hat.

Strange though it may seem, more trouble is caused the court by witnesses who are inclined to break the third section of the oath than by any other class. There are very few who would deliberately perjure themselves by telling other than the truth most witnesses will tell the whole truth if skillfully led by counsel but a great many garrulous witnesses are disinclined to keep within the bounds of "nothing but the truth." Carried away by their feelings, which have responded to the excitement or pent-up emotion created by the fact that they are to confide their troubles to a court-room full of spectators, they often drop the essential things that are necessary to unravel the tangled skein and launch out into a mass of detail that has nothing to do with the case, and is therefore not true about it.

Drunks Ae Easy.

When a man is charged with "being drunk," he has usually no very good come-back. Very few men arrested for this breach of the O.T.A. can truthfully—or effectively—say they were not under the influence of something spirituous. There was one man who might have got away with a little jag, for he had been drinking hair oil and the perfume was certainly not reminiscent of the bar. But he couldn't stand up, and so evidence of the smell of liquor was not necessary.

Most of those charged under this section plead guilty, being anxious to dispense with all information that might be handed to the listeners in the back benches. After he pleads guilty the erstwhile drunk is politely asked to step into the witness box, take the oath, and tell the court where he obtained his liquor.

Getting this information out of the average witness is like drawing the cork out of an olive bottle with a toothpick. "I met a man on the street who asked me to have a drink" was an old standby, but in these days of general aridity magistrates are incredulous of good-natured souls who go about the highways and byways relieving thirst free of charge. In a year in police court almost every source is mentioned but the public drinking bubbler outside the police station door, and even this would not be too far-fetched for some.

Some have appeared with the likely story that they used rubbing alcohol, which, while sold for external application is said to be widely used for internal decoration purposes. Home-made wine is also given as the reason ofa particular inability to keep perpendicular. For a long time in Peterborough court almost every drunk blamed his condition on a certain brand of "Health Tonic." But whatever the cause, the fine for the first offence is about the same—$10 and costs.

And in this regard, at least, Peterborough's cost of living—or drinking—is lower than some other cities in Ontario. It cost $20 and up to get drunk (and caught) in Hamilton, and to stagger in front of a Toronto policema also cost a lot of money.

Troubles of Married Life.

There seems to be an increase in the number of non-support cases in recent years, or else the women are becoming less afraid of the publicity that is occasioned by an appeal to the authorities to have a careless hubby checked up. To the credit of all concerned in such cases, and for the information of those who said after reading the previous sentence "The world is getting worse", it must be said that very few cases are fought to the bitter end. Chief Newhall has wrought many reconcilitaions between husband and wife. Magistrate Langley lends his influence to placate the parties when they appear before him. Lawyers in Peterborough are singularly eager to preserve the marital relationship, and endeavour by all means in their power to effect a settlement with at least a reasonable chance of happiness succeeding for the parties.

In this connection the work of the police matron is seen. Many women who have grievances to air feel much more at ease if they have an intermediary, such as the present incumbent of the office, Mrs. Higden, wife of Major Higden, local commander of the Salvation Army. To the police matron many women tell their troubles, and in return obtain the best possible advice as to their mode of redress. The law is a queer instrument to the average woman, as it is to many men, and the inclusion of a woman on the staff of the Peterborough police officials is a step forward well in line with the present progress of womankind.

It is thought by many who have been compelled by duty to attend cases in which family troubles are aired that the hearings should be in closed court. It is significant that police and the members of the legal profession all combine to settle such cases, and yet many people attend the trial and go out to spread the innermost secrets of the home life of the parties, making for greater disruption than ever. It is in the interest of encouraging a reunion and for the protection of the home relationship that the press does not usually publish the details of family troubles, thus co-operating with the officers of the court and others.

O. T. A. Charges.

Many people find the O.T.A. cases the most interesting on the docket, but there is a sameness in them that palls after a time. Next to "drunk" charges in number come other breaches of the act, and the interesting part of these charges is the defense.

It is safe to say that the evidence given in some O.T.A. cases borders more flagrantly on perjury than in any other class of criminal charges. The special officers, when they are employed, usually have almost direct contrary evidence to offer the court than the accused and his witnesses. Much depends upon the credulity of the magistrate, or the defense story. Able Peterborough lawyers have made "spotters" look foolish on more than one occasion by producing an ingenious defense built around the story of the accused, and it is right here that the magistrate is called upon to use that sense of judgment that shall find out who is lying and who is not.

Very few O.T.A. prisoners plead guilty unless they are caught red-handed. When it comes to a second or third offense in which imprisonment is imposed without the option of a fine, then the battle of wits between the prosecuting attorney and the defending counsel is something worth witnessing.

It is noteworthy that in Peterborough, owing to the continued vigilance of Chief Newhall, large quantities of liquor are not kept in stock in the city. The source of supply is outside the city, and from this the retailers draw their small stocks.

It is difficult for the police to make a capture. They notice a great many visitors at a certain house, and decide to make a raid. While they are gaining admittance the occupants are pouring the small stock of liquor down the kitchen sink with the water tap running full speed to carry away the telltale evidence. Without evidence—and it must be intoxicating evidence—there is no case.

Magisterial Mannerisms.

Mr. Langley, who has been police magistrate for Peterborough City since the retirement of Magistrate D. W. Dumble in 1921, is the soul of courtesy to the men and women who appear in court before him both as complainants and accused. Sometimes the volubility and irrelevant evidence of a witness may invoke a sharp rebuke, but not until gentleness, persuasion, and a warning have failed to secure attention to the directions of the court.

Magistrate Langley is not given to much humor from the bench, though he always has the ability to put in a statement that is apt, and he appreciates the opportunity to "chivvy" a lawyer who has tried to "put one over" him. He gives a broad interpretation to the rules of evidence, being inclined to admit anything really admissable if it will assist in clearing up the case with justice to all.

Life is not all sweet to a magistrate who must sit day after day in judgment upon the frailties of human nature, but Magistrate Langley has maintained a bright outlook that carries him swiftly from the drab environment of the court to a witty discussion of everyday affairs. He is well-read and a good listener; a tennis player of renown and an admirer of good sport of any kind.

Interesting Stories from Main Street, Peterboro

SAVINGS DEPOSITS OF CANADIANS ARE INCREASING MOST RAPIDLY

UPWARD TREND HERE.

Bonds and Insurance Are Favorite Ways of Investing.

If savings are a true indication of prosperity, the Dominion of Canada today is going ahead by leaps and bounds. According to the financial Post Survey, there was an increase in savings deposits in the Chartered banks of over 17 million dollars between 1924 and 1925, which equals the peak period of 1920.

Of course, the large crops harvested in the West are an appreciable factor in this connection and while there has been considerable unemployment in many of the larger cities which a person would naturally think would affect the savings accounts such has not been the case.

The people generally affected by periods of dullness and depression are those who even in boom times earn their bread, as it were, by the day, and seldom if ever have money enough to put by for the rainy day.

One of Peterborough's most prominent bank managers told The Examiner that savings were not decreasing but were simply taking different forms. The tendency today, he said, is to make use of good bond issues, a habit which the citizens formed during the war period.

This habit is becoming more marked as time goes on, and the big brokerage and insurance companies are today showing bigger returns than ever before in their history. The biggest opposition the chartered banks have to meet today is the insurance companies who in the form of policies are able to guarantee the investor certain specified returns or in the event of his death, they guarantee his beneficiary a stated lump sum. This usually is an attractive proposition to young persons as they see in round figures their ambition achieved and in most cases will strive harder to realize it under these circumstances.

Another reason for the increase in savings is the fact that the country is full of "timid" money that is, money that is being held by people who are afraid to invest it in industry and this retards the progress of manufacturing and other pursuits so necessary to the financial wellbeing if prosperity is to reign among its citizens. The people who hold this money are afraid of industrial investments, it is said, for fear of the bugbear of taxation which some claim has stifled industry in the Dominion for the past three years. Sir John Aird, speaking at the recent Canadian Tax Conference, said: "a situation was disclosed in which one industry with branches throughout the Dominion had to comply with the intricacies of 33 different tax enactments, all continually in a state of change and another found that it had filed 62 different official returns for taxing purposes within a year."

Upward Trend Here.

Contrary to general opinion the savings accounts of the citizens generally have not been touched to any appreciable extent. Despite the fact that each year sees an increasing number of new automobiles upon the streets, and finds luxuries in the homes such as electric stoves and washing machines, savings accounts as a whole continue on the upward grade.

This surely is a token of prosperity as it takes money to purchase these luxuries and the money must be forthcoming or the retailer could not keep in business. Canada is slowly but surely getting on the move and prospects in business generally indicate that better times and incidentally larger savings are ahead.

MANY ROASTS AND STEAKS CUT FROM VARIOUS PARTS OF BEEF

Twelve Varieties of Roast and Six of Steak Sold in Peterborough.

VARY IN PRICE.

Some Very Tasty Parts of Animal Sell Very Cheaply.

The housewife of to-day when giving an order over the phone to the butcher generally asks for a roast of so many pounds or for so many pounds of steak.

It never enters into her mind that there are at least twelve kinds of roasts and six kinds of steaks with a few special ones thrown in; but really the same kind of steak under a different name.

In the city of Peterborough the number of kinds of steaks and roasts sold in the butcher shop is much lower in number than in some of the very large cities for there is not the demand for special cuts of meat.

Roasts on Front Quarter.

The different kinds of roasts found in city butcher shops to-day go under various names. Starting from the front of the animal we first have the chuck roast which is cut off the fore part of the shoulder. This roast is also called the blade and makes a very nice stew or boiling piece. Then there is the arm roast which is cut off the shoulder. This also makes a very nice stewing and boiling piece. From the lower back part of the shoulder we have the brisket roast which is a roast which makes a very nice stewing or boiling piece and also a very nice roast when roasted properly; but unfortunately few people know how to roast it. The cut which is taken off the rib nearest the brisket and really the best part of the brisket is called the plate roast which is a very nice roasting piece. From the other part of the ribs we have cut the rib roast which is often called the standing or rolled roast as housewives often get the butcher to roll it after the bone is taken out.

On the Hind Quarter.

From the hinderpart of the animal we get the porterhouse roast which, when cut up, goes as porterhouse steak and T-bone steak. Then there is a short sirloin roast, the proper sirloin roast and the rump roast. The last is cut up into sections by some butchers and sold in this style. Then we have the round steak roast. This and the porterhouse and sirloin roast are the three best roasts on the market and are bought by those who are able to pay for expensive meat. The shoulder roast is sold as a cheap roast. The lower round roast is not as good a roast as the others and is sometimes called the wedgehouse roast. Then for good stewing roasts we have the flank roasts and the four shank roasts.

Housewives seem to know very little about the brisket roast but in most butchers' estimation it is a very nourishing and tasty morsel of meat and is certainly more economical to buy than other pieces of meat.

There are not many kinds of steak sold in this city but several cuts go under many different names.

We have the sirloin steak which is also known as the hip bone steak which is considered the best steak on the market. Then there is the round steak, porterhouse steak which also goes under T-bone steak, under cut steak, wing steak and clubhouse steak. On the front quarter the butcher cuts the shoulder steak, flank steak and chewing steak which is cut off the neck and shank.

Young Anima's Good Meat.

The two best meats found in a butcher shop are cuts off a steer two or three years old. This meat is usually creamy in color, not yellow like other kinds of meats. The meat which is known as coming from a baby beef which really is a calf under a year old that has been fed on chop and its mother's milk.

The day has passed when there is any waste in the butcher shop unless it is caused by some bruises made by the slaughter house man. The spots are generally blue or black in color.

Good Beef in Ten Days.

A very wrong impression is held by some people in regard to the length of time the beef should be killed before it is fit to eat. Some say it should be hung two or three weeks but this is a wrong idea altogether as beef is at its best between three and ten days, according to the weather, as after ten days it begins to lose its flavor.

No. 6.

MR. GEORGE S. KINGDON.

Old Peterborough is fast passing away. The days when six hundred lumber-jacks met going and coming in a little town with one constable have disappeared. The days when teams of four and six horses drew great loads of lumber on huge, heavy wagons four miles from the Red mills of Campbell and Hughson over roads they had cut to pieces, to the present G. T. R. station have gone. A little internal combustion engine and a few gallons of gasoline would have done the work of all this cumbrous equipment. The days of the big lumber mills of McDougall and Ludgate on Little Lake of the late Samuel Dickson, of Hilliard, of Snider (just above the waterworks dam), of the Red or Nassau mills of Charles Perry, of the Stricklands at Lakefield, have vanished with the lofty pine. The days when the French-Canadians from Quebec sang their gay songs as they went in jolting wagon-loads to our shanties have passed. The days when the shop-boy got up early in the morning to take down heavy wooden shutters and remained late at night to put them up are no more—for which no doubt the toiling shop-boy is grateful. The days of the splendid regattas of four-oars, singles, and of the canoe, with fine athletic men and applauding crowds have passed. The Y. M. C. A. and similar institutions are now training the young and making them strong and fit and hockey provides a thrill unknown in the old days but the "physiogs" of the Queen's birthday—where are they? It is true that the masquerade ice-carnival has survived and the general style of skating has improved but the Norwegian ski has replaced the Canadian snowshoe and the tobaggan, the sled and bobs. Music instead of being the privilege of the few is now everywhere and litrally in the air. Tennis has taken the place of croquet and alas!—golf of cricket. Tempora Mutantur

Benevolence now called charity had not yet become standardised and people did from a modest kindly motive what has now been reduced to a well-advertised business. We have saved our money and lost a vast deal more. The real contrast between the past and present is the reduction of everything nowadays, even kindness to a business basis. We are becoming coarse and crude. It is first reflected in the home. That is not what it used to be. It was the hearth of our home-gatherings the centre of our love the place of entertainment the very heart of all our people old and young. What is it now? But it will all come right again. It must. God and the human heart are real. Laudator temporis acti.

George Samuel Kindgon, now 83 years o age, is the son of William Kindgon, cooper, who came from Devonshire, England, and established himself in business and erected his dwelling house at the south-east corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, where the Salvation Army barracks and hal and a red-brick house now stand Here George S. Kingdon was born and here he continued until, at the age of 26 years, he succeeded his father in business, still later moving to the hill below the Queen Alexandra school. Mr. Kingdon married Miss Rook of Newburg, Ontario, 56 years ago. He sold out his business to his sons, Orville and Stanley, in 1920, since which date he has lived retired.

Mr. Kingdon has seen the price of barrels go up from 28 cents in his early days to 85 cents, the present price, and has manufactured as many as eighty thousand barrels in a year, selling the product to mills in this city and district. The photographs accompanying this sketch are of Mr. Kingdon and Mrs. Kingdon nine years ago.

Mr. Kingdon's military experience began in 1860-1, the year of the formation of the 57 Battalion. The Canadian government was very anxious on account of unrest in the United States, to form as many regiments as possible and the military authorities notified the citizens of Peterborough that if the required quota for the 57th was not speedily made up by volunteers the draft would be immediately instituted. The first commanding officer of this battalion was Lt.-Col. Edwin Poole, who in 1866 became C. O. of the Flying Brigade which was despatched along the frontier from Toronto to Kingston to meet the enemy if he appeared. The second C. O. of this battalion was Lt.-Col. Johnston, father of Mr. A. F. Johnston, who kept a custom tailor-shop four doors north of the present Crown Apartments and now numbered 428 Water street. He was a brother of the former Chief Constable George Johnston. The third commanding officer of the battalion was Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers, afterwards postmaster who later on became commander of the 3rd Prince of Wales's Dragoons. Mr. Kingdon was employed for a short time in teaming on the right-of-way of the railway, then being built from Port Hope and Millbrook to Peterborough, known as the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway, with a branch line to Peterborough. Times and customs have changed considerably since Mr. Kingdon was a young man.

Mr. Kingdon has some interesting memories of the old volunteer fire brigade which put out fires by a pumping apparatus with which the firemen did the pumping, assisted sometimes by spectators. The most serious conflagration which he remembers was that of a row of shops along where Woolworth's and Grafton's are now. The shops were of roughcast and the fire-engine was placed down at the creek behind Helen's foundry, now the Lockworks. It is interesting to note that the French word for fireman is pompier, or pumper, showing that Peterborough was then on a level with the times. Another outstanding fire was on the opposite side of George street in the crockery shop of Mr. MacNeil, the old auctioneer who lived however in a roughcast house where Dr. Carmichael's residence stands opposite the Court House. Mr. MacNeil's chief clerk at the time was a Mr. Dundas, who afterwards went to Lindsay and became head of the firm of Dundas and Flavelle Bros. The fire extended to the shop of Wm. Coulter, chemist and druggist. All this would be seventy years ago. There was a fire also near Phelan's hotel in Simcoe street which did some damage. Phelan's hotel was originally a stone dwelling built and lived in by the father of Harry and Richard Winch. After the death of Mr. and Mrs. Winch, the Toronto bank established itself there and it was in turn succeeded by the well-known river pilot, Edward Phelan, who conducted an excellent hotel there for many years. Sometimes the pumpers who ranged themselves on each side of the pump-engine at long poles fastened to it in such a manner that a number could take part in the frantic up-and-down motion of pumping, at one time, called upon the spectators for help and if there was little or no response ill-feeling arose and there was some rough talk. In a word the fire continued or not as the wind of the pumpers held out or otherwise. If the present-day firemen get a thousand dollars a year those old-time volunteers should have got a million.

Mr. Kingdon's first remembrance of school was in a building where the Free Methodist Church stands, east of the C. N. R. station. A Mr. Wetherhed dispensed learning there and was employed by the town, which paid his salary chiefly out of the fees charged the scholars.

Lamb on the open market was five cents a pound in those days and beef 4½ cents. Potatoes, 40 cents a bag and other vegetables accordingly, hay, $6 to $8 a ton and wheat about 75 cents to a dollar, with oats 25 cents a bushel. It will be remembered by the reader that in the earlier part of this narrative it was stated that the young lad Kingdon "teamed" at the making of the old Midland railway. As a matter of fact, he drove a cart with one horse for a short time on this work. He found difficulty in driving his horse through the bushes and down alongside the right-of-way whereupon his boss told him that if he didn't swear at the horse he would accomplish little. When the lad's parents heard of this they directed their son to quit work at once. It is interesting to compare the times in this particular and to see how little they have changed. Seventy years ago there was no band in Peterborough at least none quite as good as the present 57th and the Salvation Army was still in the "womb of time." It was not long after this time that McKellar and Cameron's huge roughcast hardware shop on the Toronto bank corner was burned, accompanied by explosions of gunpowder and the burning down of adjacent shops. The chief of the fire brigade called loudly through his trumpet for volunteers and it was probably in consequence of the weak response that an improvement was resolved upon by the city fathers in the fire-fighting apparatus. What old-timer can hear without emotion a reference to the coming of the first steam fire-engine which did its own pump work and did it well with the immortal Jim English as engineer. A first practice was held in Ashburnham, or "Scotch Village," then a separate municipality or unattached suburb, the suction-hose being laid in Rogers's raceway, now buried by the new bridge which has pretty nearly buried the town also. So powerful was the engine that it ripped shingles off Swanston's hotel nearly a thousand feet away. There was much satisfaction over the engine's showing and the volunteer pumper became a man of the past. The damage to the shingles was never paid for, an ill-mannered municipal custom continued to this day. Young men who played games, played them anywhere, but young women played only the piano. Lessons were given in oil-painting which was in great vogue. Public exhibitions by the pupils were held and if the subject of a work could be recognized the painter or drawer took first prize. All drawing now is done by lottery, the spectator getting the prize. It is said that a locality passes into history when its "oldest inhabitants" are born it it and not imported like newcomers to a new country. By this test Peterborough is rapidly qualifying for that distinction. Mr. Kingdon wears the medal for the Fenian raid.

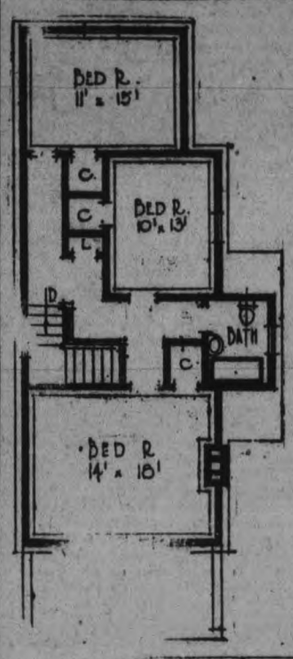
A Narrow House



(By Horwood and Horwood, Registered Architects.)

One of the most difficult problems of small house design is the narrow house on the narrow lot, and the resulting structure is usually of a high and stilted appearance. The usual method of entering the house at the front, with the width of hall required, generally results in rooms that are just a little too small for their purposes.

The extreme width of the design here shown is 24 ft. and might be built on a 35-foot lot, preferably facing south. The fact that the entrance is at the side, and the stair hall cuts across the house, makes it possible to have living-room and dining-room of good workable sizes. A vestibule, so necessary in the Canadian climate, is provided, and a lighted and ventilated coat room.

The exterior is finished in stucco of rough trowel finish applied on metal lath to double sheathed and insulated frame construction. The roof is covered with stained cedar shingles in dull brown. The sun room is heated, but may be opened up in summer and used as a verandah, making the space available all the year round. The approximate cost of this house is $6,400.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address, Horwood and Horwood, architects, Ottawa, Ontario.

NO AGREEMENT IS REACHED ON FIRE PROTECTION

Representatives of North Monaghan Meet With Committee of Council.

MUCH DISCUSSION.

Other Townships Not Represented at Last Night's Meeting.

North Monaghan was the only township represented at the committee meeting last night with the representatives of the city council to consider the question of fire protection in the surrounding townships of the city, and no agreement was reached. Reeve Rye, Gerald Wood and Bruce Johnston represented North Monaghan, while Mayor Holloway, Aldermen Turner and Fife represented the city. Alderman Denne and Fire Chief Gimblett also sat in at the committee meeting. Ald. Turner occupied the chair. Considerable disagreement arose between the representatives of the two municipalities. The members of the city council were not anxious to withdraw all fire protection from the townships, as they did not think it right, and the members of the townships did not seem very anxious to come to any agreement with the members of the city council committee.

Strife betwen the two municipalities broke out in many instances along many different lines. The committee of the city council demanded that something should be done, as at present the way things are, the city is losing money when the men go to township fires, and the ratepayers and manufacturers of the city are demanding that some different arrangement be entered into. The members of the township could not see eye to eye with the rest of the committee, and as a result very little was accomplished, with a growing feeling amongst the city aldermen that all township fire protection should be done away with and the townships left to form some plan of fire protection of their own.

Mr. Rye himself is in favor of a suburban area, designated in the township of North Monaghan, this area to be governed by a commission and this commission to co-operate with the city council at a later date.

Alderman Turner in his opening remarks, pointed out that every so often an alarm was coming into the fire department asking that the department go to the assistance of some person in one of the surrounding townships whose buildings were being burnt. The way the present arrangements are, the person has to get in touch with the mayor or chairman of the fire committee, and he orders the fire department out. This arrangement has received much criticism from the ratepayers of the city as the fire equipment may be out in the country when a fire breaks out in the city. The chairman said that the city had an investment of $125,000 in fire equipment and this department cost the city about $56,000 a year to maintain. Giving the may the authority to send the department out to a fire in the townships has not proved very satisfactory, even when the terms are $100 for the first hour and $15 for each subsequent hour, because in quite a few cases the services of the fire department have not been paid for. The alarms in the city cost on an average of $135 each and some of these are false alarms. In the case of the townships, the department is never called out to the township unless it is a real fire, thus by this old arrangement the city has been losing money.

This meeting was called, he concluded, to discuss a more satisfactory arrangement between the city and townships adjacent to the city.

H. B. Rye, reeve of North Monaghan, the township from which the great majority of the calls come, was asked his opinion on the question, and if he had any suggestion to make.

Mr. Rye stated that he had been accused of blocking this question by the members of city council, but he claimed that in 1923 he had the suburban development plan voted on in his township and it was defeated. By the surburban area plan certain parts of the township would be set aside and a commission elected by the people to lok after the fire needs of that community amongst other things. Mr. Rye also stated that the only time he had asked the fire department to come out to a fire in the township, at which time he had guaranteed the payment he had been refused the service. Mr. Rye spoke in favor of the suburban area and said he could with the consent of his council designate the area and at the next municpial elections, the electors could nominate and elect a commission, if they so desired.

Ald. Fife said apparently the people in the townships have not demanded fire protection, and he would be in favor of stopping all assistance to the townships except in cases where beforehand, property owners in the townships had signed a declaration promising to pay the fire department if called to a fire at their property.

Alderman Denne suggested drawing up a resolution not giving any fire protection to the townships and thus bring this matter to a head.

Gerald Wood of North Monaghan suggested that the city have some of a small pumper and when a call is sent in this pumper should be sent out and the services pair for by the property owner whose property was being destroyed.

The chairman then asked Mr. Rye if it would be possible to map out a suburban area, and Mr. Rye stated that the North Monaghan council meets on Monday and he thought he knew his council well enough that the area could be designated and in the meantime the whole township could be responsible for any fire calls sent in to the city fire department until such a time the commission of this area is able to act.

This plan did not suit Alderman Fife and he introduced a resolution to the effect that all service to to townships be withdrawn unless the property owner beforehand has signed some sort of a document promising to pay for the services of the department of called out to his dwellings if need should arise. Ald. Fife thought this manner of dealing with things would bring everything to a head.

Mr. Rye, on the other hand, stated that such a resolution would do more harm than good, and under those terms it would be impossible to establish a suburban area with a commission running things. Mayor Holloway favored giving Mr. Rye a chance to designate his suburban area and then meet the committee again in a week or so. Alderman Fife did not think they were getting anywhere by this arrangement and at this the meeting adjourned to met again at a later date.

IN POLICE COURT.

Charles Emmory, a resident of Belmont Township appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley in Havelock yesterday on a charge of having carnal knowledge of a girl under 14 years of age. Accused pleaded not guilty. G. W. Hatton, K.C., represented the Crown and B. E. Park, Peterborough, appeared for the accused. Doctors Holdcroft and Thompson gave evidence on behalf of the Crown.

Magistrate Langley acquitted the accused, as there was, he said, no corrobative evidence.

Joseph Capper, who was arrested by Provincial Constable N. F. Maker on a charge of stealing a trunk and sundry other articles appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning. The accused pleaded guilty.

Crown Attorney, G. W. Hatton asked for a remand in order to enable him to investigate the man's record.

Mr. Langley remanded him until April 15.

Three boys appeared before Magistrate Langley this morning charged with stealing two caddies of tobacco from the C.N.R. Station at Birdsall's on Sunday last and were let go on suspended sentence on condition that each of then furnished a bond for $250 to keep the peace.

Mr. Wearing appeared for one boy, who is a ward of the Children's Aid Society, and the other two boys had no counsel. Mr. Hatton appeared for the crown.

Although Mr. Wearing knew little about the other two boys, he pleaded that clemency be shown them. The three boys were never in trouble before, stated Mr. Wearing; they took this tobacco as a boyish prank, as none of them use it; and there was no evidence to show that they sold it. His client has been in the employ of a farmer in Asphodel and has given good service. He has been used as one of the family and never has his employer had any trouble with him. He joined the church a year ago and during his nine years with this employer has has saved quite a little sum of money, Mr. Wearing stated. As to the other two boys, it was their first offence. One was the son of a farmer and the other a boy who worked out. Mr. Wearing pointed out that although it was a criminal offence, he thought that the harm done to these boys by sending them down for a term of years would not be at all in keeping with the deed done. The farmer was willing to keep this boy in his employ, stated Mr. Wearing. The farmer in whose employ one of the other boys works, stated that he found this boy trustful in every respect and a good worker.

Crown Attorney Hatton spoke briefly, pointing out that it was not the small value of the property taken that should be considered, but the offence done, and as it is a criminal one, he thought some punishment should be meted out. He also stated he believed that two of them were caught stealing water-melons once, but this case was settled out of court. This offence was looked upon as a trick of most lively boys by the court. Mr. Hatton stated that the railway authorities did not desire these boys severely punished and he himself would be satisfied if a suitable bond was furnished by someone, to let them out on suspended sentence and a remand granted.

The owner of the store to which the tobacco was consigned stated that as part of the tobacco had been found, which was there on exhibit, before the magistrate, he would waive all claims against the C.N.R. for damages if the boys put up $8.50 for the tobacco lost.

The magistrate said he would let the boys go on remand if each furnished a bond for $250 that he would keep the peace and would pay $27.50 the expenses of the court and $8.50 to the store keeper for the tobacco lost.

Mrs. M. Capson Tells Why She Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

EDGETT'S LANDING, N.B., April 9.—(Special).—"I have used about twenty-five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and I would not be with out them in the house now. I have suffered something terrible with backache and have got great relief by taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would recommend them to anyone very highly."

Mrs. M. Capson, who sends this statement, feels she owes it to other sufferers to tell them how she found relief.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are known all over Canada as the old Canadian kidney remedy. They are known by the good work they have done. The work of the kidneys is to keep the blood pure. SERIOUSLY ILL.

Brigadier-General W. St. Pierre Hughes, superintendent of penitentiaries and brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes, is seriously ill in Ottawa.

BODY OF CHILD TORN BY DOGS

girl's parents, a boarding house on the main street near the hotel.

The girl's father, Larry McDonald, a well-known fish-peddler of the district, was buried last Monday. The girl, Norma, is one of a family of twenty-two children. She was taken into custody by Constable Cousans this afternoon.

Dr. F. M. Dure, the coroner, empanelled a jury this morning, which viewed the remains of the infant. A post-morten examination will probably be held tomorrow, to determine exactly whether the child was born dead, something which will have a strong bearing on the case. Later, an inquest will be held. Members of the jury are as follows:

W. H. Porte (foreman), H. A. Roblin, J. A. Yake, T. H. Tweddle, John Marshall, A. P. Bullock, Fred Wright, J. H. Frise, and John McCann.

Norma McDonald was taken to the jail at Cobourg this afternoon.

In her confession she said that the child was born dead, and that she did not think it was any harm to conceal the body. She said that her mother knew nothing about the affair, and that there was no way to bury it.

The postmortem will determine whether the child was born alive or not.

The McDonald girl was formerly employed at the evaporation plant here up till about three months ago. Since that time she has seldom been seen in public. Her conditions appears to have been well known to all the residents of the village, and suspicion fastened upon her when the remains of the child were found.

International Survey Of Broadcasting Stations Concludes Women Better Radio Fans Than Men

WOMEN are better radio fans than men!

They're greater "sports," they're more highbrow, they have more intelligent demands, they are freer with praise.

This conclusion is drawn from an international survey of broadcasting stations made by The Examiner through NEA Service, Inc.

From a study of all the fan letters sent to these broadcasters and observation of the developing interest in purely women's affairs, the following facts are brought out:

1. Time devoted purely to women's affairs has increased in many cases as high as 100 per cent in the short period of three months.
2. More stations have been adding programs for women that a few months ago hadn't thought of this feature.
3. By far the majority of letters from fans are written by women.
4. Greater interest, higher appreciation, more praise are shown in women's letters than in men's.

Cooking First, Beauty Next

This doesn't include the wide popularity of the hours devoted especially to women. Under this topic, the subjects, in order of their demand and the time devoted to them by the broadcasters, are:

1. Household science, including budget, menus, recipes, etc.
2. Health and beauty talks.
3. General women's interests, including politics, etiquette, women's club features, home entertaining.
4. Child welfare and other problems of motherhood.
5. Interior decoration.
6. Fashions.

Outside of the subjects devoted mostly for women's benefit, women show most interest in classic and semi-classic music, religious and educational talks, and the tunes of former days. Yet occasionally there are demands from women for more travel talks and even more jazz, despite the tendency against this.

Men Don't Write as Much.

In considering the preponderance of women's fan letters over men's, the point may be brough out that men are lazier correspondents.

"Possibly three-fourths of our letters come from women fans," writes John V. Hanlon of Radio Station WCAE at Fittsburgh. "But probably 65 per cent of the radio listeners are men. The men do not take the trouble to write very often."

However, the person who is interested enough to write a fan letter is the greater fan, even though probably in the minority.

Most of the broadcasters answering the questionnaire for this survey comment on the intelligence of women's demands and on the importance of the women's features in broadcasting.

"The mail from women as a rule is much more concise than that received from men," is a typical report sent by Jean Sargent, pioneer woman broadcaster now with station WHT at Chicago.

"They are keener to note faults," she goes on, "and quicker to praise when it is due. But as far as interesting suggestions are concerned, they are about equal to the men."

"We consider our women's programs as comparable with the woman's page of a newspaper. We receive letters of the same nature that the editor of a woman's page receives. Women seem to rely on us to solve their dining, their etiquette, their beauty and even their love problems."

Yet women, as rabid fans as they are, draw the line against sports, stock reports and other such masculine diversions. But that isn't a sharp line, for some broadcasters report many women fans interested even in these affairs.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET AT ROSENEATH

Paper on "Favorite Authors" Proved Most Enjoyable.

ROSENEATH, April .—9The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon last, at the home of Mrs. J. Robins, with about twenty members present.

The usual business transactions were talked over. A play is to be held on May 24th. Mrs. C. W. Varcoe gave an excellent paper on "Favorite Authors." This was most interesting, especially to those who are lovers of books and follow up the new books and the latest authors. A very social afternoon was spent and ended with light refreshments.

Proceeds of the afternoon and evening amounted to over $100.00

The Easter morning service conducted by Rev. Lovelace was much enjoyed by those present. An Easter message bringing out the beauties of Nature which is God's own handiwork, then the success of Christianity. "Our Christ is Lord of Life, Death is not an eternal sleep, but merely the gateway to glory. Its glad message brings comfort to every human heart," said the speaker.

The choir rendered several selections fitted for the occasion. The song service in the evening was well attended considering the condition of the roads. Special singing by the choir, solos by Messrs. Davey and Parkes, a trio by Messrs. Davey, Parkes and Ingham readings by Mrs. M. Davey, Mr. G. Ingham and Miss Hildred Taylor, preceded an excellent address given by Mr. Bruce Ingham. Flowers, birds, and all the glad triumphant music of the season are simply helps in making the season one of the brightest festivals of all the year, he said. Death is not the implacable foe of human gladness, but the stern doorkeeper to a joy that is eternal and full of glory.

The service in the United Church next Sunday will be in the evening at 7:30 p.m. A male choir will furnish the singing.

Mr. Amos Nichols is taking a holiday with friends at Fenella and vicinity.

Miss Eva Thompson is confined to the house with a severe cold and lagrippe.

Mr. George Turner, Cobourg, is spending his Easter holidays with his mother, Mrs. Lily Turner.

Mr. Wilfred Davey of Cobourg is home for Easter holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Davey.

Mrs. John Nichols has returned home after a week with friends in Cobourg.

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTENDED TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER.

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest, and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National route, on radio equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the Granary of the Empire, is always interesting. Then there is Jasper Park Lodge, of continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky-piercing giants, snow-capped, massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never ending succession of mountain—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and dashing waterfalls until you reach the coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles. Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips as mapped out by Canadian National Railways are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer Tourist Fairs are effective between May 15th and September 30th, with a return limit of October 31st, at a mihimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets. 2d-10 24

TIME TO TAKE ACTION

The driver of a taxi was recently fined for being intoxicated at the wheel. Suspicion was aroused when he started to slow down at corners. A motorcycle officer started in pursuit. CECIL LEITCH—THE SWING.

The word "swing" implies an action that is smooth and regular, and calls to mind the movement to and fro of a pendulum. This smooth rythmical movement is what the beginner must try to acquire, and to do so, she must look upon her arms as an extension of the shaft of the club. The club-head is going to do the actual hitting of the ball, and it is to be propelled by a twisting action of the body.

In order to accomplish this action the player must plant her feet firmly on the ground and feel that her weight is thrown onto her heels. Falling forward onto the toes at the beginning of the swing throws the whole machine out of gear, and any mistake made at this stage of the shot cannot afterwards be rectified.

The first thing to move must be the club-head, and this must be done by a slight tightening up of the wrists, chiefly the left. The left arm must be kept as straight as possible during the backward and downward swing.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE BY W. M. S. IN PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERIAL OF CONTINUING PRESBYTERIANS

Reports To Annual Meeting Show Much Work Done.

IN WHOLE DISTRICT.

Delegates of Every Branch Report Progress—Address Given.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

PORT HOPE, April 10. — When the Presbyterian and the Unionist members of the Peterboro Presbytery at their annual meeting in Cobourg last May, agreed to go their several ways, after over half a century of collaboration, they separated with mutual expressions of good will, convinced that although their future pathways of duty were different, they had the same work to perform, the same goal to attain. That friendly spirit prevails to-day. When the non-concurring group met in annual session here on Thursday, they received fraternal greetings from those who were formerly associated with them in the missionary branch of the church work. The member of the Peterboro Presbyterial W. M. S., for they retained the name by which their organization was so long known, were encouraged by the reports that were submitted from all parts of the district and were further inspired by the eloquent address of Rev. T. W. Goodwill, pastor of the Cobourg Presbyterian church, who conveyed to them the greetings of the Presbytery.

The Session Opens.

The session opened at 10 o'clock, with the president, Mrs. D. Ewart, of Cobourg, in the chair. Miss Whitelow of Cobourg, conducting the religious exercises. The entire forenoon was devoted to hearing the reports of delegates as to the progress that has been made by the different missionary societies for the ten months of 1925 since church union became effective. All of these reports show that good progress had been made in spite of the fact that to prevent their being automatically absorbed by the union the societies were obliged to reorganize and, practically, to begin all over again and some of these societies are carrying on under heavy handicaps, the members sustained by the hope that everything will yet work out for the best.

One case in particular was noted. At Vernonville, the members of the missionary society have no church building in which to meet, but they still carry on, gathering in private homes. There are only six members of that society and yet these six managed to raise $46 for the mission fund of the church, this money having been secured by voluntary contributions and without the holding of bazaars or rummage sales ,as there is an unwritten law in the missionary societies that commercial methods of securing funds are barred.

When this report was received, Mrs Ewart, the president, remarked that it was refreshing to hear it as it showed that at Vernonville there are at least six good Presbyterians who are not discouraged by the prospect.

Another society that was specially commended by Mrs. Ewart was that at Norwood, the report from which showed the members had made 112 visits during the year, the president remarking that no better way could be adopted to maintain interest in the work.

Mrs. C. C. Armstrong of Warkworth, who reported for her society, said that the receipts were only $10 less than the amount collected during the year immediately preceding the separation.

Brighton is another place where the society is carrying on without a church home.

Helping the Weak.

Mrs. J. M. Empy of Port Hope, suggested that when the five vice-presidents are elected they should be chosen from different parts of the Presbytery and that these officers should visit and assist the weaker societies.

President Ewart advocated the holding of alternate afternoon and night session in Peterboro and other large centres in order to increase the attendance. In these places there are women in business who cannot attend a meeting of the society if it is held in the afternoon, and on the other hand members from the country cannot very well attend at night.

At the opening of the afternoon session, Mrs. H. D. Cameron, wife of the pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in which the meeting was held, welcomed the delegates to Port Hope in the name of the local society and of the congregation. In this age when so many women interest themselves only in the frivolous things of life, it is encouraging to find a number gathered together with the object of spreading the Gospel tidings throughout the world.

On behalf of the Unionists of Port Hope, Mrs. (Rev.) J. T. Daley, a veteran worker in the cause of missions, extended fraternal greetings to the delegates. It is thirty-nine years since Mrs. Daley first joined a missionary society and she has been identified with the movement ever since.

Mrs. J. J. Reid of St. John's Anglican church and Miss M. Hamilton on behalf of the local Baptist Congregation, also welcomed the delegates.

The President's Address

In her address as president Mrs. Ewart said that the present was the first meeting held since the Union question was settled, "Or," she added, "should I say partly settled." It would be well, however, to let the past be past and to honor what the past has been. "Forward" should be the rally word of the society, forward in everything. Volunteers are needed for the mission field. The harvest is white but the laborers are few and others are needed to support the missionaries. She believed that 100 per cent of the foreign missionaries are faithful and true to their trust. The greatest thing that can be done today is to bring the Gospel into all the world.

The great disruption in the church will always be written across the face of the year 1925, and while all regretted the separation it was impossible for all to think alike. A great deal of praise is due the minority groups who meet in private houses beacuse they have no church home.

Mrs. McPherson Absent

Mrs. Ewart regretted that Mrs. John McPherson of Peterborough, honorary president of the Presbyterial had been unable to attend and Mrs. W. N. MacDougall of Lakeport, the treasurer, was instructed to send a telegram to Mrs. McPherson expressing regret for her absence and conveying to her the best wishes of the delegates.

Mrs. Ewart also spoke feelingly of the provincial secretary, Miss Ross, who had died during the year, happy in the knowledge that the work had been completely organized and was being carried forward as usual.

Secretary's Report

Miss Gertrude Harvey of Cobourg corresponding secretary, reported that there are 25 auxiliary societies and three young women's organizations in the Presbytery. Port Hope's W.M.S. was the first to reorganize.

Treasurer's Report

Mrs. MacDougall reported that the total receipts from all sources were $2985.46. The report of the financial secretary, Mrs. G. F. Clarke, of Brighton, was also received.

Mission Band Exercises

After a solo by Mrs. J. Massie of Port Hope, the mission band of the church, under the leadership of Mrs. A. Arthur, gave a representation of a regular meeting of their society, which showed that the young people are being thoroughly drilled in the importance of foreign mission work.

Miss Bella Thomson of Hastings, secretary of the misson band department was unable to be present, but her report was made by Mrs. William Hume, Campbellford, the vice-president. There are nine such societies in the Presbytery,—at Colborne, Warkworth, Cobourg, St. Paul's, Peterborough; Norwood, Centreville and Port Hope.

The Evening Session

Rev. T. W. Goodwill of Cobourg who conveyed to the delegates the greetings of the Petebroruogh Presbytery, was the chief speaker at the evening session.

"The storm has passed over," he began," and the good old Presbyterian Church is sailing on an even keel. We are going to hear more of that church, of the work of that church, and of the Women's Missionary Society."

Some people, Mr. Goodwill said, are disturbed over the fact that there has been a disturbance in the church, but there is no cause for alarm. If we turn to the Word of God we will find that every fulfilment of prophecy has taken place in a time of stress. When the infant Jesus was taken into the temple, the aged priest who placed his hand upon the child, predicted that He would become the light of the Gentiles. That prophecy was fulfilled when the disciples were scattered and went everywhere preaching the Gospel. That was a time of stress and the forecast that Jesue would become the light of the Gentiles was fulfilled. It it had not been for that early disturbance in the church, we all would be living in heathendom today . It was the persecuted disciples, not the apostles, who founded the Christian Church.

When Paul, answering a call for help, went to preach to the Macedonians, his first pulpit was a jail, his convert was a woman and that woman founded the first missionary society. The Christian church was not a missionary church until driven into it by adversity. There was a disruption in the church in 1843 because the ministers who mooted a free people and Gospel were prevented by the state church and since that disruption missionary service has been the main work of the church.

Where Colleges Failed

Mr. Goodwill said that while he was in the university and at theological college he never head a lecture on the Confession of Faith or on the authorized version of the Bible. He was almost an infidel when he graduated. He had to stand at the bedside of the dying before he was stirred up. If the missionary did not know more of the Christian spirit than he did when he graduated, then God help the poor heathen. God, the speaker said, would disrupt the whole church, that the Gospel might have free course.

A missionary was once advised by the natives to go home and get converted. When the Boxer war broke out, Jonathan Goforth left China convinced that so far as the preaching of the Gospel was concerned, he was a nonentity. He went home, received more light; returned to work in the foreign field and succeeded.

Converting the Jews

Mr. Goodwill believes that the Jews will be converted as a nation and that this will be the first great step in the evangelization of the world. The time is coming when the Jews will accept Christ with great joy. Paul says that the conversion of the Jews as a nation will be like life from death.

Like the cry of the Macedonians to Paul for help comes to us cries from Africa, from India and from China. The Bible has done more for the people of India than all the armies in the world could do. In China Russian emissaries are sowing the seeds of anarchy and Bolshevism and the civilized world must do something to save that great race.

Mr. Goodwill is optimistic. Nothing but good, he believes, can come out of the recent schism in the church. The trouble in the past has been that the church has been resting on doctrines that were founded upon the teachings of men instead of the truths taught by Christ.

Miss Ethel Gunn made an address telling of her work among the Jewish population in Toronto. Rev. H. C. Cameron presided and the soloist of the evening was Miss Jean Dickenson of Port Hope.

People Who Feel Like This Need the Help of a Tonic.

The dictionary definies a tonic as a medicine that increases the strength and gives vigor to the system. That tells why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a real tonic. Thousands of men and women are ailing today, not sick in bed, but without ambition to do a full day's work, though they are forced to keep on. They are always tired or nervous; do not sleep well, and awake in the morning unrefreshed. Many have headaches, backaches and stomach trouble. Such people need the tonic help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The beneficial effects of this medicine reaches the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do more than relieve the symptoms—they remove the cause. Mrs. E. Virginia Gray, Tofield, Alta., has proven the value of this medicine and says:—"I can sincerely recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a tired and run-down condition of the system. I have followed the nursing profession for a number of years and after a few weeks of hard or trying cases I take two or three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and always with the very best results. The pills also proved a great boon to my daughter at a trying age, and I have seen splendid results follow their use in other cases."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. EDITH M'NEELEY

Mrs. McNeeley came to their house. She stated that Gilbert said that he had been investigating the case about her running around with people that her father wouldn't like, and about her taking her father's car to Peterborough one Sunday afternoon against his wishes. Gilbert told her father that he should have $500 but seeing he was a poor man he would take $35, witness said, and that if her father did not pay the money he would publish it in the papers. Gilbert said to Mrs. McNeeley, "We'll O.K. this, Mrs. McNeeley, won't we," and she answered "Yes."

The accused cross-examined the witness.

Accused: Did Mr. Gilbert not say just before I said I would O.K. it, that your application would go through for the Klan, and did I not say that I would O.K. it, meaning the application.

Witness: I though you meant the $35 dollars and the application too.

Upon being asked by the Magistrate if she had any statement to make, Mrs. McNeeley said that she was out of the room talking to Miss Peel, and when she came back Gilbert said. "We have come to a settlement." She stated that she asked Gilbert no questions as to what the settlement was. Peel, she said, said that he would like his daughter to become a member of the Klan, and Gilbert said it would be alright "if I said so."

Confidence in Gilbert

"I had a talk with Miss Peel and told her there was nothing against her and there was no reason why she should not become a member of the Klan," said the accused. Gilbert than asked Peel if he was prepared to pay her fees: $6 for initiation and $4 dues for the year, and Peel said that he was. Gilbert then said to me, "Will you O.K. it?" and I answered, "Yes," and signed my name to the application form. The accused said that she felt she should not be blamed for something she went into quite innocently. She stated that she always thought the money had gone direct to the Klan headquarters, until she found out different later on.

This concluded the evidence in the first case.

In the second case, Mr. Kerr stated that as George Hetherington, the complainant claimed that he could not identify the girl, he would have to ask for a dismissal, in which Magistrate Floyd concurred.

An Active Assistant

Mr. Kerr said that it was plain to be seen that though Mrs. McNeeley had not taken a leading part, she had taken an active part. While she may not have understood the full circumstances, she was aiding and abetting. As she had already been in custody for two weeks and considering her mental and physical state, he would ask for suspended sentence. He felt that she was simply a tool in the hands of an unscrupulous man, and was simply led away.

Magistrate Floyd: It is a dangerous practice for people to go around the country doing things like this. I feel inclined to make the sentence twelve months.

Mr. Kerr: It was through the girl's father that the whole case was exposed at all, and it is this fact that makes me ask for suspended sentence.

Magistrate Floyd: I am satisfied that people like this ought not to be at large. I feel strongly that cases like this should end with imprisonment, but in view of what has been said, I will remand for sentence at Cobourg on April 19. In the meantime the acused can be examined as to her mental condition.

Upon hearing this, the accused commenced to scream and act in a violent manner, striking the constable and became so unmanageable that it required the united efforts of two men to subdue her. Dr. Turner was called in and he said that it was a case of hysteria and that it would be dangerous to keep the girl in custody. In view of this and with the consent of the Crown Attorney, the Magistrate re-opened the case. In view of the assurance of her father that he would look after her and that he would have her examined by the family doctor and by an independent doctor and on condition that the doctors would report their findings to the Crown Attorney as to whether she should be sent to an institution or not said Magistrate Floyd, and on these terms only, "I will let her go on suspended sentence."

LABOR CHALLENGES DRYS TO PLEBISCITE

Asks Them To Join in Movement For Referendum in U. S.

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 10—(Canadian Press).—A challenge to dry leaders to join in a movement for a nation wide referendum, on light wines and beers was issued today before the Senate prohibition committee by spokesmen for the American Federation of Labor.

Appearing as a witness for the wets and speaking as the personal representative of President William Green of the federation, William Roberts told the committee that the present uprising of those opposed to the Volstead Act was a stable solid movement.

Mr. Roberts was the first witness for the wets at fifth day Senate hearing. Dry leaders have been accumulating a store of notes during the present action of the wet attack in preparation for their counter offensive next week against modification of the prohibition law and in favor of the enactment of restrictions even more drastic than those now existing.

Here She Comes! There She Goes! All Togged Up in Spring Clothes

(By NEA Service.)

NEW YORK, April 10.—The tuxedo dinner suit for women with its pleated shirt front, its vestee, and all the masculine "tux" rigging, is only one of the surprises which Style in this spring of 1926 gives the faire ladyes.

Style knows no inhibitions this year. With lavish hand it gives brand new things, then dips a greedy hand into the past world of style and hauls forth the old trim two-piece tailored suit and even the cape-coat of some moons ago.

It shouts with a loud, firm voice for "navy blue" as a color of the first degree, and in the same breath throws out gorgeous shades of green and orange and rose and purple.

The tailored suit is It. Strictly tailored. In tweed or twill. Navy blue is best color. But checks in black and white, or gray mixtures are good.

If you buy a wrap instead of a suit, it will be navy blue or black plaid check, or mannish mixture. The cape-coats are a bell-ringer.

Jumper dresses or crepes or rajah made with pleated, circular, or godet skirts, with long-sleeved, low-belted under blouses, are an excellent choice for a street or sport dress.

Printed silks were never lovelier. Most of the prints have a Japanesy water color effect of trailing blossom, bird and bee, all more or less conventionalized, but having a light, springy, "picturey" effect.

Printed silk dresses for morning and afternoon street wear are followed by printed chiffons and georgettes for evening wear.

Taffeta in navy, black and plaids, will share honors with prints for afternoon and street wear and, combined with lace or ribbon color, will fashion evening frocks.

Skirts are shorter than ever—for day wear. But the trailing beauty of the winter robe de style has put its mark upon spring and summer evening frocks which almost sweep the floor.

Long, much decorated sleeves, are seen on everything. High, close-fitting collars. Scarf necks. And the old square, V and bateau necklines remain for those who will not yield their comfort.

Most hats are tailored with practically no trimming. Folded, creased, brimless chapeaux. Felt and fabric for spring. Straw for summer.

Shoes of Alligator and snake skin are very swanky. Oxford ties and one-straps. Suede combined with leather. Stockings grow darker. Nude shades yield to beige grays and darker tans. Fine lisle hose with sports street frocks are smart.

Striped and plaid scarfs, gloves of white, gray, beige washable kid, slave bracelets and necklets, envelope handbags, complete the spring style picture.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

WHY "NEW TEETH FOR OLD"?

Perhaps you were wondering why little Sonny had to lose his "baby" teeth and have them replaced with new ones.

Why, you asked yourself, do they not remain permanently and develop in size during the growing years just as do the ears and eyes?

"Because they become decayed," you say; but not necessarily so, since tooth decay is a disease and is therefore abnormal and preventable; and for that matter, when you lose a tooth through decay at six and twenty, does a new tooth replace it?

But consider: You have seen a little sapling grow to be a big tree—"large oaks from little acorns grow," but did you ever hear tell of a small pebble growing to become a large stone? Not likely so, and for obvious reasons for, as you know, the tree is of organic matter, while the stone is of inorganic.

Now the tooth, being composed largely of inorganic matter, especially the outer enamel covering, which is almost wholly so, like the pebble, cannot of itself change in form, and so grow larger once it is fully developed.

Obviously, too, Sonny's little jaw has no room for the larger teeth that he will need when he is fully grown.

So unlike the potatoes that "from little ones do big ones grow," we have instead, "new teeth for old."

These baby teeth then serve temporarily for mastication until the maxillary or jaw bones are sufficiently developed to accommodate the larger permanent teeth of adult age.

They are mother Nature's expedient, as it were, and a good expedient too, if given a chance.

This isn't the only nation wherein "the best people" steal towels from Pullmans and hotels and filch the silver from every restaurant table "as a souvenir." Rural England's quaint old inns and taverns are hanging out the "House Sold Out" sign to excursion parties this year. One land lord lists 36 classes and 48 spoons which he lost last summer due to the "trippers."

THE GLASS OF FASHION

Now we have with us today—perfumes to match the color of the frock. There is simple frock perfume and elaborate toilet perfume. Day and night perfume. Dark red, blue, brown demand violet, jasmine, narcissus and heavy odors. Pastel shades demand rose and heliotrope.

"I KNEW HER WHEN"

The older vintage which likes books atune with their own times will welcome "Memories of Ninety Years," a new book of reminiscence by Mrs. E. M. Ward, aged 93. She was a child of 6 when she heard the cannon fired in honor of the girl queen, Victoria. The book is juicy with intimate pictures of Victorian England's great.

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Dinner—Casserole of veal, new cabbage, rolled oats bread, dried apple pudding, milk, coffee.

Casserole cookery saves much dish washing and the need of "dishing up" at the last minute. Meat and vegetables are cooked together in one dish and served in this same dish. The addition of a little smoked ham to a casserole of veal adds to the savourishness of the dish.

Potato and Herring Pie.

Four potatoes, 1 1-2 cups diced celery, 4 tablespoons grated onion, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 salted herrings, 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter, water.

Cover herrings with cold water and stand two hours. Drain and chop. Pare potatoes and cut in thin slices. Combine potatoes, celery and onion. Melt butter in baking dish, add prepared vegetables and stir with a fork until vegetables are coated with butter. Add chopped fish and mix well. Pour over milk and cover with crust and bake 50 minutes in a moderately hot oven. To make crust mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in butter with tips of fingers and add water to make a soft dough, cutting mixture with knife to mix. Roll to fit baking dish on a lightly floured molding board.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

HER OWN WAY

by

A GIRL of TODAY

IN FOOL'S PARADISE.

That night I went to a fashionable restaurant for the first time in my life and I sat in a box at the Royal Alexandria. I was literally drunk with the joy of it all. The lights and laughter, the music and the knowledge that I, little Mamie Reilly, was one of the gay throng, gave me a happiness that I can never forget.

The realization that Mr. Tremaine was not ashamed of me among all his grand friends added to my pleasure.

As I sat down in one of the boxes in the golden horseshoe, I cannot describe to you my feeling. I had often heard the singers of the Metropolitan Opera Company but I had sat so far up in the upper gallery that I could not see them. I was doing something that I had never hoped to do. I had an ambition to be one of those singers on the other side of the footlights, but to be sitting in one of these luxurious boxes that I had been told cost over a hundred thousand dollars a year was something too wonderful for my imagination to conceive.

"The silver dress did prove a good advertisement, you see," said Madame in the late afternoon of the next day. "We have had a regular rush of customers and all of them, Mamie, have asked that you should show the dresses as them."

It is a popular thing, Julie, that the thing we want to do never strikes us to a temptation. I didn't realize as the weeks passed by that my dinners with Mr. Tremaine had grown more and more frequent until at last I hardly ever had a dinner at home.

As long as the opera season lasted, I went at least four times a week and you do not know what an incentive it was to make me work with my own voice.

Madame Seria gave me the silver gown and wrap, saying I had earned it by bringing in new clients. I thought she told the truth and so I lived in Fool's Paradise for three months.

One day when Madame was out of town Lola Lawrence came in the shop. She asked if I was still modeling there and when she was told I was, she asked if I would wear some of the new evening gowns for her.

All unsuspecting I put on one I thought she would like.

When I walked in I found she was alone in the salon. I had an idea that something was wrong and my knees trembled when I came near the divan on which she was sitting.

As I had been taught to do, I stopped and turned slowly around, that she might see the dress from all angles.

"I don't see why you keep on working."

The words came out softly but venomously.

Mind is the great lever of all things; human thought is the process by which human ends are alternately answered.—Webster.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributes the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, biliousness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or seidlits are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your drugist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mrs. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER TEN—A CHANGE OF TUNE

Nick took the big box with Ringtail Coon's spring clothes in it under his arm.

"Now come along, Nancy and Mister Tingaling," he said. "We're going to find that sly old coon and make him pay his rent, so we are!"

"Dear, dear! I certainly hope so," said poor Mister Tingaling. "If I don't get some rents soon, I'll be in rags."

"No, you won't," said Nick. "Not if my plan works out."

They went down the stairs and out of the door. Then they crossed the meadow and went past the briar patch and across the cornfield to Ripple Creek.

Then they went up Ripple Creek quite a way.

"Did you see old Ringtail Coon?" called Nick to Marky Muskrat.

"He went up that way," said Marky. So they went up a piece further.

"Did you see old Ringtail Coon?" called Nancy to old Mosey Mud Turtle.

"He went up that way," said Mosey stretching his neck.

After they had asked Billy Beaver and Charley Otter and Marty Mink, they decided that it was about time they were finding Ringtail himself.

And there, sitting as nice as you please, was Mister Coon, fishing.

He was singing a little song to himself. The tune was "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," but the words were different.

The words were:

"I've fooled them all again,
I've fooled them all again,
I've had a wonderful time,
I hate to pay my rent,
I will not pay a cent.
I'd rather have a good time,
I've fooled them all a—"

Suddenly he stopped.

There, on the bank opposite sat Nick and Nancy and Mister Tingaling in a row.

All of them were quietly fishing and watching the water, not saying a word.

"I wonder if they saw me," thought Mister Ringtail Coon uneasily. "I don't believe they did. I'll just slip away quietly and they'll never—"

But just then his eye lit on the hat on Mister Tingaling's head. Not his ice cream saucer hat with the feather, but a new green one exactly like one Ringtail had just ordered.

And the little fairyman had on a new coat, too! One with big zig zag stripes on it like flashes of lightning. Exactly like the coat Ringtail had ordered also.

By this time Ringtail Coon was so worried that he called across the creek. "Hi there! Those are my clothes you're wearing, Mister Fairyman! They are my best new spring clothes and you can't have them."

"Oh, hello, Ringtail," said Tingaling. "If you can't pay me my rent so I can get some clothes, I'll have to borrow yours."

"I'll pay you! I'll pay you right now," said Ringtail reaching for his pocketbook. So Mister Tingaling got his rent and Ringtail went home with his box of clothes.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

H. N. G.: You were born under a star which endows its people with qualities that make them either the weakest or the strongest in the world, according as they use their abilities. You are a splendid character reader and seem to possess the power of making happy those around you. You are very sensitive, causing yourself much unnecessary worry by this characteristic. You are very sincere and retain your dignity on all occasions. Your nature is peace-loving and gentle and you are eminently fitted for the married state. The quality that will mar your life and make for non-success, unless you can control it, is a tendency to change and uncertainty. You should study how to concentrate and learn self-reliance, also learn to know and improve upon opportunity. Study yourself. You have much inherent power that will make for success in almost any line of work, provided you do not swerve from a path after careful thinking has formed a decision for you. Strive always for perfect independence from all outside influences. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. April and August are your good months, Saturday your lucky day. Your colors are gray and scarlet.

D. H.: You have a conflicting nature and are troubled always with restless nervousness and dissatisfaction. You are inclined always to wish you had done something else and to long to be away, you know not just where. You are naturally fitted for a business career or anything connected with commerce or science, and you have a good deal of musical ability, which you will probably not seek to further, as your restlessness will prevent you from seeking a very desirable relief in music, which would have a soothing effect upon your nerves. Service to others—the service inspired by love—should be your watchword in life. In this way you will achieve success and happiness for yourself. You are affectionate, unselfish and self-sacrificing, but have an inborn tendency to whine, nag and scold, which you will have to fight every day of your life. If you demand that your better nature rule you, you can be a tremendous power for good. You are not apt to marry young, but if you do, you will be very happy, providing you do not get into the scolding and fault-finding habit. Always take care of your health. Strive for cheerfulness and steadfastness and try to learn self-control. Marry a girl born in February or November. You were born on Friday, your good day. April and August are your good months. Your colors are opals, tans and buffs. The day you ask about, a Thursday, is one for quiet meditation. Don't worry and do not try to force your hand on this day.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Many of the letters I get are happy ones, but now and then I get one which goes right to my heart. Here is an example:

A young man writes me, saying he is the youngest of seven husky brothers. They weigh from 175 pounds to 240 and stand in their stockings from 5 feet 9 inches to 6 feet. They should be wonderful specimens, but my friend says five of these big men are blind or getting blind. Three of them have lost most of their sight, one is progressing toward blindness and my correspondent says his own sight is failing.

The oldest brother and the fourth one have perfect sight, as have the parents and all the ancestors they know about. At thirty-five years of age the failing vision takes on extra speed and, as the writer is approaching that age, he is keen to know what can be done to stave off the evil day.

Blood tests have revealed nothing. Indeed, there is no clue, he says, to the cause of the trouble.

This is a pathetic story and I wish I might offer a certain means of relief. I shall write him to see one of the eminent oculists living in his neighborhood. In so serious a matter the personal attention of an expert is essential.

What could be the cause of such a series of cases? The optic nerve, the retina and the choroid are the three structures I think of as possible seats of trouble serious enough to destroy sight in a whole family.

If it were the optic nerve, destroyed from some disturbance in its course or at its origin in the brain, it is probable the blood test would tell the story. But this examination was negative—it gave no information. So we will exclude the optic nerve.

There is a peculiar disease, met only occasionally, known as "pigmented retina." This might be a factor, but I never have seen more than a single case in one family. On this account I do not believe our solution lies here.

The retina lines the back of the eye as the silver coating backs the mirror. It is loosely attached to the choroid. Sometimes it becomes separated, producing the condition we call "detachment of the retina." Ordinarily, however, this distressing condition comes on suddenly. Within a few minutes the sight is gone. That isn't like our case, is it?

Sometimes the choroid becomes diseased, withered and useless. But the blood test should throw light on such a condition.

There is still another possible factor and it seems the most likely cause of this group of terrible cases. It is called progressive near-sightedness, one form of which is known as "conical cornea."

The eyeball is like a rubber bag filled with fluid, under more or less and continued tension. The front of the eyeball, the transparent covering through which we see the beautiful colored part of the eye, is called the cornea. It should be only slightly curved, like the crystal of a watch. If the structure of the cornea should be soft like dead rubber, it may give way under the pressure of the fluids within the eyeball.

When this happens, the cornea bulges and disturbs the vision just as looking through bubbly and wavy window glass will do. As time passes, keenness of sight and even vision sufficient to get about may be lost.

I can see that this unfortunate condition might run in a family like the one I have described. I shall await with interest the verdict of the oculist.

Worried. Q.—Please tell me what causes a bad breath?

A.—This condition may be due to acid in the system. Watch your diet carefully and avoid poor elimination. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and restate your question.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

MARCUS LOEW — THE THEATRICAL MAGNATE

There were two reasons why Marcus Loew was selling newspapers some fifty years ago. One was that he much preferred the fascinating game of money-making to the prosaic duty of attending school. The other was that he was one of five children in an humble home on the lower East Side in New York, where dollars were scarce and pennies a goal in themselves.

Just about the time that he approached the advanced age of twelve (after he had succeeded in evading truant officers) it occurred to him that he knew enough about the newspaper business to edit a paper, so he applied for a job on a local weekly called "The East Side Advertiser." He was appointed editorial and advertising manager of this newspaper when he was only twelve years old. About this he said:

"I was in partnership with a printer. I solicited advertising, wrote and edited the paper. However, my news career was even shorter than it was sweet. My partner got married and his wife couldn't see why a twelve-year-old boy who merely wrote the news and solicited the advertising should share equally with her printer husband who did all the real work. Accordingly the sound of their wedding bells had hardly died down when I was ousted."

Young Marcus didn't remain idle very long, though. He got a job in a haberdashery at $2 a week. Since this was $10 a week less than he was making as editorial genius he gave up the position in a short time and accepted employment in a fur and dress trimming house where two of his brothers were already working.

It wasn't long before he was appointed superintendent, a position directly above that of his brothers. This inspired him with confidence and he entered the fur business for himself with a capital of $63. Failure was inevitable, and the sixteen-year-old fur expert was employed as salesman by another fur house for several years. With his accumulated earnings he paid back the debts he had incurred when his own business failed.

In 1894 Marcus Loew again started a fur business of his own and made a success of it. Ten years later he conceived the idea of purchasing a Penny Arcade which was then located at Fourteenth Street in New York. His partner in this "crazy scheme" was the veteran actor, David Warfield, who is still associated with the Loew enterprises.

The Penny Arcade was revolutionized by the installation of new mechanical devices for heightened theatrical effect, and pretty soon the business was yielding a good profit. From the Penny Arcade it was only a step to the operation of a moving picture house. Mr. Loew and Mr. Warfield furnished a little moving picture theatre in the arcade. The dimensions were twenty-five by twenty-five feet. Campstools hired from a local undertaker served as chairs, and the price of admission was five cents.

The undertaking was greeted with immediate success. The first day the attendance was almost five thousand. Within a few years Marcus Loew had over forty stores of this kind in New York before he started a regular theatre.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY MEETS A NEW NEIGHBOR

"Well you pretty butterfly!" Peggy exclaimed as the yellow butterfly sailed close to her curls then settled on a leaf at her side. "My, but you're pretty!"

"Thank you my dear," laughed the gay yellow butterfly. "It has been said that we little Sulphur Butterflies are pretty insects. Now if we can just act as well as we look we'll be all right. Isn't that so?"

"Just what Mama says," replied Peggy.

"That reminds me," said Mrs. Sulphur Butterfly sadly. "Last week I laid some eggs on the leaves of this wild senna plant and I know the babies have hatched by this time and to save my life, I can't find the youngsters. Have you seen them any place?"

"No, I don't believe I have," replied Peggy, looking around. "Fact is I don't ever remember seeing a butterfly that looks like you at all."

"Goodness, honey!" laughed the gay butterfly lady. "It wouldn't look like me for a long time. Now they are little green caterpillars."

"Oh! Then I did find some here this very morning," cried Peggy. "Here's one right now." Then she pulled over one of the leaves and sure enough there resting on the mid-rib of the leaf was a tiny green caterpillar.

"Well, well, honey," and Mrs. Sulphur Butterfly leaned over the wee green caterpillar and stroked it with her long feelers. "What's the idea of hanging on the underside of the leaf?"

"Your Mother Is a Beauty."

"I crawled under there last night to rest and the leaf curled around me so snugly I just stayed there," replied the little green caterpillar. "You see we are almost the color of the green leaves so we stay on top of them during the day time and eat. No one can see us very plainly. Then at night we crawl to the underside of the leaf and when the leaf curls around to sleep, it makes us a lovely cradle."

"Well, I'm glad you're safe," sighed Mrs. Sulphur Butterfly. "Have you seen any of your brothers and sisters?"

"Oh, sure," replied the little green caterpillar. "They're all scattered around on the leaves here some place." Then he cried, "When can I begin to spin my web? I can hardly wait until I get to be a lovely butterfly like you are, Mother."

"Your mother is certainly a beauty," said Peggy smiling at the little green caterpillar. "And I hope you'll be just as pretty."

"Thank you, my dear," laughed the caterpillar.

"You won't have to wait much longer," said Mother Sulphur Butterfly. "You may begin tomorrow. Then after you lay quiet for about ten days in your cradle you'll hatch out a lovely sulphur butterfly. Goodby now. Be careful and be good, for it's only good little caterpillars that hatch into beautiful butterflies." Then spreading her pretty wings Mrs. Sulphur Butterfly sailed away.

Peggy watched the green caterpillar until her mama called her in to lunch and when she came out again the little caterpillar was gone.

HARMLESS

I've heard a particular friend of mine relate of his stunts as a child. The story he tells me is always in line with the things that are terribly wild.

I've heard him rave on, of his old college days, of how he was this and was that, I often have thought, well, it's one of his ways, to talk on and on, through his hat.

As years rolled along and he still had his say, he turned to his business career. "I knocked all the obstacles out of my way." Yep, that's what he forced me to hear.

He seems to forget that I've known him too well to let all his boasting get by. My gosh, when I think of the things he can tell. My gosh, how that fellow can lie.

But, say, all his chatter is taken in fun. I've often imagined, some how. He talks of the things that he wishes he'd done. His mind's merely living them now.

Earrings are again coming into style. Pendant types with semi-precious stones such as jade, crystal, carnelian or amber are those most in demand.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 10 (United Press).—Fearing that cape-coats may become the "fords" of the Spring season, manufacturers are introducing straight-lined coats with removable capes Thus they may be worn either as simple straight models or as cape coats.

Bathing beaches will see less of the one-piece bathing suit this year. Taffetas, satins, printed cretonnes and washable velvets made in little dress effects are considered smarter than the form showing models. Sports satins in bright shades such as rose, green or burnt orange, etc., are made into adorable little bathing suits. They are matched by squares of rubberized material which are worn over the bathing cap.

Black silk coats will have many followers this Spring. Next in preference to the black silk coat come such shades as brown and navy blue.

It's an odd dress that hasn't a string tied to it some place this year. Loose strings hang from shoulder seams either in front or rear being tied at the position of the normal waistline, string belts are used on most of the new jumpers, string bows fall from shoulders and string scarfs tie about the necks of frocks with V-shaped necklines.

Jabots of white crepe de chene printed in huge polka dots adorn many of the smart navy blue Spring frocks. The dots are blue, red or purple, and the jabot is bordered in the color of the dot.

Hand-crocheted hats made of fine straw are the newest bonnets on the market this season. They adapt themselves well to crushed shapes and owing to their price they will not become common. Soft pastel shades of green, rose and acquamarine are those most beautiful.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Secy., Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

H. B. Burgoyne, Managing Editor of The Standard, St. Catharines, Ontario, says:

That the people of this continent are definitely launched in this second quarter of the Twentieth Century on an infinitely higher standard of living than the world ever before witnessed.

That there is now annihilation of space, a destruction of frontiers, all by radio; not the rich man's preserve but the schoolboy's plaything.

That in the last 25 years the development of electricity has given an impetus to scores and scores of new industries. The housewife now presses a button for dinner cooking, the family gathers at the toaster, mother switches on the washing machine and father goes to the electric refrigerator.

That the new uses of oil make us skim over the waters at 60 miles an hour, through the air at 125 and under the waters in comparative safety.

That the automobile has widened the horizon of millions, and is now a universality.

That the camera, the microscope, the stethoscope and, scores of other wonderful devices are in that stage of perfection which makes the world a better place in which to live.

That hundreds of good things are now in the hands of the people, and one of the big instrumentalities has been the genius for advertising; whether it be of the fruits of the sunny South or of the common electric percolator.

Increased production, wider range of production, more jobs, higher wages, an all-round higher standard of living and this continent knit together as never before! Advertising has played a wonderful part in all this. It has enriched the nation.

Has it enriched you?

BUSY DAYS FOR HORTICULTURISTS

The Drive For Members Goes Speedily On — Gladiolus Show the Main Incentive for the Movement.

The flower-loving people of Peterboro' and nearby district are having a busy time these days. They are like a hive of bees let loose, each one going straight to his or her objective, which, in hundreds of cases, is the the securing of another new member for the Horticultural Society. The "1,000 in a month" slogan is being tried out strenuously and the number is piling up every day. Chairman C. Lacheur, of the membership committee, is smilingly confident, as well he may when the workers keep dropping in to his office at the post-office, with lists of 10 to 30 at a time. So many committee members are spread out over the city in the big effort, that the number so far obtained cannot be announced at this date, but a call is to be made for all returns to be reported in for a check-up. This will likely be followed by a concentrated final effort to round out the thousand members that are absolutely essential to the successful carrying on of the work of the society on this important year. The main idea is to have a strong, live society that will be able to welcome and properly look after the big show and convention of the Canadian Gladiolus Society in August. A lot of interested garden enthusiasts are taking the big show seriously, and preparing to grow an extra quantity of gladiolus in order to have the bloom to exhibit in the local class.

By the way, that's a pretty fine list of prizes for members of the Peterboro' Horticultural Society to compete for. It has five or six more classes than were offered last year at Hamilton, and that was considered an unusually good list. In this respect Peterboro' has gone one better than Hamilton, and Chairman Young, the energetic head of the local prize committee, deserves credit for putting his department at least, a step in advance of the visiting society's 1925 event.

Getting back to that membership campaign, the list of options is proving very popular, most people finding it difficult to make a decision. Best way is to take two or more memberships, one for each adult or junior member of the family. That gets one of those splendid options for each member, and settles the selection problem nicely.

Anyone desirous of becoming a member, who has not been approached by anyone, can get an option list and blank from the postmaster, Mr. C. Lacheur, or phone Mr. Chris. Wood, No. 654.

SCOPE OF GOVERNMENT BILL FOR REVALUING SOLDIER SETTLERS' LAND DISCUSSED IN COMMITTEE

Those Men Who Had Vacated Lands Should Be Considered.

VIMY ANNIVERSARY.

Opportunity To Acquire Land at the Revised Valuation Suggested.

OTTAWA, April 10 (Canadian Press).—The Government bill for revaluation of soldier settlers' lands Friday get second reading, but after nearly three hours' discussion was still in committee stage, when the House passed to other business.

A number of points were raised. One of these dealt with the case of the soldier settler who had left his land and would not benefit by the re-valuation; another with the soldier settler who, by industry had paid off his loan. It was suggested that the bill be amended to meet such cases. A further proposal was that the bill be referred to a small committee of the House.

In committee of the whole, H. M. Hannesson (Conservative, Selkirk) asked the minister to consider soldier settlers who had been on the land, but were forced off by the burden of obligations within recent months. These men should not be excluded from the benefit of revaluation, as they would be as the bill now stood.

Hon. Mr. Meighen suggested the recasting of certain clauses to enable the settlement board to give some preference to the man who had been forced off.

J. A. Clark (Conservative, Vancouver Burrard), said that the man who had ben forced off his land should be given an opportunity to come back before the land was sold to settlers from abroad.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, pointed out that if the man whose agreement had been cancelled by his leaving his farm was to be considered, then there would be an obvious discrimination against the men who had paid for their farms in full.

Helo Those on the Land

Mr. Meighen said the bill was an attempt to help those who were still on the land. It might be better if the principle of the bill was simply revaluation, which might not be quite so generous but would perhaps be more equitable.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox, Alberni) suggested that the bill might go through in its present form but that the regulations under it should provide that soldier settlers be given the first opportunity to acquire the land at the revised valuation. Next to soldier settlers, preference should be given to Canadian citizens.

W. W. Kennedy (Conservative, Winnipeg South Centre) proposed that farms abandoned by soldier settlers might be reserved for them. He suggested that a period of four or six months might be allowed to elapse before these abandoned lands were turned over to civilian settlers. In the meantime the men who had abandoned the lands might be notified that they were still open at a reduced valuation.

Opportunity for Soldiers

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) supported this suggestion. He said that even if the soldier settler who had abandoned the land did not wish to take it up again, another soldier settler might. The soldiers should be given the first opportunity with this land. He suggested that the minister have the bill amended along the lines suggested by the speakers.

Hon. Chas. Stewart pointed out that already 500 of these farms had been sold to empire settlers, and a considerable number of civilians. It was difficult to know where to stop when you started giving preference to any particular class of settler.

Mr. Hannesson suggested that a small committee of the House be appointed to confer on the bill.

Mr. Stewart replied that what he desired to ascertain was how far Parliament was prepared to go in the way of this legislation. As soon as this information was secured, it was an easy matter to prepare the bill in its final form.

H. A. Mullins (Conservative, Marquette) read a petition from soldier settlers in his riding, requesting a reduction of at least 50 per cent from the original purchase price. Action of a prompt nature was asked. "I think you should deal as liberally as you can with these men," said Col. Mullins. This matter was more important than that of the proposal to advance loans to settlers on crown lands.

Provision for Refund

W. A. Boys (Conservative, Simcoe North) suggested that in the case of those who had met their payments in full, there should be provision for a refund upon revaluation.

T. L. Church (Conservative, Northwest Toronto) said that governments, provincial and federal, were handing out grants and concessions to railway corporations constantly. Surely the returned soldier had just as much right as any railroad corporation. The present bill was full of difficulties. In fact, the whole administration of pensions and soldier settlement had been bound up in red tape.

Dr. Manion remarked that this was the aninversary of "A very important day for Canada" (referring to the Battle of Vimy Ridge), "and we might commemorate it by seeing that the soldiers get a square deal."

Consider Every Soldier

Mr. Stewart declared that he was not going to argue for a minute that the bill as drafted would remove all discrimination. He thought, however, that it was the best that could be done under the circumstances. It would give consideration to every soldier who was on the land.

Dr. Manion said that the concensus of opinion on the Conservative side of the chamber was that soldiers deprived of their land should be given the opportunity to reclaim it at the reduced valuation. He did not want to see the scope of the bill contracted in any way. He would himself be glad to go even further, and say that property once occupied by a returned soldier settler should be open to other returned soldiers before opportunity was given to civilians to settle on it. He wanted the soldiers given as much as possible without injuring the country.

Mr. Stewart said that he was anxious to do anything within reason for the soldier. He stated that the provisions of the bill would certainly cut out the man who had paid in full for his property.

The committee rose and reported progress.

HAVELOCK HAS SMALLPOX CASE

Outbreak Causes Order Forbidding Most Public Meetings.

CHURCHES OPEN

HAVELOCK, April 10.—Owing to an outbreak of smallpox in the village, the Board of Health has taken steps to check the spread of the disease and no public meetings, with the exception of the regular church services, will be allowed for the present. All school teachers and pupils must be vaccinated or they will not be allowed to attend school when it re-opens on Monday.

Dance Held.

The dance held in the town hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Eastern Star Society, was a very successful event. Pretty decorations, consisting of stars, the symbol of the order, in yellow, red, blue, white and green, gave the hall a very attractive appearance, and the music supplied by the Night Hawk orchestra of Trenton was very alluring. The programme, which consisted of moonlight, confetti, balloon and square dances, was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. The proceeds amounted to about $100.

LOCAL PEOPLE USE MUCH MILK

AIDS SICK PEOPLE.

MEDICAL authorities are almost unanimous in recommending milk as a diet and general tonic and it is a matter of common knowledge that milk contains more vitamine than any other single food.

Tubercular victims who have recovered their health must, in many cases, give the credit for their recovery to a plentiful diet of milk.

Anaemic persons can, after a judicious use of milk in their daily menu, put on healthy weight and gain strength.

In Canada, consumption of milk seems to attain a greater per capita quantity in the cities than in the rural centres.

It might be of interest to see how Peterborough lines up in this respect. Per capita consumption in this city equals two and one-third pints daily. Allowing a daily average of five gallons from a cow it would take approximately eleven hundred cows to supply Peterborough's requirements. Fifty-three thousand, five hundred pints of milk are daily consumed by the Peterborough citizens in one form or another, and the cost of this supply averages about twenty-six hundred, and eighty-three dollars and thirty-four cents.

According to the above figures Peterborough should be able to hang up a perfect record of health.

The Hindus of India worship the cow as a deity, and the citizens of Peterborough, though not influenced by the same superstitions, should feel a certain amount of sympathy with their Asiatic brethren.

Not only was Mrs. Ewart familiar with every phase of the work but she possessed the gift of making an inspiring address. Mrs. Ewart briefly returned thanks for the honor of her re-election and added that she did not again accept the office as an honor or a privilege but because she felt that she was in a position to help some of the younger members.

Mrs. Hume also complimented Miss G. Harvey, corresponding secretary and Mrs. W. N. MacDougall, treasurer, for their long and faithful service.

She is a master of parliamentary procedure, is ready with suggestions and counsel that are always regarded, and when occasion calls for it, can make an address that is convincing as well as gracefully worded. AFRICAN VOYAGE OF MUSSOLINI NO MENACE TO FOREIGN POWERS; PREMIER'S PRESTIGE IS ENHANCED

Events of Week Demonstrate Strength of Mussolini as National Leader.

NOTE TO NATIONS.

ROME, April 10 (Canadian Press) — Premier Mussolini was steaming across the Mediterranean yesterday for Tripoli, leaving Italy to the care of the new Fascist directorate, but before sailing he left a personally written message with officials of the foreign office calculated to reassure foreign powers that his dramaticaly heralded visit to Africa involves no threat to the interests of other countries.

"My voyage to Libya contains no menace," the Italian dictator wrote, as set forth in a statement made by officials today.

"In spite of the pageant presented by our warships, my voyage is merely a matter of prestige. We wish to concentrate attention on our colonies, to make them better known, better appreciated and better developed. But I refer only to the colonies we possess."

The dramatic events of the past three days in Italy—the attempt on the premier's life and his spectacular departure for North Africa—have brought the chief currents of the Italian situation vividly to the surface.

The violent outburst of rage in Rome and other cities when the news spread that a foreigner had tried to kill Mussolini, followed by manifestations of almost delirious joy when the public learned that the Duce had been only slightly wounded, could hardly be taken otherwise than as testifying strikingly to the strength of the national spirit which Mussolini has engfenered. To foreigners here who have watched Mussolini's career it afforded new evidence that he holds Italy "in the hollow of his hand."

The Fascist chieftain's grip on the nation is considered by these observers to be an incontestable fact in spite of the existence of an opposition which ever awaits a favorable moment to make itself felt.

To such a high pitch has the nationalistic spirit in Italy been strung that impartial non-Italian observers seem to be in accord that the situation constitutes one of the most striking and most important single political developments since the great war, possibly with vast consequences to the future of Europe. Development of this national spirit is believed to have been made possible because Mussolini has enrolled under the banner principally the youth of the nation, to whom the Duce looms up as a daring and impetuous patriotic figure, representing all that is greatest in Italian life, and as a living incarnation of the ancient glory of Italy.

Foreign Antipathy

Responsible circles here having apparently accepted Mussolini's rule as unbreakable at home, have concentrated on two points: First, on the effect of Mussolini's domination in the domain of international relations, and second, on the probabilities of the creation of groups within the Fascist party itself in accordance with the law of political evolution.

A notable factor in focusing an support for the Duce lies in the attacks of foreign countries against the premier and the Fascist regime. Mussolini already was "going strong," but the bitter accusations against him abroad may be fairly said to have sent him flying into the hearts of his countrymen. Wednesday's attempt to assassinate him seems almost certain to add the glamor of martyrdom to the idolatry with which he already was regarded by the masses.

THREE YEARS FOR HULL INCENDIARY

Guilty of Setting Father's Barn on Fire.

OTTAWA, April 10. — (Canadian Press).—David Beaudoin, Lac Ste Marie, Que., convicted of having set fire to his aged father's barn on December 15 last, by a jury at the Hull Assizes, was sentenced on Friday to three years in Ste. Vincente De Paul Penitentiary by Mr. Justice Loranger.

Mr. Justice Loranger said the accused had taken every cent of his aged father and had set fire to his barn, causing damage of $2,000. "Why?" asked the bench. "You were jealous and you premeditated and deliberated this crime. You forgot the commandment, 'Honor your father and mother so your days may be long on earth.' It is possible for me to sentence you to jail for life, but as the jury has recommended clemency and as your family will be provided for, I sentence you to three years in jail. With good conduct you may be freed in two years and three months."

MUCH SPECULATION.

Rumors of Tax Reductions Cause Much Discussion of Measures.

OTTAWA. April 10.—(Canadian Press).—The federal budget will probably be brought down in the House of Commons either on Tuesday or on Thursday of next week, according to present indications.

This year's budget has been the subject of more than the usual speculation on account of several semi-official intimations that has been given of reduction in taxation. Elimination of some of the stamp taxes, particularly the receipt tax, is regarded as quite probable. Rumor is also current that the exemptions on small incomes will be increased. There are also rumors that the super income tax will be readjusted.

The automobile tariff has been discussed considerably but the possibility is that this matter will be one of the first to be referred to the new tariff advisory board.

The government's immediate progamme was under discussion this morning at a caucus of Liberal members.

DEFINITE STEP TO BRING PEACE IN RIFFIAN WAR

Tribesmen Invited To Meet Franco-Spanish Delegates April 15.

MEET AT OUDJDA.

Conditions For Armistice First Item on Agenda of Parley.

PARIS, April 10 (Canadian Press) Definite steps to bring peace in Morocco were taken Friday, when French and Spanish officials decided to invite representatives of the Riffian tribesmen to meet with Franco-Spanish delegates April 15 at the town of Oudjda, near the Moroccan-Algerian frontier.

It was learned officially that the first item on the agenda will be the conditions for an armistice.

After several conversations between the French and Spanish officials it was decided to invite the Riffian tribes to have independent delegates with the same standing as those of Abd-El-Krim, leader of the revolting tribesmen. The decision to invite the tribes to send their own delegates is regarded here as a measure to weaken any opposition to reasonable terms that may be offered to Abd-El-Krim.

Weary of War

Several influential Caids have made known they are weary of war and desire peace. They are represented, however, as exposed to vengeance of sympathizers of the Riffiian leader and unable to detach themselves from him while in the field.

The French representatives at the peace conference who were chosen yesterday will be General Simon, an experienced colonial campaigner who has been through most of the trouble in Morocco since the beginning, and Henri Ponsot, assistant director of African affairs at the foreign office, one of the most noted authorities on Moroccan affairs.

Prior Conference

SPEEDIRON
PAT'D and REG'D. 1925
AT last—after years of experiment and research a perfect electric cooking element has been developed. An element which brings speed, lasting durability and absolute safety to electric cooking—McClary's Speediron!
This wonderful, new element is as far ahead of all others as electric light is ahead of candle light.
McClary's Speediron is the only protected, removable, repairable element made. It operates on contact heat. This gives it marvellous speed and eliminates waste by radiation, which is one of the greatest defects of open elements. And the Speediron is durable. It cannot be injured by liquids boiling over, spilling—or contact with pots and pans.
The cast iron surface protects the coils year in and year out—and if the coils by any chance burn out you can replace them easily, inexpensively and quickly.
Now On All McClary's Electric Ranges
This great, new electric cooking feature is now on all McClary's Electric Ranges—making it the most efficient, satisfactory range on the market. And you also get the exclusive advantages of McClary's famous porcelain enameled "fireless cooker" oven — the oven which keeps on cooking even after the current is turned off.

Ask your dealer about a McClary's Electric Range. After you've seen him demonstrate the Speediron element, you'll agree that McClary's is far ahead of any other for economy, speed, strength and general satisfaction.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS ARE HOME AFTER LONG TRAINING SEASON

Some Already Back and Others Are Due on Sunday.

MOST CONFIDENT.

NEW YORK, April 10 (Canadian Press).—The long training grind of major league teams, a six weeks' stretch of tryouts, weight reducing and reorganization requiring an outlay of more than half a million dollars, is at an end.

Many of the clubs already are at home from the south, others return today and Sunday. Most of them are confident, some unquestionably have been vastly improved, while still others have failed to impress critics or have suffered setbacks as a result of unfavorable weather and injuries to regulars.

New York's entries are due home today, after one of the most successful preparatory campaigns in their history—the Giants fortified by a powerful pitching staff and increased strength supplied in the outfield by Ty Tyson; the Yankees, riding the crest of a terrific wave of hitting for which two infield recruits, Mark Koenig and Tony Lazzeri, have been partly responsible.

Phillies and Mackmen.

Philadelphia already has welcomed back its teams, regarded as little stronger than a year ago, the Phillies find some cause for elation over the development of a pitching find in the 19-year-old Baecht. Major interest of the Quaker fans, however, centers in the Athletics, who are considered by critics to have been improved by the addition of the hard hitting West Point product, Walter French, in the outfield, as well as the return to first base of Joe Hauser.

Disappointment of the Red Sox in a training season interrrupted by much rain has been partially offset by successful tryouts of two outfield recruits, Sir Rosenthal and Elton Langford, while the Braves have given Hub fandom every reason to believe that their sensational finish of 1925 will carry over into the present season.

Bucky Harris and his Washinvton Senators expect to repeat—not with "castoffs," says Bucky, "but with experienced men," aided by two young young finds in Bennett Tate, catcher, and Buddy Myer, infielder.

St. Louis fans are satisfied that their two brilliant batsmen—Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal chief, and George Sisler, Browns' pilot,—are due for another big swatting carnival. Their pennant appetites already have been whetted by sensational exhibition winning streaks of the Cardinals, who are looking for big things from Thevenow at shortstop.

Champions in Shape.

Word comes from the Pirates that Paul Waner, Pacific Coast tryout, has given away in the outfield to Garson Bugbee, but the champions have rapidly been rounding to form and Hal Rhyne, infield recruit, will do, says Manager McKechnie.

The Brooklyn Robins have been disappointed by the illness of their new infielder, Butler. Their early hopes also have suffered from many defeats at the hands of the Yankees. But Manager Robinson looks for better things next week, particularly as he expects Butler to add much strength to the infield.

Cincinnati has been heartened by the acquisition of Wally Pipp and the return to form of Pitcher Carl Mays. The Cubs are hopeful that Maurice Shannon has stopped an infield gap. Confidence likewise rules in the headquarters of the Indians, Tigers and White Sox, as the call to "play ball" draws near.

CANADIAN BOXERS BOUT IS CANCELLED

Recent Showing of Opponent Not Satisfactory.

NEW YORK, April 10 (Canadian Press).—The proposed ten round match between Charlie Goodman, of Brooklyn, and Leo (Kid) Roy, of Montreal, Canadian featherweight champion, at the Broadway A. C. Monday night, was cancelled by Andy Neiderreiter, matchmaker of the club, Friday.

The State Athletic Commission sanctioned the cancellation when Neiderreiter presented evidence that Goodman had made an unsatisfactory showing in a match with another opponent after he had signed contracts for the fight with Roy. Neiderreiter showed the commission that by meeting defeat, Goodman had made it possible for the club to abrogate its contract with him on the theory that the defeat would tend to limit his drawing powers at the Broadway club. The entire card was cancelled as a result.

Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, N.Y., world's lightweight champion, must fight in defence of his title before June 7 or accept a challenge filed by Sid Terris, New York lightweight, the State Athletic Commission ruled today in tabling the challenge until the champion's six month time limit expires.

Kansas won the title crown from Jimmy Goodrich, a fellow townsman, in a 15-round match at Buffalo, December 7, and under the boxing rules must defend it every six months.

BASEBALL ONLY TOPIC IN MACK'S CLUB THIS YEAR

Kid Gleason Has Been Cracking Whip During Spring Training.

ELIMINATE GOLF.

Made Poker Unpopular With White Sox—Clubhouse Manners.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—Any person who enters the club-house of the Athletics next summer and mentions golf will be flirting with an undertaker. Kid Gleason retains plenty of his famous wallop and is ready to use it when and if necessary.

Much to the surprise of ball players and camp followers, Connie Mack issued an order forbidding his athletes to play golf. He had previously said he didn't mind them batting the little white agate around on days when there was no baseball.

But now Mr. Mack has determined to eliminate golf entirely from his ball club. Talking about the game in the club-house, on trains or in hotel lobbies will be almost as serious an offense as playing it.

Kid Gleason is behind the boss to the limit in the new order, as he is in everything which concerns the ball club. The whip-cracker wants to correct what he refers to as the "club-house manners" of the team.

"I ain't sayin' that golf would do a boy a bit of harm as recreation on the side," Gleason told us. "But the main trouble is that boys don't stop with playin' it.

"Nothin' makes me madder than to walk into the club-house after a tight game, whether we win or lose, and hear some feller say, 'Gee, I oughta done that second hole in three yesterday.'

"I maintain that a club which goes somewhere in this baseball business thinks and talks nothin' but baseball. They ain't got no time for golf, even as a topic of conversation—during the season, anyways."

Club-house Talk.

"When I talk about club-house manners I am covering a lot of ground," the Kid explained. "It happens that we are specializin' on golf right now.

"But there are other things we won't allow in the club-house. One of the best players on our club had a habit of coming into the club-house after a game or a practice and startin' wise-crackin'.

"He soon had all the boys doin' a lot of foolish talkin'. I gave that kid a couple of smacks and told him to keep his mind on baseball in the future. He saw the point of my argument.

"My Chicago club didn't never want to talk about nothin' but baseball. Folks has remarked about us when we was travelin' on trains or sittin' around in hotels.

"Always the Sox would be discussin' some play or something connected with the game. In the club-house they always talked about the game they had played and crabbed about their mistakes.

"I ain't got no objection to crabbin'. I'm a hard loser myself, and I like to see every man on my club feel the same way about it.

"Some don't take it so much to heart as others. But a boy who will fall down with the bases loaded in a tight game, for instance, and then come into the club-house and talk about golf—say, you won't dare print what I'll say about that egg."

Made Poker Unpopular.

The favorite Gleason method of punishing a player who has fractured any of the club rules is to work him until he's ready to lie right down and pass out of the picture.

Last night the Kid was telling some of the A's how he punished members of the White Sox for an all-night poker party out in California when Chicago trained on the Pacific Coast.

"A bunch of the boys was quartered in a cottage," recalled the Mack whip-cracker. "I went over there early one evening and found a poker party in progress.

"I found out that the limit was reasonable and I didn't object to them havin' their little game. But I says to them: 'Boys, remember, I want all lights out and you all in bed not later than 1 o'clock. We've got a tough game on tomorrow.'

"I goes over to my room in another building and reads for awhile. Along about 11.30 I looks over at the cottage where the game was goin' on and sees the lights burnin' bright.

"I goes to the clerk and says, 'Call me at 6 o'clock tomorrow mornin'.' At six bells I'm up, dressed in a couple of minutes and on my way to that cottage.

"Then poker players had just turned in. I smelled cigarette smoke that was fresh and I knew they'd had an all-night session.

"So I started in and routed them ball players out. I wasn't gentle about it, believe me.

Square With Club.

"'What's the idea?' one of the big, lazy pitchers yelled at me. 'Why, I just thought we'd all get up early this mornin' and enjoy a little work,' I told him as I grabbed him by the ankle and pulled him outa that haypile.

"I took them poker players to the ball yard—and did I work 'em? Boy, along about 11 o'clock I had 'em crying out loud. But I kept 'em right at it until it was time for the afternoon game.

"Then they played in that game and got cats and dogs if they showed signs of weakenin'. When it was all over and I let 'em go they crawled to their cottage and into bed without even waitin' for their supper.

"None of 'em ever asked me why I did that. It bored into their thick heads that they was being punished for that all-night poker party.

"Never after that did I have to tell any of the players on my club when to go to bed. They knew what to expect if they didn't behave themselves.

"They are callin' me the whip-cracker on this club. Fair enough. I'll crack a mean whip if I have to do it to keep this club on their toes.

"I find that the best way to have a man do what is right is to have him tired every night when it's time for him to go to bed.

"I won't be mean with you fellers if you act the right way. But if I catch you tryin' to put anything over on me, look out. I'll run you till you won't have no legs left."

Up to Pitchers.

Kid Gleason is sincere when he says that the Athletics can win the pennant this year. He repeatedly tells those who care to listen to him, "I'm stuck on this ball club!"

The whip-cracker feels that the success of the A's rests in the arms of the pitchers.

"I know what the boys can do with the shillalah; I know what the fielders can do; it's up to the pitchers to carry up through to that championship," the Kid declared.

Gleason likes Rommel's style. He also thinks Joe Pate will come through famously. He has a word of praise for several other curvers.

"I don't know for sure, but I have an idea that a good smart pitcher who can hold the enemy in check in the pinches will be a big help to a club this year," Gleason opined.

"In other words, I think there is liable to be more to pitchin' this year than there has in several seasons past. That may change the style of baseball.

"I ain't sayin' what we will do. Me and Connie has talked it over and we'll be there with what we consider the right system. We'll tell more about that after we have swung round the circuit.

"But I want to see them pitchers of ours primed. For if pitchers' battles are goin' to be the style, we think we can be as fashionable as the next club."

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

I had sorta intended to start this off with some poetical applesauce about "In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball," but on 2nd thoughts it won't do. In the 1st place, we ain't had no spring to speak of, and 2ndly, when I thought of Walter Johnston and Covaleskie and Reuther and Joe Bush and them other birds on the Washington line-up the "young man" stuff was off, two. But anyway, in spite of the 4-ft. high snow piles that still decorate the local landscape, spring can't be far off, because I think I heard a robin yesterday and I seen 213 people which usually lock themselves in from Dec. 1st til they think winter is over, so from them signs it should oughta soon be warm enough to think about baseball. I hear a lotta folks kicking about the long winter, but it ain't so bad. The 1st 4 or 5 months in the worst.

Locally the great American game is sorta marking time, as it were, but the boys is beginning to feel a longing for the feel of the hardwood in their hands when it meets the old ball right on the piccilo, and it won't be long till they is out there on the diamond. Everything points to a good team for the Petes this year with Mister Shiner Johnston well stocked with material, and the boys harboring a sorta of notion that it would be nice to bring the senior Ontario baseball title here to keep the O.h.A. trophy from feeling lonesome. Anyway they ain't no harm in trying.

SHOULD ACT THEIR AGE.

The Toronto Baseball Association has been pulling the old stuff again this year about having to finish their schedules too soon in order to get in the Ontario play-offs. Them birds give me a pain in the neck every time they unload that line of bunk, and the Ontario body should oughta to give them the office straight that if they don't declare their winners on time the serious is off so far as they is concerned. As a matter of fact, all them gazaboos is after is gate receipts. They want to run their own leagues as long as they is customers attending, then pull off a long drawn out inter-league play-off to decide the Toronto winners, and then they'll condescend to dip into the Ontario gravy. Nearly every year the Provincial teams is hustled through and then has to sit around 2 or 3 weeks keeping in shape by reading about the Toronto play-offs in the papers. The O.B.A.A. is plenty big enough to get along without the Toronto leagues, and if them ginks won't act their age and get through on time they should oughta to be invited to jump into the lake.

THE HOCKEY FEED.

I wonder, Mister Sporting Editor, does the hockey fans know that they will be room for about 100 of them at the big banquet to be given the Petes on Thursday, and that they'll be a warm welcome on the mat for anybody what'll plunk down one dollar fifty. The way I look at it is that they oughta to be a real big turnout to honour the hockey gang for the laurels they have brung this direction, and I notice that up to Port Arthur the other night when the Allan cuppers was banqueted they was hundreds of hockey bugs jammed into the proceedings. So local citizens oughta to be glad of a chance to set in at the Petes' celebration with the prospects of a good meal, a mess of presentations and a chance to see the moguls which run the O.h.A., all for 12 bits. I don't mean they run the O.h.A. for 12 bits, but you can get in for that. I understand that Mister Eason, Mister Hewitt, Mr. Sheriff Paxton and other indignities of the O.h.A. is going to be included in the list of "We have with us tonight," and taken by and large, it should oughta to be a chic affair. Tickets can be had from the City Clerk, and the line forms on the right, gentleman. They won't be no rush seats, so you better get your order in early, for the speculators won't have none the right of the feed.

NEXT YEAR'S PETES.

The air is full of rumours about next year's Peterboro hockey team. If all the stars which has been mentioned as having decided to pay their poll tax in this city next winter was coming here, Peterboro would not only be sure of winning the Allan cup, but they'd be enough left over to be runners-up for the championship. It is likely they may be a coupla new faces in next year's line-up, but you can discount most of them yarns that is floating around, because Peterboro ain't out to corner the hockey material, and anyway, if they was they'd meet plenty of opposition. Next year is going to be a hectic campaign because the boys which win the Allan cup wins themselves also a sea voyage over to France to defend the Olympic championship, and more than 1 team has their eyes on that very thing right now. Believe me, the pros will have to dangle a lot of real money in front of the amateurs next winter if they want to lure them away from a chance of going to Europe.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, I ain't going to worry you with any more today, there being nothing much doing in sporting circles just now, so I'll just say ta-ta til next week.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

THOSE CUPS AGAIN.

Dear Mr. Editor: In your issue of April 3rd, A rue Sportsman writes that one of the Inter-City Cups (Brown's) was on exhibit in one of our prominent business mens windows at least two weeks before the finals.

I admit it was, but the cups have not been handed over to the winners (the DeLaval team) and when they had their banquet for winning the championship, when the cups were to be presented to them, the cups could not be located and have not been as yet. Is this sportsmanship? The question is, Why are the Fowler and Brown cups, which were donated for City League hockey championship, not being presented to the DeLaval Hockey Team, instead of being hung on to by some individual?

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for this space.

JOHN CREIGHTON.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

tone of the market here was again stronger and prices scored a further advance of 1½ cents per bushel. Sales of odd cars of No. 2 white were made at 57½ cents, No. 3 white at 56c, and No. 4 white at 54½c per bushel, ex-store. Canadian Western grades were unchanged.

The high light of the winter wheat flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were marked up ten to fifteen cents per barrel, which was attributed to the small stocks available from Ontario millers. Spring wheat grades were unchanged.

Egg Market Heavy.

A feature of the local egg situation was the easier feeling that developed in the market owing to the increased offerings from the Western and Ontario shippers and the prospects of much larger receipts next week. Prices, however, showed no change. A steady trade continues to be done in a wholesale way and sales of car lots of Western extras were made at 28¼c, firsts at 26½c and seconds at 23½c per dozen f.o.b. Saskatchewan, while purchases from Ontario shippers were made at 32c to 33c for extras, 29c to 30c for firsts, and 26c to 27c for seconds per dozen, f.o.b. shipping points. The receipts to-day in Montreal were 2,103 cases, as compared with nil for the same day last week and a year ago.

Potato Prices Advance.

A decidedly strong feeling developed in the local market for potatoes and prices scored an advance of 30c to 50c per bag and the prospects are that they will go still higher in the near future owing to the fact that United States buyers have again re-entered the market. Another strong factor in the situation is the fact that New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island shippers have withdrawn from the market and none of these varieties are now obtainable here. The market was active, with a large volume of business passing.

A weak feeling developed in the butter market and prices scored another decline of 1¼c to 2c per lb. This was attributed to the increased arrivals of supplies from overseas and the steady improvement in the make throughout Canada.

The cheese trade was dull.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9 (Canadian Press).—Reports of excellent conditions prevailing in the United States winter wheat belt, and the coming of milder weather which soon will permit work of the spring wheat farmer had a depressing effect in the grain market here to-day. Losses ranged from 1¼c to 1 5-8c, with May at $1.49 5-8; July at $1.46 7-8, and October at $1.30 5-8.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 9 (Canadian Press).—Flour 10 cents higher at $9.20 to $9.25 a barrel. Shipments 31,019 barrels.

Bran, $23 to $23.50.

Wheat, No. 1 Northern, $1.56 3-8 to $1.57 3-8; May $1.52 3-8; July $1.45 3-4.

Oats, No. 3 white 38 1-4 to 38 3-4c.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 9 (Canadian Press). — Arrivals, 495 cattle and calves; 300 hogs.

A good clean-up of supplies was affected on the cattle market here to-day. The demand was fair, with prices showing a small variation from the close of yesterday.

Hogs were unchanged, with thick smooths at $13.25 and select bacons $14.57.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 9 (Canadian Press).—All grains declined rather sharply on the Board of Trade here to-day, following a slight upturn at the outset. An overbought condition was soon disclosed when sellers became active and a re-action sent values downgrade. Transactions on the whole, however, were small, it being apparent that the trade was awaiting the issuance of the Government report on the condition of winter wheat after the close.

At the finish wheat showed a net loss of 1 1-8c to 1 7-8c, May (new) $1.58¼ to $1.58 3-8 and July $1.35 3-8 to $1.35½. Corn was down 1½c to 1 3-4c; oats ¾c to 5-8c off, and provisions ranged from 15 cents decline to 21 cents advance.

NORMA BRINGS ROLLICKING "KIKI" TO THE SCREEN.

(By Russell J. Birdwell, NEA Service Writer.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 10— Norma Talmadge has brought a rollicking, slapsticking, Corsican "Kiki" to the screen which will perpetuate David Belasco's American conception of Andre Picard's continental characterization of a street waif.

No artistic heights are reached in the screen version of this celebrated stage, rather the film has been motivated by a concentrated effort to entertain with farcical situations and plotted gags. The producer, Joseph M. Schenck, has succeeded in accomplishing this.

At no time does the picture lull into any spasms of serious although it might have reached a little higher level if Hans Kraly, the German scenarist, had permitted the players to pause in running the gauntlet of humor long enough to seriously partake for a moment of the love theme that was so cleverly connived.

Directorial touches, which smack of the von Stroheim and Lubitsch school, punctuate various sequences of the production which was titled by George Marion, Jr. Ronald Colman, Samuel Goldwyn's wonder boy, is pranced in and out of the scenes as a capable foil on which Norma may play her humor and emotions.

Picturesque street scenes of the theatrical quarter of Paris and lavish drawing-room sets enhance the beauty of the picture immeasurably.

Norma has worked hard to make of "Kiki" an interesting venture and there is no doubt, from a movie standpoint, that she has immortalized the role. Clarence Brown directed.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Three clubs, Pittsburgh, New York and St. Louis, stand out as the class of the National League. One of these three teams should win the pennant in that organization.

League are not weaklings by any means. On the whole the strength is pretty well distributed, which makes me think the race in the senior league will be a spirited one.

Pittsburgh is a great ball team. That was demonstrated in the world series. At third and shortstop two of the most brilliant players in the game, Traynor and Wright, make that section of the Pirate infield very strong.

While the other side of the infield, first and second, is not so strongly fortified, it is still very capable. There is more of a question about second than first.

When I talked the strength and weakness of the National League with the great Rogers Hornsby, he expressed the opinion that second base might be a flaw in the play of the Pirates and cost them many a ball game. Hornsby figures no club can be strong unless well protected at that position.

Pittsburgh dopes to repeat unless tough breaks and a poor start handicap the club's play. Those two things two things often get a team away on the wrong foot and it is impossible to recover. The Yankees of last year in the American League had such an experience.

Every National League manager has a wholesome respect for New York, managed by John McGraw. The Giants failed to go over last season after being picked to win its fifth straight pennant. It is doubtful if any major league club ever encountered more hard luck from beginning to the end of the season.

Due to illness that kept him off the bench during the first two months of the season, John McGraw took only a minor part in the active management of the club last year. This year he is back in uniform and intends to direct every ball game from the bench or coaching lines.

Having the managerial strategy of McGraw back of every play made by the Giants, means the New York club will be at least 20 per cent stronger than last season.

Added to a long list of injuries and illness, New York's pitching last year was just fair. This year it is certain to be much improved. That should help.

It is just possible that Rogers Hornsby and his St. Louis Cardinals will upset the National League dope. The Cardinals have much power and great spirit. The club from manager to lowly substitute feels it has a great chance to win this year and intends to make the most of it.

If the Cardinals get good pitching it will be a strong factor in the race. The pitching is a big question. Hornsby, himself, has his doubts.

The Boston Braves should win a lot of ball games this summer and throw any number of jolts into the hopes of the various pennant contenders. It is a well-balanced ball club, having no big stars except Manager Bancroft at short, but it plays smart baseball and when it gets good pitching must be feared.

The unsettled condition of the Brooklyn infield may keep that team from being as high in the race as its pitching and batting punch figure.

No club in the National League should get better pitching than the Cincinnati Reds. The staff directed by Manager Jack Hendricks shapes up as the classiest in the National League. The shortstop problem, however, may handicap the pennant chances of the Reds considerably. Pipp has helped the team at first. Anywhere in the first division is a Cincinnati possibility.

While both the Phillies and the Cubs look stronger than last year neither is figured to make any noises that sound like pennant.

"NO, NO, NANETTE"

"No, No, Nanette" that most delightful of musical comedies which since H. H. Frazee first produced it, has literally sent its overwhelming acclaim round the world— Chicago, London, Australia and home again to New York, comes to the Grand Opera House next Wednesday.

The fame of this sensational hit has been well broadcasted, if the heavy advance inquiries offer any indication. Since "Nanette's" visit is sure to attract capacity houses everywhere, the fore- thinking play-goer, who would enjoy the most engaging musical offering of many seasons, will not delay a call at the box office.

There is much taht may be considered extraordinary about the success of "No, No, Nanette". But what is most extraordinary is that it has been written, composed and staged with such perfect skill. Amusements of its kind too, frequently fall short in one of these essentials, but "No, No, Nanette" according to every critic, has developed all of them very close to perfection. The book by Frank Mandel and Otto Harbach carries a cleverly conceived story and is unendingly funny. The lyrics, devised by Mr. Harfbachi and Irving Caesar, have point and jingle. The tunes, by that brilliant young composer, Vincent Youmans, are sparkling, humorous, dramatic—as the situation may require and thoroughly musicianly. Edward Moore, music critic of the Chicago Tribune, even went so far as to place the score, in its funmaking phases, on a par with "Fra Diavalo", showing that popular melody can be good sport and good music at the same time. Exquisite costumes, picturesque scenery and an enlarged orchestra are promised by Mr. Frazee, who alone is to be given credit for the staging of the entire production.

Since "No, No, Nanette" is a type of music-play that calls for real actors, the producer, true to his standards, has provided an exceptional cast including such fine artists as John Hyams, Leila McIntyre, who are especially featured, Eulalie Young, Roland Woodruff, Mary Vaughn, Dorothy Newell, Helen Case, Mildred Joy, Myrtle Miller Floyd English and other musical comedy favorites, not forgetting a numerous ensemble, featuring Mr. Frazee's specially cultivated "Gorgeous Garden of Girls".

"SEA HORSES" TO RIDE ON CAPITOL SCREEN MONDAY

Dynamic Melodrama of Love and Adventure Based on Popular Best Seller

The Capitol Theatre will have an exceptionally fine film attraction next Monday, when Paramount's cinema version of Francis Brett Young's widely read novel "Sea Horses," makes it local debut. For those who like vigorous melodrama, tinctured with love interest and moving midst scenes of tropic color and beauty, this photoplay will fill the bill from soup to nuts.

Much is expected from Sea Horses," for Mr. Young's story which Becky Gardiner adapted and James Hamilton scenarized, is rich in action, drama, romance and suspense, and lends itself admirably to visualization on the screen. Furthermore, the fact that Allan Dwan made it is a guarantee of its worth from a directorial standpoint.

There is the added factor of a notable cast, which numbers amongst its personnel such popular and capable players as Jack Holt, Florence Vidor, George Bancroft and William Powell.

Mr. Dwan is said to have incorporated in the production several spectacular features, which set a new high-water mark for realism and thrill. Among these is cited a stirring fist fight, an exciting battle in which several hundred natives take part, a raging sea storm, and a cyclonic tropical tornado.

The story centers about a lovely and charming English girl who, with her little daughter, sets sail on an ocean freighter which is headed for an out-of-the-way port on the East African coast. There she hopes to join her handsome, romantic husband, who deserted her a year after their marriage.

Her presence on board the ship has an electrifying effect on the rough crew and officers. The burly mate and the youthful third officer eventually come to blows over her, and even the captain finds himself yielding to her unconscious charms. What happens when she finds her husband has degenerated into a dirty, drunken beach-comber, and the development of her subsequent romance with the sea captain forms the largest and most gripping part of the production.

Daily newspapers, fan magazines and trade jorunals have had many articles of late pointing out his peculiar ability for discovering latent talent and bringing it to the surface.

And D'Arcy far from misplaced the faith Von Stroheim had in him. In fact his work so impressed Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer officials that they immediately placed him under contract.

AROUND THE CITY.

Over the day the fire department had four calls, an automobile caught fire on George street at noon yesterday, but no damage was done. At 5.17 p.m. they were called to a chimney fire at 509 Parnell street. Last night at 7.00 a couch caught fire at 463 Hunter street. Slight damage was done to the room.

Early this morning the mayor ordered the brigade out of the city to a fire at Mark Burnham's barn, but when they got there little assistance could be rendered.

Mark Burnham Loses Large Barn Early This Morning.

The large barn of Mark Burnham was burned this morning at about 5 o'clock. Mr. Burnham lives about ½ a mile out of the city, in the Township of Otonabee. The city Fire Department was called to the fire but little assistance could be rendered.

Mr. Burnham was abel to get all the stock out of the barn, except a few hens and a couple of calves. The wind was in the west and this is the only thing that saved the house and implement sheds. Mr. Burnham lost a lot of feed and all his seed grain, which he had cleaned ready to sow for his next year's crop. The cause of the fire is unknown.

BROWNING WEDS HIS CINDERELLA OF 15 YEARS IN OFFICE OF GARAGE; CONSENT GIVEN BY HER PARENTS

LUXURIOUS HOME

Browning in Limelight of His Adoption of 21-Year-Old Girl.

COLDSPRING, N.Y., April 12 (Canadian Press).—Frances Heenan, known as "Peaches" to her friends and as the 15-year-old Cinderella to the newspaper public, spent the first day of her honeymoon with her 51-year-old Prince Charming, Edward W. Browning, secluded yesterday in a 15-room house near the Hudson River.

The second Mrs. Browning, who, until recently, had been confined to her room in her mother's small Washington Heights apartment in New York, suffering from acid burns mysteriously received, was today the mistress of a two-acre estate.

Her millionaire husband, whose previous adventures as a Cinderella man—the adoption of Mary Louise Spas, later annulled when it was found she was 21 and not 16 as was supposed—had caused him wide publicity, has promised her, she said, an estate on Long Island. But until that is built, the Brownings will live at Coldspring in the luxurious home the real estate operator has leased for a year.

Parents Consulted

Their wedding Saturday was attended by both Mr. and Mrs. Heenan, who are separated. Both gave their consent to the marriage, so that Browning and his young bride experienced no difficulty in obtaining a license.

Miss Heenan had been living in the new home for several days prior to the marriage, she said in her application for the license.

Attorneys for Mrs. Heenan and her daughter had declared in Children's Court, New York, Thursday, that the girl was still unable to leave her bed because of burns received when someone is said to have thrown acid on her while she slept. On this plea an investigation begun by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children into the fitness of the mother as guardian for the girl was postponed a week.

The license was obtained Saturday in the plumbing shop of Gilbert Foreman, town clerk. Witnesses said no trace of the acid burns were visible on her face or neck.

Married in Garage

The marriage was performed in the office of the garage of Ray W. Christian, justice of the peace, and also owner and chauffeur of the

BURBANK DEAD AT SANTA ROSA; INFIDEL TO END

IN HIS 77TH YEAR

Denial of Immortality Brought Storm of Protests Recently.

SANTA ROSA, Calif., April 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Luther Burbank, withered by age, died here early Sunday amid the flowering fruits and blooms that he created for mankind's benefit.

The noted horticulturist passed on to the Great Adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith. Only a few weeks before the end he had declared that he could not believe in a life after death. And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink he did not falter in his convictions.

Infirm and worn after years devoted to developing and guiding plant life, the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion and reincarnation, contributed to his last illness.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders after Mr. Burbank gave out his statement declaring himself an infidel. His home here was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. The stress he was subjected to in defending and explaining his beliefs brought on a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive.

His Last Words.

"Oh, doctor, I am very sick," were his last words. They were uttered to his physician, Dr. Joseph H. Shaw.

Gastro-intestinal complications and violent hiccoughing had weakened Mr. Burbank. All hope for him was given up Saturday night after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong life. At the bedside were his wife and his sister, Mrs. Emma Peeson, of Realdsburg.

To Tell Story.

Crushed as a youth when the flower of his love wilted and died, Luther Burbank sought solace in the culture of earthly plants. That in brief is the hidden story of the life of the eminent scientist who lay in the quiet sleep of death in his garden wonderland here to-day.

The end came early yesterday morning.

None of the friends and neighbors of Burbank during the fifty odd years he worked miracles in the plant kingdom here knew his story. To Edgar A. Waite, of the San Franciso bulletin, in whom he had confidence, Burbank opened up the chapter of his life that resulted in his turning his energies and talents toward the service of mankind. Waite was given permission to publish the story only after Burbank's death.

INSPECT THE WHEEL RIMS.

Quite often a motorist cannot understand the cause of a blowout when the tread of the tire is still good. If blowout is near the rim, see if the rim is bent. A bent rim is often the cause of rim cuts, of tires blowing from the rims, and breaking of the wire cables at the base of the tire.

Druses Have Heavy Losses In Battle Around Herman

PARIS, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Havas despatches from Beirut, Syria, say the Druses lost seven hundred men in the recent fighting between the French and the tribesmen in Hermon region south-west of Damascus. The French losses are placed at eighteen killed, three of them French regulars, and forty-eight wounded.

Movement of submission by Tibal chiefs in Hermon area is declared to be growing.

NORGE MOORS IN ENGLAND ON ITS FLIGHT TO POLE

Success Attends First Leg From Rome to Pulham Field.

AMUNDSEN'S PARTY

Best Speed 70 Miles an Hour — Difficulty in Landing.

PULHAM, England, April 12.—(Canadian Press.)— The dirigible Norge which will carry the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition on its Polar flight, completed the first lap of the journey from Rome when it landed here at 5.50 p.m. Sunday. The great ship, which took off from the Ciampino flying field near Rome at 9.30 Saturday morning, first circled over the aerodrome at 2.45 p.m., but it required several hours to bring the vessel to its moorings.

The flight of the Norge was pleasant and uneventful, but the dirigible experienced considerable difficulty in effecting a landing. The operations were watched by a large crowd of spectators, including the air minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, Crown Prince Olav of Norway, and the Norwegian minister, all of whom congratulated Captain Scott heartily on the success of his voyage.

Captain Scott said that his ship's best speed was 70 miles an hour. A total distance of 1,400 miles was covered, for the most part at an altitude of 1,000 feet. Strong easterly winds were encountered and conditions were good. There was still enough fuel aboard to have lasted another eight hours.

The captain liked the behavior of the Norge very much, saying she was as good as could be for her particular job.

An impressive good-bye was said to the Norge at the Ciampino Flying Ground, along the ancient Appian Way, which, centuries ago, witnessed the passage of the proud Roman legions of Constantine, the first Christian Roman Emperor, the same legions which took sixty days of forced marches to cover the same ground which the Norge proposes to travel in but twenty-four hours.

High State officials motored out to do honor to those men of Italy who make up part of the crew, mostly mechanicians, and to wish the best of luck to every one aboard from the giant, Lieutenant Riiser-Larsen, the second pilot and second in command, to the smallest Italian mechanic who wiped his oily hands on a piece of cotton waste before shaking hands.

Norwegians Cheer Compatriots.

Every Norwegian in Rome, mostly officials of the Legations and the Consulate, and the families of the Norwegian members of the Norge's crew had gathered at Ciampino, and the air was full of fond farewell messages shouted in Norwegian as the big ship was hauled out of her hangar and her motors were tuned up for a final test.

TO SELL ELEVATORS

Decision of Saskatchewan Co-operatives.

REGINA, Sask., April 12 (Canadian Press).—Shareholders of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company voted late Saturday night to sell the elevators, owned and operated by the company, to the wheat pool.

The vote, which came after two days of heated debate, was overwhelmingly in favor of the sale, the voting figures being 356 to 77 against.

QUOTA EXCEEDED.

LONDON, April 12 (Canadian Press)—The rush of British families desiring to emigrate to Canada has swamped the Canadian high commissioner's office in London. The quota of 1,500 families to be settled on Canadian farms this year under the government scheme has already been exceeded and no more applicants are acceptable for 1926.

ROBERT CREIGHTON IS WINNER OF FAVORITE PLAYER CONTEST AND WILL BE BANQUET GUEST

Chooses Frank Collins as His Ideal on Championship Team.

CUP ENGRAVED.

Contest Was Close and the Judges Had Busy Time Reading Essays.

Robert Creighton, 16, of 28 Ware Street, wins The Examiner contest in which the prize is admission to the banquet to be given the Peterborough Senior Ontario Hockey champions on Thursday, and the honor of presenting The Examiner Cup to his favorite player—Frank Collins.

The decision of the judges was handed to The Examiner as follows:

"We agree that Robert Creighton's essay is first in the competition. Jos. J. Duffus, W. T. Holloway, G. N. Gordon."

The cup to be presented by the winner is being engraved with his name and the name of his favorite player. A car will call for Robert Creighton on Thursday night to take him to the banquet in the Empress Hotel.

Contest Was Close.

The contest was a close one, and there were many very excellent essays submitted. Careful attention was given by the judges, Mayor W. T. Holloway, G. N. Gordon, and J. J. Duffus, President of the hockey team; and to these gentlemen The Examiner expresses thanks for their painstaking efforts.

It may be said that a great many of the contestants were disqualified because they made their essays too long, evidently paying no attention to the often repeated warning that two hundred words was the limit.

The Winning Essay

Robert Creighton's essay, in which he tells about Frank Collins' good work, is as follows:

"As each and every player on the Peterborough hockey team deserves credit for bringing to our city the first Senior Hockey Championship, My favorite on the team is Frankie Collins. Frankie, who climbed from Junior up, always proved to be the most valuable player. He is a nifty stick-handler as well as a fast skater and is always out for to win the game, and has proved so this year; when Peterborough played Kitchener in Kitchener, he scored the final goal. Frankie is well liked by every one, as he plays the game on the ice and not in the penalty box. He takes all bumps and knocks with a pleasant smile, and he has a pleasant word for all. He is no kicker and although things may not be too pleasing at times, you will never hear Frank otherwise than saying, it was done for the best. I consider Frankie is a hockey player of high reputation, and anyone who has followed up hockey, cannot say but Frank Collins is a brilliant hockey player. He is unselfish and shares the passing of the puck, which is a big item in the game."

Special Mention

Contestants listed for special mention by the judges are: Jack Dobbin, 267 Stewart Street; Frederick Meagher, 27 Crescent Street; Charles E. Meyette, School for the Deaf; Earl Roberts Waterman, 519 Romaine Street; Speros Yeotes, 205 Brock Street; Harold Wright, 362 Hunter Street; Ernest Sucee; Harry Kingdon, 313 Reid Street; Kenneth Johnson, 196 King Street; Arthur Wood, 343 Stewart Street; Clinton Williams, 83 London Street; Frank deForge, 297 Hunter Street West; Thomas Cooke, 471 Sherbrooke Street; Henry Jay, 258 Aylmer Street; and Kenneth Jones, 506 Patterson Street.

These essays will be printed as space permits during the week.

Cancer Is Not Contagious Experiments Show Doctor

BERLIN, April 12.—Cancer is not contagious when brought in contact with a healthy human body, in the opinion of Dr. Hans Kurtzahn of the surgical clinic of Koenigsberg University.

Dr. Kurtzahn has astonished a convention of German surgeons now in session here by reporting that he had experimented on himself, transferring a patch of cancerous growth from a patient's pectoral gland to his own thigh. The cancer cells, he reported, soon died, being unable to live in a healthy body.

In an effort to test whether cancer could be cured through a serum, Dr. Kurtzahn also extracted blood from himself after an injection of cancer bacilli. He reported that he had found negative results in the serum made from this blood.

The experiments, which were made five months ago, left Dr. Kurtzahn perfectly healthy. The German physician's willingness to experiment upon himself in the study of cancer has been acclaimed by his colleagues as an act of rare heroism.

FRENCH DEMAND ARMS OF RIFFS BEFORE PARLEY

Terms of Peace Conference Would Render Tribesmen Harmless.

LOCAL AUTONOMY.

Foreign Relations Must Be Made Through France and Spain.

PARIS, April 12 (United Press).—France is ready to impose the following conditions before the peace conference to be held with the Riff leaders, according to Le Matin.

1. Entire submission by the Riffian-Ojebala tribes must be given. The Riffe must consent to carry on their foreign relations negotiations through France and Spain. In exchange, France and Spain agree that the Riffs shall have a local autonomy. French, Spanish and Riffian delegates to the conference will have a right to decide what part of the Spanish zone occupied by the Riffs shall be independent.

2. Prisoners must be exchanged unconditionally.

3. France is ready to give the Riffs local militia, but France must control the number of soldiers and the Riff armaments and the output of grenades.

4. France is willing to grant a certain latitude in the re-election of a tribal chieftain.

5. The Riff must dispose of their arms before the conference can begin.

THE WEATHER

Highest temperature Saturday, 47 degrees; highest Sunday, 45 degrees; lowest Saturday night, 20 degrees; lowest Sunday night, 12 degrees. Some of the creeks are feeling the influence of the warmer days, but there has been little thawing except in the direct rays of the sun. The temperature in the Northwest has gone up from 10 to 25 degrees during the last couple of days, and apparently a break has occurred there, and our turn is due shortly.—W.P.

He Admits He Was Drunk—But Not This Drunk; They Say He Choked A Big Ostrich To Death

BOSTON, Apjril 12 (United Press). — Although he was drunk, William C. McIntyre refuses to confirm the report that he leaped a seven-foot wire fence and choked an ostrich to death. Arrested as the slayer of "Governor," a big male ostrich at the Franklin Park Zoo, McIntyre told the police he had a dim recollection of having engaged in a terrific battle with somebody, but that he could not recall whether the opponent was an ostrich.

"My mind was a blank for two days, and I don't even know where I was when the bird was killed," he told the authorities.

The arrested man, however, admitted that a handkerchief and an overcoat found inside the ostrich's pen were his. Furthermore, he is wearing an ugly scar on his forehead, which might have been inflicted by a fighting ostrich.

The police believed that McIntyre will be convicted on a charge of breaking and entering, with intent to commit cruelty to animals, when arraigned today.

House Of Refuge Inmate Refused To Eat; Died

Dan. Reid, an inmate of the House of Refuge, Lakefield, died yesterday. Mr. Reid had been there about two months, and a few weeks ago he refused to eat. The doctors tried every means to get him to eat but in vain. The Board of Management had him examined, and he was pronounced insane. He was to be committed to the asylum, but suddenly grew worse and died yesterday.

FASCIST LEADER FLAUNTS POWER IN DUSKY FACES

Mussolini Carries Italy's Message To Colony in Africa.

SHOWS FORCE.

"No One Can Stop Our Inexorable Will," Declares Kingdom's Premier.

TRIPOLI, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Benito Mussolini, the Italian Premier, landed on the soil of Africa yesterday with a message to the black and brown people of the most important colonies belonging to the Kingdom of Italy. The message was: "My voyage must not be interpreted as a mere administrative act, but as an affirmation of the power of the Italian people, a manifestation of the force which originates in Rome and which extends from Rome to the glorious and triumphant literal Fascist Italian Tripoli."

"You represent here Italy which is daily more prosperous and powerful. Rome carries the beacon lamp of strength to the shores of the African sea, no one can stop our inexorable will.

"You understand me more for what I have not said than for what I have said. Only this language is possible in Fascist style."

From the moment Mussolini, dressed in the uniform of an honorary corporal of Fascist Militia, stepped ashore and was welcomed by Prince Hussen Pasha Karamanli, until he delivered Italy's message from the balcony of the municipal palace, the ceremony was indicative of Italy's power.

W. S. MERRELL IS MAKING CHANGE

Well Known Business Man Transfers To H. Le Brun Company.

An important change in two of the old George street firms was completed on Saturday when W. S. Merrell, of Merrell and Meredith, severed his connection with that firm and joined the well known and long established business of H. LeBrun and Company.

Mr. Merrell will now be found at 396 George street, the business house of H. LeBrun and Company. Mr. Merrell, speaking to The Examiner today, expressed to his former customers for their patronage and promised to all the same satisfactory treatment in his new business connections, which has heretofore characterized his dealings with the public.

Mr. Merrell has been a citizen such as the City may well be proud of. The interest of the city and the advancement of commercial enterprise has always received his warm support. In his many activities Mr. Merrell has always been public spirited and sought the good of Peterborough and has earned the confidence and esteem of the citizens generally. The continued confidence of the people will, no doubt, be extended to Mr. Merrell in his new enterprise. Mr. Merrell's experience and business acumen should be a decided asset even to the well established firm of H. LeBrun and Company.

History is, after all, a crystallization of popular beliefs.

$400,000 'RUM' PLANT SEIZED

Seven Big Stills and $200,000 Alcohol on Long Island.

POLICE CAPTURE.

NEW YORK, April 12.—As a result of an intercepted radio message, Federal agents and police of the Special Alcohol Squad, led by Chief Inspector William J. Lahey and Inspector Frank J. Hale, effected Saturday at Wyoside, L.I., the biggest seizure in the history of prohibition enforcement in this district, they said. They raided the Woodbine Manufacturing Corporation, on Betts Avenue, near Queen's Boulevard, arrested the manager and an employee and seized seven stills, together with alcohol and equipment valued at more than $400,000.

In addition to being equipped with complete radio sending and receiving sets, the officers said, the manufacturing plant, a four-storey brick building, which was formerly occupied by the Consumers' Brewing Company housed three stills of 5,000 gallons capacity each, two of 3,000 gallons capacity, two others of 1,200 gallons capacity, a large number of telephones believed to be, in some instances, private wires, a complete redistilling, bottling and capping outfit.

The largest still seized up to Saturday in this section of the country was that of the South River (N.J.) Chemical Corporation, which was a single still with a capacity of 4,000 gallons. "Mannie" Kessler, so-called "King of the Bootleggers," pleaded guilty in connection with the South River case.

Two Men Arrested

The men arrested at the Woodbine plant said they were Philip Rosso of 48 Forty-eight Street, Brooklyn, manager and chemist, and Gus Pisano of 1,113 Fifty-ninth Street, Brooklyn.

The Woodbine Manufacturing Company is said to have held a permit for the withdrawal of large quantities of grain alcohol to manufacture ethyl acetate. That, according to charges made by the leaders of the raid, was practically no more than a ruse for obtaining alcohol which was redistilled at the plant and sold through bootleg channels.

The Inspectors and Fereal agents would furnish practically no details of the interception of the radio message. They said only that it had been "picked up" three days ago and that it had been of a character to awaken suspicion. As a result, it was said, Detectives Charles Beakey, Thomas Lyons and Harry Singer of the Special Alcohol Squad, were assigned to investigate the plant.

Hide in a Cemetery

Just across the street from the plant is Calvary Cemetery. There it was said, the three detectives spent Friday, Friday night and a part of Saturday in hiding behind tomb stones and even in open graves. From these vantage points they were able to see every one and every truck arriving at or leaving the plant. They did not tell the details of what they had seen, but said merely they had discovered sufficient "evidence" of illegality to warrant the raid.

It is not known just how many persons were employed in the plant, but the fact that only the manager and one employee were found there when the officers entered led to the opinion that, in spite of their extreme caution, the coming raid had been "tipped off" to the plant's operators. Russo and Pisano gave themselves up without a struggle, but made no statement. It is understood they will plead not guilty upon arraignment.

The stills were runing full blast, the raiders said, and the entire plant bore evidence of great activity. The alcohol seized is estimated to be worth at least $200,000 and the equipment $200,000 more. Arrangements were begun for conveying the alcohol to the Army Base in Brooklyn and for the destruction of the stills today.

President of American Federation of Labor Sees Intemperance Increasing.

LABOR RESENTFUL

Senate Committee Hears of Results in Quebec and Manitoba.

WASHINGTON, April 12. — The first week of wet and dry hearings before the Senate Committee on Judiciary came to an end Saturday, when those who are urging the modification of the Volstead law called to the stand Sir William Stavert of Quebec and Francis William Russell, President of the Moderation League of Winnipeg, who testified as to the working of the Government controlled and operated liquor stores in various Provinces of the Dominion of Canada.

There can be no question as to the success of the Canadian experiment, both of these witnesses declared, which they said had brought a decrease in crime and a corresponding increase in temperance among the people generally.

Matthew Woll, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor, and John Sullivan, President of the New York State Federation of Labor, also were called. Mr. Woll testified that intemperance in the ranks of labor is increasing and that as a result of an experience that takes him everywhere in the country, and among all classes of people, he was prepared to charge that prohibition enforcement officers have become "agents provocateur," while bribery has become a fixed practice and is no longer considered "one of the most detestable of criminal offences."

Says Labor is Resentful

Congress, when it enacted the Volstead law, converted a federated form of government into a legislative oligarchy and builded the foundation for millions of distilleries and breweries in the home of America, said Mr. Woll. "President Wilson," declared Mr. Woll, was fully aware of the 'dangers and evils' involved in the Volstead law, and had declined when the bill went to him to associate his name with anything so un-American in form and character."

The rank and file of labor, said Mr. Woll, entertain a much deeper resentment toward the Volstead law than against the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Sullivan, testifying mainly as to conditions in New York State, painted a picture that corroborated the grave comments made by District Attorney Emory R. Buckner when he was on the stand this week. He told about dinner parties where the favors were dolls filled with whiskey instead of sawdust; of laboring men coming to union meetings drunk, something he insisted seldom, if ever, happened in the "old days"; of women and girls who carry flasks laden with "moonshine," and of other conditions which, he declared, in the days before the amendment would have dumbfounded the country.

Canadians Praise Their Plan

Called as the first of the Canadian witnesses, Mr. Russell said that the Government control system had proved a miracle in Manitoba and that crime has so greatly decreased that there are some courts without cases, while so far as the prohibition practice, "B.Y.O.L.," which means "bring your own liquor," is concerned it is ancient history in the Provinces in which the Government system works.

Furthermore, Mr. Russell declared that the use of wines and beers by the people was increasing and the drinking of hard liquors decreasing. In Quebec, he added, the story is the same as in Manitoba, and it is just as true of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

"In Quebec my information is that fully 90 per cent of the hard liquor that is sold in that province is sold to Americans," said Mr. Russell.

"In Manitoba it is true we are still trying to get rid of some of the 'speak-easies,' or 'blind pigs,' which we inherited from seven years of prohibition," he added.

THOUSANDS THERE

Dr. John J. Craig and Isaac P. McNabb Are Local Delegates.

The local Kiwanis club has announced that its two delegates to Kiwanis International's 10th annual convention in Montreal, Canada, to be held June 7-10, will be royally feted. The two from Peterboro who will attend are: Dr. John J. Craig and Isaac P. McNabb.

Canadian history, depicting the times of the Indians and the French-Canadian settlements of many years ago will be offered in pageant. The French society, St Jean Baptiste, the Caledonian Society, the Snowshoer's Union, the Hull Kiwanis club, and the 50 Kiwanis bands from all over the North American continent will aid the Montreal Kiwanis club in accomplishing the historical pageantry to the local members and the other 6,000 Kiwanian delegates who will visit Montreal in June.

On the opening night of the convention the usual "All Kiwanis Night" program will be held. Some ten-thousand Kiwanians and visitors will attend this occasion in the Canadian city's immense auditorium know as the 'Forum." During this occasion a fifteen minute period will be given over to an expression of international good will and friendship. Simultaneously with this period all the Kiwanis clubs located in cities in Canada and the United States will meet for a united observance of the century long friendship between the two countries. Many of the clubs will be directly in touch with the convention by radio, for the program will be broadcast over the United States and Canada.

European tours, with steamers leaving of Liverpool, England, the morning following the convention's closing, will carry hundreds of Kiwanians for vacations in the British Isles and continental Europe. London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Monte Carlo will be visited by the tourists. Special trips in Canada and the eastern part of the United States will also be available.

PETERBORO CRICKET CLUB.

A general meeting of the above club will be held in the Paragon Tea-Rooms, corner of Brock and George, on Friday evening, April 16, at 7.45. All members are requested to be present. An invitation is also extended to any prospective members.

Because it contains more vitalizing vitamines than any food you can get.

You'll be glad to know that McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets come in sugar coated form now, so if you really want to put 10 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh on your bones and feel well and strong and have a complexion that people will admire ask McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets.

Only 60 cents for 60 tablets and if you don't gain five pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money paid for them.

It isn't anything unusual for a person to gain 10 pounds in 30 days, and for old people with feebleness overtaking them they work wonders.

DIRIGIBLE READY FOR EXPEDITION

The Norge Leaves Rome on First Loop of Flight.

ROME, April 12 (Canadian Press).—The dirigible Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition left here on Saturday for Toulon, France. It is the intention of the navigator of the Norge to fly her to Osla, Norway, and thence to Spitzborgen, where a great hangar has been erected. The flight over the pole will begin probably next month. The ship is in command of Commander Nobile of the Italian navy.

Captain Raoeld Amundsen and his co-director in the Arctic flight, Lincoln Ellsworth of New York, will not board the Norge until its arrival at King's Bay, Spitzborgen. They hope to have everything in readiness for the Norge, including the mooring mast when the craft arrives. The Norge, which was formerly an Italian navy craft, recently made several successful trial flights.

PLAY GIVEN IN NORWOOD

"A Southern Cinderella Presented By United Church Societies.

BIG EVENT.

NORWOOD, April 12—A play entitled "A Southern Cinderella" was presented in the Town Hall, Norwood, Friday night, under auspices of the W.M.S. and Y.W.A. (former Presbyterian group) of the United church. A synopsis of the play is as follows:

Twenty years before the opening of the play Madame Charteris, an old southern aristocrat, banishes her only child from her house because of an unsuited marriage. She remains broken hearted all the years, but blindly held in check by the Charteris' pride. Her daughter dies in poverty, leaving her ogly child, Enid Bellamy, to eke out her living in the cotton mills. An old friend of her mother's, and a settlement worker, Miss Rosie Winterberry, finds Enid fainting from hunger at the loom. She takes her away and determines to appeal to Madame Charteris in behalf of her grandchild. Madame has become an invalid and is completely under the influence of her nurse, an unprincipled English woman. Madam makes her will leaving her entire fortune to the nurse and her sister. Madam refuses to allow Enid to come to her house, but the sight of her grandchild's suffering softens her heart and the little white room is opened for the first time in twenty years and Enid comes home. Mammy Judy Johnston, the old black servant, decided to get married, and Miss Winterberry and Enid attend the wedding, much to the disgust of Caroline Hawke, sister of the nurse. Madam determines to make a new will in favor of her grandchild and summons her lawyer, Mr. Deemis, to draw up the document. The will is made and the nurse and her sister are the witnesses. Katherine Hawke (the nurse) secures the new will and determines to burn it. Mammy Judy returns from the church in a towering rage, having been deserted at the alter by the prospective groom. She has the wedding license and by mistake the nurse gets this and burns it, thinking it is the new will. Madam dies and as the new will cannot be found, the nurse and her sister are declared the heirs. They vainly try to enter society and treat Enid, the real heiress like a common servant. On the night of the inaugural ball two years after the death of Madam Mammy Judy finds the will and the southern Cinderella comes into her own.

RUN ON FOREIGN BANKS IN CUBA

mill owners and planters then conferred with the President. According to Chairman Matrinez they suggested two solutions of the sugar crisis problem. One was to limit the present crop by 10 per cent. of the estimated output. The other was for the Government to buy half a million tons of sugar and withdraw it from the market. Both measures designed to bring about an immediate rise in sugar prices will be discussed at a Cabinet meeting on Monday.

The newspaper men were then received by the President, who stated that the country was going through a slight crisis caused by the low price of sugar, but that there was absolutely no justification for the run on the banks.

"Every bank established in Cuba today is in good condition and false reports, such as those started yesterday, can only harm the island," he said. "That is why I personally went to the Royal Bank of Canada and I assure you that $40,000,000 in the National Treasury is at the disposal of the banks if necessary. Fortunately, however, they do not need this help.

"The price of sugar has not changed. If it had been 5 or 6 cents and then dropped to 2 cents a panic would have been unavoidable; but as sugar has been 2 or 2½ cents for the last few months the banks have made their operations on that basis and no reason for panic exists."

General Machado asserted that only a slight crisis existed and that at the special Cabinet meeting today some measure to settle the sugar problem would be adopted.

"I shall continue giving the country an honest, constructive administration," he added. "The Treasury is in splendid shape. No deficit exists, nor will one exist while I am President, and Cuba will not float any foreign loan while I am in power."

The secret judicial police are seeking the persons circulating the malicious rumors about the banks. They are believed to be two discharged employes of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Fair peace becomes men; ferocious anger belongs to beasts.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE IS RE-ORGANIZED

Campbellford Enthusiasts Hold Meeting—Charles Davidson is President.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 12—The Campbellford Softball League was reorganized at a well attended meeting held in the Public Library Saturday evening with the president, J. H. Bell in the chair. Secretary-treasurer C. D. Daniel reported a surplus on hand of $7.35 from last year, the league's first season.

The officers elected for the coming season were as follows:

President—Charles H. Davidson
Vice-president—J. H. Bell.
Secretary-treasurer — Rev. G. C. Clarke.

The retiring officers were given a vote of thanks for their services last year.

After a short discussion it was decided to affiliate with the Ontario Softball League that has just been organized, entering the intermediate class, and to adopt the rules that will be agreed upon by that organization, with such modifications as may be permitted to local leagues. The annual fee for membership in the Provincial Association will be $5 for the intermediate class.

Six clubs have already signified their intentions of entering the town league this summer: the Junior Colts, the Hydros, the Mill team, the Clerks, the Millionaires and the Outlaws.

The entrance fee will be $5, of which $3 goes to the league to form an expense fund, the balance to be forfeited by the club that fails to appear for a scheduled games without a reasonable excuse.

The next meeting will be called by the officers and due notice of it will be given.

SPORTSMAN'S HOUR HELD ON SUNDAY

Campbellford Theatre Is the Scene of Novel Entertainment.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 12. — There was a novel entertainment held in the Regent Theatre Sunday night, a sportsman's hour, planned by the athletic young men of the town and endorsed by several clergymen, who made addresses, and by leading church members, who lent the affair the sanction of their presence or assisted in the programme. The keynote of all the addresses was that there was nothing incongruous in holding such a function on a Sunday evening, as athletic exercise not only develops the physical body but helps to expand the spiritual life by saving from the temptations of the world the young men who seek relaxation on the field where manly sports are held.

It remained for the town's two "sporting parsons," as they are generally known, Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, secretary-treasurer of the Campbellford Softball League, and Rev. C. D. Daniel of the Seymour United circuit, Mr. Clarke's immediate predecessor in that office, to make public reference to a matter that has often been discussed in private and which appeared to strike the large audience as something that should be acted upon by the officials who have authority to give effect to the suggestions of the two clergymen.

"I may incur the displeasure of some of the teachers and the members of the Board of Education by what I am about to say," remarked Mr. Clarke, "but it seems to me that the usefulness of our High School, of which we hear so much and which is supported by the taxpayers as a whole, if the gymnasium were thrown open to the public under proper supervision so that the under-privileged boys of the town could receive some benefit from an institution that their parents help to support."

Mr. Daniel agreed with what the previous speaker had said. The High School was thrown open for social and literary entertainments from time to time, and he could see no reason why the same course should not be taken with the splendid gymnasium which had cost the taxpayers a considerable sum of money to install, and for the maintenance of which they were paying every year.

A Distinguished Athlete.

A distinguished athlete of the evening, none the less heartily welcomed because he was unexpected, was John De Gruchy, president of the Rugby Association of Ontario, and past president of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is visiting Rev. G. C. Clarke. Mr. De Gruchy gave an interesting address dealing with the benefit of athletic sports not only to the physical but to the moral wellbeing of mankind. The young man who interests himself in modern sports is less likely to fall into evil courses than is the youth who is never found on the athletic field.

Another speaker was Hon. H. B. Longmore, who as a medical authority was ready to testify to the value of athletic exercise to the physical development of the young. The doctor also referred to the change in public sentiment in recent years, as a few generations ago such an entertainment as that of a sportsman's night held on a Sunday evening, would have been regarded as sacreligious by the orthodox church people.

Mayor G. A. Kingston, who presided, gave in his opening address an interesting account of the Olympian games that were instituted 800 years before the birth of Christ and which were always held in connection with some religious event, or to give thanks for some public calamity that had been averted. Athletics, he said, kept the old young and the young from growing old before their time.

A religious sentiment pervaded the entertainment, the audience repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, and at intervals during the evening joining in the singing of familiar hymns, the words of which were thrown on the screen. The musical part of the programme was given by local musicians who are always favorites wtih the public and every number was heartily encored. Albert Hazell, the new organist and choir leader of St. John's church, made his first appearance at a public entertainment, and was given a hearty reception. With a quartette, the other members of which were J. H. Bell, G. W. Lucy, and Major J. M. Bygott, Mr. Hazell helped in the rendition of "Now the Long Day Closes.

R. Cecil Searles rendered several violin solos; Messrs. Blue and Sarginson were heard in guitar duets and Mrs. J. H. Bell, Campbellford's popular reciter, gave two selections that were especially appropriate, "Play the Game" and "Carry on," the latter being from the works of Robert Service. Miss Helen Wood acted as accompanist.

At the conclusion of the programme Mayor Kingston thanked Captain Hyland for his kindness in making the entertainment possible by granting the use of his theatre free of cost. He also thanked those taking part in the programme and the audience for the close attention with which it had followed the entire proceedings.

CLAWED BY LION.

Stratford Citizens Given a Thrill When Lion Attacks Its Trainer.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 12. — (Canadian Press). — Patrons of a local theatre last night got their money's worth and something more, when Fred Delmar, a lion tamer, was attacked by one of the animals in his act. For the last day or so a female lion of the pair with which Delmar performers has shown signs of ill temper. At a part in the act where Delmar lays down his whip and turns his back, the brute leaped at him and sent him to the floor of the cage, biting his left hand and clawing his back badly.

The beast was beaten off and the injured man taken from the cage. Delmar is somewhat improved today.

FELL BENEATH MOVING TRAIN

Youth Instantly Killed While Hopping Freight at London.

SLIPPED TO RAIL.

LONDON, Ont., April 12 (Canadian Press).—While attempting to board a moving freight train at Egerton Street crossing of the Canadian National Railroad early yesterday morning, Cyril Gordon, 19, of St. Mary's, slipped beneath the wheels and was almost instantly killed.

Gordon, an employee of the Portland Cement Company's plant at St. Mary's, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gordon of that town, in company with three other youths, Cecil Gresby, Gordon Kellum and Ted Grose, came to London on Saturday afternoon to attend a theatre. They missed the evening train back to their homes. Gordon decided to "hop" a freight, and left his companions at midnight.

HIGHEST MORAL STANDARD ASKED

ASKS MORE SPACE.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (United Press).—Universal recognition of the highest ethical standards of newspapers was advocated before the Pan-American Congress of Journalism on Friday by Dr. Juan Rose Tablada, representing the newspaper "El Universal" of Mexico.

The newspaper is a dynamic and decisive factor in national and international affairs, he said.

Al-Ejandro Bungee of Buenos Aires complained that United States newspapers did not give sufficient space to news from Latin-American republics.

The United Press Association, which furnishes news to the majority of South American newspapers, will be host to the delegates at luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel on Saturday.

The visiting editors went to Fort Myer, V.A., Friday afternoon to witness a cavalry drill. Later a tribute was placed on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

PROTECTING THE ROADS.

In seeking to protect the roads as far as possible from damage by heavy traffic until they are in condition to stand up under the pressure, the joint Commissioners of the County Roads and Suburban Area Commission are to be commended.

Their action in authorizing road masters to secure assistance in restricting the traffic is a very necessary step.

Until the frost is all out of the ground and the roads have dried up into their normal condition, the driving of heavy trucks over them does an immense amount of damage, and truck owners and drivers who shut their eyes to the havoc created by their heavy machines should be brought up with a round turn.

The problem of making such owners pay a fair share in the cost of road maintenance is a difficult one when road conditions are at their best, for even then the ponderous vehicles inflict considerable damage; at this season of the year, however, the harm done is almost impossible to estimate, and efforts to restrict traffic should be assisted in every way possible.

THE BATTLE OF VIMY.

The usually staid Globe published a sensational article on Saturday from the pen of Stewart Lyon, in which the writer gave what was called an "inside" story of the battle of Vimy Ridge.

Most of the article made fine reading.

Mr. Lyon, who was the Canadian eye-witness at the front at the time of the great victory, has given a picture of the triumph of the Canadians that will not soon be forgotten.

But there are references to some of the British officers that most Canadians will agree might much better have been left unsaid.

They may be true; the Examiner has confidence enough in Stewart Lyon to know that he believed them to be true or he would never have made them.

That is not the point, however.

The alleged failure of British officers to see that their artillery work along the Canadian flank was efficiently and thoroughly done, which is the chief criticism made by the writer, is a subject that might better have been left undiscussed.

No good can be done, and much controversy and recrimination may be occasioned by stressing matters of this kind.

RURAL FIRE PROTECTION.

The problem of to what extent the city's fire-fighting forces should be used to protect property outside the city's limits and how that protection is to be paid for is one that has sorely perplexed many a Council, and the present efforts to reach a working basis, it is hoped, will eventually be successful.

Municipalities, like individuals, should be neighborly, and when a neighbor is in trouble there is a natural and commendable tendency to want to extend a helping hand.

Yet cold facts intrude to shut out sentiment.

The people of this city have $125,000 invested in fire equipment, and each year they have to go down into their pockets for $50,000 or more to maintain the department.

That heavy expense is justified because of the protection it provides.

But what becomes of the protection if the city department is used in the case of township fires?

What would be the result of a bad fire breaking out in the city at the moment when the brigade or part of it was busy outside the limits?

That is one angle of he problem; that city property is to some extent at least deprived of protection.

And the other is, how the cost involved in answering a rural S.O.S. can be guaranteed.

GUESSES AT THE BUDGET.

Advance guesses at the Budget which Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, will probably bring down this week are to the effect that the Minister will be able to announce an increase in the revenue of around thirty millions and a reduction in the net debt of in the neighborhood of twenty-four millions.

Gratifying as are these predictions, the further prophesy that Mr. Robb will announce at the same time a reduction in the income tax will probably give more real satisfaction.

The Progressive members of the House are, of course, enthusiastic admirers of the income tax as a revenue producer, and under the present condition of affairs in the Federal arena it was feared that it would be idle to expect any relief from this form of lavy, despite the great difference between the United States income tax scale and our own.

However, there have been several newspaper despatches from usually well-informed Ottawa correspondents hinting that Mr. Robb's Budget will help to lift this very pressing burden from the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer.

Despite Mr. Forke's love for it, the Examiner is sure that no tax relief would be more welcome than a substantial slash in the income tax.

IMPERIAL CEMETERIES.

Word has recently been received in this city that the original wooden crosses, placed over the graves of those of Brantford's sons who made the supreme sacrifice in the war, had been replaced with the permanent stones and that the wooden crosses would be sent to relatives on request.

This fact naturally recalls the magnificent work that has been carried on by the Imperial War Graves Commission, in constructing fitting memorials to the millions of British soldiers who are buried in Flanders' fields. It was a work in which the whole Empire co-operated. The commission was representative of all the Dominions and the various Governments contributed to the cost of the work in proportion to the number of their dead. The members of the commission, from the first, launched out on a most courageous undertaking with the result that the cemeteries in France where lie the heroic dead of Britain and her colonies are a credit to the Empire and a permanent and fitting monument to their memories. The War Graves Commission has been one of the most efficient of the war and post-war organizations and it is deserving of suitable recognition and acclaim.—Brantford Expositor.

THE FOREIGNER IN OUR MIDST.

Are persons of foreign birth coming from lands where opportunities are not so abundant more ready to take advantage of the good things of the New World than those who are its natives? The question is asked because our attention is being constantly directed to men and women of European and other foreign origin who have commenced life upon this continent in very humble circumstances and who, by dint of thrift, energy, perseverance and the other qualities essential to success, have risen to positions of influence and wealth.

Not long ago it was the case of an Italo-Canadian, ten or fifteen years out from Naples, that was brought to public notice. Like many another emigrant from that country, he started work as a mere laborer upon railroad construction plying the pick and shovel along with countless other navvies. But he carefully husbanded his resources, shunning extravagances and denying himself luxuries that the people of this country would consider necessary, and it was not long before he was able to purchase a small equipment and to undertake sub-contracts. From this status, it was an easy step to full rank as a contractor until today he is numbered amongst the most successful road-builders of the Province owning a valuable equipment, employing a small army of men and living in wealth and magnificence. His progress was not without its reverses, but these he conquered through his indomitable perseverance and his anxiety to succeed.

A case more recently brought to light is that of another Italian named Obici, who was selling peanuts at five cents per bag in Wilkesbarre, Pa., some years ago. He has just awarded the contract for a home for himself and his wife at Driver, Pa., which is to cost $1,000,000, all of which was derived from the sale of peanuts. When Obici first went to Wilkesbarre he obtained employment as a roustabout in a saloon. He cleaned the cuspidors and did other menial labor that no Anglo-Saxon would undertake. With savings from this labor he bought a fruit-stand and his first purchase of peanuts was one bag. He then bought five bags and steadily increased his purchases until he was buying in car loats. After a time he built a peanut factory at Wilkesbarre and then another at Norfolk, Va., and today he is president of the Planters Nut and Chocolate Company, the peanut king of the world and a multi-millionaire. His new home is to be one of the finest in the world. The house will occupy a site of several acres of ground and it will be surrounded by artificial lakes and an Italian garden.

There is a lesson for the native American in these little stories of phenomenal success and others which might be recounted with persons of foreign birth as the heroes. The wealth and the position in society which they enjoy did not come to them overnight. They had to be earned through years of struggle and hardship, often in the face of difficulties which appeared baffling. These men did not consider that the wearing of a white collar was the key to success. They worked hard and at tasks which were degrading. Moreover, they steadily saved their money instead of frittering it away upon non-necessities. They were thrifty; they were frugal; they endured privations to make good; they never confessed defeat however reasonable such an attitude might seem. And, having the will to succeed, they did succeed.

If we are observant, we will see other "foreigners" who are upon the road to similar success. The foreigner digging a sewer, washing dishes in the "hamand" or mopping up the floor of the hotel may be a future millionaire. Depend upon it, he has a bank account. The boy or girl from Sunny Italy, or Czecho-Slovakia, or Bulgaria, or Poland, who is already outdistancing his or her associates at school may be a coming genius. Few of such pupils do not take their studies seriously. A ten-year-old boy from Southern Europe who first saw Brockville less than a year ago and who did not then know a single word of English today stands at the head of his class and in his spare moments cleans shoes in order that he may buy a pair of skates for next winter's recreation. He will undoubtedly amount to something.

The reason for the success gained by the foreigner in our midst may be quite easily traced. He comes from a land which knows not our opportunities, where population is congested, housing faulty, class distinction great, education inadequate, money not so plentiful. He is prompted to become an emigrant by the hope of attaining rank and wealth and he never loses sight of that objective. To succeed is the great aim of his life and succeed he does, however hard the road which he must travel and however bitter the experiences which fall to him. From the "foreigner" we may learn much, and to him we should be more grateful than is our custom. He is the man who has done and is continuing to do the hardest work in building up this country and he is gaining the reward to which his toil entitles him.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With the major baseball leagues scheduled to open tomorrow, the winter will at last have to be called over.

Members of Parliament are anxiously waiting for the Budget, not so much because of what it will contain, but because of the opportunity it will afford of long and plentiful speeches.

The material they have taken from the flappers' skirts is being utilized for balloon trousers for the "sheiks." Thus the average is maintained.

"Save the surface and you save all," is a paint slogan that seems to be credited by many of the girls of today.

They're still talking about a Provincial election in June. And they may be right.

As a refutation of certain allegations against the Scot may be quoted the surprising spectacle of the City Council having to force $100 upon the Caledonian Pipe Band.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 11 (Canadian Press).—The demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was fair and a moderate amount of business was worked. There was also some enquiry from local exporters for grain on spot and sales of Manitoba No. 2 Northern wheat were made at 12 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., and No. 2 Canadian Western oats also sold at 12 1-2 cents per bushel over the same option c.i.f. Montreal.

The spot market for car lots of oats was firm at the late advance in prices noted.

The feature of the spring wheat flour market was the improved demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent. It was estimated that sales of 50,000 to 60,000 barrels were made. Prices were steady. The demand for winter wheat grades was fair and the feeling was firm.

The condition of the egg market has been weaker and jobbing prices closed 2c to 3c per dozen lower than a week ago. The consumptive demand was somewhat disappointing which was attributed to the fact that retail houses carried over fair supplies from their Easter purchases.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal on Saturday were 102 boxes as compared with 111 boxes for the previous week and 441 boxes for the same week last year, while the arrivals for the week endiag April 10, 1926, were 1,908 boxes, as against 732 boxes for the previous week.

The trade in cheese during the past week has again been very quiet owing to the fact that foreign buyers show little or no disposition to operate at present and in consequence of which stocks of fodlermade gods are steadily accumulating here, and this fact coupled with the weakness in butter of late is tending to depress values with the result that latest purchases have been made at 16c to 16 1-4c per lb, f.o.b. country points

The receipts of butter in Montreal on Saturday were 812 packages, as against 259 packages for the same day last week, and 243 packages for the coresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 10, 1926, were 9,748 packages as compared with 2,470 packages for the previous week.

There was no further change in the condition of the market but the undertone was easy owing to the fairly liberal arrivals of foreign butter, the steady increase in the Canadian make throughout the country.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 10.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat advanced today, practically from start to finish influenced among many things, by prospects of more than 1,000,000 bushels decrease of the United States visible supply total on Monday. Closing quotations for wheat were firm 1 1-4 to 2 1-8 cents net higher, May (new) 160 1-4 to 160 3-8 and July 137 to 137 1-8, with corn 3-8 to 3-4 cent up, oats unchanged to 1-8 cent off and provisions exactly the same as 24 hours before.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SMILE THROUGH IT ALL

It's common to shout when the race is run and the victory's won.
It's easy to smile when the skies are blue and your friends are true.
It's nothing to laugh when the prize is won and the battle's done.
But to conjure a smile when the skies are gray,
When your friends in success are all turned away—
Then comes the real test; Do you stand; Do you fall?
In retreat—not defeat — can you smile through it all?

FABLES IN FACT.

YOUTH KILLED BY FASCISTS

Refuses To Doff Cap and is Stabbed to Death.

FIGHT OCCURS.

CHIASSO, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Because he did not doff his hat to the procession of Fascists who demonstrated in sympathy for Mussolini, a youth named Ferdinando Gafforio was stabbed to death Thursday night by an officer of the Fascist militia.

The murderer was arrested after a dramatic encounter between the regular police and his squad of Fascist militiamen, who tried to prevent his arrest.

A violent fight occurred at Porto Fatraio, in Isle of Elba, between Fascists and the seamen of a Russian steamer, when the latter refused to comply with the Fascist request that they join in rejoicing at Mussolini's lucky escape. The fight continued on the water as the Russians were being taken to their steamer in a boat. In the battle that took palce when the boatload of Fascists attacked the Russian boat, two on each side were injured.

$10,000,000 FOR NEW BRUNSWICK RAILWAY LANDS REPORTED BID

Deposit of $250,000 For Area of 165,000,000 Acres—

PULP AND PAPER.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 12.—(Canadian Press).—A special despatch from Montreal to the Telegraph-Journal says:

"Negotiations for the sale of the New Brunswick Railway Company lands, extending over an area of 1,650,000 acres in Victoria and Madawaska countries, and comprising the most valuable block of freehold land in Eastern Canada, are under way, it is learned here on reliable authority.

"The negotiations have been proceeding for some days. At a recent meeting here it was decided to give an option at a price in the vicinity of $10,000,000, and a deposit of $250,000 is being made by the purchasers as evidence of their intentions.

"It is not known definitely who the prospective purchasers are, but the actual negotiations, it is stated, are being conducted by a Toronto attorney, who, it is understood, represents a Chicago group. There are, however, many circumstances which lead to the conclusion that the real purchaser is the International Paper Company.

To Develop Power.

"Color is lent to this latter conclusion by the recent announcement that the nearby Grand Falls power is to be developed by this company, who would be the natural and possibly only logical purchasers of the New Brunswick railway lands, especially as they control the only available power for pulp grinding purposes.

"No matter who the new owners are—and it is believed that before a transfer actually takes place the Fraser interests will have an opportunity to buy—it means another big pulp and paper development for New Brunswick.

Virgin Hardwood.

"In addition to its possibilities as a pulp and paper enterprise, it offers great advantages for a hardwood development. There are said to be 650,000 acres of virgin hardwood of the very finest kind on the property.

"Altogether the lands cover 1,650,000 acres. They were originally given as a bonus on the old New Brunswick Railway Company when it was promoted. When the New Brunswick Railway Company was sold the lands were separated from the railway and came into the hands of a company, of which the late Lord Strathcona was the head. General Meighen, of Montreal, is the present head of the company owning this property."

CROWNING WEDS

Coldspring taxi service. The party at once left for the estate leased by Browning for his honeymoon.

Browning stated in his application that he had been married before, and that his wife, Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, was divorced by him in Paris, in 1924, after, he said, she had eloped with Dr. Charle H. Wilen, dentist, of the Bronx.

When the friendship of the elderly real estate man and the schoolgirl first became known a few weeks ago Browning described Frances as "a lovely girl, 5 feet 7½ inches in height, weighing 145 pounds, with light-brown hair—curly, but cut short."

On April 1, when asked directly if he intended marrying the girl, he said:

"I cannot say definitely whether or not we will marry. It would not be right to talk about marriage when that little girl is suffering," referring to her burns from the alleged acid attack.

The meeting of Browning and his bride was similar to his meeting with Mary Louise Spas, except that in the second case he did not advertise in the newspapers for a girl for adoption.

Instead he formed connections with the Phi Lambda Tau sorority of the Textile High School where Frances was a student. He bought sorority pins and attended the children's dances. At one dance at the Hotel McAlpin his eyes rested for the first time on the girl who is now his wife.

Took Her Out in Rolls-Royce

"I liked her from the first time I saw her," he said, "so I asked one of my friends to introduce us." From then on Frances was a frequent occupant of the blue Rolls-Royce automobile of Browning. He visited her and her mother at their home at Iris Gardens.

Then came the alleged acid throwing and the revelation of the romance between the real estate dealer and the schoolgirl.

The story of the acid throwing, as told by the girl and her mother, was that Mrs. Heenan returned to the apartment about 2 o'clock one morning and heard Frances moaning. Frances said some one had thrown acid in her eyes, on her face and over her arms.

Browning hurried to the house with bicarbonate of soda and other remedies and a physician was summoned. Detectives investigated but were uncommunicative.

Then the attentions of Browning and the girl came to the notice of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and an investigation was ordered. The investigation revealed that one of Frances' girl friends, Stella Lubin, died suddenly from a heart attack after a party and automobile ride at which Frances and Browning were present.

Following the investigation Mr. Pisarra brought action before Justice Franklin Chase Hoyt in the Children's Court to remove Frances from the guardianship of her mother.

Won't Drop Court Action

When he was informed of the wedding, Mr. Pisarra said that he preferred not to discuss the matter. He said, however, that the Children's Society would not drop the matter. Hearing has been postponed until Thursday and Mr. Pisarra said that Francis would be obliged to be in court at that time.

"Yellow Stub" Was Liked; Rush To Get Paper First

BETHEL, April 12.—Great interest was taken around here in the serial story just finished, "The Yellow Stub." It ran a close second, with both old and young, to the story printed last summer, "The Flapper Wife." As then, it was a scrap to see who would get the paper first.

GIRL TAKEN TO COBOURG; AWAIT TESTS ON BODY

Sympathy Felt With Norma McDonald, Believed Sub-Normal.

CHARGE UNSETTLED.

Sensations Expected in Investigation Following Finding of Infant's Remains.

(By a Staff Reporter).

BRIGHTON, April 12. — Before the Provincial officers left here on Saturday evening to take their prisoner, Norma McDonald, to the Cobourg jail, they had photographs taken of the dismantled building, under the floor of which the body of the infant was found, and which the unfortunate girl confessed to Detective Cousans she had placed there after she had given it birth about two weeks ago. Arrayed in the sable garments which she wore as mourning for her father, who was buried on Monday of last week, the girl was taken in a car to a cell in Cobourg, there to await the finding of the coroner's jury at the inquest that will be held sometime this week.

The body of the infant, horribly disfigured and partly dismembered as it was by the dogs that uncovered the crime and led the officers to the scene, was taken to Cobourg by the officers for expert medical examination, the object of which is to determine whether or not the child was born alive. Upon this question will depend what charge is to be eventually brought against the young mother, who even if the child was dead at the time of birth, was at fault in concealing the fact of its birth and in hiding the remains, as she admits she did.

There is a good deal of sympathy felt for the prisoner by the people of this village on account of her youth and owing to the fact that she has never been regarded as of normal mentality. From her infancy she has been afflicted with trouble in her lower limbs that gave her an awkward gait. It is believed by those who have known her all her life that she is hardly responsible for her acts, and has no very clear concention of the difference between right and wrong.

When the inquest is held and the authorities attempt to ascertain the paternity of the child, it is expected that the investigation will reveal a low moral standard among some of the male residents of this village that will unmask citizens who have so far been regarded as above reproach.

RESTRICT TRAFFIC ON DISTRICT ROADS

County Roads and Suburban Area Roads Barred to Trucks.

The Joint Commissioners of the County Roads and Suburban Area Roads held a joint meeting, April 8, 1926, and authorized the Road Superintendent to engage assistance in having the traffic of trucks on the roads restricted until further notice.

It was conceded by all that during the time the frost is coming out such truck traffic injures the roads beyond redemption in so far as maintenance is concerned, thereby for the sake of a short time, makes it impossible to make a smooth surface for the season without rebuilding

They also decided it would be to advantage to act jointly in the purchasing of material and supplies from the fact that better prices could be obtained.

Mr. Curtis (Warden) was appointed chairman of the meeting.

The commitete appointed last year to consider the additions to the court house of judicial offices, met on Friday.

H. B. Parker, chairman of the County Property Committee, was in the chair.

The plans and specifications were presented to the committee, who after certain changes were ordered, referred the matter to the June session of the County Council.

RUN ON FOREIGN BANKS IN CUBA BY FALSE RUMOR

Alarm Spread by Spanish Language Newspapers Caused Panic.

BANKS BESIEGED

President Machado's Intervention Restored Confidence —Run on Royal Bank.

HAVANA, April 12 — A false alarm spread by Spanish language newspapers opposing foreign banking interests caused a momentary panic in Havana and the island interior Saturday and a run on all banks, especially the Royal Bank of Canada, which the reports falsely represented as having suspended payments.

The false version was readily accepted by thousands owing to the financial depression the country is experiencing and soon the doors of all the Royal Bank branches in the island were besieged. Women and workingmen were in the majority. In a few hours there was a rush to every bank in the city, hundreds of excited men and women demanding their savings.

The scenes in the days of 1919 when sugar dropped from 23 cents to 2 cents a pound were as nothing compared to those in the Havana streets Saturday.

President Arrives on Scene

When the clamor was at its height however, a dramatic event occurred which did much to restore the confidence of the public. President Machado, accompanied by Secretary of Justic Barraque and Carlos Miquel de Cespodes, Secretary of Public Works, arrived at the main branch of the Bank of Canada at 11 o'clock. With great ostentation the Chief Executive deposited $100,000.

Then addressing the fearful depositors, who by this time had filled all the streets leading to the bank, he condemned severely the run on the bank, qualifying the reports that had started it as unfounded and absurd. He followed this up by announcing that he with his personal fortune would aid the bank and that if this were not enough $40,000,000 in the National Treasury were at the disposal of the Canadian institution.

The words of the President had an immediately tranquillizing effect, many depositors putting their passbooks in their pockets and going home.

A similar example was set by Secretary Cespedes at the Banco del Commercio. When he alighted from his car consternation struck the crowd. "He has come to take out his money!" was shouted, as hundreds made a rush for the doors of the bank.

"You are wrong," he told the crowd. Then, taking from his pocket $200,000 in $1,000 bills, he counted them aloud and deposited them in the bank.

The effect was magical, and the people began to disperse without withdrawing their funds.

Not satisfied with having stopped the run at the Canadian Bank, President Machado summoned the members of the Havana Clearing House, of the Sugar Mill Owners' and Planters' Association, and the newspaper reporter to the Executive Mansion for a conference.

The members of the Clearing House, headed by Don Narciso Gelats, were the first to be received. They informed the newspaper men that they had been favorably impressed with their interview with the Chief Executive and that the bankers were not alarmed, all banks being in good shape.

YOUNG LADIES GIVE PRESENT TO FRIEND

Miss Myrtle Fallis is Leaving Bethany—Young People's Meeting.

BETHANY, April 12.—The regular monthly meeting of the Y.L.M.C. of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. W. L. Rowan on Tuesday evening, April 6.

The regular programme was followed with the president, Miss Howden, in the chair. Several members answered to the "Watch Tower." Then followed the business, in which they planned a sale of home-made cooking to be held on April 17 in the basement of the church. At the conclusion of the business period the following address was read to Miss Myrtle Fallis, who is leaving the village in the near future:

Miss Myrtle Fallis.

Dear Friend,—We your friends of the Young Ladies' Mission Club, have assembled here in honor of you. It is with deep regret that you are leaving us, but there is no cloud yet so dark that has not its silver lining, so we rejoice with you in the fact, that you in your wisdom are about to enter a new sphere of life which we extend to you our best wishes on that behalf.

It has been a pleasure for us to have had you as a member for many years. We realize that you have made many sacrifices, not only on behalf of the club, but the church as well. We are very thankful that you have proven by your kindly co-operation to be a most cheerful and willing worker. That spirit of good will which was always so prevalent in your disposition has meant much to us.

We did not wish to let this opportunity pass without showing in some small way our esteem for you, so we ask you to kindly accept this "spoon" as a slight token of our regard for you and our appreciation of your many kindly acts so cheerfully carried out among us.

Signed on behalf of the Young Ladies' Mission Club,
Priscilla Howden, President.
Hazel Jackson, Secretary.

Miss Fallis responded very nicely, after which the girls adjourned to the dining-room, where a dainty Easter luncheon was served.

On Wednesday evening there was a fair gathering of young people at their mid-week meeting. Bert Monk, the president, conducted the opening and devotional period, after which the fifth vice-president, Leslie Challice, took charge of the programme. Several interesting readings were given and several of the young people sang solos. The Rev. A. Poulter took the chair to conduct the annual election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President—Bert Monk.
1st Vice-President—Verna Belle Lee.
2nd Vice-President—Priscilla Howden.
3rd Vice-President—Mrs. W. L. Rowan.
4th Vice-President—Hazel Jackson.
5th Vice-President—Leslie Challice.
Secretary—Mrs. Leslie Challice.
Treasurer—Leslie Challice.
Pianist—Violet Jackson.

Walter Rowland and Bert Monk were appointed a committee to interview a number of the young people and see if it could be arranged to enter the debating contest so popular among the Y. P. leagues last year.

After singing the hymn, "There is work to do for Jesus," the meeting was dismissed with a short prayer and the benediction by Mr. A. Monk.

CLAIM OF MARITIMES FOR LOWER FREIGHT RATES IS SUPPORTED BY ONTARIO-QUEBEC TRADE BOARDS

Sympathy Expressed By Representatives at Session of Railway Commission.

MONCTON MEETING.

Blanket Rate For Maritimes To Permit Entry To Montreal.

MONCTON, N.B., April 12.—Complete sympathy of the Quebec Board of Trade and the City of Quebec with the efforts of the Maritimes, support from the Toronto Board of Trade of a differential in favor of Maritime provinces, and support from the Hamilton Board of Trade of the Maritime provinces in their seeking for an improvement of the present situation were expressed by representatives from those cities to the Board of Railway Commissioners and read into the records at yesterday afternoon's session of the Maritime Rate Hearing held here.

The session marked the close of the case for the Maritimes which had been presented by Colonel J. L. Ralston, K.C., of Halifax. In summing up he asked that a blanket rate be applied to the Maritime provinces so as to permit entry into Montreal, a cut in the local rates and a changing of the arbitraries to Upper Canadian and central Canadian points. The last two had been altered by the railways without justification, he contended, and as the rates stood at the present time they showed discrimination against the Maritime provinces.

Business Declined.

In connection with rates to upper Canada and the import trade particularly with the West Indies, Colonel Ralston cited the example of a molasses concern in Halifax which had had its business with the province of Quebec reduced to practically nothing by the increase in freight rates in spite of the fact that there had been water competition and it was almost as cheap to ship from the West Indies to Montreal as to Halifax. In other parts of the Dominion where water competition existed there had been a reduction instead of an increase in Railway freight rates, he contended.

Commissioner Oliver asked that the Maritime representatives present data with regard to the wheat shipments through Maritime province ports. He had expected to hear it, he said, and he wished that all evidence purporting to show that traffic could be made to flow through those ports instead of through United States ports he presented.

Colonel Ralston replied that he had presented the Maritime case with regard to wheat shipments when the Board had met at Ottawa, and that it rested mainly on that of Quebec. If Quebec succeeded in securing rates low enough to induce wheat to come through its port over the National Transcontinental Railway, the Maritime provinces felt assured that they would secure that justice during the winter months at least. He would ask that the Board permit him to make a further statement on the wheat traffic at a later date.

Unaffected by Rates.

It was the contention of Commissioner Oliver that the rate on grain, no matter how low, would not bring the wheat through the ports of Halifax and St. John unless there were other products and E. F. Flintoft, K.C., Canadian Pacific Railway counsel instanced the equality of rates between Montreal, Portland, St. John and Halifax as an example. Wheat did not move through the last two, although the rates were the same.

When T. F. Marshall, Transportation Manager, Toronto Board of Trade, presented the resolution regarding the differential, there was sharp questioning by Mr. Flintoft on the concessions asked for by the Maritime provinces, particularly the blanket rate for the whole of the Maritime provinces, similar to the blanket rate at present in existence between Ontario points and Fort William and North Bay.

Objections were made by Colonel Ralston and there was a sharp exchange between counsel as to Mr. Marshall's qualifications to speak with regard to the Maritime conditions.

Conditions Different.

The Maritime provinces were asking for a rate between St. John and Montreal equal to the rate between Toronto and Montreal, Mr. Flintoft said, in spite of the fact that conditions were altogether different and the rate to Toronto had been based on the water competitive rate. No such competition existed in the Maritime provinces.

With regard to a blanket rate for the Maritimes Mr. Flintoft declares that industrial centres affected in Ontario and Quebec were practically equidistant from the apex of a triangle, on the base of which they were situated. In the Maritime provinces they were in a straight line.

Following the questioning of Mr. Marshall, Commissioner Oliver called on J. R. McIsaac, Traffic-Manager, British Empire Steel Corporation, for a statement regarding coal. He asked what the transportation rate to Montreal was, but was unable to learn. When asked for the actual mining costs Mr. McIsaac could not give the exact figures but said that they were substantially higher than those in the United States.

Coal Shut Out.

Commissioner Oliver asked if they were so high as to preclude competition in upper Canada with United States coal and Mr. McIsaac said that they were not, but that the transportation costs were so high that the coal was shut out of the market.

Commissioner Oliver retorted "You want us to mine the railways and you'll mine the coal and market it."

He suggested that it was not the cost of the transportation but the cost of mining that killed the market in Upper Canada for the Maritime product.

The Canadian National Railways will continue the case today.

CARMEL FAMILY TO MILLBROOK

Gifts and Address to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson.

PURCHASE HOUSE.

MILLBROOK, April 12 — A surprise party took the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gibson, Carmel, by storm on Tuesday evening, when about 75 of their friends and neighbors gathered for a social occasion, with them before their departure to Millbrook to reside.

A warm welcome was accorded the elf invited 'guests,' and the long passed rapidly and pleasantly with community singing, games, dancing, and social intercourse. Midway in the evening's enjoyment Mr. and Mrs. Gibson, their daughter, Miss Mina, and their niece, Miss Verbena Challice, were given a place of honor in the centre of the company, Mr. Will Lunn reading the following address, Mrs. Amos Strong, on behalf of a wide circle of friends, presenting the host and hostess with a handsome electric reading lamp, and Misses Martha Lunn and Mary Bristow presenting Miss Mina Gibson with a dainty clock in French ivory, and Miss Verbena with a French ivory jewel case and nail buff.

Dear Friends: As you are about to leave Carmel, we your friends and neighbors have gathered this evening to express our regret, and at the same time to wish you happiness in your new home.

We shall miss you very much, but we hope that you will often find time to visit your old friends where a warm welcome will always await you.

As a small token of our esteem we ask you, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson to accept this reading lamp. We trust that its light will serve as a reminder of your Carmel friends. Miss Mina, we ask you to accept this ivory clock; may it remind you often of the many happy hours we have spent together. Miss Verbena, we ask you to accept these pieces of French ivory.

May prosperity be scattered abundantly along your pathway of life.

Signed on behalf of your Carmel friends: Mrs. Amos Strong, W. Lunn and M. Bristow.

The recipients of the gifts spoke briefly thanking the friends who had so kindly remembered them, in a few well chosen words, and assuring them that the years spent in their Carmel home, and the associations formed in that neighborhood, would always have an especial place in their memories and affections.

The committee in charge had made ample arrangements for the supper, which was served shortly afterwards, and when all appetites had been fully satisfied dancing and other entertainment was resumed for an hour or two longer before final good nights were said, and the guests went on their homeward way.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson and family will reside at the east end of the village, having purchased the house formerly occupied by Mr. I. Richardson.

Sunday School Annual.

The annual executive meeting of the Sunday school of the United Church was held on Tuesday evening at the supper hour, 25 of the members sitting down to the well-laden tables at 7 p.m.

To expedite business matters the secretary read the minutes of the last regular and annual meetings just before the tea was served, so that discussion might take place while the meal was in progress.

Rev. F. H. Howard was chairman, and after the school finances had been considered it was decided to have the treasurer present a statement once each quarter and ask that the offering on that Sunday should be adequate to the need. Collections during the winter months have been over $6 practically every Sunday and there is little difficulty in meeting the bills for supplies, though the latter are by no means small.

Rev. Jos. Wilks reported 44 names enrolled in the Home Department, lessons well studied, and visitors doing their work well

Mrs. G. E. Burnham, superintendent of the Cradle Roll, reported 28 babies on the roll, two new ones having been added the previous Sunday. Special service is held in the Primary Department when a new baby is received as a member of the Cradle roll

Mrs. J. L. Byam, president of the Boneka Class, reported 66 names on the roll, 18 new members having been added recently. Ten dollars had been realized from their birthday box, and $33 from the sale of home made baking. Sewing had been done for needy families, both locally and in response to the appeal from Rev. G. S. Gervan at Chalk River. The class is buying an electric heater for the pastor's vestry, and has contributed to the regular, and the Council family—Take Two ..... missionary funds of the school.

Mr. L. W. Smith, president of the Men's Bible class, stated that there are 25 on the roll at present, with an average attendance of 16. Four committees, Lookout, Missionary, Visiting, and Social, are actively functioning, and the class is prospering under the spiritual leadership of its teacher, Mrs. (Dr.) Rea. Of necessity the membership of this class is of a somewhat transient character.

The superintendent, Mr. W. F. Fallis, reported a staff of 28 officers and teachers, and 235 scholars enrolled. All Canadian helps are now being taken in the school except the graded lessons in the primary section. Twenty-two members have been received into the church from the school during the year. For the maintenance and extension fund $65 has been raised, and for local and church purposes a total of $211.65. The resignation of the asisstant superintendent, Mr. P. Stinson, was reluctantly accepted, home ties making it impossible for both Mr. and Mrs. Stinson to attend the school sessions. Rev. Mr. Wilks' donation of a reference library was referred to and a vote of thanks unanimously extended.

The election of officers and teachers was as follows.

Superintendent, Mr. W. Fred Fallis; Assistant Superintendent, Mr. as. H. Might; Secretary, Mr. W. G. Rowland; Assistant Secretary, Clarence Ball; Treasurer, Mr. W. C. Hetherington; Librarian, Mr. Offa Williamson; Organist, Miss Ella Elson; Superintendent Home Department, Rev. Jos. Wilks; Supterintendent Teacher Training, Miss S. Hetherington; Superintendent Primary Department, Miss Pearl Burnham; Boneka Class Teacher, Mrs. (Rev.) Howard; Men's Class, Mrs. (Dr.) Rea; Mizpah Class, Mrs. P. Stinson; Tuxis Square, Mrs. W. F. Fallis; Senior Trail Rangers, Mr. T. H. Aiken; Assistant Teacher for T. R. Mr. L. W. Smith; Junior Trail Rangers, Mr. C. C. Garside.

Intermediate and Junior Teachers: Mrs. I. M. Nattrass, Mrs. Offa Williamson, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. J. Hatherly, Mrs. C. W. Richards, Mrs. McDowell, Miss L. Stutt.

Supply Teachers: Mrs. T. H. Aiken Mrs. McComb, Mrs. H. Lang, Mrs. John Rowland; Messrs. F. McMahon and L. W. Smith.

Teacher, Beginners: Miss Florence Fallis.

Organist, Primary Department: Mrs. H. W. Johnston.

There are 45 members on the roll of the Primary Department, and over $15 has ben raised, outside the regular offering, for the mission work of the school, and the mission band.

On motion, it was decided to definitely dispense with the review at the close of the lesson period, the teachers having the extra five minutes to bring to a climax the special lesson each wished to emphasize.

It is probable that the school will shortly adopt the plan of using slides for the hymns each Sunday, doing away altogether with the books. A bulletin board, for comparison of attendance, offering, and verses learned with the corresponding Sunday of the previous year will be in use in the immediate future. Beginning the first Sunday in May the school will meet at 10 a.m., and the church service will be at 11 o'clock.

Three large containers of beautiful Easter lillies added much to the attractiveness of the tea table, through the courtesy of Rev. Joseph Wilks, who had received them direct from Bermuda. A young friend of Mr. Wilks, Bryan Smith, with whom he has formed a correspondence through a mutual interest in stamp collecting, sent the gift direct from his father's plantation. The flowers were five days on the way, but quite fresh and fragrant when the box was opened.

Mr. Wilks closed the gathering on Tuesday evening with prayer.

TELEPHONE GIRLS RECEIVE PURSES

Miss Myrtle Fallis and Mrs. S. Armstrong Have Resigned.

BETHANY, April 12—The shareholders of the Municipal Telephone System held a social evening in the town hall on Monday evening. The guests of honor were, Miss Myrtle Fallis and Mrs. Sidney Armstrong, two former telephone operators.

Dancing, cards and music were enjoyed by all present. Then Miss Fallis and Mrs. Armstrong were called to the platform and addresses were read as follows. Mr. Lou Staples read the address to Miss Myrtle Fallis.

Dear Myrtle,—We, the Commissioners and shareholders of the telephone system have gathered here this evening to spend a social time together with you as we have learned with regret that you have resigned as our telephone operator and intend saying good-bye to our community in the near future. We wish to assure you that we have all appreciated your faithfulness in the eight years you have served us. We have always found you pleasant and courteous in the transaction of your duties.

Many times you have sacrificed yourself and your time to serve us, so tonight we feel that we could not let you leave us without showing you in some slight way our appreciation of this service.

Therefore, we ask you to accept this purse, not so much for what it contains but that it may help you to get something to remember us by. We wish you success and happiness wherever your lot may be cast.

Signed on behalf of your many friends of this community, F. H. Ward, chairman.

Miss Fallis replied briefly as follows:

Friends,—I hardly know how to express my gratitude for your kind remembrance and the sentiments conveyed in your address. I appreciate the honor as being one of your guests and recipient of this gift. During the time I have served you as operator it has been more a pleasure than a task with all thanks to the subscribers who have shown so much kindness to me.

I wish to thank the secretary and directors in their efforts on our behalf who have endeavored to make conditions as pleasant for us as they could possibly do.

Mr. F. C. Dawe then read the following address to Mrs. Armstrong:

Mrs. Sidney Armstrong.

Dear Clara,—It is for you too as well as to Myrtle we have gathered here this evening as we have also learned of your resignation as one of our operators; we have found you, too, to be always ready and willing to the best of your ability to give us the best of service. Many times in the four years you have served us you have been called during the hours of the night and we always found you anxious to put our calls through which meant a great deal in some cases. We also learn that it is your intention to make your home elsewhere and so tonight we take this opportunity in assuring you of our appreciation and we ask you to accept this purse not only for its mere value but that with its contents you may be able to place something in your new home that will remind you of us.

We, your many friends, wish you much joy and happiness in your married life.

Signed on behalf of the community, F. H. Ward, chairman.

Mrs. Armstrong made a very suitable reply to both gift and address.

Lunch was served by the committee in charge and all present reported a good time spent.

The piano pupils of Miss Olga Fowler held a recital at the home of Mrs. F. C. Dawe on Wednesday afternoon. Among those taking part were Misses Helen Patton, May Smith, Winnie Dawe, Viola Gray, Hazel Fallis, Edna and Wilma Beer, and Evelyn Bigelow, Clayton Card, Karl Monk, Everett Dawe, Morgan Bigelow and Robert Sisson. The text of Rev. Mr. Allan's discourse last night was taken from John 1:35-42: "Where dwellest Thou? Come and see!"

The large congregation were amply repaid, not only by hearing an appealing sermon, the usual monthly message to young men and women, but by the music of an augmented ladies' choir, with the male section of the choir in the gallery. The numbers were "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and "Lord Is It I?" (antiphonal method). The pains taken by Mr. Chenhall to give the best in the musical part of these services is worthy of praise and last night's numbers were splendid.

Mr. Allan said in part: John the Baptist was a wilderness preacher. He bare witness of Jesus having seen and baptized Him in the Jordan valley. Crowds flocked to hear his message and how little may have been known in that day. Something remarkable was taking place. John the Baptist prepared the way for the coming of Jesus of Nazareth.

There were three outstanding actions of the two disciples, on the day following His baptism by John:

1—They looked at Jesus. All life had been a look for them. But where had they been looking before this? Over the past, with its failure and guilt. They had been trying to get along under their own power, and failed. Into their hearts—where was a hungering and longing for guidance. Into the Old Testament scriptures — where a Saviour was promised — the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. They looked now unto Him, and their faces were lightened. What a difference in a look! The cow in the meadow looks for and sees only grass—the botanist in the same meadow sees the wonders contained in each blade of grass.

2—They talked with Jesus. It was a time of testing. Jesus asked them, what seek ye? What is the mainspring of our desires? Is it self seeking? Are we prepared for poverty, pain and hardship? What will we surrender to Christ Jesus. Many cultured and clever people have given up much to give their lives to God's service. It was also a time of revelation. They called Him Master. What are we calling Jesus? When we have the right spiritual understanding, it is our privilege to call Him Master. They were ready to receive Jesus that day; and we also should have the willing heart to receive and reveal His power to save.

3—They talked about Jesus. They could do nothing else. They talked about Him to each other, then and afterwards. It was also wonderful and then to the others they told the story, to Andrew and Peter, Philip and Nathaniel. Thus should we take the lesson from Jesus' disciples when we find Him, to tell others of His love.

Our lives should be musical on this earth, and then at last when we reach heaven, what a time we will have there and then! We'll have to sing! What shall we sing Our favorites here—"Sun of my soul," "Abide with Me," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," "There's a Land that is Fairer than day," "Sweet Hour of Prayer," "The Sands of Time are Sinking," or several others we love? No; none of these, for we will be in heaven and our trials and sorrows and weeping will be ended. No—the last enemy having been conquered, we shall sing these words:

"Now, in a nobler, sweeter song,
I'll sing Thy power to save;
No more with lisping, stammering tongue,
But a conqueror o'er the grave."

But there is a better song still:

"All, hail, the power of Jesus' name!"

Concluding his sermon, Mr. Allan exhorted his congregation to "look unto Him to-night and be saved! Go out with a song in your soul! Go out to tell others what He has done for you!" He also expressed the hope that one day he would be rejoiced to hear of some young man or woman giving himself or herself to the service of God at home or abroad.

As a fitting climax to the sermon the two choirs rendered the chorus, "Lord, Is it I?" wit' fine effect.

MURRAY STREET

Captain T. F. Best completed his work with Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday. The week of emphasis on the facts and experiences of the religious life resulted in much good.

The hour with the Baraca Class will be remembered by the hundred men who were present and as long as it is remembered it will do them good. He spoke of "Three Great Days"—the day of conversion, the day of baptism and the day of guidance by the Holy Spirit. His appeal for definite decision was responded to by many.

The sermons on "A Call to Men" and "The Path to Heaven" were among the strongest of the series and made a deep impression. Captain Best is not an evangelist of the usual type. His week day addresses were not sermons or expositions of scripture but heart to heart talks out of his own experience. His genuine Christian character, rich experience in peace and war, and his knowledge of men make him an effective worker among men and a tonic to those who associate with him.

In Murray street church he will be followed with interest and confidence as he undertakes evangelistic effort in connection with Rev. F. A. Robinson, M.A. His next appointment takes him to Charlottetown where the ministers of the city and their churches are uniting in a campaign of two weeks.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

"When He had said this, He breathed on them, and said: 'Receive ye the Holy Ghost. Whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them, and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained'."

The above words, taken from the Gospel according to St. John, 20th chapter, 19th to 31st verses, constituted the text of the sermons preached at the morning Masses yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. P. Costello.

The reverend speaker referred to the re-appearance of Christ among His disciples, after the crucifixion, and to the mercy shown His people in leaving them a means whereby they might once more become friends of God, by the absolving of sins in the sacrament of penance. "Confession is as old as the human race," declared Father Costello, alluding to the first confession made by Adam and Eve, when they revealed their sin to Almighty God.

Under the Old Dispensation, sinners were required to bring certain sacrifices to the temple, in atonement for transgressions, and the nature of the sacrifice was a public acknowledgment of the type of sin committed.

The speaker quoted from some of the early doctors of the Church, to show the universal acceptance from the earliest times, of the doctrine of penance for sin. Tertullian said: "If thou drawest back from confession, consider that hell-fire which confession shall quench for thee."

"For every sin committed by man, and the basis of all sin is pride, God requires in atonement the practice of humility. Confession affords the opportunity for the practice of humility, and offers an infallible method of regaining the friendship and love of God."

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH TO OPEN CAMPAIGN TO GARNER $20,000

Enthusiastic Meeting of Leaders Plans to Free Church of Debt.

MAY 9 TO 23

Improvements Are Needed to Edifice, But Mortgage is $16,000.

A very unique and enthusiastic meeting of between 50 and 60 of the members of the Executive committee and the Church Warden's sub-committee was held in the Guild room of All Saints' church on Friday night. After a splendid supper served by the Ladies' Bible class the chairmen of the various committees made their reports and in all cases they showed the spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm and reported much good work being done.

R. J. Bolton, who was Peoples' Warden for 1924-1926, introduced a suggestion which had been under consideration for some considerable time.

At the present time the church is carrying a very large burden of debt in mortgages on the church and rectory. The suggestion was made that the church launch a semi-jubilee thank offering fund to wipe off entirely the mortgages on the church property.

Discussion was free and frank and as one member after another pointed out difficulties he at the same time both pledged himself to give his share and to work to the utmost for the cause. One of the oldest members of the congregation pledged himself to give $1,000 provided that $10,000 was raised. On a standing vote being taken the wardens were given a clear challenge to lead on the campaign with the assurance that the congregation represented by the committeemen were heartily supporting them.

In explaining the suggested plan of the effort Mr. Bolton spoke of many who would wish to make their contributions towards decorating the church and Mr. Chandler and Mr. Holmes spoke of the urgent need of a new organ. These will have full consideration, but the committee in charge will require a few days to perfect the plans. The collections will probably be made between May 9 and 23rd and with the start already made success should be assured. The total required will be about $20,000.

I.O.D.E. MEETING.

Peter Robinson Chapter Reports Good Progress in Sale of Tickets.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Saturday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. The regent, Mrs. J. McNab, presided.

Some discussion as to holding a tag day for the Blind Institute took place, and was postponed for a later decision. The Chapter generally favored the making of a donation to the Institute this year, rather than holding a tag day.

Mrs. J. McNab was appointed as delegate from the Chapter to the Provincial meeting to be held in Hamilton during the last week in April.

It was decided to co-operate with the other city Chapters in extending an invitation to the Provincial Chapter to hold its annual meeting in Peterborough in the fall of the year. The district meeting will be combined with the Provincial meeting.

Two new members were introduced to the Chapter on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Stanley Anderson and Miss "Ted" Cheverill.

Very gratifying progress with regard to sale of the "Hope Chest" tickets was reported. The draw for the Chest will be made by Mayor W. T. Holloway at the Capitol Theatre this evening.

At the conclusion of the business session, tea was served. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. W. Belleghem. Mrs. J. McNab poured tea, assisted by Miss Mamie Drope and Miss Violet McKeown. The table was prettily arranged with mauve stocks and mauve candles in silver holders.

DR. DENSTON WAS KILLED BY SHOT; RIFLE ACCIDENT

Husband of Former Peterborough Girl Found Mortally Wounded.

VARIED CAREER.

Was Professor in Russia—Taken Prisoner By Bolsheviks.

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio, April 12.—Dr. Walter Denston, professor of mathematics in Kenyon College, Gambier, was killed through the accidental discharge of a rifle while at target practice. His wife, formerly Miss Alice Flora Collins, is a daughter of J. D. Collins, 194 McDonnel Street, Peterborough.

Dr. Denston, previous to taking the position at Kenyon College four years ago, was a master for one year at Ashbury College, Ottawa, where, although he was only there for the year, he was very highly regarded.

Found Wounded

The despatch giving intimation of Dr. Denston's death stated that he was found mortally wounded near the college and that he died without regaining consciousness.

Rev. G. P. Woollcombe expressed his keen regret at the untimely death of Professor Denston, who he stated was one of the most popular masters with the student body, who had ever taught in Ashbury.

Dr. Denston, according to Rev. Mr. Woollcombe, had a somewhat varied and intensely interesting career. He was born in England about 44 years ago, and was a graduate of Oxford University.

Went to Russia

Sometime previous to the outbreak of the Great War, Dr. Denston went to Russia and became instructor in nautical astronomy at the great naval college at St. Petersburg, where he remained for 10 years, or until the revolution, when the college, among many other great public institutions of its character, fell to pieces. Among other professors of the institution, which was the largest of its kind in Russia, and was known throughout the world, Dr. Denston was taken prisoner by the Bolsheviks, and held for a considerable period.

He finall gained his release after many harrowing experiences and mad. his way to England, where, in an interview with Rev. Mr. Woollcombe, shortly after his arrival, he accepted a position on the staff of Ashbury College.

Market Generally Steady Trading Light In Volume

TORONTO, April 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Whole market with the exception of mines, turned weaker on Toronto stock exchange to-day and though the volume of trading was not heavy several stocks lost substantially. Brazilian closed the morning a point and a half lower at 90 and British Columbia Fishing lost 2 1-4 at 64 3-4. Smelters was a point lower at 208 and International Nickel down seven-eighths at 34 5-8. Canada Steamships Common eased a qaurter at 17 3-4 and the Preferred 3-4 at 67 3-4. Noranda Mines advanced 55 cents at 5.50 and Teck Hughes three cents at 340.

Decline At Liverpool Gives Wheat General Sag

CHICAGO, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Owing chiefly to an unexpected decline in wheat quotations at Liverpool, wheat values here aver aged lower to-day during the early dealings. Chicago opening prices unchanged to 3-4c lower, May (new) 1.60 to 1.60 3-8, and July 1.36 3-8 to 1.36 3-4, were followed by a moderate general sag and then by rallies that in some cases went above Saturday's finish. Corn and oats were relatively firm, influenced by the smallness of the arrival of corn, 128 cars here to-day. After opening unchanged to 1-4c off, May 71 3-4 to 71 3-8c, the corn market scored a slight general advance. Oats started at 1-8c off to 1-8c up, May 41 7-8, later all months showed a little gain, in line with hog values. Provision market was firmer.

Market Has Weaker Trend Losses Are Substantial

TORONTO, April 12 (Canadian Press)—Few changes of importance took place on the Standard Mining Exchange today when trading remained of light volume and market generally steady Noranda was firm feature closing the morning 60 cents higher at 15.55, while Vipond, in some demand, advanced four at 171. Lake Shore eased twenty at 10.20. Dome fifteen at 15.85 and Capitol, three and a quarter at 37 1-2. Hollinger firmed ten at 18.40.

Motors Suffer Heavily Prices Have Sharp Break

NEW YORK, April 12.—(Canadian Press.)— Stock prices broke sharply to-day, presumably on selling inspired by the growing uncertainty as to the future course of business. Motors were hardest hit on the theory that the heavy pace set by production and sales in the first quarter could not be maintained, and that as a result earnings would suffer. Hudson collapsed 6 1-2 points to 64 3-4, as against a high of 123 1-4, earlier in the year; Jordan broke 5 1-4, Pierce-Arrow preferred 5 and several othes 1 to 3 points. Bea selling was particularly heavy in the motor group, but apparently the ease with which several issues declined also led to extensive commission house liquidation.

Selling in general list was stimulated by marking up of call money rate.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his precription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

OSLO, Norway, April 12 (Canadian Press). — Lincoln Ellsworth, co-director with Roald Amundsen in the proposed North Pole flight in the dirigible Norge, says the airship will sail from Oslo for Spitzbergen at a low rate of speed so as to save gasoline. One and one-half cups hot cornmeal mush, 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup diced cheese, 2 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, paprika, triangles hot toast.

Add salt to mush after cooking. Chop eggs. Add eggs, cheese, milk and butter to hot mush. Melt until cheese is melted and pour over hot toast. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, APRIL 13.

Conflicting testimonies are seen in today's astrological forecast. Although affairs may be rather lively in both a business and social or personal aspect, yet some figures warn against difficulties. However, these are not wholly hostile or ominous and may be negatived by good management.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly lively year in business as well as personal affiliations, but they may be prepared for a sudden visitation calling for good management. A child born on this day may be versatile, accomplished and popular and should succeed in its affairs by proper manipulation.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 12 (United Press)—What's in print is in fashion—providing its in colorful floral print. Women the world over are now buying fabrics for Summer frocks and among all materials prints stand out in overwhelming numbers, holding first place among silks and cottons.

Futuristic ideas in printed motifs are newer than floral designs but they will not be used as plentifully as will floral designs owing to the fact that this is a season of feminine frocks. And feminine frocks demand more feminine prints or fabrics. Prints of 1830 in Pompadour effect are gaining in popularity daily as the Spring season progresses. Also dots, circles and plaids are accepted this season since they can be pleated beautifully.

Backgrounds this season stand in the background and do not stand up and hit us in the face as they did a season or so ago. The idea of prints this Spring is to have subtle effects rather than blatant effects. Thus we find such combinations as a tan background printed with gray leaves and bronze and dull burnt orange flowers. Colors here are blended so beautifully that the material looks like the handwork of a batik artist.

Both printed silks and cottons will be used this season. Small all-over designs appear to best advantages in cotton materials whereas large designs are best on silk. Plain material is often combined with printed material on frocks and thus we have plain pipings, bandings, collars, cuffs, aprons and strings. Where the printed material is strong in color, plain georgette or chiffon may be used over the print to give a shaded effect. Thus, a vivid green, rose and black print has an overdress of black chiffon. Where one does not wish an entire dress of print one can use print sleeves on a plain dress. A pretty frock using this idea is made of white crepe de chene with full sleeves finishing in wristbands made entirely of white crepe printed in yellow, black, green and red combined in a futuristic design.

The Mirror of Time

By Juanita Hamel

The mirror of time sees many faces and many eras and many nations, and many styles. And each style that is mirrored therein seems to be the most wonderful of all. But Father Time chuckles to himself, and every once in awhile, he turns the thoughts of mortals backward for centuries.

While they think they're finding something new, they're merely being inspired by something that may be as old as the hills. Little Miss Twentieth Century, proudly displaying the very latest word from Paris as to hat and gown never dreams that she is wearing the counterpart of the gown which made her great grandmother the belle of the ball. But she is!

And she's adorable—and Father Time hands her over to Dan Cupid, for Love never changes, but ever mirrors the beauty and youth and wonder of the happiness of Love.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

Today's Sermon.

Say, a great, devastating, bloody civil war is about to be launched upon this fair land—

If we females of the species can't get some service at lunch counters!

What Every Woman Knows is the languid, haughty, maddening, slothful, disgusting, insulting, indifferent, superior, peevish air which the waitress class has towards all girls who perch on lunch counter stools.

"Us girls" may wait 15 minutes for the waitress to take our order. But let a mighty male perch himself before the counter and he is masticating his food with rapidity and dispatch whilst we continue to possess our souls in patience.

Sure it's because we don't tip!

And why don't we tip? Becaues we are mad at this inhuman treatment! And why do we get this treatment? Because we don't tip! And there's the vicious circle.

Just the samey, if I were the owner of these lunch counters, I'd wring their swanlike throats and alabaster necks until they howled for mercy!

And why do those hovering waiters grab the menu card and hide it as soon as you've ordered? Afraid of grease spots on 'em, or afraid that the patient will figure up the sum total and try to exchange broiled mushrooms for a cheese sandwich?

It takes $5,000 per annum to fashionably clothe a dog, opines a rich lady who attires her canine in the height of fashion.

Thing to Do!

Although the knife as the table weapon for peas is not now used in our best families, time was when the flower of chivalry transferred peas to gullet via the knife route. That knife had a broad round end used for catching up dripping gravy and performing various gustatory acrobatics. All because knives were made before forks.

By the way, in setting your to'day's table, the knife should be placed with the blade inside, and the water glass stands at the tip of the knife.

Spring Brides!

The bridal veil is a remnant of the day when brides were shrouded from head to foot and, betrothed or sold to the groom and his father by the bride's father, were never even seen by their future husbands until after the wedding.

This year's wedding veils are apt to be of tulle, wispy chiffon or net rather than of lace. They are almost molded to the head in tight cap effect, and are severely plain.

Daughter's "Careers"

June commencements not so far away. What can I do? What do I want to do? ask daughters. What should she do? ask mothers.

Might be worth while to take time off from wonder and read a few books on various occupations for women. Ask your librarian, your book shop, or your state traveling library for—

Gilbert's "Ambitious Woman in Business"; Traphagen's "Costume Design"; Hamilton's "Piano Teaching"; Allen's "Advertising as a Vocation"; Eberlein's "Practical Book of Interior Decoration"; Taber's "Business of the Household"; Taintor's "Training for Secretarial Practice."

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A SATIN AFTERNOON GOWN

Today Miss Whiting, one of Madame's most attractive young clients, came in to order a frock.

Madame greeted her gaily, and asked what wind had blown her in.

"I've just been rejoicing that my favorite color, navy blue, is back at the height of fashion, and I've come in for the most modish navy blue frock you are showing," Miss Whiting replied.

"If you want something rather unusual, I'm going to recommend a crepe-satin I have in the new collection," Madame said.

"Sounds interesting," Miss Whiting responded with alacrity.

"It is," Madame assured her. "You see, navy doesn't seem to appear in satin and crepe-satin, as much as black does. And it's true that navy satin isn't as pretty as black, unless it's awfully good navy satin. But you'll love this frock of navy crepe-satin, with the dull and shiny sides used together."

Gaby had been despatched to don the dress in question, and she soon came back, looking very charming.

The dress was made with an inset panel of the shiny side straight down the front. At the hips there was a set on tunic of the shiny material, applied to the body of the frock with an attractively used band of red embroidery on blue.

At the cuffs were flares of the embroidery finished with red gros-grain ribbon, and the little collar fastened high at the throat.

"That is a love," Miss Whiting agreed.

Then she said to Madame:

"You're right about this crepe-satin being just the frock for me. I'll put in my order without more ado. You know I love to see a thing I like and get it right away."

This Smart Crepe Satin Frock Exploits Its Bright and Dull Sides.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

THINGS WOMEN WANT TO KNOW.

Household lore is handed down from mother to daughter generally, and lucky is the girl whose mother has been a practical housekeeper. There are many tricks of the trade, as it were, that come in handy when needed. Starting, for instance, with the needs for a well-equipped tool chest.

The complete boxes for home use include a few important plumber's tools, so that in emergency, water may be turned off and a washer put on, or a little solder may be melted and poured on a leak that will hold at least long enough to finish the day's work.

Then, in a household box, there is a collection of string, wire, labels, paste, cement, shears, paint brushes, rubber bands of all sizes, and assorted corks.

There is a new ladder-stool which is very handy and is built strong enough to be a safe proposition. When a ladder, it enables one to reach to almost any ordinary height. As a stool, the piece is quite useful in the kitchen.

For the small house the nested tables of three will be found very handy.

Those who have not heard of the kitchen catch-all can, will be glad to know of it. Made of aluminum, the pail clamps to the waste pipe under the sink and swings out when needed far enough beyond the edge so the plates may be scraped into it.

The newest tea-wagon has two drop leaves with a loose tray and a drawer. The tray removed and the leaves lifted, it may pose as an extra card table if needed. Leaves lifted, it is oval in shape and quite comfortable to sit beside.

If you use the cream from the tops of the milk bottles, a cream dipper will do the trick perfectly.

The busy woman who makes cookies for kiddies should invest in the new cookie cutter that cuts 86 cookies in a minute. When the dough is rolled the desired thickness on the board, the cutter is rolled over it cutting two at each revolution.

HER OWN WAY by A GIRL of TODAY

THE SHOCK OF REALIZATION

"I was not sure at first that I had heard aright and I must have looked at Lola Lawrence with an uncomprehending stare, for I had stopped stock still facing her when I realized what she had been saying. Consequently she repeated the words, this time a little more loudly.

"'I said," she reiterated, 'I don't see why you keep on working.

"'Do you for one moment think you are fooling anyone but yourself, when you keep this place while all the time, dressed in the most gorgeous importations that Madame Seria brings over, you are dining and opera-going with Buddy Tremaine?

"'He must have fallen for you hard for he never took me to the opera and sat in his mother's box. When we went, which was not often, we sat in the seats where anyone who had five dollars could sit. Of course I know that he was crazy about high-brow music and you are much cleverer than I was, to go with him to the opera every night during the season. I couldn't stand so much caterwalling and I told him so. Perhaps I might have done it if I could have sat in the golden horseshoe. I wonder what his mother thought about it. How was Buddy able to make your appearance there all right with the family!"

"I managed to interrupt Miss Lawrence.

"'I don't know what you mean, Miss Lawrence, but I do know that what you are intimating is a most terrible lie. I do go to the opera with Mr. Tremaine, but it is because we both love it. I am going to be a singer some day. Tortentio is teaching me, and he is so pleased with my voice he is perfectly willing to wait until he makes me a successful singer for his remuneration.'

"'Old stuff! Old stuff, young woman! Tortentio and Tremaine made me think I was going to be an opera singer until Tremaine got tired of me and then he got Tortentio to write me a note saying he had found my voice would never come up to the requirements of grand opera and as he only took pupils who showed great promise, he must decline to keep me any longer. It will only be a little while before you will get such a note. That's the way that Buddy Tremaine works. I thought you knew all about it.'

"'Were—were—you taking lessons of Tortentio?' I asked stammeringly.

"'Yes, I certainly was, but I will bet my future existence that I stopped the day you began. What day did Tortentio write you a note telling you he had decided you were a "best bet" and he was willing to teach you "on spec," as it were, he was so sure you would make good?'

"'I don't remember,' I said haltingly, as I turned to walk out of the room.

"Miss Lawrence stepped forward quickly, took hold of my shoulders and pulled me around so she could look in my face.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

WHAT LOOSENS THE BABY TEETH?

You have watched in your small son these little teeth that were once so firmly rooted, gradually loosen and begin to wobble. For fear lest he might swallow one you tied a string around it and jerked it out; or else you just picked it off, and finding no root, you wondered what had been holding it in place, and you asked yourself was it always so.

Now, as a matter of fact, the "baby tooth," upon eruption, did possess a normal root; then, where has it gone?

Well you see, that as the incoming permanent tooth begins to develop and push up, it must find room. So Nature removes these little temporary teeth through absorption of the root, allowing the crown to fall away—a process that is attended with no pain or outward disturbances whatsoever.

But occasionally it happens that this natural process of root absorption is retarded, or it may be, does not occur at all, with the result that the little tooth does not loosen by the time the shedding process should take place.

This is due, probably, to the death of its pulp or nerve, preventing a quick natural absorption, or it may be, to the tardy development of the replacing permanent tooth or to its eruption into an abnormal position, or possibly to the non-development of what should have been the succeeding tooth.

In any case, your dentist will be best able to advise you as to whether this unloosened "baby teeth" should come out now or at a later date.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

There are so many points to be considered in the quest of good looks, that one is prone to over look some that seem really of minor importance.

Now, I do not believe in calling too many things to mind, so that if one followed them all there would be no time left for anything but to be beautiful. This is far too busy a world for that!

Still, have you ever paid careful attention to your elbows and the appearance of the back of your arm?

Perhaps you have, for if you have ever happened to run your hand over your upper arms at the back, you may have been very shocked and surprised to find that they were so rough to the touch as to seem fairly horny. An awful state, I will admit!

The young girl of woman who has much occasion to wear evening dress must surely be careful of the appearance of her elbows and arms. For the most carefully considered toilette can be marred considerably by ugly elbows.

In the first place, the elbow should be scrubbed with a soap brush until it is absolutely clean. This may sound like unnecessary advice, but try the scrubbing brush method anyway, as it has a tendency to soften as well as cleanse.

Now, the way to make these difficult parts smooth, after washing is to proceed as follows:

Dry them thoroughly. Then take a bit of coarse cooking salt, rub it on a dampened Turkish towel, and apply the towel vigorously to the roughened parts. This friction will make them red for a while, but the redness will die down. If it leaves your arms a bit tender, rub in a good nourishing skin food, and allow it to remain overnight.

After one treatment of this kind your arms will be more smooth, and if you repeat once, you will find that the unattractive roughness has disappeared entirely.

Repeat as often as they seem to need this treatment.

The same method holds good for legs which have become rough in texture. Sometimes your legs may be only thapped, as a result of going out in chin stockings when you have failed to dry your legs thoroughly after a bath. But if they become rough and show a tendency to remain so, the salt treatment will correct this immediately.

This advice as to elbows is especially timely at the beginning of Summer, if you plan to wear short-sleeved frocks.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson E. Waite, Secy., Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

Elmer T. Peterson, Editor of the Wichita, Kansas Beacon, says:

That fifty per cent of the money spent for advertising is thrown away because the writers of the advertisements do not understand how to open the doors of the reader's mind.

That advertising, in spite of this fact, is the primary moving force in business today.

That salesmanship, service, quality, price, desirability are subdivisions of the general subject of advertising.

That the advertiser must create desire on the part of the prospective buyer. He cannot do so by repeating inane expressions like, "The Store of Quality," or "We Strive to Please," or "Service is Our Motto." The reading public is getting too sophisticated. It doesn't care about slogans or mottoes, but insists upon knowing what, why, how, when and where. It wants to know the price. The public is pretty intelligent and the advertiser must recognize that fact.

That too many advertisers try to feature too many things at once and only succeed in producing a blurred gray effect upon the reader's mind. One appealing fact in black type, thrown into sharp contrast with plenty of white space, hits the mark better than a charge of birdshot scattered all over the place.

That first of all, "create desire." You can't do that by throwing platitudes. And remember that advertising is the biggest factor in business success. Wait a moment before you object to that sweeping statement—it also includes the business man's own ability, for the knowledge of that ability is a form of advertising in itself.

The possibilities of advertising are only being scratched. The next 25 years will see a great change and amplification. Lost motion will be cut out and the psychology of it will be more definitely analyzed. So don't advertise by turning your advertisements upside down or getting off jokes or attracting attention by some other freakish method. Always bear in mind the fact that you must create desire for your product, and if you will do that you will find that advertising investment is the best of all your investments.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Any kind of a pain seems to the sufferer to be the worst kind of a pain he could possibly have. The pain of pleurisy is really a terrible pain. It is just as bad as if a knife had been thrust in the side between the ribs. With every deep breath there is agonizing pain.

Pleurisy is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the chest cavity within which are contained the lungs. It is caused by cold, exposure, weakness and a run-down condition.

As a rule, pleurisy begins with a chill. The next symptom is a stitching pain somewhere between the nipple and the space under the arm. The acuteness of the pain has given to the disease the name "stitch in the side."

Difficult breathing, a dry cough, tenderness over the chest and sometimes fever are symptoms which follow in rapid succession. Of course, these are not all the symptoms. There may be continued chills, fever, fainting and sweating.

A well-ventilated room with plenty of fresh air and sunshine, is the first essential to cure. Have the bed so placed that the sufferer will have all their benefits without being in a draft.

In pleurisy the victim lies on the side affected. Promote his comfort by placing pillows at his back and under the side to take the strain off the back. As in all other conditions affecting the lungs the position should be changed frequently.

The diet should consist only of liquids or semi-solid food, as the doctor directs. Fruit juices, milk, beef juice and plenty of water will usually be sufficient.

Particular attention must be paid to the bowels. Either enemas or medicine should be given so that the bowels move daily.

Strapping the chest with adhesive plaster relieves the pain.

When the patient grows better and begins to sit up, you should double your efforts to guard him against taking more cold and over-fatigue. The first day he should not sit up for more than fifteen minutes. The next day he may increase it to half an hour. Gradually the strength is restored and the patient can go about his affairs.

The simple rules of good health should be followed. It is particularly important to correct your methods of living after having pleurisy. The fact that you have had an attack means that you are below par, or that you are susceptible to some particular germ. Unless you are careful, you may have another set-to with this uncomfortable disease.

Hermann Hagedorn, official biographer of Theodore Roosevelt, who is preparing the screen story of "The Rough Riders," has just finished a tour during which he interviewed many members of the immortal regiment. From the veterans came a new fund of Roosevelt yarns. Here's one of the best:

When Roosevelt was governor of New York a Rough Rider in Arizona wrote to him from an Arizona jail cell asking help and explaining his predicament.

"Mr. Roosevelt, I am in jail for shooting a lady in the eye," his letter read. "But I didn't intend to shoot the lady. It was accidental. I was aiming at my wife."

Jesse L. Lasky, Adolph Zukor, Louis B. Bayer and Carle Laemmle are the "big boys" of the motion picture game. You seldom hear of these men—they are behind the blonds and brunets and sheiks whom you do know well. These are the babies who put up the money to make pictures. They boss the stars, Pola Negri, Gloria Swanson, Norma Shearer and others like clerks get handled in a department store.

And where did these film gods come from, each of whom is worth more than a half dozen million dollars a piece? Only a few years ago each was an obscure cog: Lasky was a vaudeville actor; Zukor, a clothing salesman; Mayer a Maine lumberjack, and Laemmle a music dealer in New York's Tin Pan Alley.

Testimonial from Modern Mutual Admiration Society: H. B. Warner says of Lilyan Tashman: "She is a fascinating actress, whose work shows a marvelous sincerity. It's a pleasure to work with her." Lilyan says of Warner: "His performance is so convincing that it is inspirational to play opposite him."

CLEANING.

'Round the house there's somethin' doin', and I think that work is brewin', fer the wife is makin' plans that come each year. With the springtime now in season, there's no doubt that that's the reason why the dustin', cleanin', scrubbin' job is here.

All engagements we are droppin'. 'Stead of steppin' out, we're moppin'. To a married man the thought is understood. As the front rug is hangin', for its beatin' and it's bangin'—when the wife says, "beat it"—Gee, I wish I could.

E'en the yard, with dirt appalling, needs a thorough overhauling, and the shovel, rake and hoe are put to use. Little gardens must be planned on. Raked up spots one must not stand on, are the places where real labor's put to use.

Up on ladders; then akneeling. Washing baseboard, tile and ceiling, till your knees, your arms, and mental power are dumb. Yep, it's up to you—get busy! Plough until you're fairly dizzy. That's the penalty you pay 'cause spring has come.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER ELEVEN—THE GAZOOKUMSES AND THE CANDY.

The next place that Mister Tingaling and the Twins went to collect rents, was Mister Owl's house.

"Tap, tap, tap!" they went on the door of Mister Owl's apartment in the Maple Tree.

Mister Owl opened the door himself and blinked and blinked and blinked.

"I can't see so very well in the daytime," he said. "Who are you?"

"We're the rent collectors," said Nick.

"Who?" screeched Mister Owl.

"Rent collectors," repeated Nick. "This is Mister Tingaling, your landlord. This is the thirty-second day of the month in Fairyland, and your rent is due, Mister Owl. It's fifty cents in fairy money."

"Fifty cents in foolish money," said Mister Owl. "What do you think I am, anyway? I paid my rent not an hour ago."

It was Mister Tingaling's turn to shout. "What! Paid your rent! How could you pay us when we weren't here?"

"Well, somebody was here," said the owl, giving his feathers a shake that made the dust fly. "Or rather three somebodies were here. And I paid them."

"What did they look like?" asked Nick.

"They looked just alike," said Mister Owl. "And they said you had sent them. They looked like three little boys."

"The Gazookumses!" cried Mister Tingaling and the Twins together. "It was the Gazookumses who got your rent, Mister Owl. Which way did they go?"

"Down toward the candy-store," said Mister Owl. "That way."

Poor Mister Tingaling and the Twins almost flew to the candy-store.

"Were three queer little boys here lately?" asked Mister Tingaling in a trembling voice.

"Yes, sir!" said Mister Bags, the candy-store keeper. "They spent fifty cents in fairy money."

"Oh, dear!" said poor Mister Tingaling. "Which way did they go?"

"That way," pointed Mister Bags.

So off went Mister Tingaling and the Twins again, pocketbook and all, to try and catch the Gazookumses who had stolen Mister Owl's rent money.

But no Gazookumses could they see anywhere.

Finally they stopped under an old dead tree, with a crow's nest in the top.

"I'd give a dozen cookies to know where those rascals went," said Tingaling.

Just then a lolly-pop stick hit him on the nose.

"Where'd that come from?" he demanded.

But nobody answered. The Twins ran this way and that and looked in all the holes and up all the trees. But they came back and said they couldn't see a soul.

Just then a chocolate-bud jacket all rolled up into a little tin pill, hit Mister Tingaling on the ear.

"Where'd that come from?" cried Tingaling picking it up.

But nobody answered.

And just then a little paper frill off a bon-bon came floating down and sat itself saucily on top of the fairyman's hat.

"Who's up in that nest?" he called suddenly, looking up suspiciously at the big nest of sticks and straws in the dead tree.

"Just us crows!" came three voices in a chorus.

"You crows must have a sweet tooth," said Mister Tingaling, winking at the Twins.

HENRY M. FLAGLER—THE TRUE PIONEER OF THE SOUTH

Have you ever wondered who was responsible for the upbuilding of Florida and the enormous real-estate boom in that land of the sunny South? If any one man was directly responsible, that man was Henry M. Flagler, who died in 1913, a multi-millionaire.

He rightfully belongs among the empire builders of the world, that rare, intrepid breed of dauntless spirits who convert the waste places of the earth into habitable regions. When Henry Flagler came to Florida twenty-six years ago, the southern part of the peninsula was still a primitive wilderness, unpenetrated by railroads and given over to a few scattered villages along the coast. Miami was then a fishing and Indian trading post—desolate and mosquito-infested. But the pioneering genius of Henry Flagler transformed that waste land into a luxuriant, verdant country to which thousands of Northerners flock each Winter.

Henry M. Flagler was born—the son of a minister earning $300 a year—in 1830. At the age of 14 he was compelled to leave his home at Hammondsport, New York, to learn his living. He obtained employment as a clerk in a grocery store at Republic, Ohio. By saving his money he was able to go into the grain business at Bellevue, Ohio, where he married.

The young grain merchant sold his grain to John F. Rockefeller, who was then a commission merchant at Cleveland. Then he went to Saginaw, Michigan, to enter the salt business, which was not, however, a successful venture. Three years later he left there penniless and in debt. He went to Cleveland to rebuild his fortunes, and after re-entering the grain and produce business became interested in an oil refinery conducted by John D. and William Rockefeller and Samuel Andrews. This venture resulted in the formation of the Standard Oil Company in 1870. Mr. Flagler, quite wealthy, then went to New York in 1882 and within a few months had invested in Florida real estate. He made his first trip to Florida in 1885, and spent most of his time there from then on.

His first enterprise in Florida was the Ponce de Leon Hotel, on which he spent $1,500,000. Other enterprises followed until he had invested $50,000,000.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

WHEN BOBBY COON MADE A MISTAKE

"Bobby Coon went a little closer to the newcomer. Then he sat down and began to laugh.

"Who in the world are you?" he asked with a tilt of his pretty nose. "I've never in all my life seen an uglier fellow."

"I don't doubt that at all," said the new comer studying his neighbor. "I'm not as much on looks as you are. I always did admire the way your mama dresses you. All coons dress the same way and all porcupines dress as I do. I'm Billy Porcupine." Billy Porcupine shook his funny little clumsy body so that his great long spears made a rattling sound.

"Do your bones always rattle like that?" asked the astonished Bobby Coon. "Your skin seems to be loose."

"Not my skin," replied Mr. Porcupine. "That's my spears making that noise. You see when folks do things to annoy me, I just shower them with these sharp spears, then they'll be more careful next time."

"Goodness!" cried Bobby Coon, stepping back. "I hope I haven't offended you. You see I've never had the pleasure of meeting a gentleman like you."

"Then take a good look at me," laughed Billy Porcupine. "If you'll notice, I'm larger than you are and my body is thick and heavy."

"Yes and your head is rather small for your body, even your neck is small," chuckled Bobby Coon. "Have you any ears at all?"

"Who in the World Are You?"

"Sure I have," laughed Billy Porcupine, "but they're so small you can hardly find them. They're covered with hair. But I can hear just the same. Better than you can right now."

Around a bush dashed a dog and poor Bobby Coon almost died of fright when he saw him coming toward him.

Billy Porcupine arched up his funny little humped back, shook his little spears and Mr. Dog turned around and ran away howling.

"Well of all things!" cried the Coon, coming out from the hole in the ground, where he had run to hide. "You certainly shook yourself that time. Thanks, Mr. Porcupine, you really have saved my life. I was so excited over meeting you I really forgot my manners. I hope I didn't hurt your feelings."

"Not so badly as my spears hurt that dog," laughed Mr. Porcupine. "I guess he'll know me the next time he sees me. If he doesn't, I'll introduce myself again. Whenever you see me duck my head down and begin switching my tail, look out or you'll be sorry. If one of the spears from my tail get into an enemy it will work its way deeper and deeper into his skin. I'm a peace-loving fellow, but when I get mad, look out."

Bobby Coon hated to acknowledge it, but he was glad his mother called him just then. Bidding Mr. Porcupine goodby, Bobby Coon scooted home. The next time he met Billy Porcupine, he was very careful what he said.

CANADIANS TELL

prevailed when prohibition was in force in Manitoba and other Western Provinces, Mr. Russell replied that in those days "more than half the people were in avowed unblushing revolt against the law," while the Province itself was converted into a network of stills.

"It was the same in Saskatchewan and in Alberta," he declared.

Once when Mr. Russell said a case of liquor is the weekly limit per person in Canada, the crowd that packed the room laughed so long and loud that it was with difficulty order was restored. One woman almost went into hysterics.

"As long as human nature lasts," Mr. Russell commented, "and that will be until the end of the world, there will be a demand for liquors for beverage purposes, and as long as fermentation lasts the means of supply will be there."

In Winnipeg in 1923 when wets regained control more than 70 per cent. of the women voters, said Mr. Russell, voted to do away with prohibition. They did so, he added, "to save their families."

There is still a considerable American trade in hard liquors, he said, and so anxious are some people in Minnesota and Wisconsin to get hold of the real article that special trains from those States into Winnipeg is now the common rule.

Sir William Stavert, who followed Mr. Russell, told a story of similar conditions in Quebec to those which Mr. Russell said prevail in Manitoba and other Western provinces. He said the Quebec Government operating system had decreased crime, eliminated the bootlegger, as well as bringing about a reversion from hard liquors to light wines and beers.

ENGLISH LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY HUDDERSFIELD FOR THE THIRD SEASON IN SUCCESSION

Arsenal's Defeat by Sunderland Virtually Decided Soccer Honors.

JACKSON STARRED

Burnley Ran Wild at Birmingham—Four Goals in Four Minutes.

LONDON, April 12. — Canadian Press Cable. — Huddersfield town as good as salted away the chompion-ship of the English League (First Division) Saturday, when Jackson, formerly International outside right of Aberdeen in the Scottish League, secured two goals against West Ham, the latter narrowing the margin to one through the efforts of Earl. The Yorkshir-men thus increased their aggregate pointage to 55, while Arsenal, who were the sole team to have any sort of a hope for League championship, remained stationary at 47. Arsenal's chances went a glimmering at Sunderland, where the tables were turned on them to the tune of two goals to one. Earlier in the season at Highbury, Arsenal had whitewashed Sunderland by a couple of counters.

Thus with 8 points now separating Huddersfield from Arsenal, the latter's position is without hope. This fact, however, will not detract from the interest of the game to be played on Saturday next between Huddersfield and Arsenal on the former's ground. Another victory for Huddersfield gives them the championship for the third year in succession, and the same end would be achieved were Arsenal to drop one more game.

Burnley's Exploit.

An extraordinary feature of Saturday's League play was that at Birmingham Burnley defeated the home team by no less a margin than seven goals to one, and of the mystic number Page accounted for six.Burnley walked all over Birmingham and did just exactly as they pleased. At one stage of the proceedings, the visitors for four minutes put on a regular procession to Birmingham's goal, scoring an average of one a minute in that period. Bruton rounded off Page's sextette by adding one more, which, however, was neutralized by Bradford scoring for "Brummagen."

Much the same sort of a game was staged at Blackburn where the locals stacked up seven goals against Manchester United, and Harper for the Rovers came near to reproducing Page's performance. He fell two short, however, his record being four. Campbell, Mitchell and Puddefoot added the other three. Blackburn thus avenged themselves for the two-nought defeat they suffered at the hands of Manchester United on November 28 at Old Trafford. This was the third occasion on which the United have figured in a seven goal game this season, the previous tilts being against Burnley and Manchester City. In the former they were victorious 6-1 and in the latter they dropped the points by the same score.

The Metropolitan teams had a bad day, Tottenham Hotspurs alone winning. At White Hart Lane they blanketed Notts County by 4 goals, two of which were scored by Dimmock, Elkes and Roe accounted for the remainder.

Other Scores.

A misadventure by Hart of Leeds United added a third goal to West Bromwich's score when the latter whitewashed the United at West Bromwich. Carter's two tallies had clinched the game for the Albion, however.

Other first string scorers were: Manchester City (Austen, Brownell, Johnson and Roberts.) against Aston Villa (Dorrell and Walker.)

Sheffield United (Tunstal-2, Green and Gillespie) against Newcastle United (Hudspeth-2, McDonald).

Sunderland (Gurney-2), against Arsenal (Brain.)

Liverpool (Chambers) against Bury, nil.

Second Division scorers were:

BETHLEHEM STEEL WIN SOCCER TITLE

U. S. Championship Decided by 7-2—Crowd of 18,000.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(Canadian Press).—Bethlehem Steel defeated the Ben Millers of St. Louis, 7 to 2, Sunday in the final of the American cup tie soccer play at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, before 18,000.

To the victor went the Dewar trophy as well as the title. This cup was presented to the United States Football Association by a European sportsman and since has become emblematic of the national championship.

The Bethlehem eleven, which has won the championship four times and has been runner-up on five occasions, entered the fray as the Eastern champion. It is a member of the American Soccer League, play in which is still continuing, and has a high rating in that circuit, composed of pro elevens, although many of the players are amateurs. The Ben Millers won the national crown on one occasion and have held the St. Louis league title for the last two years. They gave the sport its real impetus in the West and their team is one of the most famous in the country.

Total of 131 Teams Entered.

A list of 131 teams entered play for the national tourney this year. The country was divided into two sections, with the understanding that the victor in each would meet in New York, which never has held an American soccer championship, for the crown. Keen competition was the rule from the start. The Bethlehem forces had to replay a tie game to gain the Eastern honors and the Ben Millers also had to play their Western rival a second time before they could come to a decision.

PADDOCK LOWERS RECORD FOR DASH

Sets 150 Meters Mark at Fifteen and Six-Tenths Seconds.

LOS ANGELES, April 12. — Charles Paddock of the Los Angeles Athletic Club broke the world's record for 150 meters in a race here Saturday that featured the triangular meet of the Los Angeles A. C., University of Southern California and Olympic Club of San Francisco, running the distance in 15.6 seconds.

The former record for the 150 meters was 16 seconds, made by K. Lindberg of Sweden in 1907. The 150 meters event was substituted for the 220-yard run on Saturday's program.

For the second time this season a new American outdoor pole-vault record was set when R. Smith of the Los Angeles A. C. vaulted 13 feet 5 1-4 inches, an eighth of an inch higher than the vault of Barnes of the University of Southern California a few weeks ago.

CLEVELAND GIRLS DEFEAT EDMONTON

International Basketball Title Yielded by Canadians.

NEW YORK, April 12.—(Canadian Press).—The Newman-Sterns five of Cleveland defeated the Edmonton Grads of Alberta by a score of 13 to 8 at the 71st Regiment armory Saturday night, and by so doing captured the girls' international championship, both in games won and in total points.

The game was the fourth and last of a series which opened in Cleveland five days ago, and the victory Saturday was the third scored by the Newman-Sterns team. The total points for the four games were: Newman-Sterns 72, Grads 60.

Nelly Kyr, whose brilliant play won Friday night's game for the Cleveland team, once again was the outstanding star, scoring three field goals and one goal from foul for an individual point total of 7. Connie Smith of Edmonton, with two field goals and one from foul, was the outstanding player of the Canadians.

Miss Kyr, stocky little forward on the Newman-Sterns five, started the scoring when, after five minutes of play in the first period, she caged a long shot from the side of the court. That goal and a goal from foul by Dot Johnson of the Edmonton five were the only scores made in the opening session, and as the result the Cleveland team was leading, 2 to 1, when the first intermission was called.

RECORD GLASGOW CROWD AT CUP FINAL SAW CELTICS DEFEATED

Paisley St. Mirren's Victory Replete With Thrills—St. Mirren Defenders—

Clean-Cut and Brilliant—Replete With Thrills—St. Mirren Outplayed Cup Score 2 to 0.

CELTIC'S GOALIE MADE MISTAKES

GLASGOW, April 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—One hundred thousand soccer fans crowded Hampden Park Saturday, contributing £3,700 ($18,500) to the funds of the Scottish Football Asociation, and saw Paisley St. Mirren carry off the Scottish Cup, defeating the Celtic by 2 goals to 0 in a game that was replete with thrills and in which never for a moment did Celtic look like winning. St. Mirren had the cup defenders out-played, out-guessed and out-generalled in every department of the game.

The defenders were without McLean, his place on the forward line being taken by Leitch. The latter uncovered the best display of soccer in the Celtic team.

St. Mirren's victory was due principally to the magnificent play of the intermediate line, Morrison, Summers and McDonald serving up a game that had the celtic front line muzzled from start to finish. The "Saints" quintette of forwards played beautiful combination, their exhibition being a brilliant series of incursions into Celtic terrtitory and in these attacks, McCrae, Howieson and Gebbie were particularly prominent. It was McCrae who destroyed the morale of the defenders within three minutes of the opening of the game when he defeated Shelvin with a hot shot. Th Celtic goalie had a hard time in the nets and made many unexpected mistakes. Shelvin appeared to be suffering from stage-fright and was very nervous.

Result a Surprise.

The Paisley team continued to press throught the first period, and before the end of the session Howison, their inside-left, had put them further ahead by another goal. From that moment the game belonged to St. Mirren. The Celtic quintette were never able to settle down to their play, and to add to their troubles McInally went lame in the second half. They received no support whatever from the halves, and the backs were always harrassed. The result was a surprise but on the merits of the game, St. Mirren were vastly the better team.

The attendance was a record for a Scottish Cup final

DUNDEE PILED UP FIVE GOALS

RESULT WAS 5-3

GLASGOW, April 12 (Canadian Press Cable). — While Celtic was losing the Scottish Cup at Hampden Park Saturday, a number of surprises were taking place in the League. At Easter Road, Dundee United piled up five goals against the Hibernians, the Edinburgh team coming back with three. At the same time the victors' intra-borough rivals, Dundee, administered a two-one defeat on Queen's Park. Cowdenbeath defeated the Airdrieonians.

At Perth, St. Johnstone defeated Falkirk by the odd goal in three, and this also was the margin by which Motherwell emerged victorious over Kilmarnock on the latter's ground. One of the most remarkable features of the day was the fact that Clydebank held the Rangers to a draw. Of the four goals scored in this match, Marshall registered two for the Rangers, with Smith and Reid responding for Clydebank.

At Cowdenbeath, the game with Airdrie was warmly fought, but the visitors had to accept the defeat that came to them when Pullar put Cowdenbeath one up. This was the only counter of the game.

Campbell and Meagher did the honors for Dundee against the amateurs, who reduced the margin to one through Nicholson.

In a regular scoring bee at Edinburgh, Campbell of Dundee United shot in two counters, with Simpson, McDonald and Bauld increasing the number to five. Hibernians' return was from the toe of McColl, who duplicated Campbell's feat, and Ritchie, who added one more.

Other League scorers were:

Kilmarnock (Dunlop), Motherwell (Tennant and McFayden), Hamilton (Williamson and Kelly), St. Johnstone (Dick 2), Falkirk (Paterson).

MAJOR LEAGUES STAGE ALL SET

Campaigns Start Tuesday in Eight Cities—Yankees Improved.

TYSON A FIND.

NEW YORK, April 12 (Canadian Press) — National and American League baseball teams, fired with new ambitions according to optimistic reports from managers, open the annual campaigns in eight cities Tuesday.

Favored in the American League are Philadelphia, New York and Washington. The Senators and Athletics will start with about the same lineups carried last season, except that the Philadelphians have Hauser back at first base after suffering a broken leg. The Yankees with only Dugan of last year's infield still in action, have indicated by many lusty home run blows that their batting will give any pitcher plenty of trouble. They won 12 straight games from Brooklyn on the training trip.

In the National League the New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals vie for first place honors, although an unexpected power may develop in one of the other clubs. The Giants have found a real center fielder in Al Tyson, the first time that this position has satisfied Manager McGraw in years. A brilliant showing in training games has given the Cardinals, managed by Rogers Hornsby, a large amount of prestige.

The Pirates will be unable to take the field with all regulars in action, a factor which may give the world champions a poor start. Captain Max Carey is out of the game following an attack of influenza, and Eddie Moore, second baseman, probably will be limping when the season starts, his shoes to be filled by Hal Rhyne from the Pacific coast.

TANNERY FOOTBALL CLUB.

Omemee Team Has Several Players of International Repute.

The E. and E. Tannery Football Club, Omemee, have been busy signing on players and have obtained several of international repute. A. Leiper, secretary, has obtained the signatures of a number of players, and, judging from the records of the men signed, there is no doubt that the team will cut a big swath in bringing honors to the village during the incoming season.

The following have signed up with Secretary A. Leiper: James Fife, "Sons of Scotland," and of the senior soccer eleven, Winnipeg. This man has won his cap three times as goalkeeper in international games at Montreal. Arthur Rhodes and Peter Burchall, Lindsay, both of whom are well-known to the football enthusiasts of this district. Tom Lunn, an ex-professional from Broxburn United, a second division league team in Scotland. James Brooks, formerly with the Todmordens of Toronto; Jack Black, from Carberry Thistle, a Scottish team. McGill, the inside right, has seen service with some smart junior clubs and was picked to represent Glasgow in the Old Country: Roy Black, outside left, has represented his country, Scotland, on two separate occasions as a schoolboy international.

Mr. Leiper expects to land some more players in a few days of a calibre similar to those he has. Weather conditions have interfered with an early start, but the team is ready just as soon as the ground clears.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 12—Since the Yankees started spring training they have been the subject of much ridicule from many of the experts touring the southern camps.

Already the club has been consigned to a berth in the second division. It seems Boston is the only club not given an outside chance to beat the Yankees.

That means a lot of the wise men of baseball believe the Yanks will finish seventh.

On this point I beg to differ. It is possible, the Yankees may finish in the second division, the club may drop as low as seventh, but it it does it will not be due to lack of playing ability.

I am of the opinion that the Yankees are going to be just as good a club as they want to be.

In other words the spirit of the club is going to determine where it finishes far more than the playing ability.

The Yankees comprise a first division ball club if they want to be. If they fail to take their baseball seriously, then a berth in the second division looms ahead, because the American League clubs appear mighty evenly balanced.

In most cases it is the spirit of the club its attitude toward baseball, that is being criticized by the experts. A good many of them seem to be of the opinion that its simply going to be a joy-ride for the star athletes of Mr. Miller Huggins.

The consensus of the experts is largely based on the manner of training used by the Yankees. This is perhaps rather unfair, since the New York Americans are in many respects a rather unusual ball club.

There are on the team many veterans of years of experience. These players have all reached a position of prominence in the baseball world. They know best their physical limitations and possibilities.

Manager Miller Huggins has won three pennants for New York in the last five years. That is a pretty good showing. It means that Huggins has been a decided success as a manager, all opinions to the contrary.

Huggins, an old player himself, knows that spring training is a severe task to most veterans. Most of them detest the rigors of the southern work. John McGraw believes in driving rather than cajoling. Miller Huggins has the opposite viewpoint; he lets the player judge for himself what is best.

As a result of the difference in temperament between the Yankee manager and the leader of the Giants, there is a decided contrast in the spring training methods of the two clubs. The Yankee style appears rather slip-shod in comparison with the Giants.

Perhaps that explains why many of the experts are of the opinion that the Yankee club isn't going anywhere this season.

When I chatted with Miller Huggins it was apparent that he wasn't pleased with the comment about the Yankees and their spring training.

"I am perfectly satisfied with my ball club and the way it is being conditioned. Since I am the manager and must suffer if the club fails, I should be the most worried. Instead of being a pessimist, I am an optimist.

"The Yankees are going to finish a lot higher than seventh place. If Ruth has a big year at the bat I am sure we will surprise a lot of the folks who consider my club a joke."

The Yankees still have a punch at the bat. The pitching while in some cases a little aged, should be far above the average. The Yanks have always been a tight defensive club up until last year. Joe Dugan's injury, Aaron Ward's slump and Everett Scott's passing from the Yankee lineup tended to destroy the efficiency of the Yankee infield. It has been made over.

I like Mark Koenig at short. I am sure he will fill the bill. Wouldn't surprise me if he developed into a star. The operation to Joe Dugan's injured knee appears to have restored it to normal. Lou Gehrig at first base is a great hitter.

Tony Lazzaeri impressed me most favorably, despite the fact that he seemed a bit out of position at second. He takes a great cut at the ball and, if he does his home-run stuff in New York, is sure to be a big favorite.

I consider the Yankees a mighty good ball club. The stuff is there. But, as I said before, the team will be just as good as it wants to be. That remains to be determined.

IN BASKETBALL FINAL

M.A.A.A. Team Defeats the Maritime Quintette.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 12.—(Canadian Press). — Montreal won the right to enter the 1926 Canadian basketball final as a result of the victory of the star M.A.A.A. quintette, champions of Quebec and Ontario, over the Trojans, champions of the Maritime Provinces, in the second and last of the two-game series here Saturday night, 30 to 23. This gives the Montreal aggregation the semi-final round by the narrow margin of six points, the Trojans having won the first game by 37 to 36. The total round was: M.A.A.A. 66, Trojans 60. Montreal now meets Winnipeg for the Dominion title.

ST. FRANCOIS TEAM APPLIES TO COURT

Four Actions Against Quebec Hockey Association.

MONTREAL, April 10 (Canadian Press).—Four actions were taken in the Superior Court yesterday on behalf of the St. Francois Xavier hockey club, Province of Quebec champions, against President E. J. C. Finch, of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, Secretary F. J. Morrisey, Leo Burns, Montreal, and Henri Fontaine, Quebec, for the amount of $1,353.86. The sum claimed largely arises from the three-game series played by the local team against Sons of Ireland of Quebec. The locals claim that these games, ordered as play-offs for the Provincial hockey championship, were really exhibition games, inasmuch as it is alleged that the Quebec team were not qualified to enter for the Provincial championship and the Allan Cup play-downs. The St. Francois club claim that all money collected by the Quebec Hockey Association from the games should be returned to the teams. Other items also are asked for.

The St. Francois Xavier team, after winning the Provincial championship, were debarred from going further in the Allan Cup games when they demurred at playing a sudden-death game at Ottawa with the "Gunners" of that city.

BASEBALL WORLD READY FOR PLAY

Teams Lined Up For Opener To-morrow Show Varying Possibilities.

CHICAGO, April 12 (Canadian Press).—The tumult and shouting that died last October begins again to-morrow in the major baseball world.

The captains and kings of swat have returned to their northern habitat after limbering up in southern and western training camps, bent on claiming their ancient heritage of pounding the pill around the meadows for hits that spell runs, that win games and eventually capture pennants.

The sixteen American and National League teams that enter the 1926 lists contain both known and unknown possibilities. The strength of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and Washington Senators, winners of the American title, is not denied in any quarter. The dopesters figure each in the finish for first place in their respective leagues. But several other strong contenders for the crowns are strong in the betting, and one or two dark horses may appear before October days. Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns loom as formidable contenders in the American race, while McGraw's New York Giants and Hornsby's St. Louis Cardinals are two teams at least that stand in the way of a repeat by the Pirates. In fact, McGraw says that only injuries can defeat him.

Along with the teams that apparently will have no look in on the money are several remodelled aggregations of youngsters fired with youth and enthusiasm whose possibilities can only be revealed in the heat of battle.

UMPIRES FIXED.

BELLEVILLE, April 12.—Central Ontario Baseball League at the semi-annual meeting held here on Saturday afternoon decided to carry on for the coming season with three teams in the league—Peterborough, Kingston and Belleville. The league still retains its territorial rights in Oshawa in case a city team should be formed there in the future.

The opening game of the season will be played on May 19 at Kingston with Peterborough as the visitors. Belleville will play at Peterborough on May 24, and Peterborough at Belleville on May 29. It was decided to complete a schedule to carry on to July 1 to see if the present plans will be successful, the schedule to be one game one week and two games the succeeding week. If the first half of the season is successful there wil be a further schedule set for the balance of the season.

Applications for players will be received by the Secretary-Treasurer up to May 1. The following board is to be in charge: M. P. Duff, E. Parsons, A. Kimmel and President W. L. Kennedy.

The Spalding ball was the choice of the league for the coming season.

The system of local umpires was adopted. A. Kay to officiate at Peterborough, W. Colling at Belleville, and Sullivan at Kingston. The umpire is to receive five dollars per game and to appoint a base umpire for the home game, the base umpire to be paid five dollars. Each team has power to name three men who can be used by the umpire-in-chief. This will eliminate much of the expense in umpiring.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

SENIOR BASEBALL AND WADING POOL.

The Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—Some exception has been taken to the attitude of the Council on these two propositions.

When I cast the deciding vote in favor of retaining control of the Jas. Stevenson Park by the Council I did so only after being assured that the senior ball team would be well looked after. I fully realize that their expenses will be higher this year, and I think I can safely promise them full sympathy and co-operation from the Council for the year 1926.

Re the wading pool, I do not think the executive of the Kiwanis fully realized that the initial cost of the pool and water and sewer connections, while quite an item, is but a small part of the cost. They are to be commended for their generosity, but the proper care and support would be a perpetual annual expense together with the absolute necessity of proper and adequate lavatories and dressing rooms at probable cost of about $2,000.

Then when completed, how many mothers would care to place their little children in the pool with no running water, even were it flushed out every day instead of once or twice a week as suggested.

An idea has been suggested to me that the ideal place for a wading pool would be at Jackson Park, where with a little expenditure on a small dam and some walks along the bank that a beautiful artificial lake could readily be made with running water and no extra caretaker or future expense.

FIND PROFESSOR DEAD IN OFFICE

Louis Herdt, Electrical Engineer, Killed By Revolver Shot.

MONTREAL, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Professor Louis Anthyme Herdt, D.S.C., and F.R.S.C., Macdonald, professor of electrical engineering at McGill University, and vice-president of the Montreal Tramways Commission, was found dead in his office in the McGill Engineering Building with a bullet wound in his head yesterday afternoon.

A revolver was found beside him, and examination showed that the bullet had gone through his brain. The discovery was made by one of the watchmen of the building.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. Derome of the coroner's court, and showed that the bullet had been fired at close quarters, there being powder marks on one of the temples. Professor Herdt had been in ill health for over a year.

Professor Herdt, who was an electrical and consulting engineer, was born in Trouville, France, in 1872. He came to Canada with his family while still young.

NEW ACADEMY TO BE BUILT

J. J. Duffus Plans Splendid Extension—To Be Sports Centre.

CONTRACT LET

J. J. Duffus has let a contract for the building of a new fire proof story on his present garage. The storey will be built of concrete, brick and steel, with a concrete fire proof roof.

The reasons for building this new story are that with the reduction in price of the new model Ford cars, they have become extremely attractive, and have had a very unexpected and much increased sale; also the increased demand for high class service, and the fact that they have installed a complete equipment for a new lacquer finish on cars has overcrowed the paint shop and service department; likewise the demand for overhauling and rebuilding storage batteries has outgrown their present space, which has made it necessary for the transfer of the used car department into the upper storey. A concrete ramp is being constructed at the present time so that the cars may be driven up and down without the use of an elevator.

The space not required for the carrying on of the automobile business will be fitted and equipped as a high class recreation academy. Ten or twelve of the very best bowling alleys that money can buy will be installed, with every facility for comfort and convenience. There will also be a rest room, a commodious and completely equipped ladies' parlour, check rooms, a refreshment booth, and everything necessary to take care of every detail in connection with healthful recreation for the citizens of Peterborough.

Used Car Showroom.

Seventy feet of the southern end of the new story will provide a commodious, clean and well lighted show room for used cars, which will not only be a great aid to the purchasers of used cars, but will relieve the congestion on the ground floor of the present building to such an extent that it will provide so much additional space for storage that it will be a great accommodation for customers.

This new story will be designed and built with special consideration for the comfort and convenience of lady patrons. Check room, refreshment Booth, tea room, assembly room for the convening of meetings, all of which will be conducted under ideal conditions and management.

Peterboro's new Recreation Academy will supply home environment and the luxuries of a private club at next-to-nothing expense and prove to be a solution and means of pure, clean, indoor sport for boys and girls, men and women.

When this new Recreation Academy is opened they will find equipment with the desire of the most fastidious taste the marvel of refinement, home like and dignified, the acme of cleanliness and sanitation with every detail in connection with decorations, furnishings and lighting fixtures tastefully thought out.

Mr. Duffus, always a strong supporter of every good public cause, has handed over the official opening of this new high-class Recreation Academy to the Peterborough Health Association, and elaborate arrangements are being made for the entertainment of patrons and guests, afternoon and evening, the proceeds of which event will be used to assist the charitable work of this splendid organization.

Ten of the highest class tournament bowling alleys which can be used for individual or club bowling, will be an outstanding feature. These have been purchased and are being installed by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of Canada, Ltd., who rank foremost in the production and installation of high class alleys.

Henceforth this new and substantial business block will be known as the Duffus Building and operated under the new firm name of J. J. Duffus Ltd."

The contract for the new addition to the Duffus building has been let to H. T. Hickey, one of Peterboro's well known builders and contractors, who built the present building seven years ago, and the work has already begun, and it is anticipated that the interior will be completed by June 1st.

HELPFUL HINTS BY BOWLING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

ABE MITCHELL—HIT SMARTLY WITH MASHIE.

There is no real transfer of weight from the right to the left foot, as in the tee shot; therefore there is little need to stand far from the ball. By hitting down on the ball a trifle the club-head is almost sure to go forward straight after it in its line of flight.

Take the club up quietly and smoothly, having decided how hard to hit, then come down smartly, just as you would hit a nail with a light hammer. Do not be afraid to hit the ball and a bit of the turf at the same moment, but avoid digging down. Do not try to scoop the ball; the loft on the mashie will cause it to rise off the ground.

Many players nowadays take a niblick and hit the ball into the air, but they would be a good deal safer with the mashie if only their would put in a little practice with this club.

Again, keep the feet on the ground. Many players lift the right heel before the club-head has reached the ball. This action shows that they are swinging the body with the club. That is unnecessary.

Stand easily and steadily and make the arms do the work, with just a little pivoting with the hips and shoulders.

FIVE AIRMEN DEAD TWO PLANES CRASH

Worst Accident To British Air Force Since the War.

LONDON, April 12.—The worst accident to the British Air Force since the end of the war occurred at Henlow Aerodrome in Bedfordshire Saturday when five airmen lost their lives following a collision at a height of 300 feet between two airplanes, which afterward fell to the ground in flames. Those killed were two officers and three aircraft men.

Flying Officer Charles Lacey, with the three men, were flying a Vickers Vimy machine above the aerodrome dropping dummy parachutes and descending to pick up another man to make a "live drop" in a parachute when the collision occurred.

A small machine piloted by Flying Officer William Scott, who had taken off from the aerodrome, struck the larger machine underneath. Both machines fell and flames leaped up two hundred feet from their burst petroleum tanks. It took a fire brigade half an hour to subdue them.

The machines were completely destroyed and the bodies of the airmen were unrecognizable.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

JOHN HYAMS AND LEILA McINTYRE

Absolute faith in the cast quality of "No, No, Nanette" the H. H. Frazee musical comedy, which will be the very special attraction at the Grand Opera House next Wednesday is sufficiently vouched for as the featured players in this round-the-world sensation are no less favorites than John Hyams and Leila McIntyre who must be pleasantly remembered by theatre-goers from coast to coast, owing to having starred in such pronounced successes as "Bright Eyes", "Girl of My Dreams", "My Home Town Girl", "When Love is Young", "May Bloom", "Honey-suckle" and several other musical comedies of more than ordinary distinction.

The names of Hyams and McIntyre have also been so conspicuously associated with the Keith Big Time Circuit, that they are familiar to millions of high class vaudeville patrons as headliners of the first rank, and as performers of unusual versatility and most delightful contributors to wholesome, functious fun. It is, therefore, not surprising that a theatrical producer of Mr. Frazee's exalted reputation should engage the services of these splendid artists to further enhance the value of a production like "No, No, Nanette" which may rightfully lay claim to being the greatest musical comedy success of the past decade, and one whose song hits encircle the earth.

In "No, No, Nanette" Hyams and McIntyre are reported to be placed in position of real advantage, for the display of their combined talents, by appearing in the leading roles around whom revolve continuous laughter for it should be borne in mind that "No, No, Nanette" possesses a well-defined plot, and an extremely farcical one, at that, while the musical and dancing numbers by a company of 50, are never allowed to disturb a story, fraught with amusing incidents.

While "No, No, Nanette" has impressed American theatre-goers with its wholly satisfying entertainment in such an emphatic manner as rarely marks an overwhelming success of absolute merit, London and Australia have taken it to their hearts with keenest delight. "I Want To Be Happy" and "Tea for Two" have found their gladsome way to the homes as well as in all private and public places of amusement as no other songs hits have done for ages.

CHARLEY'S AUNT

Full of laughs as always, the evergreen comedy "Charley's Aunt" proved just as amusing as ever as presented at the Grand Opera House Saturday by a well-balanced company, headed by Jay Holly. Here is an attraction that never grows stale; millions have roared at the convulsing mix-ups into which Charley and his pals are involved soon after the curtain first goes up, and the probabilities are that millions more will have the same experience. Saturday's audience showed by their almost continuous laughter that the comedy of the production has lost not an ounce of its punch.

Although handicapped by the fact that the three acts of the farce were played in an out-of-doors setting instead of the investiture called for by the book, the company seen here Saturday gave a capital performance. Jay Holly, who played the title role in a delightfully breezy fashion, has not hesitated to substitute more modern lines for those of the author at many points in the action, and while these liberties grated a little on the ears of those who remembered Etienne Giradot and other famous "Charley's Aunts" the audience as a whole seemed to find them most entertaining. Mr. Holly also interjected some new business that was productive of much amusement. Able assistance was given by Frank Camp as Jack Chesney and Edward Seabrook as Charley Wykham, while Jerome Kennedy was excellent as Sir Francis Chesney, and Thomas McErnerny was responsible for many a laugh as Stephen Spettigue. The women members of the company were handsomely gowned and clever in their parts, with Edith Spencer particularly prominent by her effective presentation of the part of the real Aunt Donna Lucia.

AT THE REGENT

FORMER EUROPEAN MILITARY ATTACHE MAKES MOVIE EPIC.

Director Erich Von Stroheim Has Lived in Atmosphere shown in "The Merry Widow" — Made Adaptation in Exile.

Immediately upon signing with the Metro-Golywyn-Mayer Studio to direct "The Merry Widow," which is at the Regent Theatre to-night, Erich Von Stroheim secluded himself "somewhere in Southern California" to write the adaptation and continuity of the film version of the famous stage play. Von Stroheim left town, giving no address, with co-adapter and stenarist Benjamin Glazer, his assistant, Edward Sowders, two stenographers and a mass of research data.

In transposing "The Merry Widow" to screen material, Von Stroheim dealt with familiar subjects. The noted continental director has lived in the courts of Europe and shortly before he came to this country he was a military attache at Cettinje, the capital of Montenegro, the locale of the first part of the tale. The rest of the story of the opera transpires in Paris.

He is familiar with the gay life of the continent, as exemplified by "The Merry Widow." All the glamour, romance and picturesqueness of the original has been augmented with the marvelous von Stroheim touch, a recognized ability to depict the racy flavor, brilliancy and smart splendor of continental life among the gayest sets. Von Stroheim has taken the charming and sparkling romance of the original "The Merry Widow" and instilled it with increased dramatic power.

Erich von Stroheim directed "The Merry Widow," using his own and Benjamin Glazer's adaptation of the famous play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar, which was presented on the stage by Henry W. Savage.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributed the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, biliousness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or seidlitz are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

She had been an invalid for the last three years, which compelled her to relinquish many of the objects which were very dear to her and in which she took a very active interest. She was until last year a life-long and faithful member of St. Paul's Church and of many of the societies connected with it, and by her uniform kindness and consideration for others, endeared herself to a large circle of riends. During her long and useful life she "loved mercy, did justly, and walked humbly with her God,"and was a guide and inspiration to all who knew her.

She was interested in the establishment of the Barnado Home and for many years took an active interest in the Peterborough Protestant Home, having had the honor of laying the corner-stone of the present building. The Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Children's Aid Society, The Red Cross Society and in fact every effort designed for the betterment of humanity found in Mrs. Hazlitt a most willing and practical helper. About a year ago Mrs. Hazlitt became a member of Knox United Church, feeling that Union was desirable in the advancement of the Kingdom of God.

Her Christian character shone in the home, where she was greatly loved and was ever ready to fulfil the Apostolic injunction "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers." She leaves to mourn her loss her four sisters, Mrs. William Walsh, Mrs. William Davidson, and the Misses Charlotte and Martha Dickson, and a large number of nieces and nephews.

MORALE OF THE OVERSEAS ARMY IS NEEDED HERE

Capt. Best Deprecates Pessimism and Fault Finding Spirit Abroad.

REFERS TO VIMY.

Rotary Speaker Sorry Parents Should Have To Read Stories of Mistakes.

That he had read recent newspaper articles dealing with the battle of Vimy Ridge with some dissatisfaction, was a significant statement in an eloquent address to the Peterboro Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day by Capt. Tom Best. The speaker did not develop this point at any great length, although he declared that he regretted having to read stories of mistakes by British generals, and regretted very much that the parents of Canadian soldiers who were killed overseas had to read them.

Captain Best's address was a stirring plea for Canadians at home to show the morale, co-operation and spirit of sacrifice of the Canadian forces overseas. "Morale won Vimy Ridge," declared the speaker, who pointed out that if it had not been for the morale of the men who held the line in the early days of the war, there would never have been any third or fourth year. He sketched the handicap under which those forces had to carry on with one man to every ten yards of line as compared with the enemy's ten men per yard, with artillery that was a joke in those days as contrasted with the German artillery, and with the enemy holding the dominating positions, comfortable and dry while the British and Canadian forces were deep in mud and water. Only the morale of the men who refused to grow downhearted in the face of these difficulties, saved the day and made later triumps possible.

The speaker pleaded for Canadians at home to show the same spirit. Everywhere he found an increasing chorus of knocking and criticism. Business was bad, towns were dead, governments were leaderless and inefficient, according to this current of criticism, and Captain Best stressed the harm that was done by this criticism and by the failure of Canadians to have confidence in themselves. As one who had travelled Canada from coast to coast, and knew the country as well, he warned his hearers that such criticism, and the failure of Canadians to co-operate, were paving the way for a more dangerous enemy than the Canadian army had to face overseas. They made fertile ground for Bolsheviki seed, and Captain Best pointed out that there was a very real danger from this source.

The speaker was introduced by Rev Dr. Rose of Murray street Baptist church, who paid a tribute to Captain Best for the work he has done throughout Canada.

Rev. Canon F. J. Sowers, of Toronto, who was one of to-day's guests, briefly addressed the club at the conclusion of Captain Best's message.

President C. H. Rogers presided to-day and the attendance was above the average. Incidentally it was announced that for the past three months the attendance had averaged 87 per cent.

Representative Citizens Meet On Saturday

Discuss the New Hockey Arena—Public Meeting Friday Night.

A very representative meeting of business men and manufacturing heads was held in the Chamber of Commerce Saturday night for the purpose of discussing the proposed new Skating and Hockey Arena.

Col. C. H. Ackerman was in the chair, and gave figures as to cost and reported optimistically as to the support the proposition would receive in different quarters when it was officially launched.

The real purpose of the meeting was to arrange for a public meeting to be called on Friday night following the banquet, when the whole matter will be placed before the citizens.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Helen Payne:
When we see the precious blossom
That we tendered with such care,
Rudely taken from our bosom,
How our hearts almost despair!

Round the little grave we linger,
Till the setting sun is low,
Feeling all our hopes have perished
With the flower we cherished so.

—Father and Mother.

IN MEMORIAM

DEGEN.—In Loving Memory of our dear brother, William Ellwood Degen, who passed away one year ago today, April 12, 1925.

Dear Willie we have missed you
More and more each day,
And the world and home seems sadder
Since the day you passed away.
Friends may think we have forgotten you
When they see our pleasant smile,
But they do not know the sorrow
That the smile hides all the while.
You are gone, but not forgotten,
Tears can never ease the pain
In the hearts of those who loved you,
Till the day we meet again.
Dearest Willie gone for ever
From a world of sin and woe;
Ties that bind us all did sever,
Calm and peaceful didst thou go.

—Sadly missed by Brothers and Sister.

Father and Mother, I must leave you;
Leave, yes leave you all alone;
But my Blessed Saviour calls me,
Calls me to a heavenly home.

—Sadly missed by Father and Mother.

CANADIAN LABOR AND BUSINESS HARD HIT BY PRISON-MADE GOODS SMUGGLED FROM UNITED STATES

Drastic Measures Urged to Shut Out Garments, Brooms and Binder Twine.

LABOR IS CHEAP

Diseased Prisoners in U. S. Jails Make Garments That Reach Canada.

OTTAWA, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Prison-made goods, denied legitimate sale in Canada, are being smuggled from the United States to compete unfairly with free labor in Canada and send Canadian businessmen to the bankruptcy courts, asserted R. P. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association at Monday's sitting of the Customs probe.

Completing the second month of its investigation into the conduct of the Canadian Department of Customs, a special committee of the House of Commons turned its attention yesterday to commercial smuggling after several weeks devoted to the activities of auto bandits, rum runners, and drug wholesalers. Mr. Sparks was called to the stand. The now famous black shirt, purchased from an Ottawa retailer, and said to be prison made in the United States, was the sole topic of discussion at Monday's brief sitting of the committee.

No evidence was adduced to prove that it was really prison-made, and Chairman Paul Mercier expressed the opinion that the mere fact that it bore the label of a firm which used prison labor in some of its factories did not prove anything. Mr. Sparks said that "the interlocking of fifteen reliance firms in the United States makes it impossible to say who is smuggling these goods into Canada," but he was certain that they were being smuggled, and broadly hinted that the report of the committee's auditors, when it is published, will reveal that enormous quantities of prison-made goods are coming into Canada, chiefly through the port of Rock Island, Que. Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, said that Mr. Sparks' evidence was strong enough to justify an embargo on all goods made by the Reliance Companies.

Not Disinfected.

Mr. Sparks was unsparing in his denunciation of prison-made goods. They were made by people, white and black, he said, who were recruited from the most unfortunate ranks of society. They were used to wipe brows, mouths and eyes of people who might be suffering from the worst communicable diseases. The goods were sent straight to the wearer without being disinfected. The letting of prison labor contracts was the chief source of political campaign funds in several of the United States, he asserted, and public men were corrupted thereby. On the other hand, capital and labor in that country were anxious to limit the sale of such goods in their own country, and were not willing to co-operate with Canadian businessmen in keeping them out of Canada.

Draft Recommendations.

For these reasons more drastic measures than a mere prohibition would have to be employed to keep prison-made apparel, brooms, whisks and binder twine out of Canada. Mr. Sparks said that a special conference of business men, now assembled in Ottawa, will prepare its recommendations to that end and submit them to the Customs Committee and to the Minister of Customs this week.

Bought In Ottawa.

Thos. McKenzie, formerly a traveller for the Peerless Overall Company of Rock Island, Que., testified to purchasing the black shirt at the Davies dry goods store in Ottawa, and afterwards gave it to R. P. Sparks of the Merchants' Protective Association. The shirt bore a manufacturer's label with the name of the Reliance Manufacturing Company of Chicago.

Mr. Sparks then took the stand, quoting the report of the United States Department of Labor (January, 1925). Mr. Sparks said that nearly 14,000,000 work shirts alone were produced in state prison in-

NOW, HONESTLY—

The trouble with most of us is, that we're so blamed human that it gets our untamed goat, when people gather right in the middle of the sidewalk to gossip.

No one has ever given a satisfactory answer as to why they do it. 'Twould be a simple thing to walk over to the curb, or up to a building side—out of the way. But that's the place they leave for you and I and the other fellow to go.

What do they talk about? Oh, about a half hour. Just long enough to provoke a flock of pedestrians.

And there is only one thing we can do—walk around!

TO MAKE CANADA INDEPENDENT OF AMERICAN COAL

Major Hume Cronyn Makes Suggestion in Speech at Montreal.

COKING PLANTS.

Subsidies For Canadian Coal Sold in Central Provinces.

MONTREAL, April 13 (Canadian Press)—Two suggestions for enabling Canada to become independent of the United States for coal supplies, and to bring about a rescue from the perilous coal situation in Nova Scotia were submitted by Major Hume Cronyn, K.C., former M.P. of London, Ont., at last night's meeting of the Young Men's Club here.

Mr. Cronyn was a member of the Duncan commission appointed to investigate Nova Scotia coal conditions.

The establishment of coking plants in Montreal and other large central cities for the converting of Nova Scotia slack into domestic coal was the first suggestion of Major Cronyn. The other was that the Federal Government grant a subsidy for each ton of Nova Scotia coal sold to Montreal and points west, and for each ton of Alberta coal sold east of Winnipeg.

Opposition was voiced against the raising of the Canadian tariff against American coals and against the reduction of transportation rates for the passage of coal east and west.

NEW GOLD FIELD NEAR RED LAKE

New Rush Started on Report of Find at Woman River.

FOOD SHORTAGE.

TORONTO, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Reports of gold discoveries to the east of Red Lake were strengthened to-day by John Jones, Toronto prospector, who declared that substantial gold deposits have been found at Woman River, which is just south of Trout Lake, and 60 miles east of Pine Ridge, a point on the trail from Hudson to Red Lake. Mr. Jones, who has just returned from the Red Lake district, said another gold rush was on to the Woman River district.

Tom Pow, another Toronto prospector, had found gold at Woman River on directions from an Indian, Mr. Jones said.

Mr. Jones said that food at Red Lake camp at present was scarce and prices high, and warned anyone contemplating going to Red Lake that proper equipment, whether for winter or summer weather, was essential. He looks for a big rush into Red Lake and eastwards within a few weeks.

"You can't buy flour most of the time at Red Lake camp," Mr. Jones said. "When I left Red Lake flour was selling at $18 a hundred pounds and sugar at $35 a hundred. Bacon was bringing $2.50 a pound, and I have seen salt pork sold at 80 cents a pound.

Farmers Seeding Monday At Several Points In West

WINNIPEG, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Seeding was in progress Monday at several points throughout the Prairie Provinces, according to reports received by the railway companies. The land generally is stated to be in good condition and with the frost sufficiently out of the ground, work is expected to become general within a week.

Farmers were seeding yesterday in parts of Manitoba and south-eastern Saskatchewan.

DARING THIEF ROBS REGISTER

Grabs Handful of Bills From Open Till in Cafe.

AT BUSY TIME.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 13 (Canadian Press) — The Edmonton Cafe, Edmonton St., was the scene of a daring hold up during a busy hour last night. A lone bandit walked up to the cash counter where the wife of the proprietor was working, ordered a package of cigarettes and paid for them. As soon as the woman opened the cash register he flashed a revolver, warned her to stand still, reached across the counter, and grabbed a handful of bills from the till. Before anyone in the cafe realized what had happened he had ran out the door and escaped.

Fried Egg King Takes Dare To Eat 96 Eggs In An Hour

KEMPTVILLE, N.S., April 13 (Canadian Press). — James McAskill, "fried eggs king," has accepted the challenge of a Wolfeville "consumer" to an egg-eating contest to be held in that town in the near future. Each contestant will undertake to consume eight dozen eggs in an hour and a half. Last week, James, who hails from Cape Breton, stowed away forty fried eggs in an hour after eating a substantial supper, not to mention a square breakfast and lunch.

CRITICISM OF LEAGUE MADE

Soviet Letter Expresses Doubt of Sincerity of Conference.

WON'T PARTICIPATE.

GENEVA, April 13 (Canadian Press).—The League of Nations secretariat to-day made public a letter from Foreign Minister Tchitcherin of Soviet Russia declining to participate in the sessions of the preparatory disarmament committee opening here on May 15.

The letter bristles with criticism of the League, accuses the Swiss Government of facilitating the escape of the man who assassinated Soviet Envoy Vorovsky at Lausanne in 1923, and says the Moscow Government had no confidence in Switzerland's assurances that the Soviet delegates would be protected on the present occasion.

M. Tchitcherin declares the attitude of those having charge of the League's policy has finally convinced the Soviet Government of lack of sincerity in the initiative taken by the League and the incapacity and unfitness of that body to carry through so important a task as the convocation of universal disarmament conference. In conclusion he hopes that the League in future will only trouble itself to invite the Soviet Government to conferences in which those who direct the League's policy genuinely desire to participate.

Commander Nobile said the flight to Oslo would take about 15 hours. PAPER COMPANY PLANNING MILL ON THE OTTAWA

BUY TIMBER LIMITS

Kipawa Plant Producing 50 Per Cent. of Rayon Raw Material.

NEW YORK, April 13. — Canadian Press. — International Paper Co. reports for the year ended December 31, 1925, net earnings of $1,571,281, available for common dividends after depreciation, interest, taxes, preferred dividends and including reduction of contingency reserves set up at the end of 1924 against the newsprint price decline which the management foresaw was inevitable during 1925, it was announced at the head office here on Monday.

Important points in President A. R. Graustein's remarks included the first announcement that a new newsprint mill is contemplated to be built on the Quinze (upper Ottawa) river, some time in next 4 years; announcement that the company has under option sufficient woodlands to assure its Bastrop, La., kraft mill a supply of raw material for all time; a statement that the policy of balancing mill construction with acquisition of timber limits in Canada, will assure the company's mills there a permanent supply of wood, and a statement that the Kipawa bleached sulphite mill is now producing 50 per cent of all this material used in the world for the manufacture of rayon, or artificial silk.

No mention is made of the reported purchase of Hull Electric Railway Company.

Output Increased.

President Graustein said in part: "Total production of paper during 1925 aggregated 503,702 tons against 434,288 tons in 1924. Increase is due in part to the acquisition during the year of the Ticonderago, N. Y., and Bastrop, La., mills. The price of newsprint was reduced to $70 a ton on January 1, 1925, remaining at that price over the year. On Jan. 1, 1926, it was further reduced to the present figure of $65 a ton. This reduction should be offset at least in part by increased production and increased profits from other products.

"With the completion of doubling the capacity of the Three Rivers mill, and the construction of a new mill on the Gatineau River in Quebec, the company will have a daily output of about 1200 tons of low cost newsprint in Canada. The Kipawa bleached sulphite mill at Temiskaming, Que., has been increased from 170 to 250 tons daily capacity, and this is estimated to be 50 per cent of all the pulp used in the world for the manufacture of rayon or artificial silk.

Riordon Purchase.

"The acquisition of the Riordon properties was successfully consummated in April, 1925, and the results of their operation have to date equalled expectations.

"The Bastrop sulphite (kraft) pulp and paper mill, which was acquired in July, 1925, has proved to be a profitable investment. Although at present operating on purchased wood the company has taken an option on a tract of woodland which if the investigation under way proves up, will assure the enlarged mill at reasonable cost of a permanent supply of raw material from its own lands. This mill is located at Bastrop, La., in the natural gas belt.

"The company has also acquired approximately 376 square miles of crown timber limits on the Gaspe Peninsula and 2000 square miles on the Upper Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers in Quebec. The latter will permit the enlargement of both the Kipawa and Gatineau mills and will reinforce the available supply for the newsprint mill which the company contemplates building on the Quinze (Upper Ottawa) sometime during the next four years. These acquisitions reflect the policy of balancing mill construction with accurate timber reserves so that the company's mill properties will be assured of permanence."

WOMEN BESIEGE SENATORS WITH DRY LAW PLEAS

Claim to Represent Home, School and Church of U. S. A.

SAY HOMES BETTER

Appeal for Strengthening, Not Relaxing, of Volstead Act.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (Canadian Press)—An avalanche of protests against liberalization of the Volstead Act yesterday engulfed the Senate liquor hearing committee.

It was rolled up by some three score of women, most of them officials of church, school and women's organizations, who are here for the meeting of the woman's national law enforcement conference.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Beverly, Mass., chairman of the conference, struck the keynote in her opening statement.

"We represent here today not only organizations of women," she said, "but, as a whole, we represent the home, the school, the church and we stand firmly for no amendment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"We stand for no modification of the Volstead Act, but rather a strengthening. We stand for strict law enforcement, with the removal of all men who do not strictly enforce the law."

With one-minute speeches they set forth their arguments that prohibition had had these results:

In New York school children being better clothed.

Men saving their money.

Women's conditions bettered in the home.

The women said they bore no figures or statistics, but only a message from the women of the nation against any modification and for better enforcement. Announcement was made than an organized campaign of millions of women is being started to bolster prohibition.

Look to States

Mrs. E. H. Silverthorne, who said she represented 5,000,000 members of the women's foreign mission board, told the committee that "all the world is looking to America on this great question of prohibition."

"They are weighing and judging what America is doing," she added.

Chairman Reed, said that many of the countries had not been able to suppress their opium traffic.

"No, but they are working at it just as we are working at many great problems in the United States," Mrs. Silverthorne answered.

Conditions Better

Lieutenant-Colonel Martha Hamon, of the Salvation Army, New York, said there had been many complaints to her organization, about bootlegging, but that children going to school in New York wore better shoes and stockings since prohibition.

Less cases of intoxication are being handled by her organization since prohibition, she said.

"Don't you know that liquor can be obtained in thousands of places in New York city?" Reed asked.

"Well, they tell me there has been some prohibition," she replied.

W.C.T.U. Case

Mrs. Nell Burger, St. Louis, W.C.T.U., said her organization's position would be presented later.

"We are mobilizing half a million women for law observance," she said. "We succeeded in adopting prohibition because we educated the public schools and church people to the fact that liquor is an alcoholic poison. We still affirm that truth. "Prohibition is a spiritual blessing that replaced the sorrow, adversity and want of the saloon."

Crimeless for a Day

Mrs. Burger said that from 6 a.m. April 7, to 6 a.m., April 8, there had not been a single arrest in St. Louis, according to newspapers.

"And it has been said St. Louis is a wide open town—and it is very largely," she said.

"That was such startling news that it was published all over the country?" Reed, the wet Missourian said.

"Was it because all the police were off duty or because of a moral wave over the city?"

"I hope it was a moral wave."

"But you don't mean to say that is the general situation in St. Louis" Reed persisted. "Don't you know crime has been so prevalent in St. Louis as to shock the moral conscience o the better class of people?"

"Yes, that is true," she replied.

"But no more so than in other cities?" he insisted.

"I believe not," she admitted.

"They must have been driving automobiles better in St. Louis that day? Reed interposed.

"Perhaps," Mrs. Burger said.

"How many more prohibition agents do you need in St. Louis to enforce the law?" asked the senator.

"I haven't given that sufficient thought to answer. We need a large increase. I believe there are only 32 now," she answered.

30 Ounces Of Clothing For English Women In Fashion

LONDON, April 13 (Canadian Press).—A maximum of 30 ounces of clothing is what English women will be permitted to wear this summer, if they follow the edicts of fashion experts who are now showing styles at the annual fashion exhibition. The 30 ounces will be apportioned as follows: Seven ounces for a frock; six ounces for underclothing; one ounce for stockings, and 16/or less ounces for shoes.

Short skirts still hold the style and it is predicted that rolled stockings with bare knees will be the vogue.

PEOPLE RESENT 51 MARRYING 15

Investigation, Summons, Threats — All Menace "Young Married Couple."

MAYBE PERJURY.

NEW YORK, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Edward W. Browning, 51-year-old real estate operator, and his 15-year-old bride of three days were back again to-day in Coldspring, New York, the scene of their marriage, with trouble from a new quarter threatening their honeymoon. Special District Attorney Ryder of Putnam County has announced that an investigation will be started to learn whether they violated the county's laws requiring six months' residence before obtaining a marriage license. The young bride already is under summons of the children's court here in an action started by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, seeking to have her removed from the custody of her mother, as "an unfit guardian."

Mr. Ryder said that perjury charges would be possible if it was found that Mrs. Browning swore to six months' residence in the county.

PREMIER OF ITALY RECEIVES HOMAGE

Mussolini Is Much Impressed By Sight of Ancient City.

TRIPOLI, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Premier Mussolini of Italy yesterday moved over the territory conquered by ancient Rome, to receive, on behalf of King Victor Emmanuel, homage and allegiance of the wild tribes of this North African district. By motor car the Duce travelled rapidly from village to village, watching with great interest the barbaric dances of the religious fakirs, superb horsemanship of famous Berber riders and Libyan women fighting for the privilege of kissing his Italian hand.

In the afternoon he visited the ruins of the ancient Roman city of Sabra Tha, recently excavated. As he examined the temples and the statutes, he exclaimed, "Beautiful, beautiful." Then he sat for several minutes with folded arms and bent brows among the scattered remains of the fourth century amphitheatre.

Some one said to him, "Some day your statue will be erected in Africa." Absently he replied, "I am not in favor of that."

PAYMENT TO CANADA UNDER DAWES PLAN

482,906 Pounds Sterling Received From Germany.

OTTAWA, April 13. — Canada has received 482,906 pounds sterling on account of German reparations under the Dawes plan, it was shown in questions answered in the House of Commons yesterday. Canada is to receive 4.35 per cent. of the amount received by the United Kingdom. The German reparation total is set at 132 millard gold marks, of which the United Kingdom is to get 22 per cent.

The secretary of state's department in answering the questions asked says that the Dawes plan does not provide the amount to be paid nor the length of time over which it is to be paid. Money received by Canada has been paid into the consolidated revenue fund.

Budget on Thursday.

At the opening of the house Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the official Conservative opposition, enquired when the budget would be presented to the House.

"I am glad my honorable friend asked the question," replied Hon. James Robb, minister of finance. "On Thursday next I expect that the proper notice will be given whereby the government will be able to present its budget."

Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of railways, undertook to reply to a question regarding the trial trip of the steamship "Regina." "It is our intention," he said, "to make a test as to the possibilities fo return voyages on the Regina."

NO DISSENTING VOICE HEARD AS COMMONS ADOPTS RESOLUTION ON MARITIME RIGHTS AND RATES

Good Faith Should Be Kept Says Motion By W. A. Black.

LONG SITTING.

Easterners Say Situation is Volcano-Like in Possibilities.

OTTAWA, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Without a dissenting voice, the House of Commons early this morning adopted the Maritime Rights resolution moved by W. A. Black, Conservative of Halifax.

The motion reads:

"That in the opinion of this House good faith should be kept with the Maritime Provinces and other interested parts of the Dominion in regard to the recorded assurances and undertakings of governments and parliament and agreements set out in statutes of the Dominion respecting the routing of Canadian trade over Canadian territory and through Canadian ports, and that freight rates over the Intercolonial Railway be adjusted in accordance with the understanding of Confederation."

Premier King favored the motion. He hoped it would be carried unanimously. Every member, he said, wished that good faith would be kept with the Maritimes. Any undertaking entered into at the time of Confederation should be carried out. But, Mr. King argued, there must be an agreement upon the specific undertakings in the Confederation agreement which were not being carried out.

House Could Decide

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, charged that the only purpose of the appointment of the Maritime Rights Commission was to enable the government "Not to decide for a while yet." What limitation, he asked, was there on the government that it could not decide anything? Mr. Meighen said there could be no question as to the terms of Confederation. There might be some difference of opinion as to the implication terms, but surely the members of the Canadian House of Commons were as able to judge those implications as any living being. Mr. Meighen argued that the question of Maritime rights was mainly one of transportation and of tariff adjustment.

The debate occupied almost the whole sitting of the house. Mr. Black pressed that prompt and definite action was needed in the matter of Maritime rights.

It was the duty of the government to deal with the matter and at the present session. The people of the Maritimes must not be turned side even by the appointment of a Royal Commission.

Hon. E. M. MacDonald, Minister of Defence, referring to the Maritime Rights Commission, held that the country wanted some responsible body to determine the truth or otherwise of the allegations made in regard to conditions in the Maritimes. Col. Cantley, Conservative of Pictou, declared that failure to meet the demands of Nova Scotia would make of it another Ireland. G. T. MacNutt, Conservative of Colchester, did not believe there were a great number of secessionists in the Maritimes, but added, "We are standing upon a volcano in that province, which is liable to go into eruption at any time."

RIFF ARMISTICE REPORTED WITH PEACE IN SIGHT

Franco-Spanish Terms Demand Abd-El-Krim Leave the Riff.

MEET THIS WEEK

Leaders of Tribes Offered Economic and Financial Advantages.

PARIS, April 13. — (Canadian Press).—What is practically an armistice along the Riff front, according to the latest news from Morocco, gives strength to the hope of peace as the delegates representing France, Spain and the tribesmen are moving towards Oudjda to open negotiations.

General Simon left Paris last evening and will be on the ground about the middle of the week. Other delegates, who leave today, going by way of Madrid, will arrive toward the end of the week. The Riff delegates are expected to be somewhat behind the representatives of the powers, as they lack rapid means of transportation. However, the hope is expressed in official circles that contact with Adb-El-Krim's delegates and the Caids of the Riff tribes may be realized very soon.

French Conditions.

Premier Briand, M. Painleve, the war minister, and M. Steeg, resident general of Morocco, had another conference on the subject Monday and decided upon final instructions to the French delegation, which may be summarized as follows:

Abd-El-Krim must leave the Riff, at least for a certain time; the rebellious tribes must be disarmed and prisoners must be exchanged at once. On these terms the French and Spanish will offer the tribes separately such economic and financial advantages as will make peace far more attractive than any possibilities of booty from continuation of the war.

The question of autonomy for the Riff has dropped out of sight; in its place is a proposal to guarantee each tribe its autonomy under authority of the sultan and under control of Spain. The peace policy of the protecting powers appears to be a combined manoeuver of surrounding Adb-El-Krim, while undermining him. The enveloping operation which began last fall succeeded in detaching a number of tribes.

Attrition Methods.

The invitation to the tribes to send their own delegates to Oudja has made further inroads in the pretender's supporters. The caid of a tribe which was attacked in the region of Taza last week has since asked for an opportunity to make his submission to France.

This success in wearing down Adb-El-Krim's strength is taken as accounting or the harshness of the terms, of which the Riffian leader already was aware. Certain apprehension was expressed in political circles when the conditions were announced, however, on the theory that Krim could accept them only if absolutely down and out.

Domicile For "Ab".

The protecting powers are quite read to provide a comfortable residence for him, and it is thought that when those tribes who constituted the bulk of his force are treating separately with the French and Spanish he will come to understand that it is far better to follow the example of the former sultan and accept an easy life outside the Riff than take the chance of being crushed.

Premier Briand saw Senor Olivan, the Spanish delegate, last evening, together with Count Quinones De Leon, the Spanish ambassador, after which it was announced that Spain and France were in complete accord as to the negotiations at Oujda.

MEDERIC MARTIN MONTREAL MAYOR

Re-elected Monday After Absence From City Hall.

MONTREAL, April 13 Canadian Press).—Hon. Mederic Martin, a former mayor of Montreal, was re-elected to that office in Monday's civic elections. He defeated J. V. Desaulniers, a former alderman, and J. A. Baillageon, a local contractor. With only 218 outlying polls to hear from, Martin had polled 42,140 votes; Desaulniers 24,198, and Baillargeon 11,467.

Election Hoax

A novel electioneering trick, or else a pointless hoax was pulled off here today when unemployed men in this city responded to an advertisement offering 45 cents an hour to snow shovellers. When the men presented themselves to the address mentioned in the advertisement they discovered the place to be a polling booth.

Lists Seized

Outside of the early morning excitement when voting lists were seized by armed men and the list taken away and returned later, and the arrests of 23 persons for alleged impersonation, the police had no trouble in connection with the civic elections.

SPANISH FLYER STILL MISSING

Became Separated From His Comrades Over the Syrian Desert.

SCOURING COUNTRY.

BEIRUT, Syria, April 13.—(Canadian Press.)— The Syrian desert appears to have swallowed up Captain Estevez, Spanish aviator, on his way to the Philippines. He was last seen about sixty miles from Amman, after passing Jerusalem, with Bagdad as his objective. His two comrades, Captain Lariga and Captain Gonzalez Gallarza have reached Bagdad safely, but Estevez is missing.

Four British planes from Amman base have been scouring the desert for many hours, and had not returned when dusk was settling.

Captain Estevez is supplied with water and food for several days, but his situation would soon become precarious. Country seat of Jordan between Jerusalem and Amman is desolate, stretching for miles without an oasis.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrate booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

CLAIMS OF MARITIME PROVINCES DEMAND GOVERNMENT ACTION, SAY CONSERVATIVES IN PARLIAMENT

Promises and Hope of Confederation Unfulfilled—Government Policy Needed.

NOT PARTY MATTER

Lower Freight Rates and Protection of Industries Advocated in House.

OTTAWA, April 13.—The grievances of the Maritime Provinces were discussed as a private member's resolution in the House Monday afternoon by W. A. Black, veteran Conservative member for Halifax, who was supported by Dr. MacLaren of St. John. The House was asked to declare that "good faith should be kept with the Maritime Provinces in regard to the recorded assurances in the statutes respecting the routing of Canadian trade over Canadian territory and an adjustment of freight rates in accordance with the understanding of Confederation." He quoted George Brown and other fathers of Confederation as to what the lower provinces would get if they would enter the union.

Quoted Fielding.

Mr. Black quoted a number of statesmen on both sides of politics who, from time to time, had declared in favor of rights. He quoted Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding as saying that "after years of disception, humbugging and perjury," action should be taken to divert export traffic to Canadian channels and through Canadian ports. The National Transcontinental Railway had been built to bring the products of Western Canada through the Canadian east.

Dealing with the proposal to refer the question of maritime rights to a royal commission, Mr. Black said that the members of Parliament from the Maritime Provinces were not satisfied with that.

"The Government should know, not only what to do, but how to do it," exclaimed Mr. Black. Prompt and definite action, he said, must be taken at the present session of Parliament, the Government should make a declaration of policy indicating that it intends to do justice to the Maritimes. "It is the duty of the Government to deal with this question themselves, and at the present session of Parliament."

The result of the two Provincial elections in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and the recent general election demonstrated that there was a growing dissatisfaction against the treatment accorded to the Maritime Provinces on the part of people residing there. There was also a conviction that the Maritime Provinces were being looked upon as "minor and unimportant parts of Confederation."

Action was required, and required immediately. The people of the Maritimes would not be turned aside from their intention to have prompt action, even by the appointment of a royal commission.

Needs of Maritimes.

The entity of the Intercolonial Railway should be restored. Freight rates should be reduced so that the people of the Maritime Provinces could get their products to other parts of Canada. Maritime ports should be fully equipped for export purposes. Protection should be given to the basic industries of the Maritime Provinces. Full consideration to the rights of the Maritimes in all colonization and immigration policies should be shown. For many years Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island had been ignored in matters of immigration and colonization.

Dr. MacLaren declared it was with the greatest pleasure that he seconded the motion before the House. It was absolutely essential for the life of the Dominion of Canada that trade in this country should be over Canadian rails and through Canadian ports. This principle had been expressed by a Liberal Government in 1903 and a Conservative Government in 1914. Surely Parliament could rise to the occasion and accord to the Maritimes the rights due them.

Not Partisan Question.

R. K. Smith (Conservative, Cumberland), in a brief speech, asked for the non-partisan consideration of the question. He pointed out the pre-Confederation promises and the Parliamentary commitments made at the time of Confederation. The Government was the only body that could deal with this particular problem.

C. H. Cahn (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George) said that successive administrations had failed to consolidate the original plan of political union. The reference of the problem to a commission could not result in a satisfactory solution.

Both parties, Conservative and Liberal, had gone on record as favoring the development of trade east and west in Canada, and the transfer of Canadian products through Canadian ports, Mr. Cahan said. But, he declared, the policy of Government and of Parliament must be laid down on a number of important questions before a commission could investigate and report on them in a manner which would be in the least helpful. The question of freight rates was one on which the policy of the Government and of Parliament must be laid down before either the Railway Commission or the new Maritime Commission could deal with it. In the first place, it must be decided if there was to be a rate structure on Canadian National lines applicable to the whole of Canada or whether there was to be a separate structure for Canadian National lines east of Montreal designed to develop Maritime trade with Central Canada.

Transcontinental Railway.

Again, there should be a pronouncement as to the conditions under which the Transcontinental Railway would be operated between Prince Rupert and Montreal and Montreal and Moncton. This road, said Mr. Cahan, was practically idle because the Government and Parliament had laid down no policy in regard to it. Was the Transcontinental to be used for the carriage of grain to Quebec? Was it to be used to develop trade between Quebec and winter ports at Halifax and Saint John? These matters must be decided by the Government and Parliament before the Railway Commission or the Maritime Commission could pass on them.

Some of the matters which the Maritime Commission was called upon to look into involved an investigation of the tariff. He did not think, said Mr. Cahan, that the personnel of the commission was qualified to investigate the tariff. "I would have liked to see one thoroughly practical business man on that commission," Mr. Cahan remarked.

There was the question of whether or not the Maritime Provinces were to be paid compensation when the natural resources were handed back to the Western Provinces. Again, there must be a declaration of governmental policy before the commission could work.

Mr. Cahan said he approached the whole question in a non-partisan spirit. The members of his side of the House would be willing to meet the Government more than half-way in the hope of immediate solution and action.

Hon. E. M. MacDonald.

Hon. E. M. MacDonald, Minister of National Defence, considered that the discussion on the resolution had become rather wide in its range. Mr. MacDonald traced the different enactments passed at the time of the taking over by the Government of the present Canadian National Railway system. The Act of 1903, respecting the National Transcontinental Railway, had set out that aid was being granted by the Government for the express purpose of the development of Canadian trade and the transportation of goods through Canadian channels. A similar clause had been inserted in the legislation of 1914, when the Canadian Northern Railway was taken over. This principle was today the policy of the Government.

For over forty years, said Mr. MacDonald, both Governments had admitted that the Intercolonial Railway should be run for the development of trade between the Maritime Provinces and Central Canada.

R. Hanson (Conservative, York-Sunbury) asked Mr. MacDonald if he was prepared to stand by the statement made under his own signature in the Halifax Herald during the 1921 election campaign regarding the Intercolonial Railway.

Mr. MacDonald replied that he had been opposed to the acquisition of the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian Northern. He would like to see the Intercolonial Railway put back under its old status.

Investigate Conditions.

The country wanted some responsible body to determine the truth, or otherwise, of allegations made in regard to conditions in the Maritime Provinces, Mr. MacDonald said. A report in which the people would have confidence would be of the greatest value. He felt that the facts of this commission appointed by the Government would command the confidence of the House and of the country. "If we find an infraction of Government duties on one hand or policy of railway management on the other, this Government will proceed to deal with those matters when the commission reports," Mr. MacDonald said.

John Millar (Progressive, Qu'Appelle) advocated a thorough investigation before there was "any tinkering with railway rates."

The whole question should be looked at from a business point of view, and all the facts should be secured. Mr. Millar thought that 90 per cent. of what were now called contractual obligations at the time of Confederation, were only pius hopes as to what would take place.

T. Cantley (Conservative, Pictou) speaking in support of the resolution, declared that the Maritimes had been made very definite promises by the fathers of Confederation.

"The Eastern provinces paid their share of the cost of that road and, unfortunately for us in Nova Scotia, it ended at Saint John, N.B.," said Col. Cantley, in referring to the contribution of the Maritimes towards the C.P.R., and the benefits derived by these provinces from this railway. This great transportation system so far as transportation and advantages accruing to Nova Scotia from competition were concerned, "might as well have been non-existent."

Col. Cantley advocated giving "us running rights to the Canadian Pacific Railway from Saint John to Halifax and through New Glasgow to the Sydneys."

Nova Scotia's Demand.

Nova Scotia asked for "fair and honest recognition" of her rights. For five months of the year, the Dominion depended on the provinces for access to the sea. This was demonstrated during the war. Surely proper consideration should be meted out to the Maritimes. The interests of Nova Scotia had been sacrificed by the placing of a number of articles on the free list.

He did not intend to attack the personnel of the commission, Col. Cantley said. "We decline, however, to be in any way obligated by its finding," he continued. What he wanted was a Parliamentary committee before which the Maritime Province members could appear. "Failure to meet the demands of Nova Scotia will create of that province another Ireland," he declared in closing. Unless something was done to assist Nova Scotia, it meant more trouble for the rest of Canada and the Government would be held responsible.

HOLSTEIN SALE.

BURNBRAE, April 13. — Several dairymen and Holstein breeders from this and adjoining districts journeyed to Belleville on Wednesday, April 7, to attend the 16th annual sale of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders' Club, which was held in the Belvedere Hotel stables. A large crowd was present in spite of the bad weather. The bidding was exceptionally keen on some of the outstanding entries. Forty-four head of catalogued animals were sold at an average price of $127 each, which was good considering that this included several animals under 12 months of age, and a few cows and heifers not freshening until late in the season. Four young calves also sold at a fair price. The cattle were all inspected by the fieldman, Mr. Holtby, previous to entry and were a very good lot.

The top price cow was Foster and Sons' Sadie Lee Pictertze, selling to Fred Hubbs of Bloomfield for $235. She is a daughter of a cow purchased by the O.A.C. for demonstration purposes at the College farm.

Mr. J. A. Caskey of Madoc acted as sales manager and talked on the pedigrees of the animals ,while Norman Montgomery of Brighton wielded the hammer.

NEW COMMANDER OF FOOT GUARDS

Major C. B. Topp Succeeds Col. Parkinson at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 13. Canadian Press. — Lieut.-Col. R. F. Parkinson, D.S.O., for the past four years commanding officer of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, ceases to command that regiment, and Major C. R. Topp, D.S.O., M.C., is promoted to Lt.-Colonel commanding the regiment. Lt.-Colonel Parkinson, who automatically goes on the reserve list is slated, it is understood from unofficial sources, for a brigade command in the near future.

Lt.-Colonel Topp, was, at the outbreak of the war, a member of the editorial staff of the Toronto Mail and Empire. He proceeded to France with the First Canadian Division as a war correspondent. Shortly after his arrival in France he resigned from the staff of the Mail and Empire in order to join the fighting forces. After receiving a commision as lieutenant he became an officer of the 42nd Highlanders of Montreal, and served with distinction with that unit during 1916, 1917 and 1918, having the honor to command the Battalion at various intervals, including the final days of the great struggle. He was wounded three times, and for his conspiculously gallant services was awarded the D.S.O. and the Military Cross and bar in addition to being mentioned in despatches.

Lt.-Colonel Parkinson was overseas with the 38th Battalion and was in command in 1918. He later was appointed to the personal staff of Canada's War Minister in England, and was made director of the Canadian war records in succession to Lord Beaverbrook.

HONEYMOON-LIKE DAY GIVEN MR. AND MRS. I. BARLOW WHEN THEY KEEP GOLDEN WEDDING

Confetti Rains in Havelock as Townspeople Help Celebrate.

WEDDING DINNER.

Home Too Small and Guests Are Entertained in the Orange Hall.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HAVELOCK, April 13.— It fairly rained confetti in the village Monday afternoon, the happy couple at whom the shower was directed being Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Barlow, who were married 50 years ago, and who received from their friends the attention that it is usual to bestow on those who are just starting out on their honeymoon. The wedding feast to commemorate the anniversary of the happy event was held in the Orange Hall, and as the aged couple made their way from their home to the scene of festivities their pathway was marked by those light and vari-olored symbols of a wedding.

In Railway Service.

Mr. Barlow, the groom, was born near the city of Belleville on Dec. 18, 1850, so that he is now in his 76th year, hale and hearty, and with every prospect of a long term of life still ahead of him. After several ventures in a career he at last found his work when he took up railroading and in due time was promoted to the position of engineer. On April 12, in the year 1876, he was married in Belleville to Miss Janet Gray Muir, who for the past half century has shared with him the joys and sorrows of life and who is now enjoying with him the evening of existence in peace and comfort without one disturbing thought as to the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow removed to Havelock in 1885 when the husband was transferred from Belleville, and they have resided here ever since. Mr. Barlow was in the employ of the C.P.R. as locomotive engineer up ot January 1, 1916, when he was retired on a pension. He also draws a pension from the Association of Locomotive Engineers, of which he has been a member ever since he was eligible to have his name proposed.

Mrs. Barlow was born in the province of Quebec. She comes of a railway family, and it is a remarkable fact that of the eight surviving children of Mr. and Mrs. Barlow all of the sons started in the same business although one of them dropped out of it later, and two daughters married railway men.

The daughters are Mrs. Edward Williams of Havelock, whose husband is a C.P.R. engineer; and Mrs. Samuel Cross of Toronto whose husband is a C.P.R. conductor running from Toronto to Ottawa. A third daughter, Eliza Jane, died 30 years ago at the age of 17.

The surviving sons are William George of Toronto, a C.N.R. conductor; John A., who started as a railroader, but who is now in the boot and shoe business in Toronto; Isaac Ward of North Bay, yardmaster for the Temiskaming and New Ontario road; Reginald Muir, of Toronto, passenger brakeman on the C.P.R., and Garnet Jones, who died on March 25 last and who at the time of his death was yardmaster for the C.P.R. at Trenton.

All of the eight surviving children were at the old home Monday to wish their parents many happy returns and to present them with gifts to commemorate the anniversary. Besides the sons and daughters all of the twelve grandchildren with one exception, were present. Among the other guests at the wedding dinner were two brothers of Mrs. Barlow, John Muir of Belleville, an engineer on the C.N.R., and Henry Muir who is a fitter in the C.P.R. shops in Toronto. The latter brother was accompanied by his wife.

About 40 sat down to the wedding dinner, all of them relatives, the dinner being held in the Orange Hall as the family home was too small to accommodate the crowd. After this part of the programme was disposed of, Mr. and Mrs. Barlow were at home to their friends and neighbors who called during the afternoon to congratulate the aged couple whom they have known and esteemed for over 40 years.

Mr. Barlow's Record.

During his long years of service as an engineer, Mr. Barlow never had a serious accident, and he retired ten years ago without a black mark against his record. Since he became a resident of Havelock he has always taken an active interest in the welfare service of the village and was for over 20 years a member of the School Board, serving for 10 years as chairman. The fine school building, which houses a continuation department, stands as a witness to what he has done in the interests of education. He retired as a member of the Board last January.

Mr. Barlow is the oldest member of L.O.L. No. 374, Belleville, which he jointed 58 years ago, and with which he has always maintained his connection. The late Senator, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, was one of the charter members, and for years the dean of that Lodge, and on his death the honor of seniority of membership fell to Mr. Barlow.

Mr. Barlow was for 19 years colorsergeant in Company Five of the 15th Battalion of the Belleville Argyles, and has always taken an active interest in the Canadian militia.

On Thursday of last week Mr. Barlow attended the annual banquet of the Locomotive Engineers' Association, which was held in Toronto. One of the features of the programme was a novelty race around the banqueting hall, open to old and young, the contestants being mounted on kiddie cars. Eight engineers of various ages took part, Mr. Barlow among them, and he was declared the winner of the first prize, a fine ham. He was the oldest man in the contest, and the result of the race is the best possible testimony to the vigorous health which he enjoys.

Presentations Made To Celebrating Couple

HAVELOCK, April 13.—A half century ago, in Belleville, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Janet Gray Muir and Isaac Barlow, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Mr. McLean, of St. Andrew's church.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Barlow celebrated the golden anniversary of that happy event surrounded by their children and grandchildren, who presented them with a purse of gold. All of the family were present with the exception of one grandson and his wife. The Rev. and Mrs. M. G. Williams, of Hornings Mills, who were unable to attend on account of pastoral duties. The family children and grandchildren gathered in the Orange Hall for dinner, which was served by a local caterer, Mr. D. O. Patterson, after which a reception was held at the family residence, Alexander street.

There were many tangible signs of the high esteem in which the "bride and groom" were held by their numerous friends, congratulatory telegrams, beautiful gifts appropriate to the golden anniversary, flowers, while about seventy guests were present to convey their good wishes.

Among the guests was the best man of fifty years ago, John Muir, brother of the bride, who, along with Mrs. Edward Williams and Mrs. (Rev.) T. H. Stanley, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Barlow in receiving the guests.

The rooms were prettily decorated for the occasion. Mrs. David McAdam and Mrs. William Vance poured tea. Mrs. E. Mathison and Mrs. H. Bush assisted in the dining room. The table was very attractive with daffodils, gold candlesticks and a large golden wedding cake in the centre.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a gold coin and address to Mrs. Barlow by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church. Mrs. Barlow is honorary president of the society.

The address was as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Barlow.—We the members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church feel we cannot let this occasion pass without offering our congratulations to you and Mr. Barlow, and wishing you may be long spared to each other. The enclosed gift is small, but given as a token of the many happy times we have all spent together in our W.A.

"Signed on behalf of the Order,
"Mrs. Wm. Vance."

In order that in the days to come the happy occasion might be vividly recalled each guest was asked to write his name in a book and several pictures were taken during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow have six children living. Two daughters, Mrs. S. Cross of Toronto and Mrs. E. Williams of Havelock, four sons, Ward of North Bay, Reginald, John and William of Toronto.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Barlow join in good wishes for many years of wedded felicity.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ward Barlow and family of North Bay, Mrs. Mary Barlow and baby Marjorie of Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Barlow and baby Inez of Toronto, Mr. John Muir of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. S. Cross and sons, Reginald and Harold of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. James Bunnett of Shannonville, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barlow and family.

BURGLARS' PARTY RAIDED BY POLICE

Rounded Up in Quebec Premier's Summer Cottage.

QUEBEC, April 13 (Canadian Press).—J. Barlow, who is believed by the police to be the ring leader of a gang of burglars who have been operating for several months past in the district of Riviere Du Loup, has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary by Magistrate Couillard of Riviere Du Loup. Barlow and four of his alleged companions in crime were caught while they were in the act of having a "sugaring party in the summer residence of Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec.

The police of Riviere Du Loup knew that the summer residence was not occupied during the winter season and about a week ago they were notified that smoke had been seen issuing from the chimney of Mr. Taschereau's house. A number of officers crept up to the house one dark night. With drawn guns they rushed the place and ordered the five men who were in the place to throw up their hands. They quietly submitted to arrest. Barlow was found in possession of a loaded revolver.

The men were sitting at a table They had connected the electric light wires to a small electric stove upon which there was a saucepan containing the necessary ingredients to make fudge. The table was loaded down with cold meats, cake, pies and other foodstuffs, and a large selection of wines, beers and liquors, indication that they had intended to have a regular party.

In searching the premises the police discovered a large quantity of goods which had been stolen from other summer residences.

HOW TO CLEAN LAMP REFLECTORS.

Lampblack, a soft black powder which can be purchased at any drug or hardware store, is excellent to clean lamp reflectors. A little lampblack on a soft cloth, rubbed over the surface of the reflector, will quickly restore its brilliancy. Rub with a circular motion. It will not scratch, and at the same time it leaves a certain film on the surface that prevents tarnishing.

If the surface is badly tarnished, use a paste of lampblack and water, finishing with another cloth and dry lampblack.

If Teeth Lack Gleam Just Do This

Gives sparkling whiteness quickly

Please accept full 10-day tube free of this remarkable new method that leading dental authorities urge . . . note the difference in teeth and gums as dingy film coat goes.

The prettiest smile becomes ugly when teeth look clouded. Now modern science restores "off color" teeth to dazzling whiteness.

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully remove. That's why brushing failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a sort of slippery coating. Beneath it are the white teeth you envy.

It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea because it breeds bacteria.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, a scientific combatant has been found. Leading dentists widely urge it. All druggists have it. 10-day test sent free.

THURSDAY'S BANQUET.

The banquet to be tendered the Peterboro Hockey Club, Ontario champions, by the City Council on Thursday evening promises to be one of the most interesting functions of the kind ever held here, and it should be made notable by the attendance of a large number of citizens.

Outside of the invited guests, there will be accommodation for a number of other citizens, and it is hoped that the available tickets will be quickly taken up by hockey enthusiasts eager to be present when the Peterboro team is honoured for its great record this season.

In other cities where similar functions have been held there has not been room enough for the citizens who wished to attend, and Peterboro should see to it that similar enthusiasm is displayed in connection with Thursday's function, which is to be attended by some of the most prominent members of hockey's "Who's Who," including heads of the Ontario Hockey Association.

It will be a gala function, and the available accommodation should be completely exhausted.

THE AMUSEMENT TAX.

The Examiner hastens to put itself on record as heartily in accord with a resolution passed by the Brantford City Council urging a remittance of the amusement tax on amateur games at which less than $200 is taken in receipts.

The folly of keeping a small army of inspectors hounding the secretaries of rural football teams or village baseball teams for a few dollars tax from games at which the clubs are lucky enough to take in enough money to pay the officials in charge has long impressed everybody but the members of the Legislature.

So far as these minor games are concerned the collection of the tax costs as much as the revenue obtained, and the annoying levy might well be lifted.

There are amateur contests at which large gates are obtained, and in their case there is not the same objection to the amusement tax, but the Brantford resolution setting $200 as the minimum gate from which the tax is to be collected is a business-like way of dealing with the matter, preserving to the Province the field from which worth-while revenue is obtainable, and at the same time relieving the struggling amateur teams of an intolerable worry over the amusement levy.

CARD PARTIES.

Organizations which conduct card parties at which an admission charge is collected and prizes are given are guilty of conducting a gaming house, and citizens who take part in such games are liable to be charged as frequenters unless it can be shown that the proceeds are devoted exclusively to charitable purposes.

This statement may cause some surprise among citizens generally, but it is true nevertheless, and it is a sample of the unnecessary legislation with which our representatives have seen fit to burden us.

Playing cards for prizes may be gambling, but it is such an innocuous sort of gambling as compared with other forms that the average man or woman fails to see a great deal of harm in the practice, and it is rather a shock to them to learn that they can be haled into Police Court and charged with being frequenters of a common gaming house.

The blame for this condition of affairs cannot be charged to the local Police Department; they are not responsible for our laws, but for the enforcement of them.

It is merely a sample of the multitude of unnecessary laws and regulations with which we in this country, and to an even greater extent our neighbors to the south, have loaded ourselves, despite our continuous boast of liberty.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL AND THE PRESS.

County Clerk E. M. Elliott's defence of the practice of the County Council in barring the press from committee meetings is neither fair to the members of the Council themselves nor flattering to the intelligence of the ratepayers.

The theory that the members of the Council should not have to take a public stand on questions coming before them because by so doing they might antagonize a section of the electorate or injure their private business goes a long way from the usual conception of responsible Government.

The Examiner does not believe that the average member of the Council is afraid to let any one know where he stands, or that by so doing he would injure his political chances or business prospects, while on the other hand, the man who refuses to take responsibility for his actions is not the type of Councillor who is of any real value to the people he has been elected to serve.

The habit of transacting most of the public's business in committee, merely ratifying it in Council, is not fair to the people who pay the taxes.

They are, the Examiner believes, entitled to know how and why the Council's decisions were arrived at, and if reporters were admitted to the meetings these facts could be given them.

The press can be trusted.

Often there might arise a question the public discussion of which might well be injurious to the county's interests.

In such cases a word from the Chairman to the reporter would be all that was necessary to prevent publication of the matter in question.

Such an arrangement has long been in force in connection with City Council committee meetings, and there has never been a charge of broken faith on the part of the press.

The Examiner desires to serve its county readers with accurate and complete news of the proceedings of county bodies, and it cannot under existing conditions come even close to providing the service it would like to and which the people of the county should have.

That and the conviction that it is the privilege of taxpayers to be kept in touch with the words and actions of their representatives form our reason for again referring to this important matter.

AMUSEMENT TAX MEANS NEEDED REVENUE.

It is unlikely that the Provincial Government will relinquish either part or whole of the amusement tax in favor of the municipalities. Outside of the revenue derived from race meets, the towns and cities are the real contributors to the revenue, which amounted to $4,000,000 last year. Of this amount, the sum of $1,500,000 came from various amusements outside of horse-racing, which is in a class by itself. And Toronto contributed $600,000 of the total of $1,500,000.

The tax is a fair enough one, and cannot be said to work injuriously to professional amusement interests. It is not a good tax for amateur games, and should not be imposed above a certain scale in that direction. Games where receipts are $200 or less should be exempt.

The towns and cities, however, should share in the tax. At least, they have just as much moral claim as the Province because it is the activities of the people in a community which provide the revenue. Not only that, most municipalities are having just as difficult a time to make the budget balance and to effect economy as has the Provincial administration. The owner of a house on a paved street in a progressive town or city is pretty heavily taxed directly by his own corporation. And he must meet that tax promptly whether he is employed or not, or else pay the penalty. Indirect taxes through tariff, and luxury assessments are escapable when a man is out of work, but the municipal tax on the roof over a man's family has to be met on the dot and is more severe for that reason than any other taxation which is in force. Because of this, the claim of municipalities for relief should not go unheard. But the Provincial Government has got there first in regard to the amusement tax, and possession is more than nine-tenths of the law in this case.—St. Catharines Standard.

ANOTHER BILL FOR JOHN BULL?

A storm of indignation has been aroused in Great Britain by United States Senator Borah's proposal that Great Britain be asked to pay many million dollars' damages to United States shippers of contraband to Germany during the first three years of the war. The cargoes were seized by the British navy, and before the United States entered the war the Allies were ready to compensate individual Americans where it was shown that they had suffered loss by acts of questionable legality. But, as the London Times avers, when the United States abandoned her neutrality she abandoned morally, if not in law, any rights accrued to her as a neutral against the Powers whom she joined as a belligerent. "It is to her," says the Times, "and not to her associates that any of her citizens who may be aggrieved by the earlier defence of the cause she made her own should turn for compensation."

For several years past American shippers, exporters and marine insurance firms have been filing with the State Department claims against Great Britain and France—principally Great Britain—for damages arising out of the Allied blockade of Germany between August, 1914, and April, 1917, the period of American neutrality. For a long time the Washington authorities did nothing, but as the claimants are very numerous and very wealthy they have combined to put pressure on the Administration. The Senate passed a resolution that the Secretary of State be invited to explain what action he proposes to take with regard to the claims. The resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, of which Senator Borah is Chairman, and the committee reported favorably upon it. There the matter rests for the present.

It is incredible that the Administration will act in the narrow spirit of the Borahs and other tail-twisting members of Congress. Certainly the business and financial interests of the country would be scandalized if Britain or France were presented with a new war bill. The London Nation and Athenaeum says:

"If the claims are really presented they will, of course, have to be discussed in terms of international law, and it is not impertinent to remark that precedents, extremely valuable to the Allies, will be found in the records of the American Prize Court decisions during the Civil War. We propose, however, to leave the legal aspect of the claims, for the moment, on one side; for we believe that an embittered legal wrangle would have a very bad effect on Anglo-American relations, and we hope that, on general grounds of honor and policy, the American people, as a whole, will express themselves so strongly against the claims as to enable the Administration to resist any pressure brought to bear by the claimants and their supporters. So long as there is still room for American opinion as a whole to make itself felt, it would be bad strategy for Britain to spend time and energy on legal arguments appealing, of necessity, only to a few specialists. There are, it seems to us, two questions which every American citizen should be invited to answer, without regard to political or juridical niceties.

"First, can it be doubted that the American nation profited, and profited enormously, by those very measures against which the State Department protested? The legend of a Germany which gorged itself with neutral supplies while the British Foreign Office slumbered was long ago exploded. The American armies took the field against an enemy whose powers of resistance, military and economic, had already been sapped and debilitated by a long period of isolation. Whatever judgment be passed on the methods employed, can the United States Government, with any sense of equity, seek to recover vast sums from Great Britain in respect of measures which as matters turned out, saved many millions of American treasure and many thousands of American lives?"

The Administration is no doubt reluctant to act on the advice of the Foreign Relations Committee. If it refuses to do so it will surely be supported by the sense of justice and fair play among the people of the United States, or at least among the most influential elements in the country. The issue has not yet become he subject of diplomatic argument, and it will not reach even that point if the Government puts any value on European opinion and Anglo-American co-operation.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Developments in regard to euchre parties indicate once again that we are suffering from too many laws, many of them of little real value.

Another point to remember is that the man who lives a few yards outside the city limits has no more claim for free protection by the city department than has the individual who resides ten miles away.

It looks as if Toronto's greatest need is not a new ball park, but a new ball club.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 12.— Last week's Glasgow market was bad. H. P. Kennedy & Co., who are exporting over 1,000 head from Edmonton, this week report recent losses of around $10 a head.

Export steers sold quite steady today. One load of steers, 1,260 lbs. each, sold at $8.30 a cwt. and the prices shaded down from this to $7.50 a cwt. Choice butchers just out of the baby class sold up to $8 a cwt. for singles and loads of near choice handyweights brought $7.35 a cwt. Good handyweights were $6.75 to $7.15 a cwt. Butchers' cows were unchanged and any good went from $5 to $5.65 a cwt. Choice cows were $6 to $6.50 a cwt. For four choice heavy export steers $8.75 a cwt. was asked and a load was being held for $8.50 a cwt.

Calves were generally a poor lot today and prices on common to medium calves were easier. The few choice calves made steady prices at 12c to 13c a lb. Medium calves were 9c to 10c a lb.

A ew Ontario yearling lambs sold steady at 14c a lb. A couple of medium quality spring lambs sold at $12.50 each, and good to choice sheep were $7c to 9c a pound.

There is another contest on between the sellers and the buyers of hogs, with $13 a cwt. f.o.b. asked and $12.75 bid. The packers say they will only bid $12.50 a cwt. for today's loading.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, April 12 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-2.
Sterling cables $4.86.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 12 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the fact that prices bid were below working basis, the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was inactive. The trade in oats in the spot market was also limited, but the undertone was firm.

The flour market was without any new feature to note, prices for spring and winter wheat grades being steady under a fair demand.

There was some demand from dealers for Western eggs and although the prices asked were a trifle higher than at the close of last week sales of odd round lots of extras were made at 29 1-4c, firsts at 27 1-4c, and seconds at 24 1-4c per dozen, f.o.b. Saskatchewan.

The strength which has characterized the market for potatoes for the past few weeks stil continues to be the main feature trade, and prices yesterday scored a further advance of 25c to 50c per bag and the indications were at the close of the day that they would go still higher in the near future.

The market for beans was quiet and prices were steady with car lots of choice white hand-picked quoted at $2.40 to $2.45 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.60 to $2.65 per bushel.

The receipts of butter were 457 packages, as compared with 1,177 for the same day last week, and nil for the corresponding day a year ago. A feature of the trade was the firmer feeling that developed in the market which was brought about by an increased demand from both local and outside buyers, but prices showed no change.

The receipts of cheese were 230 boxes, as against 182 for the same day last week, and nil for the corresponding day a year ago. An easy feeling prevailed in the market on account of the continued absence of any foreign demand for supplies and the bearish news coming forward from that source. Business was dull with fodder-made goods nominally quoted at 16c to 16 1-4c per lb, f.o.b. country points.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., April 12 (Canadian Press)—An easy feeling continuss to prevail on Canadian egg markets. Prices are generally unchanged.

Toronto country dealers are paying producers extras 28, firsts 20 to 27, seconds 22 and making sales extras 30, firsts 28, seconds 25.

Montreal — The egg market is easier and lower. Local eggs are arriving freely and costing delivered expressed extras 32 to 33, firsts 29 to 30, seconds 24.

Winnipeg — The egg market is steady with receipts increasing. Country shippers are selling extras 26, firsts 24, seconds 18 cases returned. Price to retailers: extras 29, firsts 27, seconds 21.

CHICAGO, April 12 (Canadian Press)—Wheat declined in price today, influenced more or less by the fact that the United States visible supply total failed to decrease as much as had been generally expected. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2 to 1 1-4c net lower, May (new) $1.59 1-8 to $1.59 1-4, and July $1.36 1-8 to $1.36 1-4, with corn unchanged to 1-2c down; oats at 1-8c decline to 1-8c gain and provisions varying from two cents off to five cents advance.

Especially in the late dealings, the majority of traders showed a preference for the selling side of the wheat market. Demand for the most part was of a scattering character, weakness which began to manifest itself at the opening was initiated by an unexpected decline at Liverpool ascribed to slackening of sales, both to British and continental European consumers, notwithstanding an authoritative estimate the world requirements of wheat from April 1 to the end of the present season would total 230,000,000 bushels, whereas the amount available was figured as only 208,000,000 bushels.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

WARNS AGAINST EXPOSE.

The Editor of The Examiner:
Dear sir:

In your issue of last night you state that "Startling revelations will be made" in a story of "to-day's jazz life' to appear in Saturday's paper.

Has it occurred to you that the telling of such personal matters in your newspaper cannot be productive of any good, and will only bring embarrassment to those concerned? What a man does in his private life is his own affair, and no newspaper has any license to pry into it.

And the further feature of the case suggests itself, that you may be caused great trouble if action is taken against you for the publication of anything reflecting on the character of anyone.

Think it over, and write a story that won't back-fire.

Yours truly,
CLUB MAN.

REPORT COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Editor of The Examiner.
Dear sir:

Your editorial of last week protesting the closing of County Council committees to your reporters probably explains a matter that has been worrying your country readers for some years. That is, the great amount of space you give to reports of the proceedings of the Counties' Council at Cobourg, compared with the meagre offerings of the Peterborough County Council.

It is a well-known fact that the councillors of Northumberland and Durham have always been progressive. Their sessions are conducted with the utmost decorum—in fact the gathering has been called "A Little Parliament". There is no smoking allowed, for instance, while business is going forward. It was my pleasure to call upon the Council in Cobourg about two years ago, and I carried away very pleasant recollections. They seemed to be a business-like, level-headed, party of men seeking the welfare of the districts they represented.

If they admit your reporter to their committee meetings and the City Council does not bar your reporters from committees, why is the Peterborough County Council so reluctant to have its businesse reported? From experience in reading the "hand-outs" of such bodies, I know that nothing can be so unenlightening at times as the report of a committee as finally adopted by a body such as the County Council.

From the standpoint of the country rate-payer, you are to be commended upon the stand you have taken, and as a reader of your paper I can only regret that you did not bring the issue to my attention long ago.

Some step should be taken to let us know what councillors are in favor of publicity for their doings, and what ones are eager to hide their actions from the people who elected them.

Yours truly,
NORTH MONAGHAN.

RE CLOSED SESSIONS.

To the Editor
Dear Sir

Referring to an article that appeared in the Examiner on April 8th expressing disapproval of the preclusion of a Reporter attending a Committee Meeting of the Roads' Commissions.

Such reference might have a tendency to create suspicion (although probably not intended).

The County adopted and generally speaking have carried into effect the preclusion of Reporters from Committee meetings.

You read of utterances of the various members of Parliament on the floor of the Hose but not of the utterances of the various members when in Committee.

The Committee bring in their report in a general way, then it is dealt with in open Parliament or on the floor of the House. It may be either adopted or amended or sent back to Committee for consideration or laid over. The same system prevails in Country proceedings.

In Committee the different members express an opinion which he considers in the best interest of the Municipality and if he is specifically reported as having assumed such stand, then some syndicate or part of the Municipality are disappointed and deal with him accordingly at next election which is only trivial compared with the effect it may have on his private business although as stated (it may have been the proper course to pursue in the interest o the Municipality at large.)

It has been frequently referred to through the press how difficult it has been to get good men to offer themselves as Candidates for Aldermen. To day this city is fortunate in having an up to date Council of good business men and recognition must be made of the evidence of great interest taken by them in their Municipality and credit for the sacrificing nerve under the circumstances.

If memory serves me correctly it was an Ex-Mayor during his first year as Mayor (some few years ago) who introduced the opening of the doors of Committee meetings to the press and public, but the ratepayers did not seem to lay great stress on the system or at the next election their expression at the poles resulted in a large majority against him. The County do not wish to criticize the Representatives of the press but on the other hand according to their expressd opinions, they maintain that the Examiner is fortified with a contingent second to none in the Province.

Resp. yours
ED. M. ELLIOTT.
Commission Clerk.

A PLEA FOR ASHBURNHAM

The Editor, Examiner,
City.

DEAR SIR: At this time of the year, before the City outlines its usual programme of work to be done during the year on the City's streets,as a residenty of that portion of the City formerly known as Ashburnham, on behalf of a great many of the ratepayers who are resident of Ashburnham, I feel that again it should be drawn to the attention of the Council, the comparative neglect which that portion of the City has been suffering from for some considerable time.

It is annually becoming more of a grievance as the years progresses, and the City money, to which the residents of Ashburnham contribute their share is being expended in other portions of the City, and the streets of Ashburnham are annually deteriorating, without serious effort being made to even keep them up, while other portions of the City, which are much newer than Ashburnham are getting more than their share of cement sidewalks. With the exception of a comparatively short strip of paving from the centre of the newbridge to the Westclox Company's Works, and a very short strip from Hunter Street up to St. Joseph's Hospital, there is not a yard of pavement to show in a tangible way to the ratepayers, that any interest is being taken in that portion of the City's streets. Burnham street, possibly one of the oldest streets in Peterborough is very uneven, holes have developed which are never satisfactorily repaired, and the result is that year after year the condition of the street gets worse. This is only one of the streets that I might mention.

If it is not known to the residents of the western part of the City, Robinson street which runs from Burnham street to Rogers street, and is for a great many residents of Ashburnham, who attend services at the Immaculate Conception Church and at St. Luke's Church, and for a great many of those going and coming to St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence, a logical and natural thoroughfare. This street is crossed by the C.N.R. tracks. Immediately adjoining the C.N.R. tracks on the West is the cold storage plant, which extends out on to the highway a distance of approximately half the width thereof, extending from the Northerly side of the street in at southerly direction. No side walk is provided for foot traffic on either side of this street in the vicinity of the Cold storage plant. On the east of the tracks is situated the coal shed. No side walk is provided from the tracks easterly to the coal shed. The result persons walking on this highway to get to any of the public institutions, which I have enumerated are compelled to wade through mud and dust inches deep.

The position of this cold storage plant is such that it obstructs the view of motorists approaching each other from either side of the building, and some day, unless measures are taken to remedy this situation, the city in all probability will be faced with a damage action.

On different streets in Ashburnham we have side walks in part on only one side of the streets. Some of these side walks, it is true, are cement, but a great many of them are wooden. Practically no work has been done by the City in keeping down the weed and other vegetable growth along the different streets. Many other examples of inequality in the treatment afforded us as compared with the other portions of the City, I might cite. We are getting no reduced tax rate, and pay our proper portion of the City's overhead. In fairness why should we be discriminated against?

Until but recently there was no method of transportation. Now, to some extent this has been remedied. Nevertheless our streets continue to wear out. We are not provided with proper sidewalks. We are obviously neglected in the City's paving scheme. Is it not time that we share some of the good things for which we have to pay, and up to date have been largely enjoyed by our neighbors west of the river at our expense?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,
Yours faithfully,
JOS. A. O'BRIEN

It was stated that some of the crew had been picked up in Shelburne, which is against the regulations.

BROWNING PAIR FOR HONEYMOON TOUR OF EUROPE

"Honeymoon House" Deserted—Intruders Barred By Bodyguard of Five.

TO SAIL THURSDAY.

Tradesmen Advised No Further Orders From the Bridal House.

COLD SPRING, N. Y., April 13.—The "honeymoon house" of the Edward W. Brownings was deserted yesterday—perhaps for good.

Browning, the dapper 51-year-old millionaire, left Cold Spring on a train during the morning, apparently bound for New York, and a short time later his bride, the former Frances Heenan, 15, drove away from the 15-room castle with her parents.

Tradesmen were advised that there would be no further orders, and a watchman claimed that Mrs. Heenan had said:

"We're going to be gone for five or six days, perhaps forever."

While the 15-year-old bride and her millionaire husband thus far have kept their plans hidden behind the stern walls of the 15-room Old Boyd house, the show place of Cold Springs, the news has leaked out that the newly wed pair will go to Europe this week, probably Thursday.

Browning, grey-haired realty broker of 51 years, has taken pains to prevent a curious public from seeing the plump little girl, Frances (Peaches) Heenan, daughter of a trained nurse. A uniformed policeman guards the house from an unpainted veranda and it is reported that four bodyguards, under command of a boxing manager, will keep the house further sheltered.

Whirlwind Courtship.

It was after a whirlwind courtship that Browning brought his bride to a spot far different from the Broadway cabarets that knew them nightly. Their marriage on Saturday followed their meeting by 38 days.

Consent to the marriage was given by the girl's parents, and is believed to have prevented action of the Children's society, which might have spoiled the romance.

Acid Thrown.

News of Browning's latest attachment came a fortnight ago, when it was found "Peaches" had been the victim of an unknown intruder into her home, who had thrown acid upon her neck and shoulders. Browning was a constant visitor at the Heenan home, and heaped flowers upon the girl.

Authorities, who had become used to investigating Browning's affairs, had petitioned the children's court to set aside Mrs. Heenan, who lived apart from her husband, as guardian of the girl. Hearing on the petition was to have been held Thursday.

Insist on Trial.

While it was insisted in New York that "Peaches" and her mother will have to go to court on that day, it is considered doubtful that the marriage can be disturbed.

The Brownings, after their marriage before a justice of peace, spent Saturday night in a Bronxville hotel. They motored to their new home Sunday morning and were welcomed by Mrs. Heenan.

Attends Concert.

Once during the day Browning left his bride. He attended a children's concert of sacred music, and gave away the bridal bouquet to the members of the orchestra.

"We know about your forthcoming trip to Europe," he was told.

Browning said quietly that he would not discuss it.

"Do you approve of a man of your age—?" began another questioner, but Browning stamped his feet angrily, turned and rode back to the house he has leased for a year.

CANADIANS BREAK IMMIGRATION LAW

35 Detained in Detroit Awaiting Trial.

WINDSOR, April 13. — Thirty-five Canadians, or people of British descent, who have entered the United States by way of Canadian ports, are in detention in Detroit for breaches of the United States immigration laws.

This information was given by Captain James D. Ross, attorney for the Detroit Post of the American Legion, to L. J. Lafferty, president of the Windsor Great War Veterans' Association. Both veteran officials have been making representations to Detroit immigration officials with a view to bringing about a speedy trial for Arthur Bourne, 431 Glengarry avenue, who pleaded guilty to using the passport of a friend to enter Detroit.

According to Captain Ross, the majority of persons detained have been living in Detroit for several years and have assumed the ordinary vogue of citizenship. But through neglect to comply with the law they are lodged in jail awaiting trial.

MEN PROTESTING EXAMINER STORY

One Says Associates Would Recognize Him—Some Concessions.

The Examiner has received protests against its publishing the story planned for Saturday. One is printed in "The Voice of the People" column today. Another Peterborough, who keeps his identity secret, suggests an injunction to keep The Examiner from printing the story.

This second man alleges that all of his associates would at once recognize him as the leading figure, in spite of the difference in names, and that his reputation would be ruined.

This gentleman is assured that the story is not built around his erring footsteps at all. If he calls at The Examiner ofice he may read the manuscript before it is published, and eliminate any words that he thinks might in any way indicate that he is the subject of the story.

And, as an extra concession, so that all may rest in peace, The Examiner will print at the head of the story, the words: "The names and situations in this story are fictitious."

With these concessions, the story breaks on Saturday.

$50,000 OPTION ON DISCOVERY CLAIM

Prospector Stumbled on Rich Ore Near C.N.R.

PORT ARTHUR, Ajril 13 (Canadian Press). — Phil Silams, one of the first prospectors to enter the Beardmore gold area, which experienced a mild rush of prospectors last summer, has disposed of "Discovery" claim to an eastern syndicate, represented locally by Bruce L. Morrison. The property is under option to the syndicate on a basis of $50,000, $5,000 cash and a 5 per cent. interest in development.

Discovery claim is not more than 200 yards from the main line of the Canadian National Railway and was found purely by accident on June 26 last. Silams and his partner wandered off their trail and it was while taking lunch that they picked out sample of gold quartz, which were later assayed as high as $660 to the ton in gold. The Silams property consists of two claims. This is the third big deal in Beardmore in a week.

T. Brown. It was Murphy's third forgery conviction.

WARSAW CHURCH.

Reports Show an Increase in Attendance—Officers Elected.

The annual business meeting of the Warsaw Branch of the United Church of Canada was held on Wednesday evening. The report showed an increasing attendance. The amount given to missions was $25.05.

The total receipts were over $168, the cost of supplies for running the Sunday school were a little heavier than usual as also were the Christmas expenses. The Sunday school gave an amount to the church, also bought a new pulpit bible, and paid more than the allotted dues towards County Sunday School expenses.

The officers for ensuing year are: Superintendent, Robert Somers; assistant superintendent, James Greystock; secretary, Gordon Payne; treasurer, Ivan Drain; organist, Mrs. Greystock; Bible class teacher, Mrs. Robert Moore; assistant, Alec Watts; junior teacher, Mrs. Greystock; beginners, Mrs. James Hawthorne.

NEW PROPOSAL FOR POWER DAM

Single Dam Across the St. Lawrence Advocated By Engineer.

SECOND NIAGARA.

ALBANY, N.Y., April —(Canadian Press).—Characterizing the St. Lawrence river at a point 40 miles below Ogdensburg, N.Y. as a "second Niagara Falls" in its hydro electric possibilities, Col. Hugh L. Cooper, nationally known water power engineer, described to the New York State Water Power Commission new plans for the development of the stream proposed by Frontier Corporation. The corporation, it was brought out at a previous hearing, is a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America, the General Electric Company and E. I. Dupont de Nemours and Company. Yesterday's hearing was granted primarily to receive application of Frontier Corporation for permission to amend the original plans for development so as to provide for one international dam rather than two.

The St. Lawrence development described by Col. Cooper would be at Barnhart Island near the northern end of the international section of river. It would contemplate a single dam, capable of developing $2,400,000 horse power, to be thrown across the river at cost of $238,000,000. One half of the developed power would go to Canada and one half to New York state, he said. In no way, declared the engineer, would navigation in the St. Lawrence be affected by the proposed hydro electric developments.

CHILDREN DROWN IN BAGDAD FLOOD

Refugees See Bodies Swirl in Tigris.

BAGDAD, Iraq, April 13. — Although the extent of the casualties resulting from the great flood which threatens the existence of this city of the Caliphs is undetermined, it is known that many persons have been drowned. The banks of the River Tigris present a pitiable sight as houses, trees and bodies swirl down the stream while refugees gaze helplessly on.

The chief sufferers have been children, who because of their weakness were unable to escape the torrent turned loose suddenly on the section of the city near the Royal Palace, when an embankment collapsed and let the swollen flood through. Scores of mothers are among the stricken population bewailing the lost bodies of their loved ones.

Other embankments protecting the city have been endangered gravely and much depends on the question of how long they will be able to stand the strain.

An Exchange Telegraph despatch received at London from Bagdad reported that sixty houses had collapsed and thirty-five persons were known to have been drowned in the flood.

27 COUPLES RETURN ENGAGED ON TOUR

Empress of Scotland Ends Four Months' Cruise.

NEW YORK, April 13.— When the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland returned to New York Saturday from a four months' cruise around the world she brought back twenty-seven couples who became engaged on the trip, besides seven honeymoon couples who made the voyage. The figures for romance were almost as formidable as the figures of food consumed by the voyagers. These follow:

The passengers consumed, according to the purser, 211,000 pounds of potatoes, 104,000 pounds of fresh vegetables, 123,000 pounds of beef, and mutton, 48,000 pounds of fresh fish, 46,000 pounds of poultry, 35,000pounds of sugar, 15,000 pounds of salt, 7,400 pounds of coffee and 4,600 pounds of tea.

The oldest of the 387 passengers was 83 years, and the youngest 9. During the cruise they cashed more than $250,000 worth of travelers' cheques, letters of credit and other notes. They agreed that the most memorable events of the trip were Christmas in the Holy Land and New Year's Eve in Cairo.

SMELTER WANTED.

Port Arthur To Petition Ontario Government.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 13 (Canadian Press)—Efforts are being made by a group of local business men to interest the Ontario government in the establishment of a ten stamp mill and smelter at the head of the lakes to take care of the growing needs of mining men in this section of the province. The proposal is to have the Ontario government bonus the plant to the extent of one half its cost if the corporation will advance the other half. It is understood that a ten stamp mill and smelter can be secured and set up for not more than $15,000. With the opening of valuable mining districts adjacent to Port Arthur the demand for some means of treating ore at close hand is increasing.

TWO CLASSES OF RECEIVERS

Future Sets Will Have One or Many Tubes Is Prophesy.

ALWAYS UNIT TUBE.

(By NEA Service.)

NEW YORK, April 13.—When radio has become an every-day art, and static is under control, when fading is as little bother in reception as the single tuning control is today, then there will be a revolution in receiver design.

Instead of the three and five-tube sets, so very popular today, we shall have only two classes of receivers—the single tuber for local reception and the multi-tuber for distance!

And what a multi-tuber! No less than 12 tubes and perhaps as many as 16!

Thus does William H. Priess, famous radio engineer, foresee the end of the simple receivers in use today. Priess can't be taken lightly, either, for he's a recognized authority on radio. He's inventor of the reflex principle and is manufacturing an eight-tube set of his own design that is revolutionary in itself.

Unit Tube Always.

"There will always be a place for the single-tube set," says Priess. "It will furnish an introduction to the cautious beginner's experience with radio.

"But once we leave the one-tube set, the radio set a few years from now will jump suddenly to many tubes. There will be no three, four, five or six-tube sets. There is a logical reason for this.

"Distant reception requires a radio frequency amplification of the order of 2,000 in voltage to permit the building up of signals to such strength that they will have a pure tone quality after having passed through the detector tube. Quality of tone cannot be obtained in a high amplification if there exists any form of regeneration.

"This necessitates the inter-linking of many tubes in order to achieve the required voltage amplification that will give the proper signal strength on distance stations.

Need Big Sets.

"A five-tube set, with only two stages of radio, cannot do this.

"The minimum is five stages of radio, making with the detector and audio, an eight-tube set. The very near future will see radio utilizing even more tubes. Between 12 and 16 will be normal. The arrangement will be something as follows:

"One or two tubes will be used to reduce static approximately eight tubes will be utilized for radio amplification one tube for a detector two tubes for audio frequency amplification and two or three tubes to make the set available for connection and operation from the local power lines."

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

J. F. P.: You were born with a liking for mental and scientific pursuits, but your life has not been connected with these to any extent. You have been of a reserved type, rather shy at times, and inclined to silence and introspection. You have a liking for things that are mystic and occult and a strong leaning toward study of spiritualistic matters. Do not cultivate this to too great an extent. You are quite determined and stubborn and have a very very violent temper when angered. You are easily irritated by opposition and are liable to extremes in everything you do. You are quite loyal to your friends, sometimes being imposed upon by them because of this, and are very fond of good living. You have a very intuitive nature and easily receive impressions from the minds of those about you. Be careful of your throat, which bothers you at times. You are also subject to boils.

You were born on Friday. Your colors are tan and buff shades.

C. H. S.: Although you were born with a strong, active, creative nature, inclined to domineer and to disregard the rights of others, your destiny points to success only through the use of cleverness and diplomacy, so, if you wish to achieve, you will have to conquer many of your natural and inborn tendencies. Tact and diplomacy, along with your strong characteristics, should bring you much in life, because you have much ability, of head as well as of hands. You are inclined to be capricious, however, a disagreeable trait, and should guard against this, and also to live too much in the physical enjoyment of life. The spiritual side of your nature should be developed to bring you all you wish for of happiness and success. Be careful of what you eat, as you are liable to indigestion, and do not touch strong drink, which you have a liking for. Try to learn that the body is only the servant of the mind, and control your temper.

You were born on Sunday. Your color is flame. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one for quiet meditation. Let things take their course, and do not worry on this day.

Red: The double name would make a difference, if you were using it, but as you use only this one in this country, it has no significance in your reading.

You have a great deal of physical strength, with much creative power and tenacity and your destiny points to a life of hard work. Success will be yours only by constantly plugging away at your job, whatever it may be. So, in your youth, think carefully over your powers (and you have powers, both mental and physical), decide what you want to be, follow out your course of action without swerving, if possible, because an element of caprice is indicated that will not make for happiness and success, and so cause your work to give you full returns. You have great executive ability and would make a good lawyer, contractor, builder or engineer. Do not touch strong drink and remember that the body should be the servant of the mind. Learn early in life to recognize and control evil thoughts and vile impulses, also to control your temper. You will profit by listening to the reasoning of others. Your wife, when you marry, will be unhappy unless you have learned to come under the sway of mental and spiritual influences. In a word, you are inclined to be material-minded. Guard against this, for you have great possibilities for good in other ways. Marry a girl born in January, September or October. May and July are your good months, Friday your lucky day. You were born on Friday. Your colors are blue and cream. The day you ask about, a Monday, is one for avoidin g argument new enterprises and marriage.

A. M. M. Mc.: I am sorry that you gave me the wrong birth date on your coupon. You have registered yourself as having been born last year.

As for the child, surely you understand that no one can answer your questions except the doctors, and even they may not be sure. I am sorry to be unable to help you, but I am not a fortune-teller nor a physician. If conditions are as you say, the child might be better in time, and then again she may never improve. Try and resign yourself to have her die rather than live with a disturbed mentality.

Anxious: I know that you are trying to do your very best under the circumstances, and a condition like this is very hard to contend with, but according to your reading, you are of the type that, while being strong and active and logical, is inclined to be domineering and to disregard the rights of others, with a self-centred outlook and a limited vision. If you are sincere in your desire to get along well, ask yourself if this is right. Perhaps it lies at the root of some of your difficulty. You are a natural leader and always "buck the line hard," putting all your powers into the execution of your plans. You must strive always to combat the faculty of seeing little things that annoy. You are of the type that will fold your lips and bite back the criticism that rises to them, but it boils away unseen in your mind and comes out in other ways. Try your very best to learn tolerance of another person's viewpoint, even when you are absolutely sure that you alone are right, as you are most of the time. You are possessed of a frank, energetic, likable nature, but you are nearly always in a hurry and impatient of those who cannot keep pace with you. Cultivate repose and a large viewpoint and strive to realize that most things don't matter much in the long run. You will always have to word hard. While doing this, use your leisure, if you have any, in reading good books. Above all, try not to worry. You were born on Wednesday. Your color is flame, in all its variations.

Mrs. J. F.: You have not given me your proper name. Your husband's name and initials do not represent your christened name.

Avoid cold after bathing in winter

COLD SPRAY ADVISABLE FOLLOWING A HOT BATH

I HAVE received so many inquiries regarding the procedure of bathing during the cold weather that I believe this article will prove interesting to my readers.

Today's mail brought a letter from a woman informing me that when she bathes in the morning before going to business, she invariably contracts a cold in the head, and that if she changes the routine and takes her bath just before retiring, she has difficulty in sleeping. This sometimes happens. When a person is not doing laborious work, this mild stimulation is likely to freshen him at bedtime or excite the nerves to the point where getting to sleep is difficult. I suggested that this lady do some exercise and take her bath before dinner. This will give her several hours before bedtime, and the mild exercise will react against the invigoration of the bath.

In regard to getting cold after the morning bath, I am quite sure this is due chiefly to taking a hot bath and not finishing up with a cold spray. On cold mornings people prefer a nice, warm bath and are a little afraid of using cold water after it. If we will go through our daily exercises upon arising, we will have started the tone of the circulation and created enough natural heat in the body so that we will be better able to stand the shock of cold water after the hot or warm bath than if we were to step right into the hot bath without having done our exercises.

Hot baths, like ray bath or Turkish baths, have a tendency to open up our pores, and while elimination from the pores is essential to good health, we must take the necessary precautions to see that our pores are properly closed before we expose our bodies to the cold air out-of-doors. Therefore, if we will wind up our bath with a cold spray or shower, our bodies will not be likely to catch cold, since cold water serves to close the pores.

LUNCHEON: Creamed soup. Any kind of plain salad. Glass of milk. Baked apple with cream or any stewed fruit. Rice, tapioca or farina pudding. Two glasses of water between luncheon and dinner.

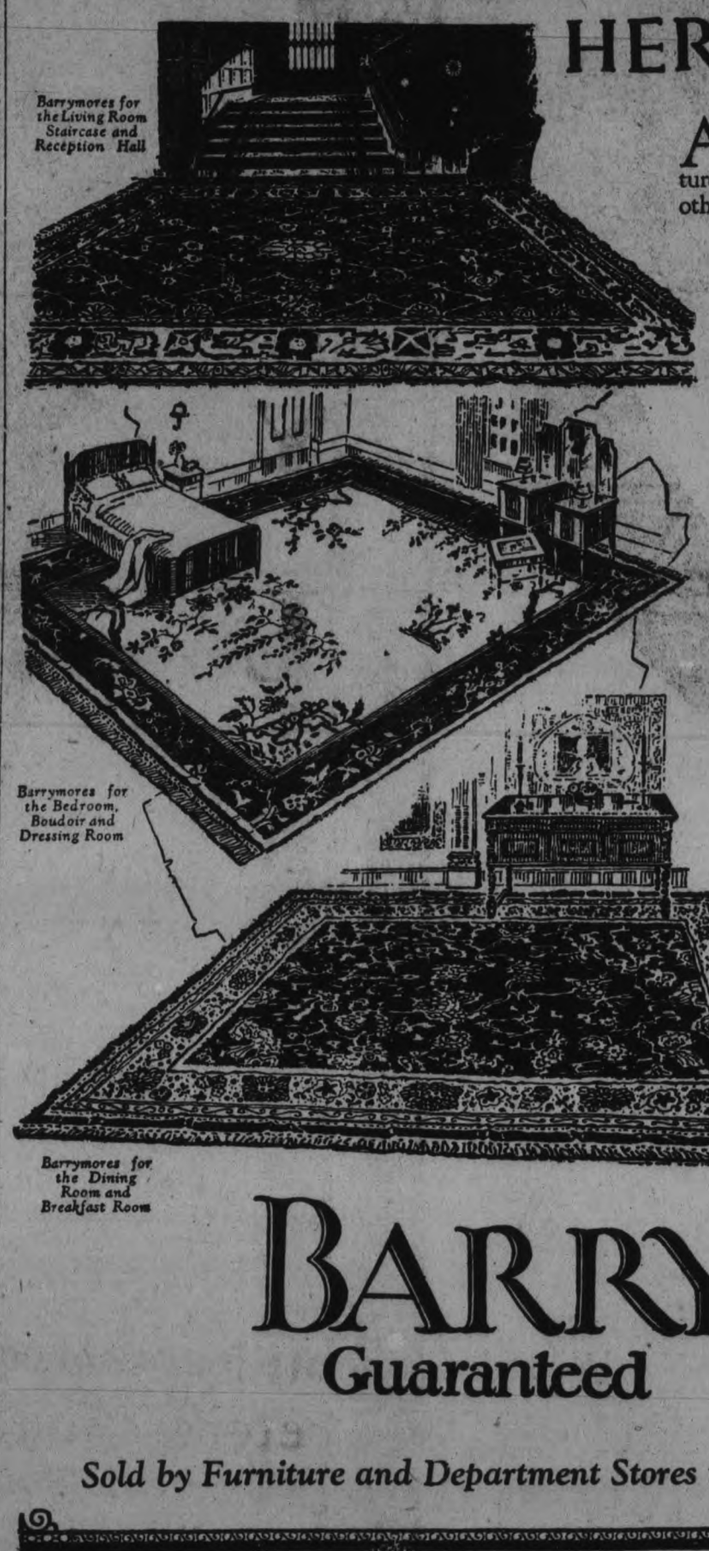
BARRYMORE

This is BARRYMORE WEEK HERE AND EVERYWHERE



Barrymores for the Living Room Staircase and Reception Hall

Barrymores for the Bedroom, Boudoir and Dressing Room

Barrymores for the Dining Room and Breakfast Room

ALL this week BARRYMORE Guaranteed RUGS will be on display in the windows and in the rug departments of furniture, departmental and dry goods stores in this city and in every other city and town in Canada.

Rich in beauty, long in wear, but moderate in price

BARRYMORE Guaranteed RUGS possess that precious element, "individuality", the intangible quality of a rug which lifts it from the commonplace. Throughout the whole selection of BARRYMORE RUGS this quality is ever-present, finding its expression in delicate nuances of shade and tone and in the masterly way the lovely colors are blended in the designs.

But do not judge a BARRYMORE by its beauty alone. Examine the texture of the rug closely. Finger the pile—thick, even and upstanding. Note the firmness, the weight, the perfection of weaving. All these qualities are of vital importance, for they provide—THE WEAR! And while a BARRYMORE is woven to provide a lifetime of wear, it is luxurious and velvety to the tread.

There are BARRYMORE Guaranteed RUGS for every home, be it the little bungalow or the great palatial mansion. In the wide BARRYMORE range are Wilton and Axminster rugs in all standard sizes; there are designs and patterns at prices to meet with every household budget.

Every BARRYMORE is Guaranteed against defects in weaving, dyes and workmanship. The full guarantee is plainly printed on a label to be found on the back of every genuine BARRYMORE RUG.

You are invited to see the showing of BARRYMORES in new colorings and designs on display in the stores this week.

The Rug Salesman will show you the Barrymore Guarantee Label affixed to the back of every genuine Barrymore Guaranteed Rug.

CANADIAN LABOR AND BUSINESS

stitutions in the United States annually.

The total value of prison-made clothes, furniture, etc., was over $76,000,000. This Government report showed that the Reliance Manufacturing Co. had a contract to make goods by prison labor, in plants built within prison enclosures.

Hire Cheap Labor.

Mr. Sparks said that "there was perhaps nothing the United States had so affected politics as this question of prison labor." Wholesale corruption went on, he said. Some 50,000 people could be hired out at less than a dollar a day. They earn about $6 a day, said Mr. Sparks. A good part of the ready-to-wear smuggled into Canada is prison-made, he asserted. The Reliance Manufacturing Company might assert that it did not sell prison-made goods in Canada, but the fact remained, he said, that somebody was doing so.

Hon. R. D. Bennett commented that of the States where prison contract labor had not been ablished through the State Legislture, some New England States were the potential source of smuggled prison made goods. The cotton goods which were being smuggled though Rock Island, Que., might come within that category.

Binder twine, brooms and wisks are also made by prison labor in the United States.

In the course of the investigation which his association made into smuggling, he was forbidden, said Mr. Sparks, to go to Rock Island. Co-operating with the Customs Department, he was allowed to look into conditions in Toronto, Windsor or Montreal, but he might not go to Rock Island.

"Who forbade you to go to Rock Island?" he was asked.

"W. F. Wilson, chief of the preventive service," replied Mr. Sparks.

"Mr. Wilson himself was not allowed to go to Rock Island," interjected Gordon Henderson, counsel for the association.

"Why?" asked one of the committee.

"Because J. E. A. Bisaillon was in charge there," said Mr. Sparks. This was in 1924, he said.

Factory on Boundary.

One of the suspender factories at Reebe, Que., added Mr. Sarks, so straddled the boundary tha goods could be passed through on door in United States territory and passed out through another door which was in Canadian territory.

Mr. Sparks asserted tha a man named Jenkins at this par of the border had ordered $11000 of prison-made goods in one consignment for sale in Canada. He reported this matter to Hon. Jacques Bureau, then Minister of Customs. The culprits were caught but not prosecuted. They were released on payment of a fine of $5,000.

The report on prison-made goods brought down by the auditors on Monday, said Mr. Sparks, showed that 56 tons of prison-made garments had been brought through Rock Island. If the auditors could find that out, why could not the Customs Department?

Hon. Geo. Boivin, Minister of Customs, said that bulletin has been issued in December, 1924, drawing attention to the law forbidding the importation of prison-made goods into Canada. Any prison-made goods sold in Canada must have been brought in previous to that notification.

The Minister said that the evidence given by Mr. Sparks indicated that the Reliance Manufacturing Company were "so linked up with prison-made goods that anything made by them should be barred."

Mr. Sparks said that all the goods were smuggled anyway as regulations were not keeping them out.

Mr. Boivin commented that the difficulty is that we cannot summon United States firms to prove that these prison-made goods are being marketed." He thought that if the Reliance people did not want to send a representative to testify before the committee, then written communications should not be accepted by the committee as proof of innocence in the matter.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEAGUE ANNUAL AT BAILIEBORO

Winter's Meetings Were Well Attended—Rev. W. H. Foley Presided.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Fred Barnard Chosen President For the Current Year.

BAILIEBORO, April 13. — The Young People's League of the United church held their annual meeting on Tuesday evening, with the hon. president, Rev. W. H. Foley, presiding. At the conclusion of the devotional exercises, the reports of the various officers for the past year were received and all proved very satisfactory. The president's report went to show that during the winter the weekly meetings had been carried on every Tuesday evening during the winter season, and there was not one meeting that had to be cancelled on account of not enough members being present to carry on the meeting, and on the stormiest nights, there would be an attendance of between twenty and thirty members present. The secretary's report proved that there was on the roll a membership of forty-eight, with an average attendance of twenty-eight. The treasurer's report proved that all the bills were settled for, and there was a balance on hand of over seven dollars.

The officers for the ensuing year were then elected as follows: Honorary president, Rev. W. H. Foley; president, Fred Barnard; secretary, Geddas Harper; treasurer, Norman Earle; organist, Miss Jean Dawson; assistant organist, Miss Kathleen Bateman; 1st vice-president of the Christ Endeavour Department, John Porter; 2nd vice-president of the Missionary Department, Mrs. J. Members appointed to take up the offering and distribute hymn books and Bible were Miss Dorothy Falls and Alymer Dawson.

ONE HOUR'S HAPPY WORK SHOULD BE DOLLAR BASIS, SAYS SPEAKER AT OTTAWA ROTARY CLUB LUNCH

Money Must be Free From the Element of Tribute.

HOWARD S. ROSS, K.C.

Problem of Production Conquered—Distribution Requires Solution.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Production has been conquered and the problem now to be mastered is that of distribution, said Howard S. Ross, K.C., of Montreal, in addressing the Rotary Club here yesterday. Mr. Ross said the pressing need is an economic plan under which all may, by applying energy to the natural resources, under conditions of equal freedom and equal opportunity, easily supply their material wants with time left also to de elop their intellectual and spiritual powers.

Mr. Ross urged it is not a question of distribution of wealth, but the equitable distribution of our work which will automatically distribute equitably the proceeds of our work. Under such a system, he maintained, the condition would be removed that inevitably makes the satisfaction of human needs a hazardous enterprise.

Wasteful Conflict.

Inventions and discoveries would not be used then for destructive ends, but for the upbuilding of a worthy civilization. There would not then be the stupid spectacle of unemployment because of superabundance of goods. Enlightened self-interest should urge the adoption of a plan under which none would be at a disadvantage. Until that time there will be wasteful conflict. A method of exchange must be found based upun acts of production, rather than upon acts of legislatures, which are too often, said Mr. Ross, merely a substitute for work.

To have peace and prosperity money must be free from the tribute element. The basis of the dollar should be one hour of adult human work, he maintained; not work as we know it now, but rather useful, pleasant service. This, said Mr. Ross, would abolish the profit incentive, and allow the merit incentive to work, and it would be as easy for one as for the other, to share in the bounty of nature.

Work as the Basis.

"A just plan is the only really practicable plan," he maintained. Human work, he added, applied to the free bounty of nature is what keeps the world going. So it is not logical that the person who postpones payment should issue the money—a check—which would be a receipt for the hours of work stored in the article purchased, and a promise to give an equal number of hours of work to the holder in due course of the check. Such checks would meet in mutual banks and cancel each other, and the whole object then of trade and business would be carried out, that of exchanging one's work, or rather the enjoyable service, and allowing the bounty of the creator to pass to the ultimate consumer free of tribute, the work-unit dollar having no command power, but merely a purchasing power.

Two Hours a Day.

Mr. Ross declared that two hours a day of useful work by each adult will supply all material needs if all the work is properly applied. He claimed that such a dollar as he advocates would have a value of at least fifty dollars of our present "result unit dollar."

FORM A "HOT DOG" UNION.

BERLIN, April 13.—Berlin's few remaining nocturnal purveyors of "hot dogs" have organized a union. The membership holds a virtual monopoly of the sale of the frankfurter and roll combination and will attempt to increase the outdoor sale of this staple.

Henceforth persons coming from theatres or movies will find vendors dressed in white near the entrance advertising that the sausages in the nickel kettle not only are stuffed "with fresh beef and pork," but that the vendors are members of the "Union of Night Sausage Dispensers."

5 corns removed by Radox

The stabbing, throbbing pain of a corn will always continue until you remove the cause of the trouble—the root of the corn. Plastering or cutting will not get rid of them. But a few Radox foot-baths will enable any corn to be lifted out root and all. A Radox user writes:

"I can say from experience that Radox is far superior to any other Bath Salts on the market. I have had bad feet ever since I can remember, and have tried dozens of preparations without success. About a week ago I decided to give Radox a test. The result was wonderful. After 15 minutes' immersion, I was able to remove my corn, root and all."

14th July, 1925. P. N.

When you put your feet into a foot-bath containing Radox the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right to the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily. This life-giving oxygen leaves the feet clean and healthy. Because it is the oxygen which carries the corn solvents to the root of the corn, and because Radox liberates, by test, more oxygen than any other salts, it is obvious that Radox is more efficient in removing corns than any other salts.

On your way home tonight, buy a package at the druggist's. 60c. Half pound Pink Pkg.

REMOVING ENGINE OR BODY

As the private garage is not equipped with a hoist, a good method for removing engine or body is to jack the whole car as high as possible. Remove all bolts. Fasten the body or engine with ropes to the roof beams or joists. Then lower the car to the floor and roll out the chassis.

Victoria Progressives Defer Action at Saturday Conference.

LINDSAY, April 12—A meeting of Progressives of South Victoria was held here on Saturday when matters pertaining to the future of the organization in this riding came up for consideration. It was thought that the question of calling a convention at an early date for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the riding in the Progressive interests at the next Provincial election should be discussed but it was left over until after the Progressive convention to be held in Toronto on April 14th.

During the afternoon the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, the present government, though elected upon a programme of economy, has proved to be the most extravagant administration in the history of our Province:

And whereas, the will of the people, as expressed by the ballot, has not been carried out by the present Government, who ruthlessly set at defiance the principle of responsible government:

Whereas, the investigations carried on during the past three years by the present Government have not been pressed to satisfactory conclusions, and the electorate has now lost confidence in the honor and sincerity of those occupying positions of supreme authority, be it resolved that a strong delegation from South Victoria be selected to attend the convention held by the Progressive party in the city of Toronto on April 14th, and there express the sentiments of the electors of this riding."

CRIMINAL CAREER BROUGHT TO AN END

Young Bandit Commits Thefts Valued Over $100,000 Around Kingston.

KINGSTON, April 13. — Duane Wagar, aged 26, whose home is in Enterprise, Ont., and who a few weeks ago made a sensational escape from the county jail here, where he was awaiting his removal to the penitentiary, to serve a three year term for robbing the post office at Verona, Ont., was rounded up at Watertown, N.Y., and the police in that city state that he has confessed to a series of theft of money and merchandise in that district totalling over $100,000.

After the Lewis County New York state officials are through with him he will be handed over to the American government who will prosecute him for entering the Beaver Falls post office. Then he will be returned to Kingston to serve his term for theft and no doubt will have an additional sentence to serve for breaking jail. Wagar has a long criminal record for his age.

RASPBERRIES SHOULD BE SET OUT AS SOON IN SPRING AS CONDITION OF GROUND WILL PERMIT WORK

Late Set Plants Rarely Do Well and Many Die Off.

TRIM OLD CANES

They Are Usually Diseased and Affect the Young Shoots.

Raspberries would be more popular with farm folks but for the rather unpleasant work of taking care of even a few plants for home use. The fruit ripens during the hot, dry period of the summer, which makes it necessary to keep the plants well supplied with moisture. This can be done in two ways: either by keeping the patch continually hoed and cultivated, or by covering the entire surface of the ground around the plants and between the rows as well with a heavy mulch of straw.

The straw can be applied any time during the winter and takes the place of both the hoe and the cultivator, tools which must be operated not only during a busy season on the farm, but at a time when this additional hard, hot work always detracts quite a bit from the pleasures of the prospective raspberry shortcake or raspberry jam.

Care During First Season.

The first year plants are set, cultivate and keep them well hoed. This can be done easily and quickly while the plants are still small. During the following winter or spring cover the patch with a heavy coat of manure and apply about a foot of straw over the manure. It is a good plan to push back the straw well from around each plant during the winter months to avoid danger of injury to the canes by mice. A fresh application of straw will be needed each winter, but this short, easy operation will take the place of all summer hoeing and cultivating.

Raspberries do best on rich garden soil, and even with ground of average fertility it is best to apply a good dressing of barnyard manure before preparing the soil for planting.

Good Varieties.

Cumberland and Plum Farmer are two leading varieties of black raspberries. Of the red varieties, Loudon and King are popular varieties, with Latham a coming variety. All plants should be ordered early plant just as soon in the spring as soil conditions will permit. Late-set plants rarely do well in fact, a high percentage fail to start growth at all.

One very important point to keep in mind in perparing a raspberry plant for setting is to remove all of the old cane down to just above the crown of the plant. The old is useless except for a convenient handle to carry the plant, and is nearly always infected with anthracnose. If it is not removed, the young shoots which come from the tip of the crown are immediately infected with the disease from the old stub. Anthracnose is probably the greatest enemy of the raspberry, and usually cuts down the normal lifetime of the patch as well as its fruitfulness. For this reason it is especially important to prevent its getting an early start among the newly set plants.

After removing this old stub the crowns should be placed in a trench so that the tip of the crown is at least four or five inches below the surface of the ground. Pull in enough dirt to cover the crown about two inches. When the young shoots get a good start, more dirt can be worked into the trench until it is finally level-full. Deep planting holds the crown and root system well below the surface of the ground and keeps the plant from heaving up during the fall and spring months.

The commercial grower of raspberries has found that he must apply a delayed dormant spray just as the leaves are first showing green. Use liquid lime sulphur, one gallon to ten of water, or dry lime sulphur, three pounds to ten gallons or a good prepared spray at this time. This spray, if thoroughly applied so that the entire surface of every cane is covered, will be a big help in holding anthracnose in check and is sure death to rose scale, which is frequently very injurious to raspberry plantations.

The small home patch will often fruit nicely for a number of years without being seriously bothered by either of these troubles, especially if the stubs of the old canes are carefully removed when the plants are set.

The small home patch will often fruit nicely for a number of years without being seriously bothered by either of these troubles, especially if the stubs of the old canes are carefully removed when the plants are set.

R. O. P. TESTING OF PURE BRED CATTLE

Number of Entries Has Grown Every Year Since Institution.

The record of performance tests of purebred dairy cattle, conducted by the livestock branch of the department of agriculture, at Ottawa, has grown in popularity year by year since it was commenced twenty years ago. Entries during the past fiscal year, according to the latest report of the minister of agriculture, amounted to 5,760, made up of 1,640 Ayrshires, 2 Brown Swiss, 220 French-Canadian, 180 Guernseys, 2,068 Holstein-Freisians, 1,090 Jerseys, 73 Red Polls and 497 Shorthorns. The number of certificates issued during the year slightly exceeded 2,000 and included 84 bulls that qualified by reason of the production of their offspring. Under the rules recently established an owner must enter all the untested purebred cows of his herd instead of including only a small number of the highest milkers that formerly were often provided with exceptional treatment in care and feeding. The latest report of his work, which is numbered 17, now ready for distribution by the publication branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa, gives the records of all the cows which qualified for registration during the period of April 1, 1924, to March 31, 1925.

The Crow

Jack Miner, the friend of all feathered creation,
A human philanthropist, guarding the nation
From coming extinction of bird life—although
He has fathered the slogan, "The Crow, He Must Go."

Jack Miner is right, for the crow is a pest,
The enemy cruel of each song bird's nest;
Of the crow there is nought to admire or praise,
Excepting his plumage and impudent ways.

He's a pirate of corn fields, in seed and in shock,
He covers the country, a buccaneer flock;
He is not good to eat, his ways are erratic,
He can't sing, for his voice is like radio static.

Mush-headed humanists may wail o'er his woes,
And censure Jack Miner for his war on the crows;
They'd have him restrained by strict legislation,
But the first law of nature is self-preservation.

It will take many "cages" like Miner's, you know,
To have any material effect on the crow;
For, like all other pests, either bug, beast or weed,
'Twill be many long years ere of crows we are freed.

So here's to Jack Miner—back him up all you can,
He works for our interests, each woman and man,
For the future welfare of On—tario
Let us shout with Jack Miner, "The Crow, He Must Go."

FARMERS FOUND WORK EASIER IN RECENT WINTER

Plenty of Rain in Fall Made It Unnecessary To Haul Water.

AT BAILIEBORO.

Chores, Wood Cutting, and Odd Jobs Provide Enough For Winter.

BAILIEBORO, April 13—Although the rainy weather during last fall and also this winter, at times, made it difficult for one to retain a cheery disposition, still the farmers are the class of the people who have benefited from these rains, and they have been almost invaluable in having kept the springs high during the cold months of winter, as well as having kept the wells and cisterns bountifully provided with water.

For some years a great number of the farmers of this district have had to make their winter's work, equally as heavy as their summer's work, by having to haul water two or three miles for their stock, or else drive their stock the same distance every day.

Winter is the season when the hard-working farmer naturally tries to take life as easy as possible, so that when King Winter passes by, he will feel strong and able for the heavy summer's labor. Of course there are plenty of chores, and odd jobs to be done, such as cutting the summer's wood, and hauling gravel for statute labor, hauling out the grain, and getting the barnyard manure out upon the root fields and summer fallow, as well as attending to the farm stock which takes no little time, all of these jobs keep the farmer in exercise, and from becoming lazy during the long winter months. So, when this winter arrived with its abundance of rain to fill the wells and cisterns, and raise the springs, the farmers of this district breathed a sigh of relief and, during this winter the farmers have been able to dispense with this hard abour of hauling water to water their farm stock.

Farmers state that it is very difficult to fatten cattle, if they have to drive them a considerable distance to obtain water, and then they only get a drink once a day. Young cattle require exercise when being fattened, but not too much exercise, to reduce their flesh, and also plenty of good water.

BUYS YOUNG BULL.

Bayview Shorthorn Herd Now Numbers 40 Accredited Animals.

F. Scollard, Bayview stock farm, Ennismore, recently added to his herd of Shorthorns, Bloomingdale Champion from Bloomingdale stock farm, Waterloo, Ont. This young bull is closely related to Melody the Seventh, which holds the R. O. P. record of the United States for Shorthorns with a total of over 21,000 pounds of milk in one year.

Mr. Scollard has an accredited herd of some forty head and is one of the principal Shorthorn breeders of the country.

SUGAR BEAT BOOM.

Indications Show a Large Increase in the Beet Acreage.

RAYMOND, Alta. (Canadian Press). —Prospects point to a decided boom in the sugar beet industry centering in this district. Present indications are that the beet acreage will be greatly enlarged and canvassers report satisfactory response to their campaign for new contracts.

The first contract for 1926 was signed by J. W. Evans of Raymond and provides for a rate of $ .00 per ton gross. This is the same price as prevailed a year ago.

Beware of Hazards on the Farm

The silent, open spaces of the country have their dangers and take their toll of deaths and injuries, as do the busy, noisy factories and mills of the city.

There are fires on the farm, there is machinery and there are sharp tools and unsteady animals just as dangerous as the grinding gears of the factory and the speeding automobiles of the city streets.

As a warning to the farmer and his country folk, therefore, the Delaware Safety Council and Marian L. Telford, field secretary of the National Safety Council, have issued instructions for making the country safe for its inhabitants.

"It is estimated that annually 4000 agricultural fatalities occur and that there are 80,000 major and minor accidents among farm people," says Miss Telford.

"Carelessness, overwork and child labor probably cause the majority of accidents," she adds. "Farm hands fail to throw a machine out of gear or fail to unhitch their team before they begin to adjust the machine."

Four Kinds of Trouble.

Miss Telford puts the hazards of the farm into four classes: building hazards, mechanical hazards, animal hazards and recreational hazards.

Under building hazards she lists: insufficient lightning protection, ungrounded telephone wires and wire fences, defective chimneys and flues, hot air furnaces and stoves, wooden roofs, kerosene and other oil lighting, matches left carelessly about, smoking in barns, sparks from locomotives, spontaneous combustion in hay and grain.

In addition, she includes falls from poorly built ladders, slippery steps, unprotected chutes and dark, cluttered passage ways.

Livestock Unsafe.

Mechanical hazards include all resulting from carelessness with movable machinery, open gears and unhitched horses. Small tools with loose handles or sharp-cutting edges also cause such hazards.

Farmers know the dangers of working with livestock—the fretful horse, the nervous bull and even the apparently quiet cow during milking. Miss Telford warns workers of these animals and their vagaries, and insists on the importance of extreme care in handling all animals.

Play in the country is as dangerous as in the city, she points out, and she sets forth the hazards of auto driving, of fishing, swimming, hunting and even the peaceful gatherings in country schoolhouses, where there is still danger of fire.

For all these she has a general warning of safety.

"Adjustments on machines," she advises, "should not be made while the machines are in motion. All possible adjustments should be made before the horses are attached. Vicious horses should not be used, particularly by children.

"All equipment should be inspected regularly and kept in good repair. Children should not be allowed to work or play around animals or machinery."

SPRING BACKWARD IN MANY WAYS STILL BRIGHT POINTS ARE NOTED

Farmers Can't Get on Land Yet—Sugar Run Poor.

CROPS PROTECTED

Bumper Harvest of Hay and Grain Are Looked For.

BURNBRAE, April 13.—The early spring of 1926 will be long remembered as one of the most backward on record. March roared out with the heaviest snowstorm of the winter and Easter week bears a strong resemblance to Christmas as regards weather conditions.

"The poorest sugar season in years" is the general concensus of opinion regarding the maple industry. Only one fair run lasting about two days has been obtained and that during the last week of March. Easter week, always considered the big sugar week, has been a dismal failure and a maple sugar and syrup famine looks certain unless a miracle happens soon.

In the ordinary course of events, local farmers are plowing and sometimes even seeding by the end of the first week in April, but spring cultivation seems as remote as the poles with over a foot of snow covering the ground and the frost not all out yet. Often, too, the first part of April is used as a general house-cleaning season on the farm, as a time to finish splitting and piling wood, repair and build new fences and generally gather up the rubbish around the place. But with a wintry covering over all and still more snow falling all this has to be delayed and the routine of chores goes on uninterrupted. What a rush there will be when it does open up!

There are some bright spots to this snowfall, however. It will prove an excellent covering for the wheat and clover and with fairly favorable conditions during May this season should see another bumper hay and wheat crop. Then, too, farmers are taking advantage of the extra sleighing to draw their grain to the mill and lay in a supply of feed so that when the rush comes they will not be handicapped. The millers and feed-store men are surely busy these days.

There seems to be a fairly good supply of spring feed on hand to put the cows through to the grass. With few exceptions, local farmers have an ample supply of good roughage, thanks to alfalfa and red clover. Grain seems to be fairly plentiful also and at the low prices quoted this spring for feed grains, everyone should be able to have a generous supply.

Dairy cattle have wintered well, due partly to the absence of severe weather, and are beginning this season under favorable conditions. Generally, cows are freshening later this year than in some years past, and this condition has helped to keep up the prices of local dairy products. While some cheese factories are opening up at the usual time, several are holding back till the middle of the month.

A particularly healthy sign is the increased demand for good seed. Farmers who have good seed grain to sell report a large trade. Farmers in the Burnbrae district have always stood high in the Seymour crop competitions and with a more general distribution of this good seed, a much better class of crops should be seen during the coming summer.

Several farmers, attracted by the fairly high hog prices, are raising large litters of pigs, and although there seems to be almost an oversupply of pigs, yet the prices are high and several sales are reported.

CATTLE OWNED BY W. F. FALLIS MAKE GOOD SHOWING IN R. O. P.

Alice Vale Rauwad Leads With 4.1 Per Cent of Butter Fat.

ALL HOLSTEINS

Dutch Immigrant Brought First Holsteins to This Continent.

MILLBROOK, April 13.—The following is the official report of R. O. P. test of pure-bred Holstein cattle on farm of W. Fred Fallis, conducted last week by Inspector Owen, of Guelph:

Alice Vale Rauwad, 4.1 per cent Jean Rauwad Alice, 3.9 Mercene Content Vale, 3.6 Lulu Alice, 3.5 Alice Vale Korndyke, 3.4 Alice Vale, 3.2 Rauwad Alice, 3.1.

Signed by W. C. Owen, Inspector, 8 Victoria street, Guelph.

The Record of Performance test is solely for butter fat content, and has nothing to do with the tuberculin test applied when an accredited herd is being established.

In this connection it is interesting to note that history accords the honor of bringing the first Holstein-Fresian cow to America to Joachim Pietersen Kuyter, a prominent resident of New Amsterdam. The British seized this city in 1664 and renamed it New York, in honor of the Duke of York, afterward James II.

About the middle of the 17th century Kuyter came to America and settled along the Harlem River. He had brought at least one cow with him, and some of the latest agricultural implements, and where his pioneer Holstein grazed is now the junction of East 129th Street and Third Avenue, New York City. Kuyter Park is named to keep green his memory, but the honor was apparently not on account of his being the initial importer of Holstein cattle, nor his success as a pioneer farmer, but because he at one time commanded the local militia forces.

If data connected with his name is reliable, Kuyter was murdered by the Indians in 1654.

Defender Found For "Jim Crow" Who Is Meat Eater

John Archer, Veteran Farmer, Speaks Up For Blackie

Amid the almost universal chorus of denunciation, John Archer, the veteran farmer of the Fourth Line of Smith, comes forward with a word of defence on behalf of the crow. Speaking from over sixty years of active life on the land, Mr. Archer declares that the crow is more often a meat eater than a grain eater. It is a common sight, he said, to see dozens of crows following the plough feeding on the grubs and worms that are unearthed. That Jim Crow occasionally varies his diet by a meal of grain, especially corn, Mr. Archer freely admits, but he considers that the destruction by the crow of harmful insects more than outweights its toll of grain. The crow preys on the corn borer, the most destructive foe to the crop, and if occasionally it turned aside from its pursuit of the borer to dine on the corn, this departure from the straight and narrow path should not be laid too severely to its charge. Mr. Archer dissents from the view that the crow is the most relentless foe of the smaller song birds and their eggs. The blackbird he says, is a much greater sinner in this respect.

Flowers For Farm Gardens

PLANTING ROSES.

(By Henry J. Moore.)

The best soil for roses is a clay loam. A very heavy clay, however, may be so improved by the addition of stable manure, leaf soil and a little sand, as to grow the most beautiful flowers. A light sandy soil may also, by incorporating a sufficient quantity of clay loam, or in the case of extremely light soils, a quantity of pure brown clay and organic matter, be rendered satisfactory.

Clay loams are usually cool in summer. This is ideal soil condition for root growth of roses. They are also retentive of moisture, this being essential for the production of strong flowering growth. Dark-colored humic soils are during summer warm and unsuited to the rose. They absorb and retain the sun's heat to a greater extent than light-colored clay loams. Roses will not do well in a soil which is light in weight or coarsely porous in nature.

Time to Plant.

Roses are deciduous shrubs and may be planted after the leaves fall in autumn or before they form in spring. In mild winter localities late October is a good time at which to plant. Spring planting (April or early May) is best, however, in extremely cold localities. Under favorable conditions fall planting has some advantages. Where the spring seasons are short and warm weather approaches rapidly, roses start into growth quickly, therefore, if late in planting the growth is checked. If, however, the plants were in their positions in good time, whether fall or spring planted, they would renew their dormant life without a serious setback. As the young roots are formed they should grow unrestricted, and undisturbed.

Position.

Roses should not be planted in positions where the drainage is not good. Wet and soggy soil conditions invariably mean failure. Do not, therefore, plant them on low-lying portions of the garden, unless the drainage is satisfactory. Often in these positions, and under the forementioned condition, the soil will become sour through non-aeration. Roses will not live long in such soils.

Roses should be planted in a more or less sheltered position and in an open sunny one. A satisfactory distance from a house or other structure or planting of shrubs for instance will be ideal if sheltered from the north and east winds during winter. The roses require a cool atmosphere during summer as well as a cool soil for the perfect development of stems and of flowers. Full exposure to atmospheric conditions during summe is desirable, except perhaps from strong prevailing winds.

The proper distance apart for hybrid perpetuals is three feet and for hybrid tea roses two feet. The roots should be well spread out when planting and the plants be well firmed in the soil. The point at which the roses are budded (union of stock and scion) should be covered with two inches of soil, therefore, plant the bushes deeply enough to allow of this.

Preparing the Beds.

Prepare the beds or borders during Fall whether you intend planting the roses in October or spring. If this was not done, do it during March or early April. If the ground is new, trench or dig it to a depth of eighteen inches, and work in a little rotted stable manure, preferably cow manure. Heavy applications of such manure should not be applied to the soil in which roses are to be planted at once. It should not touch the roots. It may have a worse effect upon fall planted than upon spring planted ones. Considerable quantities of liquid manure (urine) from it may saturate the soil and prove very harmful to the roses, which must remain in it all through the winter while in a dormant state. Newly-planted roses are incapable of absorbing the food solutions until new feeding roots are formed, and the plants become re-established. A good application of lea soil will, if the soil be heavy, lighten it and add to its fertility.

POULTRY DANGERS.

Chickens, of all farm stock, are most likely to suffer from nutritional ailments or diseases under practical farm conditions. Because of the nature of their digestive tracts chickens must get rations composed largely of seeds and seed by-product feeds that are poorly balanced with respect to minerals, protein and vitamine.

POOR QUALITY EGGS.

Poor hatches of chicks may be due to the egg Abnormally large or small eggs, misshaped eggs, or eggs with thin shells or shells of poor texture will not hatch well, and therefore should not be set. It is also unwise to set tinted eggs, or eggs that weigh less than two ounces.

TRANSPORTATION HELPS.

Better transportation has helped farmers to solve the problem of surplus. Excellent transportation lines by rail and highway have opened new markets to farmers and helped them to get rid of crops which would otherwise be valueless to them.

THE BEST ROAD

I've toured north, I've toured south,
I've toured east and west,
But there's one road I always like
A hundred times the best.

It's nice to tour through all the states,
O'er hill, through valley roam,
But after all the road I love
Is that which leads towards home.

RODENTS DESTRUCTIVE.

"Mice and rabbits destroy thousands of dollars worth of young fruit trees every winter," says C. L. Kuchner of the Wisconsin Agricultural College. According to this specialist trees under 10 years old are most frequently injured.

DUSTING KILLS MILDEW.

Dusting clover, affected with mildew, with a finely powdered sulphur at the rate of 15 pounds per acre, has been found to be an effective means of controlling this fungus disease. Applications are made when the clover is from five to eight inches high.

RAISING OF PURE BRED STOCK IS REAL BUSINESS NECESSITY TO HAVE SUCCESS AS FARMER

Forty Per Cent. More Profitable Than Scrub Animals.

SOME PITFALLS.

Good Stock of Favorite Variety Of District Needed.

The raising of improved livestock is not a "game," nor a rich man's hobby; it is a practical farmer's business necessity. Pure-breds are 40 to 50 per cent more profitable than scrubs, according to the established facts of experience.

The registered livestock business is as sound and practical as the growing of a crop from improved seed.

Despite the crass and thievish abuses to which the stock-breeding business during its late "boom" was subjected by some breeders, a few auctioneers, and many farmers who bought or sold as gamblers, it is stronger, cleaner and more useful to practical farmers than it has ever been before. Conservative men who were in it then are in now. They did not lose their heads when the temptation to speculate was well-nigh irresistible. Prosperity is a more searching test than poverty of the character of men. Breeders who stood the test came through the deflating, and are the bulwarks of the industry today. They are in the business as practical farmers. They like it, stick to it, make money, and own the best farms in their communities. The coming demand for breeding stock will be so strong and widespread that they will be abundantly rewarded.

It is obvious, therefore, that there is room in the business for hundreds of new men, who like it and are circumstanced to get into it. Now is the most favorable time that I have known for young farmers modestly and prudently to get in and grow up with the business, whether they desire to conduct it as a practical sideline or as a major farm specialty.

It is never a good time for a man of moderate means to jump or plunge into any business Our most successful and constructive breeders are men who when young began in a small way to build up purebred herds, flocks and studs. Their experience is the lamp by which young beginners today may safely be guided.

Every young farmer who aspires to be a stock breeder would do well to ask and answer several questions. Do I like the work connected with the personal handling and management of purebred stock? Am I qualified by experience, training and temperament to engage in it? Is my farm, with its equipment, crop production, pastures and water supply, adapted to the carrying of a purebred herd, flock or stud? Am I in a favorable location to market purebred stock. Could I do much business in my own community, county or province? Can I grow plenty of feed every year in my climate? And likely in a few years to be in a position to exhibit stock at the fairs and shows, advertise in the livestock and farm press, and handle business correspondence in a businesslike way? What would I do and whom should I consult in cases of accidents and outbreaks of disease? What do I know about breeds, breeding, feeds and feeding? Should I raise hogs, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep, horses, or goat?

The beginner, young or old, is wise who selects his foundation stock from an established breeder in his own district. He is wiser still if he chooses a breed predominates or is gaining the ascendency in his own community. By so doing he can progress more rapidly in the business, get advice more quickly, learn more rapidly, and market his stock more satisfactorily than would be possible if he were to choose a locally unpopular breed.

The most successful purebred stock-raising in the future will be a community enterprise. It doesn't pay to be an individualistic crank in the selection of a breed, and to ignore community sentiment in conducting a business. If a man has plenty of money and egotism he may raise buffalos in a community where most farmers raise Jerseys or Herefords. But what's the use? It's all right to be an individual with a will, convictions, ideas and ideals, "but don't be a fool."

An honest, energetic young breeder endowed with brains, courage, faith and grit is not likely to fall into many pits, and there is no pit, outside of a cemetery, that he cannot get out of if he should fall into it. Business life is a process of struggling out of pits in order to know how to stand firmly for brief moments on an endless series of peaks when they are attained. When we are content to stand or sit, and quit struggling for higher peaks, we are ready for the cemetery pit.

Gasoline Flavor Of Cream Caused By Engine Fumes

Dairy farmers who operate their cream separators with gasoline engines hould take the strictest precautions to avoid a gasoline flavor in the cream and butter. This advice is given in a revised bulletin on butter making just issued by the department of agriculture at Ottawa. In order to prevent the absorption of gasoline flavor by cream all possibility of the entrance of fumes from the engine exhaust into the separator must be avoided. This can be done by having a tight connection between the engine and exhaust pipe and by directing the pipe through the roof instead of through the wall, thereby making certain that the fumes will be blown away from the cream no matter what the direction of the wind. There should be a tight wooden partition between the separator and the engine and, if possible, the separtaor should be between the direction of the most prevalent winds and the engine. The operator should take great care to avoid carrying gasoline odors on his hands and clothing, and gasoline should never be placed in a cream can, milk pail, or other dairying utensil.

GRAIN DRILL IS SUITABLE FOR SOWING ALFALFA

Wheat Is Best To Mix In For Even Seeding.

AS NURSE CROP.

When Sown Alone Some Inert Mixture Is Necessary.

Directions, or rather advice, given by S. J. Sigfusson of Brandon in his bulletin on "Alfalfa in Manitoba" relative to methods of seeding may be summarized as follows:—

The ordinary grain drill, without a seeder attachment, can be satisfactorily used for seeding alfalfa, whether sown alone or with a nurse crop.

Keep the seed well stirred in the grain box to prevent uneven seeding and for this purpose only half fill the box.

Less uniform distribution of the alfalfa seed is secured where oats or barley are used instead of wheat as a nurse crop on account of the size and shape of the kernels.

If it is desired to sow 10 pounds of alfalfa seed per acre with a nurse crop of a bushel of wheat, the alfalfa and wheat should be mixed in this proportion and the drill, if calibrated in pounds, set to sow very little, if any more than one bushel of wheat per acre.

When alfalfa is sown without a nurse crop from an ordinary grain drill it is necessary to increase its bulk with some inert material such as coarsely cracked wheat or barley.

It is preferable to use a seeder attachment on the grain drill, though not necessary.

Heavy stands have proved less productive than the less moderately thick stands, particularly in dry years. Two to three plants per square foot is considered a good stand.

In experiments on the Brandon Experimental Farm to determine the best rate to sow alfalfa as many as 8 to 10 plants per square foot have been obtained from extra heavy seeding.

The standard rate of seeding on the Brandon Farm is 10 pounds per acre.

Consultation of the bulletin, which can be had free from the Publications Branch, Ottawa, is advised especially as regards the use of nurse crops. —Issued by the Director of Publicity, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

GOOD PRICES PAID AT FARM AUCTION

Many Attend in Spite of Bad Weather and Bad Roads.

DOWNEYVILLE, April 13.—Mr. Edward Clancy held a very successful auction sale of his fam stock and implements. Despite the unfavorable weather and bad roads there was a large crowd present and all were buyers. It rained all day and the roads were so bad most of the people had to go there on horseback as the snow was so soft and so deep it was almost impossible to get there any other way. George and Ted Jackson were the auctioneers and sold everything for high prices. Horses sold from $125 to $145; cows from $55 to $85; young cattle $45; young pigs, two months old, $17 apiece; a brood sow for $80; geese $2 and hens $1.35. Implements also sold high and Mr. Clancy was well pleased with the proceeds. Mr. and Mrs. Clancy and family are moving to Lindsay to reside, having rented their farm to Mr. Neil Powers.

SUCCESSFUL CATTLE CARRIER

H. P. Kennedy, well-known Canadian cattle man, has proved that what officials of the Government merchant marine said was impossible can be done, and has successfully shipped by a converted merchantman a cargo of cattle to Great Britain. This ship, as shown above, is of 7,230 tons and carries 1,16[illegible] heavy cattle. The first shipment o cattle on the Ontario left St. John on January 24 and was in the worst storm on the Atlantic in a period of over thirty years. The cattle weighed as usual, the shrinkage being 5.90 per cent., the lowest on record for a winter journey.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 13 (United Press).—Women are already beginning to wear their Spring finery in New York. We see many cape coats of tan or gray matched by hats, shoes and hosiery. Navy blue coats without capes have sleeves heavily embroidered in varicolored wool or silk. Black straight-lined coats of heavy satin or kasha lined in tan kasha are also present. Gloves harmonize with shoes and hosiery.

Newer than the severe bobbed haircut is one where the rear hair is brushed to one side. That is, the hair is cut long enough at the rear so that it may be brushed downwards from the crown in loose waves which slope towards one side of the head.

Sport frocks are taking a feminine turn this Spring. Pleats, scallops, eyelet embroidery, hand-painting and other decorative notes adorn the latest jumper frocks and ensembles. In some cases the jumper blouse is made entirely of eyelet or all-over embroidery whereas the accompanying skirt will be of matching shade of finely pleated crepe de chene or georgette.

Since round garters are found to ruin the contour of the leg, the most slender figures are wearing the new type of girdle which is boneless but gently molds the figure and gives one garter supports.

Rose tones of dusty cast are generously worn by the younger set at present. These little rose frocks give one the feeling of Springtime even though they are worn under heavy wraps. A new dusty shade of pastel blue is also considered very smart although one sees less of this color than of rose.

Department stores are selling initials and monograms made of brilliants which are to be worn on hats, bags and pockets. One can order any monogram one wishes. Usually the monogram is set in a diamond-shaped band of brilliants.

Millinery departments are showing little animals made of chenille which are used as a corsage on sport frocks. These odd little chenille dogs, cats or elephants are made in eccentric combinations of colors.

CONDEMNS HIGH HEELS.

Montreal Youth Arrested as Dope Peddler.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 12.—High heels and not the Charleston, cigarettes or hip flasks are playing havoc with girls of to-day, according to Dr. Ernest C. Stanaback of Newark, member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. Dr. Stanaback made the statement in an address before Atlantic City chiropodists at the Ambassador Hotel here.

"There are upward of twenty-six bones and thirty-eight joints in the human foot," he said, "and these undergo 650,000 movements in every mile the owner walks. High heels do not necessarily affect any one's morals, primarily, but their drain on physical and mental reserves by throwing the foot into an improper position is cause for much concern. There should be a drive against them."

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

ILLUSIONS SHATTERED

"'Look here,' said Miss Lawrence to me as I looked her straight in the face, 'I want to tell you something. I may be a sap but I almost believe that you really are innocent. We'll give the benefit of the doubt anyway, but remember that I've warned you. If you don't watch your step and get all out of Buddy Tremaine that you can, the moment he sees some other girl that pleases him more than you, you will have to bid good-bye to all your ambitions.

"'Of course you know he's married?'

"Julie, I thought I would faint. I evidently grew so white that even Miss Lawrence thought I could drop and she helped me to a chair.

It was then that I, who had thought she was so vulgar and horrid, found out that there is good in all of us, for she immediately became kinder to me after that.

"'I can see that you're not to blame in all of this,' she said, 'but I'm warning you. You will only be on the town in a few months if you go on the way you are going. Your reputation will be gone and even Madame Seria will let you out of the shop. Just now she is making a good thing out of you and that is the reason she is chaperoning you all over town.

"'Buddy Tremaine is perhaps the most fascinating man in all New York, but his attentions are like poison ivy to any girl who is seen with him. She is marked after the first contact.

"'Everyone knows that wife of his married him for his money, just as everyone knows that he was crazy about her and when he found out that she turned down the man she loved and married him for the grand things he could give her, he became another kind of a man entirely.

"'Up to this point in his career, he had been a quiet, rather artistic sort of a man who had never paid much attention to any woman but the one he had married. Now, he became a rounder of the worst type. He seemed to want to take it out on all women as well as the woman he married for her betrayal of him.

"'Naturally when his intentions got across Yonge, he had a whole regiment of gold-diggers like myself after him and he has paraded them in front of his wife in every possible way but she goes on calmly as though she had not a care on earth, not seeing him at all when he's with some other woman. She will not give up her position and that's that.'

"It certainly was 'that.' I, of course, was heartbroken over it all.

This Afternoon Frock is of Mauve Georgette and Silver Lace

The pastel tint for Spring is accented again here in this soft afternoon frock of flattering line.

Mauve is the material chosen, while the trimming is of delicate silver lace, used to impart long, graceful lines to the frock.

This would be a very effective bridesmaid's frock and could be developed in various pastel colors, such as yellow with silver or blue with silver.

A Fashion Model's Diary

SHE TELLS OF A HAND-PAINTED CREPE FROCK.

I have a friend who is forever buying clothes, and forever finding new places from which to buy them.

This latter policy is unnecessary, I think, for when one finds a satisfactory dressmaker, I advise sticking to her as close as possible.

This is the way Madame's clientele has built itself up so remarkably.

"And it stands to reason," I am always assuring my friend, "that when you find someone who understands your type, what you like, and what you can and cannot wear, you should never let her go."

But my friend has nothing much to occupy her time but her interest in clothes. She adores shopping, and she is always ferreting out new modistes.

Her last find is a cunning little woman who makes hand-painted frocks.

"She has come back from Palm Beach," my friend explained. "She did dozens of painted frocks for people there, and also bathing-suits."

"What are you getting?" I inquired, knowingly.

"Oh, a darling thing for Summer," she answered. She hastened to add that she always picked up things for Summer a bit ahead of time, whenever she saw them, in fact.

I do think this is wise, as I myself am continually seeing something attractive I can't afford, and going back later to find it gone.

When pressed to describe the frock, she drew forth a little sketch from her bag that I am showing here.

"It's a simple white crepe," she explained, "very lovely and heavy in quality."

"The sleeve design looks interesting," I commented.

"It is," she assured me. "The designer worked out a special pattern for me. The colors are coral and jade, and they really are simply stunning against the white backgrounds."

She explained that the frock was shirred through the waistline, and the back left straight, with circular fulness in front.

"The neck scarf is darling. It ties on the side," she added.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

CHILDHOOD DISEASES AFFECTING TEETH.

It occasionally happens that teeth erupt faulty in shape, or with the enamel pitted and stained, and you wonder what has caused it.

Now a very probable source of this trouble is a general disturbance from some constitutional disease associated with high temperatures, such as scarlet fever, measles, or chicken pox.

Occasionally this disturbance is so great as to totally destroy the tooth germ, but more often it merely affects the tooth structure as described above.

But there are two general diseases that, in particular, affect tooth structure and tooth eruption.

Of these, rickets is a disease of faulty nutrition, and it is worthy of note that it is a disease not only of the very poor who are denied proper and sufficient food, but of the rich, who have an abundance of food but of an improper kind.

The characteristi affections of the teeth from rickets are these; the deciduous teeth erupt late and, in the more extreme cases; there is a general deformity of the skull and jaws; moreover, these teeth are lost early, whilst the permanent teeth in turn erupt late; the result is, faulty or mal-occlusion. Moreover, the teeth themselves are structurally affected, being bluish, sparse and somewhat tapering.

The other disease, more or less specifically related to tooth mal-formation, is tuberculosis.

A child suffering from tuberculosis will erupt both the deciduous and permanent teeth early; but the root of the deciduous tooth is not absorbed as it should be, with the resultant mal-position of the succeeding permament tooth.

It is perhaps easier to understand why these diseases should injuriously affect tooth structure as they do, when you remember that the teeth are in the formative stage throughout early childhood, and hence are readily liable to influences of a disturbing nature.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allené Sumner)

CUP O'NEWS

The child must be saved even if the mother dies. This edict comes forth from the Paris Faculty of Medicine. The feeble national birth rate is given as justification for the movement. The nation is especially worried because 27 babies are born to every thousand Germans, and only 20 to every thouand French. Thus do mothers pay in a new way for the glory of war and the grandeur of nations.

In the same breath that France says, "save the child even if the mother must die," another nation, Australia, adds its mite to the glory of childhood, the nation's potential wealth. A woman can be exempt from the $10 fine imposed on non-voters if her excuse is that she remained at home to care for her child.

"Couchettes" are an innovation on European trains in an attempt to give sleeping space to the impoverished traveler who cannot afford a sleeping car berth. Despite that the railway company warns purchaser of couchette space that it is assigned irrespective of sex, the railways are now receiving many kicks from irate feminine travelers complaining of embarrassment. The couchette is merely a bed which accommodates four passengers.

THE LOVERS

These women's clubs, methinks, do grow sentimental. Comes a note from "Program Chairman," telling me of "the famous lover evening" which "our literary club is planning." And will I, asks she, suggest a famous twain other than Romeo and Juliet, and Adam and Eve? I will! BOOKS

If you like stories about noble, capable, efficient business women who turn up their proboscis at this thing called matrimony and then eat their own words and fall in love and marry one of the erstwhile scorned sex, you'll like "Gifts of Sheba," by W. L. George. Isabel married Hugh. Isabel wanted to dominate the home roost and so did Hugh. Hugh wanted to support Isabel and Isabel was too proud to "be kept."

Now—how's this? We quote from the book: "The only men who can live with modern women are those who don't give a damn for them."

AN EXCELLENT TONIC FOR SPRING

Nova Scotian Speaks Very Highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Louis Babine is Very Satisfied With the Results Received From Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

NORTH BELLEVILLE, N. S., April 12 (Special).—"I have used many boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills for rheumatism, stomach trouble and sleeplessness," says Mr. Babine, a well-known resident of this place. "I take them from time to time when I feel dull and tired, especially in the spring. I find they keep me well. I always enjoy good restful refreshing sleep after I take them."

There is a close connection between kidney and stomach troubles. If the kidneys are not acting properly, the stomach, like every other organ of the body, must suffer. No man ever had a healthy stomach and unhealthy kidneys. The kidneys are the great cleansers of the body, and carry off all the waste, poisonous matter.

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of the body is nourished and built up. Dodd's Kidney Pills purify the blood.

PARIS, April 13 (Canadian Press).—The budget for 1926, which is now three and a half months behind time, was taken up Monday by the Senate, which plans to work diligently on it in an effort to pass it before the end of the month, so as to avoid more than one more month's provisional appropriation. Senator Cheron, in reporting the budget, pointed out that every month's delay will cost the treasury large sums in resources because the tax rolls are awaiting the final vote on the appropriation.

A FEW SOUTHERN SALADS.

Salad plants such as watercress and the various lettuces add very little energy and protein to the diet, but are rich in mineral matter. They are also useful for their vitamine content and laxative qualities. Never add dressing of any sort until just as the salad is sent to table. Meat used in salads should be free from fat and skin. Vegetables should be boiled until done, but not soft. Fish should be free from all skin and bones, then flaked. Fruits used should be firm and perfect in condition.

Fruit Salad, Cream Dressing.

This is a salad for four people. Prepare one large grapefruit, three oranges, two diced bananas, two diced tart apples, the finely cut heart of a small head of lettuce and a teaspoonful of minced white celery leaves. Chill and drain. For the dressing melt a half cupful of butter in a saucepan and add gradually two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when blended add slowly a cupful of hot milk. Cook, stirring constantly. Beat three egg yolks and add to them a half teaspoonful of dry mustard dissolved in a tablespoonful of vinegar, a half teaspoonful of salt. Add a quarter cupful of vinegar. Pour gradually on the egg mixture and cook until thickened like a soft custard. Remove from the fire and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and a quarter cupful of sugar. Pour into a glass fruit jar, cool, cover and keep on ice to use as needed. Moisten the salad with the dressing and serve in lettuce leaves garnished with Maraschino cherries.

Okra Salad.

Boil two dozen pods of fresh okra until tender, drain and cool. Slice and cover with French dressing, to which the juice of an onion has been added. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Shrimp and Cucumber Salad.

Take one pint, or a large can, shrimp, break them with a silver fork, season with pepper and a very little salt. Wipe the inside of the bowl with a cut bud of garlic, put in a layer of shrimp, then a layer of shredded lettuce, sprinkle with white mayonnaise, then add another layer of each. Top with hard-boiled egg cut in fancy ways and stoned olives.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 12.—THE GAZOOKUMSES STEAL EVERYTHING

Gazookumses are something like goblins only they usually go about in threes.

Besides their eyes are pink and their ears are sharper. And I have heard it said that their little toes are made of solid silver. But of course one can't be sure as they never take their shoes off.

There sat three of them, now, in the crow's nest in the old dead tree, stuffing themselves with lolly-pops and chocolate-buds and bon-bons and throwing the papers and sticks overboard, you might say.

That was the way Mister Tingaling and the Twins found out that they were there.

"We'll get you!" shouted the fat little fairyman. "Give back that rent money you stole from the owl. Give it back or we'll come up and get you."

The three little Gazookumses looked over the edge of the nest, their sharp noses sticking out like bird bills.

"We don't care! Come on!" they said. "The money's all spent and the candy's all gone. Come and get us if you can."

Mister Tingaling was getting pretty mad about everything by this time, so he shouted, "Look out, then. We're coming up this very minute." And calling to Nancy and Nick to follow him, he started to climb up the tree as fast as he could go.

He didn't take the pocket-book along because he couldn't go so fast with it. And the Twins didn't take the rent-book and pencil along because they couldn't go quite so fast, either. All three of those precious things lay on the ground at the foot of the tree.

Up and up and up went the Twins in their magic shoes.

At last they reached the big bare branch that held up the crow's nest. And along it they all ran to catch the Gazookumses.

But the three noses were no longer to be seen. And upon reaching the nest and peering over the edge, no Gazookumses were to be seen, either. They had disappeared, pink eyes, silver toes and all.

"Oh, sugar!" cried poor Mister Tingaling, stamping his foot so hard he almost snapped off the old dead branch.

"Where did they go, I'd like to know!" said Nancy.

"Don't ask me," said Mister Tingaling. "They must have wings as well as silver toes, for they never climbed down, I'm sure."

Suddenly they heard someone say, "Ooooh! Eeeeee! A whole dollar and a quarter in fairy money, and a nice big book with a lot of names in it and a big pencil with a nice point. And a pocket-book, too! A present for each of us and enough money to buy out the whole candy-stores besides! Oh, thank you, sir! We're sorry we threw lolly-pop sticks and silver-paper wads at you. We like your friends, too, even if they haven't got pink eyes. Good-bye!"

At this Mister Tingaling fainted. Yes he did, indeed—he fainted clear from the top of the old dead tree the whole way down to the ground. But fortunately he fell into a bed of soft moss, and when the Twins reached him he had quite come to.

"Oh!" he gasped. "Oh! Oh! Oh! All is lost! The rent money and everything. Oh, those dreadful Gazookumses! They are worse than Snitches' Snatch ever thought of being. Have they gone?"

"Yes," said Nick. "And they didn't even leave a footprint behind them."

"They wouldn't," groaned poor Mister Tingaling.

THE OLD BANFF SPRINGS HOTEL AND THE NEW

Inset in the lower right hand corner is an illustration of the Banff Springs Hotel which has been partially destroyed by fire while the larger picture is composite picture of the wonderful setting in which the hotel stands and an architect's drawing of the new hotel as it will be when completed. The central tower of the hotel is of stone and the wing farthest away in the small picture is the one that has been burnt. It was built in 1887 and was of wood and was to have been torn down in September next to be replaced by a new stone, steel and concrete structure. This work will now go forward at once at an approximate cost of $1,791,000. When completed the new structure will contain about 600 rooms, double the number of the old building. By July first the hotel will have 313 rooms available, there having been a new annex with one hundred rooms built during the past winter.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

GOLDEN-HEARTED DAISY LEARNS A LESSON

"Heigh-ho," sighed the evening primrose wearily when she saw Miss Daisy opening her pretty eyes. "Are you just betting up? My! I've been up even since six o'clock last evening."

"Oh, is that so?" cried the golden-hearted daisy. "You stay awake all night? I didn't know that."

"Certainly, I do," laughed the primrose, wearily. "Lazy folks like you most always close your eyes too soon to enjoy the fun. Why, last night, you should have seen the callers I had. There were so many here buzzing and humming around my door. I don't see how you could sleep. Really, there were so many callers I didn't have near enough honey to supply them all. Better stay awake tonight." Then, stretching out her pretty blossoms, Evening Primrose folded her leaves, closed her blossom doorways and dropped to sleep.

Golden-Hearted Daisy dusted the dew from her pretty petal and opened her golden heart to the lovely warm sun. She said she would stay awake that night and see the sport.

All that day she informed the bees and butterflies of her intentions. They only shook their heads, sipped her honey, gathered up her bundles of pollen and sailed away.

Night soon came and Golden-Hearted Daisy instead of closing her eyes, as she usually did, kept her petals wide open.

The moon sailed up over the hills and Miss Primrose flung open her door with a merry laugh.

"Well, Miss Daisy, I see you're getting sense now," she greeted her neighbor. "Here comes the merry mob."

"My Isn't This Lovely?"

Sure enough, the merry mob of moths flitted by. At first they didn't see Miss Daisy and rushed right over to the primrose's honey well. Before very long Miss Primrose told them that Golden-Hearted Daisy was awake and they swarmed over to her. They nearly knocked her blossoms off in their haste to sip her honey.

"My, isn't this lovely?" laughed Miss Daisy. "To have so many callers. Will you all be kind enough to carry some pollen to my cousins over in the next field?"

The moths looked at each other, then at the golden-hearted daisy. Then they laughed and without even so much as looking at her pollen they sailed away.

Soon another crowd of moths came along and they were also eager to sip from the golden-hearted daisy's well but when she asked them to carry pollen to her cousins they laughed at her.

"Certainly not," replied one of the leaders. "What do you think we are? In the first place we don't even touch the anthers where you keep your pollen. We couldn't carry your pollen even if we wanted to," and away they flew.

By this time Golden-hearted Daisy was loaded down with pollen and almost out of honey. She closed her weary eyes and was soon sound asleep.

She opened late the next morning. The bees and butterflies were so glad to see her, they filled their pockets with pollen before they sipped her honey.

That was the last time Golden-Hearted Daisy ever stayed open at night.

CAROL IN PARIS.

Tired of Gossip About Return To Rumania.

PARIS, April 12—Carol, former Crown Prince of Rumania, was still in Paris today to deny in person reports that he had returned to Rumania.

"No, no! You can see plainly that I am still here," he said half humorously and half angrily when told by the correspondent that such reports had reached the United States. This occurred as Carol, with Madame Lupesu, who came to Paris with him after his renunciation of his succession, alighted from an automobile in front of the Hotel Chambord, where he is staying.

"I am tired of all this gossip about my return to Rumania,' Carol added. He refused to comment on reports that a reconciliation has been effected between him and his father, King Ferdinand.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

If there is one thing more than another that we believe in in America it is education. The school system is the backbone of our country. Not every child can inherit a million dollars, but every child can have the benefits of the schoolroom.

Did you ever stop to think that good health is a matter of education? I suppose that primitive man could safely follow his instincts. When it comes to eating and taking care of the body, however, I would not care to rely on the native instinct.

The Government spends a lot of money in putting out pamphlets on how to control plant diseases, about how to guard against potato warts, about how to build chimneys and fireplaces, and about the control of hog cholera. But, as I see it, we are not doing nearly enough to educate the mothers how to bring up healthy babies.

Fathers and mothers and prospective fathers and mothers must be made to realize how necessary a foundation of good health is in order to make parenthood what it should be. Knowledge is needed to guarantee the life and health of babies yet unborn. When such information is universal, then we may expect to have everywhere in this country healthier and better babies.

Prospective parents must understand, too, that the health of tfuure generations is dependent upon the right-living of this generation.

I want to emphasize that it is the adoption of the natural methods that will make for health. You cannot get this health by taking medicines. It is by right living that we can make good health abound.

I should like to see every state and city engaged in spreading health information. I believe in the widest possible dissemination of health knowledge and how to live, in order that the babies of the future may be perfect specimens of human kind.

I would like to see our schools and colleges include in their courses of study practical instruction in physiology and hygiene.

I do not mean additional lessons in scientific facts. I mean the kind of teaching that would arouse in our young men and women an appreciation of the importance to themselves and their children of rightly caring for their own bodies. They should be taught that good health is impossible except by leading sane, temperate, well-regulated lives.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

JOSHUA S. COSDEN—CONNOISSEUR OF HORSES

To rise with one bounding leap from poverty to riches, from hardship to luxury, is no longer considered phenomenal in America. In this land of opportunity and wide-open doors, bootblacks have become millionaires and newsboys veritable Croesuses. But it is rarely that these "nouveau riche" have taken the bull of high society by the horns—and thrown it.

To Joshua Cosden, the man who was many times a millionaire before he was thirty, this was an easy job.

He came to New York, still in his twenties, straight from Oklahoma, where prestige means mansions and motors and yachts. And he found that in New York prestige means real thoroughbred horses. Perhaps because Joshua Cosden knew a good horse when he saw one he chose the right horse on which to ride into the "400."

About fifteen years ago he was selling insurance in Baltimore, Md., and not more successfully than hundreds of other agents. But he possessed faculties which motivated his success. Taking Horace Greely's advice, he went West. He arrived in Tulsa, Okla., at the time of the big oil boom. The young man from Baltimore proceeded, cooly and calmly, to invest what little money he had in this fascinating game. With a skill that must have been innate he bought and sold at the proper time, and soon he was fairly rich.

When he decided that Oklahoma offered no further possibilities for advancement he "packed up his kit" and came East. Arrived in New York, he bought chips and took a seat in the stock market. For a long time he was most fortunate in his deals and the money rolled in. Then things took a decided turn for the worse and Mr. Cosden lost control of his company.

In the meantime he had come to the attention of New York's "400." A master of horsemanship and an expert on good horses, he had spent untold thousands on the training of horses. He secured the services of "Uncle Billy" Garth, one of the best-known trainers in America, and jockeys who were internationally famous. His stable was considered one of the finest in the field. His superbly groomed horses soon attracted wide attention. And in due time the Cosdens found themselves deluged with invitations from members of the oldest families in New York.

The millionaire oil plunger has not been active as an oil producer or a stock market operator for some time, and it is understood that he plans to retire. But, having conquered the financial and social world of New York, he will retire secure in the knowledge that he has earned his laurels.

He Rode Right Into the "400."

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous waste matter is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

There is no guess work about Rheuma bringing you back to health. That's why McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick relief.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14.

According to the aspects of this day there may be a great many difficulties and perplexities to overcome. The malefics hold sway, threatening obstacle and delay as well as strife, contention and passible litigation. The finances may be imperiled both by speculation and through fraud or duplicity. It is advised that the utmost precaution be taken in the matter of affixing any character of writing. Under a benefic aspect between the luminaries, however, those in the employment of others are in favor.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for unusual precaution and sagacity to protect themselves from losses. Avoid law, quarrels and fraud, and protect the finances. Those in employment are favored. A child born on this day should be given the best possible training to fit it for overcoming many obstacles and to be on guard against being duped. It should also be taught the wisdom of calmness and self-government.

AT EASE

When the day comes along when you're free for a spell, with nothin' to worry, or fret you, 'tis well if you turn to the highway that's shy of all care and seek the best solace in free, open air.

The mind you've been using on work needs a rest, and lucky the man, who with loafing time blest, can turn to the sky and the road and the trees, and feel that he really is resting at ease.

The wear and the tear of the every day grind is not half so bad as you think it, you'll find, if things that your mental capacity rob, can just be forgotten when you're off the job.

Be fair with your system, and pick out the road that gives you the feeling of shaking the load. Walk out in the open, where spirits can soar. I guess that's what nature was meant to be for.

KEEP BRAKES ADJUSTED

Brakes should be adjusted every thirty days. If they are not equalized the result will be rattle, chatter and squeak, the wheels will lose their alignmnt, the tread of one or more tires will soon wear, and the frame of the car will be distorted.

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Breakfast — Oranges, cereal, thin cream, soft cooked eggs, bran toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of asparagus soup, croutons, lettuce sandwiches, apple cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Braised liver, riced potatoes, scalloped tomatoes, rhubarb tapioca pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

If a whole wheat cereal is served for breakfast try to use a bread made of some other sort of grain for the toast. Since the toast suggested is made of a coarse wheat flour the cereal should be of oats or a finely milled cereal.

Cream of Asparagus Soup.

One bunch asparagus, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 cup cream.

Wash and scrape asparagus. Cut into inch pieces and put aside heads. Cover with cold water and bring to the boiling point. Simmer until tender. Rub through a sieve, reserving the water. Cooks heads separately in as little water as possible to prevent burning. It will take about ten minutes to cook the heads and at least thirty minutes to cook the stalks. Add water in which heads were cooked to asparagus puree. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring slowly to the boiling point and boil three minutes. Add asparagus puree and when ready to boil again add heads. Season with salt and pepper. Whip cream until stiff, adding a little salt. Remove soup from fire and stir in whipped cream. Serve at once.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT most new customers are secured through attractive advertising.

THAT advertising is the one big business promoter.

THAT advertisements contain a wealth of suggestions for every shopper.

THAT they are simply bristling with good things for the public.

THAT the home merchants were never better equipped to supply trade than right now.

THAT they can fill every trade demand of the most discriminating buyer.

THAT now is the time to read the ads; they will save you money.

THAT if you are not now prepared to buy, window-shop anyway. The merchant who advertises always has a window display worth-while. The fact that he advertises shows he keeps up-to-date goods, and you can see goods now that you can purchase later.

THAT advertisements are time-savers as well as money-savers for the busy shopper.

PENNANT VISIONS

Pittsburgh Face Stronger New York and St. Louis Teams.

Armed for battles such as they seldom have had before, baseball's major league hosts gathered last night on the ramparts, ready to enter the opening frays today and fight it out on the baselines all summer.

Close to a quarter of a million interested by-standers are expected to see these warring forces of the sixteen National and American League clubs come to grips in arenas which likely will witness an unusually spectacular contest for individual honors in the midst of close and exciting struggles for team supremacy.

The eve of the 1926 campaigns finds the war correspondents agreed that it will be a fight to the finish on both fronts, but they differ widely when it comes to predicting the battalions that will hold the flags of victory aloft after the smoke of battle clears.

However strongly the world's champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Washington Senators, American League titleholders, may have been see a decided menace to the now see a decided menace to the positions of both in the strength of rival forces.

The Pirates' Enemies

So far as the National League is concerned, these critics believe that it will take all Pittsburgh's confidence, resourcefulness and attacking power to stand off the challenge of the New York Giants, led by that seasoned campaigner, John McGraw, or the seasational drive of the St. Louis Cardinal shock troops, inspired by their mighty chieftain, Rogers Hornsby. These three are picked to fight it out for major honors, but the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves both figure as front line factors with outside chances of upsetting the advance "dope."

In the American League sector, the Senators, seeking their third straight pennant, face even greater odds with no less than five clubs conceded to have prospects of carrying off the main prize. Connie Mack's Athletics, loom as the most formidable contenders to most observers, but Yankee hopes, dismal a month ago, have rebounded under the impetus of an astonishing batting spree, while partisans of the White Sox, St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers, figure these entries also in the thick of the fight.

The champions in both leagues will be put to severe tests from the start, for the Pirates, handicapped somewhat by training injuries, invade the stronghold of the Cardinals at St. Louis for opening day, while Washington defends the attack of the Athletics at the national capital.

Features of Teams

In sizing up the rival contenders on the basis of a concensus among the baseball writers, these features stand out in the makeup of the rival clans:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington—Standing pat on veterans, with two additions in Joe Bush and Johnny Tobin; Buddy Myer primed to replace Roger Peckinpaugh at short.

Athletics—All-round strength, seasoned by experience as 1925 runners-up; Joe Hauser back at first base and Walter French replacing Bing Miller in outfield.

Yankees—Terrific hitting array, including new keystone combination in Lazerri and Koenig; Ruth's comeback an important team factor; veteran pitching strength.

Brown — Hard-hitting outfield; corps of young pitching stars and brilliant leadership by George Sisler.

White Sox — Well balanced club with strong pitching staff and veteran Everett Scott as rescue man at shortstop.

Tigers—Reconstructed infield, including new keystone combination in Gehringer and Tavner; powerful attack but uncertain pitching staff.

Red Sox—Experiments in nearly every department, with capable hurlers in Ehmke, Ruffing and Wingfield.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pirates — World's championship lineup intact and confident; more reserve strength, including Rhyne, infielder, and Waner, outfielder, ex-Coast League stars.

Giants—Bolstered by addition of Tyson to outfield and Ring to hurling corps, which McGraw regards as best in many years; Jackson's and Groh's "trick" knees uncertain factors but good reserves available.

Reds—Quartet of veteran pitching stars in Mays, Donohue, Rixey and Luque, with Wally Pipp plugging first base gap and Christensen added to outfield.

Cardinals—Heavy artillery, headed by Managers Rogers and Jim Bottomley; formidable pitching corps; team on up-grade.

Braves—Brilliant young pitching staff; aggressive attack led by Manager Dave Bancroft, but batting punch problematical.

Brooklyn—Pitching aces in Vance, Jess Barnes and Grimes; heavy sluggers led by Fornier and Wheat; but handicapped by lack of speed and infield weaknesses.

Cubs—Last place outfit of 1925 shaken up by new manager, Joe McCarthy, with veteran Alexander, the ace of pitching staff.

Phillies—Pitching uncertain but powerful on attack with infield strengthened by Bentley at first and improvement of Huber at third.

Had 43 Boils And Carbuncles At One Time

Mr. Claud Melanson, Castleford, Ont., writes:—"In regard to your remedies I have to say that B.B.B. was the only medicine I could get to relieve me of my boils and carbuncles.

I had forty-three at one time, and my doctor told me to take

Burdock Blood Bitters

The first bottle I took gave me such great results that I took three more, and after I had used them I was completely relieved of my boils and carbuncles."

RING WAR RUMBLES.

Rickard Crossed By Other Promoters.

NEW YORK, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Rumblings of impending war among rival metropolitan boxing promoters seeking titular outdoor attractions were audible Monday when Tex Rickard notified the State Athletic Commission he was unable to sign Jack Delaney, Canadian, for a championship match with Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight king, at the Yankee Stadium, June 10, because of the "activities of other promoters."

Rickard, already holding Berlenbach's contract, appealed for aid in signing the challenger, but the Commission refused the promoter's request and announced a "hands off" policy.

Humbert J. Fugazy, with Ebbets field at his command, and Jimmy DeForest with the Polo Grounds, both have entered the field in quest of the match. Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager, has said he will accept the highest offer. This far Reilly has cast his fortunes with Fugazy, who has matched Delaney for a bout with Ad Stone at Ebbets field May 21.

Wall Street's Choice To Win National.

NEW YORK, April 13 (Canadian Press). — Wagering yesterday in Wall Street on the outcome of the major league pennant races established the Giants as slight National League favorites over the Pirates, with the Senators and Athletics equal choices in the American League.

Betting commissioners reported they had placed wagers on the chances of the Giants at 8 to 5 and on the Pirates at 2 to 1. The latter odds prevailed for both the Athletics and Senators.

Financial opinion rated the other contenders in this order:

National — Cardinals, Reds, Braves, Robins, Phillies and Cubs.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

You hear little of George Chip or Al McCoy when the Impromptu Debating Societies discuss great fighters of the past.

Yet both Chip and McCoy, at different times, were middleweight champions of the world.

Chip was not a bad fighter; he had a punishing left hand, an effective defense and "you couldn't hurt him." He was good enough to beat fellows like Frank Klaus, Buck Crouse and Jack Dillon.

McCoy, on the other hand, was a horrible tomato—one of those misguided birds who hang around gymnasiums all the time and who THINK they can fight. McCoy was called the world's worst middleweight, and he had no trouble successfully defending his title.

On April 7, 1914, Chip and McCoy were matched to battle 10 rounds at Brooklyn. And thereby hangs a tale, a tale which has not, to my recollection, been told before. Chip was not originally matched with McCoy. He went in as a substitute for his younger brother, Joe.

It was this way: Jimmy Dime managed the Chips. Joe had previously fought McCoy and had punched him stupid. George, then the champion, had never shown in the New York district. Jimmy wanted to get him started there, figuring he would fight himself into some important dough. So he wired the Brooklyn promoter as follows:

"Joe is sick. Can let you have George, the champion, at same terms."

Naturally the promoter was agreeable. So was McCoy, who had little to say about it anyway, being considered lucky to have a place on the card.

What followed was a terrible shock to Mr. Dime and an even more terrible shock to Mr. Chip.

McCoy the clown, the tramp, the impossible, knocked out Chip, the champion—best since Stanley Ketchel's day—in LESS THAN ONE ROUND!

Call it what you will, a miracle, a whim of fate, or sheer carelessness on the part of the arrogant champion, but the result brought a legitimate championship to a battler whose skill hardly qualified him for preliminary fighting.

There is not much to tell of the fight itself. The knockout came after one minute and 40 seconds. Chip immediately assumed the aggressive and began scoring with light punches to the head. McCoy made awkward attempts to block and at intervals ventured a swinging punch that missed its objective by many inches.

Wrestling loose from a clinch, Chip cut loose with his first real blow of the round, a left to the jaw. In some manner or other, McCoy, also swinging a left, managed to beat the champion to the punch. And it went home, a solid belt to the point of the jaw.

Chip fell on his back, his head striking the floor with great force, and he was unable to rise at 10. Dime and two other seconds carried him to his corner, where he sat, still dazed, for several minutes.

"That's the first time I ever told a lie to get one of my fighters a fight," grumbled Dime after the tragedy. "It will be the last."

SOCCER TEAMS MAY DROP OUT OF LEAGUE

De Laval and Thistle Intimate That They Cannot Get Players.

JUVENILES FORMED.

A very large enthusiastic meeting of the local soccer moguls was held in the Chamber of Commerce last evening, when President Wm. Anderson occupied the chair, with a full executive in attendance of the C. and D.F.A.

Teams Drop Out

A suudden jolt was handed out to the Board of the Senior association last evening when George Lowe intimated that the DeLaval would not have a team this year, owing to a number of players not giving any assistance and the lack of an executive. After a short discussion, it was decided to lay the matter over for a week and the complaint is "the players are waiting to get into the strongest eleven."

Thistles Fail to Get Players

The following letter was laid before the executive last evening but was left over for another week through some information that may be forthcoming during the next week which may indicate the Scotsmen to be still active in local soccer.

339 Downie St.,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—At a meeting of the Thistle F.C. on the 7th of April, it was decided to withdraw from the P. and D.F.A. on account of the executive being unable to raise an eleven.

I remain, yours truly,
Geo. Nimmons, sec'y.

Juvenile League

Only three juvenile clubs have intimated their intention of participating in the juvenile soccer league as follows: Woollens, DeLaval and Sons of Ireland. Last season, the DeLaval juveniles carried off the cup and medals.

A special meeting of the foregoing clubs will be held next Monday evening in the Chamber of Commerce at 7.30 prompt. All other clubs interested

Player's Release

New rule regarding release of players reads thus: (a) Any player not participating in three consecutive games may be granted his release on application to the Board. (b) Any club wishing to release a player must apply to the board.

This rule was carried unanimously and the rule in reference to cup tie players must be settled later when definite information is received.

A special meeting of the Thistle F. C. will be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening at 8 p.m. Business important. Geo. Nimmons, secretary.

MAKE SURE YOU GET THE RIGHT MEDICINE

People who are suffering from constipation, biliousness or sick headache are sometimes at a loss to know what remedy to take to correct these ailments.

Mr. Arthur Couzens of Smith Township, Ont., said that he tried various remedies but got no relief until he was advised by a friend to take Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets. When he had finished one bottle he felt like a different person and takes pleasure in recommending Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets to anyone sufering from constipation or biliousness.

Mr. H. V. Mercer, Druggist, of Lindsay, Ont., recommends Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets because he considers he owes it to the public to recommend what will give the best results.

If you have any doubt of the merit of Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets ask your local druggist ask your neighbor, try them yourself, and then you will be convinced that as a tonic and laxative Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets have no equal.

FIRPO PLANNING RING COMEBACK

To Dispose of Automobile Agency—Lacked Training in Spaldo Bout.

IS ONLY 31 Years.

BUENOS AIRES, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, announced yesterday that he has definitely decided to liquidate immediately all his interests in an automobile agency here and to devote his entire time again to a career in the ring.

"I am only 31 and healthy and am still confident," he said. "I still have a future in pugilism."

The Argentine heavyweight attributed his poor showing in his recent bout with Erminio Spalla, whom he defeated on points in a disappointing exhibition, to overweight and lack of training. He asserted he is now training hard and expects to scale down to 210 pounds within 60 days, after which he plans

SPORT GOSSIP

Tennis, Golf, Baseball Notes of Interest.

Fred Lamb, eminent professor of golf and with a national reputation as an instructor, was asked a few days ago to name the three most important things that a beginner in golf should remember and here is his answer, setting them down in the order of their importance:

1.—Rather to stand a bit too close than too far away from the ball.

2.—Rather to underswing than to overswing.

3.—Rather your feet too near together than too far apart.

Three simple rules that, if remembered, will make the task of getting a start in the game much easier and more pleasant.

Mrs. Lambert-Chambers, one of England's best authorities on tennis, remarks:

"Miss Helen Wills, in her matches in France, played better than any of us expected, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen included, and I think she has such a wonderful temperament and stroke production that we shall have an American super-player within a short while."

In temperament she has an advantage that Mlle. Lenglen never enjoyed.

When we read that William H. Tilden lost "$30,000 of his own money" in trying to make himself a theatrical star on Broadway, we may be pardoned for concluding that amateur athletics are not so profitless after all when a man really has ability.

Just why the Yankees should be considered strong enough to win a pennant is not clear. Their pitching staff has been shot and there is not enough new material to let anyone conclude that it can possibly give the Yankees' pitchers anywhere near as strong support as the club had during the three years when they won pennants. The outfield is not up to several other outfields, unless Ruth stages a phenomenal comeback, and even then the outfield trio would be extremely weak on defense. New York is experimenting at second base this year with a pair of recruits, one at short and the other at second. Gehrig is a hard hitter, but not the best fielding first sacker in the league. The only improvement on the infield, at this angle, is in Joe Dugan. An operation to his knee after the close of the 1925 season apparently restored it to full use. Dugan, before being injured, was one of the best third sackers in the game and the best in the league coming in on a bunted ball. Bengough is a good catcher and he will be better this year, at least he should be.

Analyzing the Yankees they seem fairly sure of being stronger behind the plate and at third than they were last season, but the rest of it is a fairly long gamble. Chances are that the team will not be much improved over 1925.

No team in either league has ever finished seventh in one season and first the following season. Likewise, no team in either big league ever finished in last place one year and won a pennant the next.

Much fuss has been made over what the Boston Braves accomplished in 1914. They were in last place on July 4. Then they won a pennant and topped this off by taking the world title in four games from the Philadelphia Athletics.

But the Braves of 1914 finished in fifth place the year before and the reason they were in last place on July 4 was a bad start.

Nearly all the pennant winners have been teams that finished in the first division the previous season.

After the tournament at Wimbledon a year ago, British tennis critics had few words of praise for Helen Wills, claiming that she was slow and unpromising, but some of them have changed their minds since seeing her play in the matches in France this year. Stanley Doust, one of the most noted tennis critics of the Old Land, is among those who has words of praise for the American star, and he estimates her much higher than he did a year ago. He devoted two columns in an English paper to paying her a high tribute, which he sums up as follows:

"Slowly but surely, however, we saw Miss Wills obtain accuracy. When the great match was played we beheld her as a mistress of precision, added to speed and tactics, but just lacking in the one shot that would have given her victory.

"That shot was the straight down-the-line forehand drive.

"Miss Wills' cross-court drive was so obvious and frequent that Mlle. Lenglen was always on the run in that direction before the shot was made. She could afford to ignore the straight drive, because Miss Wills never used it.

"On the backhand Miss Wills used both the straight and cross-court shot, and it was on this wing that she was so dangerous.

"Yet without the forehand straight drive, Miss Wills ran Mlle. Lenglen perilously close. Miss Wills undoubtedly can make this shot, but at the moment she is erratic with it, which explains why she avoided it against Mlle. Lenglen.

"It may be taken for certain that in the tournaments that come before the next encounter with Mlle. Lenglen, Miss Wills will develop that side of her game, and if she perfects it, then I firmly believe that it will not be very long before the championship of the world will be hers.

"Miss Wills is not the genius that Mlle. Lenglen is, but she is skillful in quite a different way. Her strength not only lies in her power to stroke, but in her variation of speed and placing. Added to these, Miss Wills has a very fast service, which she mixes up with a sliced one with little pace.

"But one of her greatest assets is her wonderful temperament, which enabled her to ignore the confusion and noise that prevailed at Cannes.

"In this respect she has a considerable advantage over Mlle. Lenglen, who in schooling herself to remain cool and collected takes a great deal out of herself.

"There is no doubt that in Miss Helen Wills we have in the near future a conqueror of the all-conquering Suzanne."

BILLY EVANS SAYS

ORLANDO, Fla., April 7.—Shortstop is the one lone problem that besets Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds.

It is a rather perplexing one, since there is no more important position on a ball club than that of shortstop.

If Manager Hendricks can satisfactorily solve the situation, he is of the opinion that his team will be a strong pennant contender.

The burden of the shortstop problem is up to Frank Emmer, a recruit, and Sammy Bohne, a veteran. Hendricks is hopeful that one of these players will be able to fill the vacancy made by the passing of Jimmy Caveney.

Emmer, while rated a recruit, is far from a youngster. Ten years ago he received a trial with the Reds. He lacked experience. Since then he has been getting it through a varied minor league career.

Last season Emmer had his greatest season, starring with the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League. On the strength of his fine work he was secured by Cincinnati.

Emmer is a mighty likely looking chap. Whether he canmake the majr league grade remains to be proved. Manager Hendricks is hopeful. Like all players making their big league debut, Emmer has his faults.

In this respect he is fortunate in having on the Cincinnati club as coach one of the greatest shortstops that ever heaved a ball across the diamond—Bobby Wallace. The veteran is working to correct Emmer's faults and if successful it may make a considerable difference in his battle to make good.

Should Emmer fail, the burden of the shortstop job would be put directly up to Sammy Bohne, who for years has played utility infield roles at Cincinnati with great credit.

For that reason Manager Hendricks is not worrying so much about Emmer and his possibilities. He believes that Bohne, assured that he is the regular shortstop, minus any competition, will step out and do a good job of it.

Without a doubt, Wally Pipp, secured from the New York Yankees, will make a great man for Cincinnati. Pipp is far from through. He has always been a great first baseman. Throughout his career he has never received the real credit due him. He's going to steady the Reds' infield and will help on the offense just as much.

As for several years, Hendricks banks on superior pitching and a tight ball club to keep his club in the race. Of late years the Reds have not been noted for a devastating attack but they have been a tough club to score runs on.

Last year the Reds plugged along, always a pennant menace, despite the absence of one of the team's best pitchers, Carl Mays. He was of no use the entire season, due to an ailing arm.

The Mays I watched work this spring looks very much like the Carl Mays who for so many years starred for the Yanks. A year of rest appears to have completely restored the strength of his arm. He is burning them over as of yore and his peculiar subway delivery makes his stuff all the more effective.

Mays looks to be in for a great year. He says he will win 20 ball games. If he does the Reds are going to be a mighty dangerous ball club.

Luque despite a recent operation for appendicitis, apparently is as good as ever.

While Rixey has lost most of the spring training work, due to holding out for more money, he conditions quickly and should have a big year.

On the whole the team will line up very much as it did last season. While the recruits look good, several are sure to be retained, still it is doubtful if any will be able to crowd the regulars out.

PRIVATE EUCHRE IS LEGAL PARTY

Charging of Admission, Unless For Charity, Changes Status.

CRIMINAL CODE.

A number of law abiding citizens in the city who are anxious to preserve their status in the community and at the same time like to attend the euchre and bridge parties that are so prevalent during the winter months have been asking themselves the question — what constitutes a legal and law abiding card party in view of the recent case that was aired in the police court, the cause of which was an openly advertised and apparently well conducted gathering. In an interview with Chief of Police Samuel Newhall this morning, he said "Any euchre party where admission is charged and prizes are given comes under section 228 of the Criminal Code." This section states that any place where games of skill and chance are played for prizes shall be considered as a common gaming house, and people found therein shall be considered as frequenters.

The only exception to the law is where the entire proceeds are to be donated for charitable purposes; that is for the purpose of relieving distress.

It will be seen by the foregoing that the law will not hamper any card party that is not organized for private gain, and that the numerous euchre and bridge parties that are held in private homes in the city, and where prizes are usually given to the successful player, are quite legal and will have no nasty after results to worry the otherwise peaceful citizen.

MRS. C. E. JAMIESON IS WINNER OF I.O.D.E. HOPE CHEST DRAW

Stubs Carefully Guarded and Drawn on Capitol Stage.

OTHER PRIZES.

Proceeds From Sale Amount To $1,101.50, Auditor Reports.

The draw for the lucky winner of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. "Hope Chest" took place on the stage of the Capitol Theatre last evening, before a large audience gathered for the occasion. The Chapter, for some time past, has been selling tickets for this "Hope Chest," which is a red cedar chest plentifully stocked with beautiful things, in the way of linens and sundry accessories. It was won last evening by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, 243 London Street, with ticket No. 2746.

The drawing for the lucky ticket and for the winners of the other five prizes in connection with the Chest was surrounded by all manner of safeguards. D. J. Lawrie, chartered accountant, looked after the careful examination of the stubs of the tickets, which were locked securely in a club bag and placed in the safe belonging to Joseph Wearing. They were delivered to Mayor Holloway on the stage last evening by Mr. Wearing, and, in the presence of the audience, the stubs were then carefully churned before each drawing, in a churn loaned for the occasion by the De Laval Company. Mayor Holloway and Mr. Wearing took turns in the churning, it being noticeable that Mr. Wearing was much more adept than the Mayor in this activity.

Mayor Holloway preceded the drawing of the stubs by a reference to the good work done by the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., giving an idea of the activities carried on by the Chapter, and also congratulating them on the business-like way in which the sale of the Hope Chest tickets and the draw itself had been carried out. Little Berta Belleghem, dressed in charming old-fashioned costume, was discovered sitting on the Hope Chest as the curtains were drawn, and Mrs. J. McNab, Regent of the Chapter, also assisted the Mayor on the stage.

The Winners.

The prizes were drawn for as follows: The Hope Chest, won by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, 243 London Street, with ticket No. 2746; (2nd) a rose china tea set, with Madeira luncheon set, won by Charles Ray, 387 Water Street, with ticket No. 996; (3rd) card table cover, won by Miss M. Gwen. Colborne, College Street, Toronto, with ticket No. 923 (Miss Colborne was a resident of the city during the winter, in connection with the Red Cross course in home nursing work); (4th) buffet set, won by Miss Doris Pilling, 478 Murray Street, with ticket No. 455; (5th) boudoir lamp, won by Miss O'Brien, 621 George Street, with ticket No. 1688; (6th) pair of linen towels, won by O. Martin, 257 Dalhousie Street, with ticket No. 739.

The prize (a card table) for selling the most tickets for the Hope Chest, goes to Mrs. Walter Belleghem, who disposed of nearly three hundred tickets, and the prize, a compact, given by F. C. Webber, for the lady selling the winning ticket, was won by Mrs. F. C. Webber.

The following letter, written by D. J. Lawrie, was read by Mayor Holloway last evening: "To Mayor Holloway, Dear Sir, I beg to certify that I have personally counted the stubs of the tickets sold for the Peter Robinson Hope Chest and have verified the cash received from the sale of these tickets.

"As the total contents of the Chest, together with the Chest itself, were donated by members of the Chapter, there are no disbursements on this account to verify. The stubs of the tickets have been placed by me in the club bag, which I locked and placed in the vault in Mr. Wearing's office.

"The number of tickets sold and represented by stubs in the club bag amounted to 2,203, the total cash received amounting to $1,101.50.—Yours very truly,

"(Signed) D. J. Lawrie."

Little Evelyn Hill and Ruth McNeely were small representatives of the Y.W.C.A. who also appeared on the stage last evening and recited a small piece relating to the advantages of attending the forthcoming "Y" Pageant.

TORONTO, April 13 (Canadian Press).—A big increase in junior work throughout Canada was referred to in the report presented to the annual meeting of the executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society here to-day. The report stated that 527 handicapped and crippled children had been treated through the efforts of their junior Red Cross comrades during the year.

U. S. Senator Says He is the "Greatest Evil" To Italy.

OPPOSES FUNDING.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (Canadian Press).—The towering figure of Mussolini of Italy became the hub of a swirling Senate debate today, when the administration managers again sought approval of the Italian war debt settlement.

Attacking the funding agreement, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennesee, denounced the Italian Premier as "The greatest evil that has befallen the Italian people in a hundred years." The king, he declared, was "putty in his hands," and the royal household has "been bought off" by large appropriations for their use. He argued that the United States should not undertake to make a settlement with such a government. Under the settlement negotiated, he continued, Italy not only does not pay the principal indebtednes, but she pays only a fractional part of the interest. "It is little short of a crime," he said, "to give this vast sum of money to this Italian despot."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"SEA HORSES."

An Allan Dwan production, "Sea Horses," is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. It is an out of the ordinary picture, with photography of the black and white type that adds an element of unreality to any screen production, but gives an effect of etched clearness to the scenes depicted.

"Sea Horses" is one of those forceful productions that tells the story of a romantic quest by a woman who has a worthless husband. Lorenzo Salvia marries a young English girl and later departs for the South Seas, where he takes up the life of a beachcomber and sinks to degradation, a slave to drink and worthless living. His wife, Helen, a role taken in exceptionally fine fashion by Florence Vidor, follows him after some years, and, on the outward bound journey, develops a romance with the captain of the ship (Jack Holt). She finds that life with her husband is impossible, and, after a hectic scene in which battle is waged between the ship's sailors and the citizens of Panda, the small South Sea village, returns to her home in England.

A memorable bit in this picture and one that holds its audience fascinated with the weird nature of the presentation, is the inclusion of a typhoon. The terrible "twister" is depicted close up, and gives a forceful idea of the terror and devastating force of such a combination of wind and water. The "Sea Horses" are the jagged rocks that line the entrance to the small harbor of Panda.

The comedy with this programme is a miniature affair, connected with Old Mother Hubbard, and is quite interesting, as are the short reels.

The drawing for the Peter Robinson 'Hope Chest,' which took place at the Capitol Theatre last evening, is reported in another column. —Jeanette.

AT THE GRAND.

"NO, NO, NANETTE"

It is very evident that the "No, No, Nanette" announcements have caught the popular fancy of Grand Opera House patrons, as the advance sale at the box office bears sufficient testimony towards the cordial reception to be tendered this quite unusual musical comedy, which will surely spend a profitable visit here, next Wednesday, and leave behind such pleasant memories as seldom follow in the wake of this type of theatrical offering; a type which embodies all the essential elements of a distinguished and wholly enjoyable entertainment, one well calculated to satisfy the most exacting demands.

"No, No, Nanette," besides affording a treat to those who hold scenic and costume grandeur, requisites to a highly colorful production provides a farcical story of mirthful purpose and contains at least a half dozen songs which cannot fail to win the affection to an extent rarely found in musical shows, among them are "I Want To Be Happy" and "Tea for Two," two of the most pronounced sensational hits heard in many years. So Infectious are they that it would seem that the entire audience are fascinated with their swinging melody.

Then, too, there must be a word of praise given to the entire company presenting this delightful performance. It would be impossible to improve upon the cast chosen by H. H. Frazee, which is headed by John Hyams and Leila McIntyre of special musical comedy fame, and one marvels how he ever managed to assemble such a capable lot of talent in all the various directions; still, it should be remembered that Mr. Frazee is one of the shrewdest and most discerning producers in the theatrical world.

AT THE REGENT

"THE MERRY WIDOW."

With Mae Murray as "The Merry Widow," and the production itself under the supervision of Erich von Stroheim, there can be no doubt in any movie goer's mind as to the character of the big picture now showing at the Regent Theatre. It is a typical Mae Murray affair, with the lovely star at her very best in the role of the dashing "Merry Widow" of the title role.

"The Merry Widow" is not exactly the type of picture that might be considered as being just the thing for a youthful audience. Even the more sophisticated members of the adult audience may wonder at moments if the censor really did as much to this picture as he might have done. However, even if it borders on the verge of being quite risque in character, it depicts the triumph of true love, which may or may not be an excuse for a delineation of this type. Prince Danilo of Monteblanc, the philandering hero, is on the way to becoming a satyr-like lover, after the style of his Mirka, but the golden haired Sally grinning cousin, the Crown Prince O'Hara finally wins his heart and he makes her the queen of his small kingdom. Artificial in essence, the main theme of romantic love its one excuse for being. "The Merry Widow" is a flashing, glittering, spectacular affair, depicting the type of life of make-believe princelings and their adventures in the world of romance.

For sheer gorgeousness of filming, for delineation of a certain type of madcap folly, for scenes of revelry and glittering, flashing splendor, for a production that gives the dashing Mae Murray full scope in undeniably good acting, and in revealing just how far a lady can go in the way of daring gowns and conduct, "The Merry Widow" is quite out of the ordinary. Its filming is absolutely foreign to anything seen here in some time and its backgrounds are extraordinarily good. The frolics and romances of a merry dancer of the Rollies, touring the small Continental kingdoms, the life of a beauty who expects to marry a prince of the blood, and then compromises on a millionaire baron, the gay interior of Parisian restaurants and ballrooms, wonderful, daring gowns and equally daring situations, all have full scope in "The Merry Widow." It is a gorgeous, daring production, with an undertone lacking in morality.—JEANETTE.

Difference Between Budget Expenditure and Revenue Is Sought.

FOR THE BOYS.

The annual financial canvass of the Young Men's Christian Association which is conducted by the Board of Directors with the assistance of some of the members, got away to a flying start last night at the supper hour. Enthusiasm and optimism marked the launching of the canvass for the amount which is the difference between the budget and the internal revenue of the Association.

During the balance of the week the city will be covered by the teams and report supper on Wednesday and Friday evenings will record the progress of the different teams.

The emphasis in this appeal to the citizens is placed upon the boy and young man. Without the assistance tendered at this time membership fees would of necessity be prohibitive to many young fellows. But thanks to the generosity of subscribers any boy or young man is reasonably within reach of all the privileges and influences of this worth-while institution.

ST JAMES' CHOIR CONCERT

The anniversary concert at St. James United Church last evening, was attended by a splendid audience, and the concert itself, high class and interesting in character, was greeted with much enthusiastic appreciation, the many encores accorded the various artists being an earnest of the excellent nature of the entertainment provided. Mr. Albert Greenlaw of Detroit, was the visiting soloist and was assisted by the choir and various local soloists in vocal and instrumental music.

The programme opened with two very fine glees sung by the choir, under the direction of Mr. F. W. Chenhall, whose qualities of leadership were well demonstrated in the tuneful singing of the members who gave in splendid voice, "It is thy Bridal Morn" and "Moonlight."

Mr. Greenlaw's contributions to the programme were generous and received well-merited encores in every instance. His attractive, melodious baritone, with the rich quality characteristic of his race, was heard to much advantage in music of a varied type, including several of the negro spirituals, which are always a favorite addition to this singer's programmes. He sang with sonorous effect, "The Song of Hebrias, the Cretan," and several groups of the spirituals, which included such well known favorites as "Steal Away," "Heaven, Heaven," "I want to be Ready," "Nobody knows the Trouble I See," "The Gospel Train," "My Way Cloudy," "You may Bury Me in the East," and "Go Down Moses."

Other vocal numbers which were much enjoyed were those of Miss Daisy Murray, whose clear vibrant soprano was heard excellently in "The Swallows," and "The Awakening," Mrs. E. Kitney, A.C.A.M. whose lovely contralto was very attractive in "Il Bacio," (Dream of Home), and "Joy of the Morning," and Mrs. H. F. Doig, whose charming bright soprano tones were as effective as usual in "A Sapphic Ode" and "Summer."

The selection, "My Pretty Maid," by a male quartette, comopsed of Messrs Lee, Turner, Worrall and Baldry was also much appreciated and done in fine voice.

Mr. C. Rusaw contributed well-played violin numbers to the programme, Gounod's "Faust Valse" and Brahms "Hungarian Dance," and the Misses Mary Wood, A.T.C.M., and Florence Saunders, A.T.C.M., played with beautiful expression and finish a "concerto" pianoforte duet.

During the evening greetings from sister churches were presented by Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of the George street church, and Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's church.

Rev. J. D. Richardson acted as chairman for the concert, for which accompaniments were played by Mr. F. W. Chenhall. The church orchestra accompanied the choral numbers, with Miss Mary Wood at the piano. At the conclusion of the programme dainty refreshments were served to the artists taking part by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

The concert provided a fitting touch to the splendid anniversary services conducted at St. James' Church on Sunday, for both of which the church was filled to capacity. Rev. Dr. T. W. G. Brown, M.A., of the Sydenham street church, Kingston, was the special speaker for the occasion and preached inspiring sermons at both morning and evening services.

Cows Nibbled Dynamite Government To Pay $200

WASHINGTON, April 13 (United Press)—President Coolidge has asked Congress to pay Bill McDonough $200 for five of his cows which chewed up some Government dynamite.

McDonough's cows, grazing in the Cochetopa National forest near his home at Parlin, Colorado, nibbled upon some explosives which a department of agriculture employee had carelessly left out in the open.

The explosive did not explode but the cows died. McDonough asked $40 a-piece and the budget bureau and the President approved his claim without cutting it a cent.

Weakness At New York Selling Pressure Heavy

NEW YORK, April 13 (Canadian Press)—Further weakness developed at opening of today's stock market when selling pressure was renewed against Motors and other speculative industrials but the general list gathered strength in the early afternoon. Some of the early weak spots were: Burroughs Adding Machine, which broke six points; Cushman's Bakery, which dropped 5 1-4 and Weber and Heilbroner, Great Western Sugar, and National Dairy Products, off 3 to 4. Interborough Rapid Transit was run up about six points above last night's closing quotation and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit 3 1-4. Pullman also showed marked strength on buying inspired by reports of large equipment orders

Wheat Has Higher Trend Buying Becomes Active

CHICAGO, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Sharply higher prices in the wheat market accompanied active buying on the part of previous speculative sellers. A big Eastern trader regarded as being heavily short of wheat to fill future contracts was among leading buyers, according to current talk.

Chicago opening prices, 1-8 to 1 1-8 higher, May $1.60 to $1.60 1-4 and July $1.36 1-2 to $1.37 were followed soon by additional gain that carried May up to $1.63 1-4 and July to $1.34 7-8.

Corn and oats responded to wheat strength and to the smallness of the arrivals of corn here, 64 cars to-day. After opening unchanged to 3-8 up, May 72 1-8 to 72 1-4, the corn market scored a moderate general advance.

Oats started 1-8 to 1-4 higher, May 41 3-4 and later made a little further upturn.

In line with hog values and with grain, the provision market was firmer.

Trading Slightly Active Toronto Market Is Firmer

TORONTO, April 13 (Canadian Press).—Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning was largely confined to a few active issues, notably Brazilian, Smelters and International Nickel. Price changes were negligible and save for an occasional weak spot stocks were generally firm. Smelters closed the morning 2 1-4 lower at 205 1-2, and Nickel 1-4 lower at 34 3-8. Brazilian firmed 1-8 at 89 5-8 and Atlantic Sugar 1-4 at 24. Other issues were unchanged. Hollinger and McIntyre in the mines firmed slightly.

Values Have General Drop Dome Weakest At Standard

TORONTO, April 13 (Canadian Press)—A pronounced downturn set in on the Standard Mining Exchange today with Dome Mines' loss of 1.05 at 14.80 the outstanding feature. Other losses were not extraordinarily heavy, Teck Hughes dropped 10 cents to 326, Viopnd 4 at 167, and Tough Oakes 1 1-2 at 42 1-2, Kirkland Lake losing 4 at 113 and Lake Shore 15 at 10.05. Beaver dropped 6 at 73, and Canadian Lorrain 2 1-2 at 85 1-2, while Noranda firmed 10 at 15.50.

UTILITIES COMMISSION DECIDES AGAINST NEW FINANCE SYSTEM

Usually Has Large Credit Balance and Does Little Borrowing.

The Utilities Commission decided at its regular meeting not to comply with the agreement made between the city and the Bank of Montreal in regards to its finances. The commission usually has a large credit balance in the bank and does very little borrowing so it will be further ahead by receiving four per cent on deposits and paying six per cent on borrowed money, than at the new rates of five and three-quarters per cent on borrowed money and three and three-quarters on deposits.

The meters of the surrounding townships have been read for the last time by the Utilities Commission and now the power users of those districts will be under the rural power department of the Ontario Hydro Commission. The new rates are expected to be announced in a few days.

The C. N. R. was asked to furnish blueprints for the parcel of land which they desire so as to get into their proposed freight sheds. The C. N. R. desire to obtain a parcel of land from the corner of the sub-station property on Aylmer street so as to allow them to build a railroad curve.

Two local firms sent in prices for the new electric wiring at the pump-house but nothing was done until the commission had looked the ground over.

FIVE MEN KILLED IN RENEWAL OF FACTIONAL FEUD IN HERRIN, ILLS., OVER STATE PRIMARY ELECTIONS

Sixth Victim of Street Warfare Reported Near Death.

TROOPS CALLED.

Third Time Blood Shed in Klan Battles—Martial Law.

HERRIN, Ills., April 14 (Canadian Press). — Five men are dead and another near death as a result of a renewal of Herrin's factional trouble late Tuesday in connection with the hotly contested primary election here.

The dead: Harlan Ford, brother of former Chief of Police John Ford; Mack Sizemore and brother, Ben Sizemore, both constables; Deputy Sheriffs Treadwy and Briggs. The wounded: Noble Weaver, Deputy Sheriff, probably fatally.

Company K, Illinois National Guard, from Cairo, was expected to arrive here last night, reports from that city being received telling that the guardsmen were being mobilized in preparation for the trip to the riot scene. Along with this came announcement that Lieut.-Col. Davis would ask for enough troops to place the city under martial law until the disorders subside.

Since the trouble started early in the afternoon, troops have been guarding the homes of two alleged Klan clergymen, the John Smith Garage, where the trouble started, and the Masonic Temple, where the killings took place. So far, however, no arrests are reported.

Several hundred shots were fired in a renewal of Ku Klux Klan and anti-Klan warfare here as culmination of an election disorder.

Klansmen barricaded in the garage of John Smith, where seven men were killed in a riot August 30, 1924, exchanged shots with anti-Klansmen. Several machine guns were reported in use and volleys were fired at intervals of four or five minutes.

Shortly before four o'clock this afternoon the firing ceased. An unidentified man was reported wounded while standing in front of the European Hotel, where S. Glenn Young, Klan liquor raider, and three others were killed in February, 1925.

CHAUFFEURS MUST GET NEW LICENSES

Are Also Asked To Register at Police Station Here.

All chauffeurs in the city who have not obtained their 1926 chauffeur's licenses must get them without delay by applying to the Motor Vehicles Director, Toronto. Upon receipt of the license every chauffeur must report to the local police station for registration.

A chauffeur's license button, number 14047, which apparently had been lost, is now at the police station awaiting the owner who can have it by applying to Inspector Reid.

NORSE WELCOME DIRIGIBLE FOR POLAR FLIGHT

Schools and Shops of Oslo Closed for the Occasion.

GOOD CRUISE.

All Night Flight From Pulham Made Without Trouble.

OSLO, April 14 (United Press).—Thousands of enthusiastic Norwegians to-day turned out to greet the Ellsworth-Amundsen dirigible Norge when she arrived from Pulham, England, at the end of an all-night cruise above the tumbling waters of the North Sea.

Schools and other public buildings were closed and most shops followed the example. The city was dressed in flags and bunting, while on Ekeberk Hill, in the suburbs, virtually the entire population gathered to shout "Welcome" to the men who sought the Pole.

Lieutenant Riiser Larsen, who accompanied Amundsen and Ellsworth on the flight toward the Pole last year, addressed the welcoming crowd from a gondola of the Norge.

His words were amplified by a loud speaker. A good flight, but slightly marred by gusts of wind, was his description of the journey from Pulham to Oslo. The Norge proceeded straight across the North Sea to Oslo, by way of the Island of Jutland.

BODY FOUND IN LACHINE CANAL

Foul Play Suspected in Death of Fred MacFie, Missing Six Months.

HAS SISTER HERE.

MONTREAL, April 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Foul play is suspected in the death of Fred MacFie, 45, hotel keeper of St. Armand, Que., whose body was found in the Lachine Canal yesterday, after being missing since the latter part of October.

Identification of MacFie was made by officials of the local missing persons bureau, who had been informed of his disappearance by relatives. The dead man was a former resident of London, Ont., and Edmonton, Alberta. At the time of his disappearance, it is said, he had considerable money on his person.

When the body was found the pockets contained a watch, railway tickets, a key and a small book and five cents.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. MacFie, of London, Ontario; two sisters, Mrs. H. E. Walker, Detroit and Mrs. F. Bray, Peterborough, Ont., and two unmarried sisters living in London, Ont.

ROBBERS STEAL SACKS OF MAIL

Intimidate Driver of Post Office Truck Near Chicago.

REGISTERED MAIL.

CHICAGO, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Several sacks of registered mail, believed to contain money, were taken from a mail truck as it was being loaded in the rear of Indiana Harbor, Ind., Post Office early to-day. Two armed men seized the sacks and drove rapidly towards Chicago. According to Indiana Harbor police, the mail sacks were consigned to several large steel companies.

The robbers intimidated the truck driver, forcing him to help in transferring the bags.

BELIEVES BURBANK BADLY MISQUOTED

Defence of His Friend By Henry Ford.

CHATHAM, Ont., April 14.—"His religion was about the same as that of anybody else. He loved children, and thought that they should go to church to learn to think right. I am sure that his instincts told him that there was a hereafter."

So spoke Henry Ford of his friend, Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, who interviewed as he passed through Chatham early Tuesday.

Asked if Burbank held strong views on religious matters, Mr. Ford replied that he did not think so. "I am not disparaging the newspapers, but I think most of it was newspaper talk. He has been badly misquoted."

That it would be advantageous to the province if the speed limit was 35 miles an hour instead of 25 was another opinion voiced by Mr. Ford. While admitting the danger of accidents, Mr. Ford said he thought that a higher speed limit placed a driver upon his honor.

BRITISH MINERS DEMAND MINIMUM WAGE ON NATIONAL BASIS AND NO REDUCTION IN THE PRESENT RATE

Also Reject Suggestion of Increase in Working Hours —Conference Fails.

GOVERNMENT'S TASK.

Cabinet Meeting To-day To Consider Deadlock in Coal Negotiations.

LONDON, April 14 (Canadian Press).—For the moment interest lies rather outside than inside the House of Commons, which reassembled Tuesday, and it is already evident that the Government is faced with an extremely difficult and delicate task in reconciling many conflicting points of view before a solution of the coal problem is possible.

The first conference between the coal mine owners' and miners' representatives yesterday resulted in a deadlock. This leaves no alternative but intervention by the Government, and a Cabinet meeting has been called for to-day to consider the situation. At the conference the miners presented their reply to the recommendations of the Royal Commission.

The Government had hoped that, with the promise of a State loan to tide over the industry during the coming months, the miners as well as the owners would be willing to accept the commission's recommendations. This, however, the miners declined to do.

Demands of Miners.

Briefly, they will consent to no increase in working hours and no reduction of wages, while they insist that the minimum wage must be settled nationally and not by districts, as recommended by the commission. They declare: "No settlement is acceptable which fails to provide a wage enabling miners to get a decent standard of living."

No arrangement was made for a further conference, because it was found that neither side was willing to make any concessions on the question of a minimum wage. The door, however, is not entirely closed to negotiations, and it is thought that other meetings will be held today.

Another Obstacle.

Another complication has arisen outside the ranks of those immediately concerned. The Coal Commission suggested municipal trading in coal for the benefit of consumers, but coal merchants and middlemen have fallen foul of this suggestion, which they denounce as socialistic and unjustified interference with the rights of private traders, and in various districts representative bodies of traders are adopting and sending to the Government resolutions protesting in effect that "it is unfair and contrary to public policy that possible trading losses should be charged to local rates."

"THROUGH STREET" TRAFFIC LAW RESENTED BY LINDSAY DRIVERS

"Big Town Stuff" Not Needed, Declares Main Street.

WAS "RAILROADED."

LINDSAY, April 14.—The Town Council put one over a section of the community at a special session Monday night, and their action has evoked considerable comment on the street.

A few evenings ago the chairman of the Police Committee was instructed to bring in a by-law designating three blocks of the main thoroughfare a "through street," and compelling the operator or driver of every vehicle to bring said vehicle to a full stop immediately before entering or crossing the said "through highway."

When the proposed legislation was announced in the press, there was an outcry on the part of certain auto owners, who claimed that the Council was altogether too progressive. Lindsay, they claimed, was still in its swaddling clothes, and that an edict of this nature would be all right in the big cities, where motor traffic is always a vexed problem. The local press called for an expression of opinion, and everything was set for a real nice controversy. The Council proved that it was a swift-moving body, and now the by-law is on the statute book.

The committees of the Council met Monday night, and when the draft of the proposed by-law was submitted it was discussed. After the committee adjourned a special Council session was held and the by-law passed. The action of the Council has added fat to the fire, and the opponents of the measure are anxiously waiting to see the Council put it into force.

New York's Radio Burglar Arrested At Ball Game

NEW YORK, April 14.—(Canadian Press).—Paul Hilton, 26, who confessed to police that he was Brooklyn's "gentleman radio burglar" was arrested Tuesday while attending the opening baseball game at the Polo Grounds. The radio burglar terrorized residents in Queen's in a series of thefts in which he looted homes of 150 radio sets and shot four policemen who at various times confronted him. He was armed when arrested.

The prisoner said he had been living in various lodging houses since completing a prison term and beginning his career as a radio burglar. One of the policemen shot down by the radio burglar, Arthur Kenny, died, April 6.

SIMPLE FUNERAL BURBANK'S WISH

Only Few Permitted To Witness Burial of Plant Wizard.

INTERMENT TO-DAY.

SANTA ROSA, Calif., April 14 (Canadian Press).—Just as the last rays of the setting sun brighten for a moment the flowers in the gardens of Santa Rosa, Luther Burbank will go to his final rest today, borne by the hands of old and trusted friends to a quiet grave under a Lebanon pine he planted many years ago.

A strange mixture of agnosticism and religion tinctures the gathering of those who will gather to mourn his passing. Friends from far and near thronged here when they heard of his death early on Sunday morning, but only his widow, his sister, and a chosen few will be permitted to witness the final scene.

All are invited to the public services among the living monuments to his memory in the trees and flowers of Doyle Park but Burbank, unostentatious in life, preferred that his burial be clothed with simplicity.

PULHAM, England, April 14 (Canadian Press). — The dirigible Norge, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar expedition, started on her flight for Oslo, Norway, at 1.40 o'clock last night.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR TWO WOMEN

Brought Down From Third Floor Window By Firemen.

IN OTTAWA FIRE.

OTTAWA, April 14 (Canadian Press)—When fire broke out in the paint and varnish store of Ovile Archambault in this city at three o'clock this morning, Mrs. Katie Lortie and her 13 year old daughter Helen were trapped in their apartments on the third floor. After vain attempts to get down through the dense smoke that filled the stairway they rushed to the front windows and called for help. The firemen arrived with ladders in time to rescue them.

We had better appear to be what we are than affect to be what we are not.—La Rochefoucauld.

Bill Raisers Arrested Make "20's" From "2's"

TORONTO, April 14.—(Canadian Press.) — After a sensational chase along Danforth avenue to-day the police arrested two men charged with "raising $2 currency notes to $20. The men gave their names as Roy Goltz and John Holovich, one stating that his home was in Winnipeg and the other that he came to the city from Sudbury. The arrests followed an alarm from a bank branch that had received a "raised" bill.

PEACHES' DREAM NOT SO BRIGHT

Move On Foot To Investigate Legality of Her Marriage.

TRIP DELAYED.

NEW YORK, April 14—Stern realities appearing to mock the dreams of the former Frances (Peaches) Heenan, have made that 15-year-old girl's first day as the bride of Edward W. Browning something less than an unqualified success.

Not that the bridegroom, his 51 years sitting lightly upon him, has not been solicitous. He has been all of that at such times as he and his wife have been exposed to public view. But certain honeymoon development have conspired to make "Peaches" somewhat miserable.

One of the latest pronouncements to cast a shadow on the course of the Browning marriage, is that of Special District Attorney Clayton Rider, of Putnam county, where the wedding took place Saturday, who threatened investigation as to whether either bride or bridegroom had established six months' residence before applying for the license.

Mrs. Browning gave her residence as Cold Spring, in Putnam county, but so far as is known she was never in that Hudson river village until the day before her marriage.

Will Be Scarred

Another bit of disturbing news was given the young wife by physicians who on Monday examined burns on her chin and neck, which were sustained mysteriously some time ago, when some one threw acid upon her while she slept.

The doctors agreed that some scars would be left.

In fact, it is believed that her physical condition was all that deterred the Brownings Monday night from driving to Albany as the first hop on a journey to Montreal for a protracted honeymoon.

Four times the Browning car started toward Albany and each time turned back, finally arriving at the 15-room house at Cold Spring, which the millionaire realtor has leased for a year. On Monday the Brownings had no intention of returning to the Cold Spring house, but they spent the night there, nevertheless.

Court Appearance

Another deterrent to the Canadian plan may have been the determination of the Children's society here, to have Mrs. Browning and her mother appear in Children's court today.

Proceedings by which the society hoped to set aside the mother as an unfit guardian for the girl will go on despite the marriage, it was said.

MANY ARTICLES ARE SMUGGLED

Merchants Tell Probe Committee of Competition Met.

CAN'T HOLD OUT.

OTTAWA, April 14.—(Canadian Press.)—From overalls to evening gowns, from cheese cloth to pearls, the smuggling trade overlooks no commodity on which money can be made by evading the customs man, the customs probe committee was told to-day. Representatives of a wide range of businesses in Canada gave evidence of the competition they have met with from smuggled goods. Several stated that their business could not hold out much longer unless smuggling was very considerably curtailed. One said that his firm had gone out of the silk business because of the futility of trying to compete with smuggled silk and another said that his firm had almost given up the manufacture of khaki work trousers because of "Rock Island ruinous competition.",

WAR TO FINISH AGAINST RIFFS IF PARLEY WITH FRANCE AND SPAIN THURSDAY FAILS TO BRING PEACE

GAS JET LEAKS KILLING TWO IN TORONTO HOUSE

Mrs. Helen Watson and Her Seven Year Old Daughter Die.

HUSBAND AFFECTED.

Children in Other Rooms of House Show No Ill Effects.

TORONTO, April 14 (Canadian Press).—A leaking gas jet caused the death here during the night of Mrs. Helen Watson and her 7-year-old daughter, Muriel, and reduced William Watson, the husband and father, to a state of unconsciousness, from which he is slowly recovering in the hospital. He is 53 years of age.

When Bella Watson, another daughter, entered her mother's room this morning she found her mother and sister lying dead in bed. The father was lying on the floor in an unconscious state. She immediately called Police Constable Morocco, who carried Mr. Watson to the open and and thus perhaps saved his life. A doctor, soon on the scene, said nothing could be done for the other two. Five children sleeping in another part of the house were aroused and showed no ill-effects from the gas.

Three daughters and two sons at home and three adult sons and an adult daughter besides Mr. Watson survive. The family came from Scotland 20 years ago. Mr. Watson is a well-known contractor.

CLEVER COMEDY BEING PRESENTED

Young Ladies Giving Play in George Street Sunday School.

In the midst of worrying preparations for a dinner party in honor of Captain Braithwaite, Patty, the young sister of Mrs. Greene, the hostess appears, having been expelled from boarding school. From then on things begin to happen.

This bright, clever, three-act comedy is being presented by one of the Canadian Girls-in-Training classes in George Street Sunday School on Friday evening at eight o'clock. The proceeds are for the Sunday School building fund and C.G.I.T. conference. Those taking part in the play are Gwen. Routley, Dorothy Pogue, Kathleen Cooney, Mary Dunlop, Vera Stevens, Irene Heard, Fred Ash, Harold Baker, Ernest McGee and Dick Bates.

Between acts a splendid program of humorous songs, readings and instrumental numbers by Court Miller, Russel Lewis, Vera Stevens and Dorothy Cooney has been arranged.

Members of the class believe that this Friday evening's program will be worth much more than the price of admission.

European Allies Have Planned Smashing Offensive Against the Tribesmen.

HAVEN FOR KRIM.

Cattle and Money For Road Building Offered To Riffs.

PARIS, April 14.— (Canadian Press).—Peace or war to a finish within a few days is the policy France and Spain have adopted toward the insurgent tribesmen in Morocco, it was said Tuesday in official circles.

Unless Adb-El-Krim, the Riffian leader, shows a disposition to accept promptly the terms that the two powers will offer him, France and Spain it is said, will refuse to dally at Oudja where the conference will be held. Instead, it was said in official circles, they will set in motion an offensive already prepared which military authorities say will quickly put an end to all possibility that Krim will be able to make for some time to come.

Peace Parley Thursday.

The date originally set for an attack upon the tribesmen was April 15, the day upon which the conference is scheduled to begin. It will be impossible for the peace parley to get any serious work done by that time, but the French say they are not disposed to keep their forces inactive very long after that time.

The French and Spanish are disposed to soften Krim's fall as much as possible and, with the approval of the sultan, plan to offer him a dignified post in some Moroccan city if he is disposed to take it. If he is not willing to take such a post they plan to provide a haven for him in Europe or elsewhere but they are firm in demanding that he leave the Riff.

Krim's representatives at the parley will be asked to find out without delay which alternative their chief desires to accept. There is a distinct impression in political circles that Krim is already in agreement with agents of Spain and France whom his emissaries have seen at Tangiers and that the peace conference at Oudja for that reason will be very short.

Attractive Terms.

The offer of France and Spain to re-stock the depleted Riffian flocks of cattle, to furnish capital to build roads and to develop the economic resources of the country is counted upon to induce the different tribes, represented at the conference, to accept all terms promptly.

The demand of the powers for the disarmament of the Riffian tribes is a point which is thought likely to meet with opposition. The disarmament point, however, applies more to cannon and machine guns than to rifles. It is thought that the caids will give in when they compare the advantages of having their country restocked with all other things necessary to make life easy to the doubtful advantage of keeping armed for war. The tribes, under the plan, would be allowed to retain sufficient arms to protect their property.

HELD BRIDGE PARTY.

Business Girls Hostesses at Pleasant Social Gathering.

The Business Girls' Club held a very pleasant bridge party at the "Paragon" last evening. The handsome interior was decorated with a quantity of ferns and floor lamps and presented an attractive appearance. Twelve tables of cards were played, the general arrangements being in charge of Mrs. A. W. Clysdale and Miss Ethel Rae, assisted by Miss Aleitha Davidson in arranging reservations for tables. Miss Grace Evans had charge of refreshments. Prizes for cards were won by Mrs. A. Massel and Mr. Stewart Hall, with consolation awards to Mrs. M. Storey and Mr. J. Kemp.

GEORGE STREET MEN ARE ENTERTAINED

Men of St. Paul's Are Hosts at Fine Supper.

On Monday evening last was held in the Sunday school room of St. Paul's church, the final semi-public gathering of the men of St. Paul's church. A month or so ago the membership had convened at George street hall, and shared in a debate with the men of George street, and had an enjoyable time, and everybody was happy, though St. Paul's carried off the honors in the debate.

The return gathering was held, as stated, on Monday evening. The George street men met and walked over to St. Paul's in a body, which means that they marched in double fyle along the now nearly cleared sidewalks. They were received most cheerfully and in a few minutes supper was served. Fully a hundred and fifty men sat down to enjoy a peach of a spread.

There are two organizations in the city that never cease in well doing, and always doing it well. The Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's, and that of the George street United church. Both are excellent. In fact so competent and reliable, so helpful and painstaking that both churches would be bereft if the capable ladies were to resign. The ladies at St. Paul's were the hostesses of the evening. Supper was served at 6.30 p.m.

While the tables were being cleared the presentation of the trophy of a shield, suitably decorated in silver plate, with appropriate designs and inscriptions, was made to the winners in the hockey league contest for juniors, the team from Mark St. church and school, East City. The members of the team enjoyed the supper, and then ranged themselves along the floor in front of the platform that all men could hear of their good works and commend the tuition of their coach, Mr. Kent Throop. The club lost only one out of the six games played, which is rather good picking. This star aggregation hopes to secure the trophy in each of the next two seasons, and have picked out the place on the wall of the school room where it will hang permanently.

Dr. Craig was in the chair, and after he had gotten things running smoothly handed over the duties of presiding officer to Mr. C. B. Adair, of the George street Association.

Mr. Melton sang two songs, one the difficult baritone solo, "The Bandolero," well done. Mrs. Hazel McClelland gave two character recitations ,and was fairly cheered for her illustrations of dialect and manner. The George street men's quartette obliged with real good music, Messrs Jones, Lillow, Thompson and Cunningham.

Mr. F. D. Kerr spoke on "Canada"—not the stereotyped recital with heaps of figures and comparisons, and other statistics, but a real interesting narrative talk on the land we live in. As one listener remarked: "He must have been chock-full of history." He held the attention of the audience for an hour with a relation beginning at Quebec and going clear to the other side of the mountains bordering the Pacific. He made references to the exploits of the old navigators and explorers who came in the early past and opened up the country for the tired business man to ride across in his auto or steam car and enjoy the scenery. He told of the productions of the country and the progressive enhancement of exports, gaining by leaps and bounds, and paid a fine tribute to those who had borne the burden and heat and cold of the day, in the pioneering years, now hardly a memory.

The usual vote of thanks and recognition were moved and seconded and carried, and everybody looked pleased and the members of the St. Paul's Club congratulated themselves that they, by the help of the Ladies' Aid, had supplied a most enjoyable evening to all concerned.

W.M.S. EXECUTIVE RECEIVES REPORTS

United Church Society Reports Show Successful Quarter.

A meeting of the executive of the W.M.S. of the Peterborough Presbyterial was held on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 13, in St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, to receive the reports of the Presbyterial for the first three months of 1926.

As the inaugural meetings of the United Societies takes place in Lindsay and Cobourg next week, this will be the last meeting of this executive.

Members were present from Cobourg, Port Hope, Lakefield, Norwood and Peterborough; the President, Mrs. Bremner of Cobourg, presiding.

Mrs. Jull of Lakefield and Mrs. A. McKenzie of Peterborough assisted in the opening exercises, after which most optimistic reports were given by the representatives of the different departments.

Owing to illness and bereavement in the home, Miss M. Dickson, the corresponding secretary, was unable to be present and her report was given by Mrs. A. Porteous, the assistant corresponding secretary. This report showed a membership of 410, with 15 new life-members and one junior member, during the three months, and 309 subscribers to The Missionary Monthly.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Drummond, was very gratifying—$2,103.75 having been received during these three months, which was over $550 more than the allocation of the Presbyterial for that period.

Mrs. Mackinnon, C.G.I.T. and Y.W. secretary, reported increased membership and increased givings in both these departments during the three months.

A splendid report from the finance secretary, Mrs. Yale of Lakefield, was read by Mrs. Jull, and encouraging reports were also received from Mrs. McKone, mission band secretary; Mrs. Jull, Home Helpers' secretary; Mrs. N. Henry, Strangers' secretary, and Mrs. Robb of Norwood, Supply secretary. Other members of the executive present were Mrs. J. Gordon, Mrs. J. John, Mrs. C. McKinnon, of Peterborough; Mrs. Weir of Norwood, and Miss Brodie and Miss Roberts of Port Hope.

Mrs. A. Porteous was appointed to give the survey of this Presbyterial at the inaugural meeting in Lindsay next week.

The executive placed on record its appreciation of the services of both the President, Mrs. Bremner, and the Corresponding Secretary, Miss M. Dickson, to whose untiring efforts so much of the success of the society has been due.

The closing words of prayer were offered by Miss Brodie of Port Hope.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 14 (Canadian Press).—The steamer Afghanistan is coming to Halifax from Newport News to load 308,000 bushels of grain for Italy. It will be the biggest shipment yet made from the new grain elevator and the first shipment ever to be made from this port to Italy.

DOCTOR SAYS

Liver Causes 90 Per Cent of Sickness

The liver does not excrete bile into the intestines—waste and poisons remain in the bowels. The blood distributed the poison to all parts of the body, causing headaches, indigestion, sallow complexion, bad breath, coated tongue, tired feeling in the morning, all out of sorts, rheumatism, biliousness, etc.

These troubles can now be quickly driven out of system by Calomel, the only drug known that acts upon the liver.

Get a few of the new improved Calomel, called Tanol Calomel. They act quickly upon the liver, causing an easy natural elimination of all the poisons, with no bad after-effects. Does not nauseate. No salts or seidlitz are needed. Like ordinary Calomel. Get a few Tanol Calomel tablets from Weber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and they will make you feel 100 per cent better.

CAMPBELLFORD ELECTRIC LIGHT CONSUMERS TO PAY LOWER RATE

Commission Decides To Allow Discount of 20 Per Cent. in Future.

WAS 10 PER CENT.

Rates and Discount on Power and Commercial Light Unchanged.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 14. — The members of the Water and Light Commission have finally decided to grant a reduction to the domestic consumers of light, the change to go into effect when the next bi-monthly bills are presented. Residents of the third ward will be the first to benefit by this concession as their accounts are now being sent out. Instead of a discount for prompt payment of 10 per cent. the discount in future will be 20 per cent. The rates and discount for power and commercial light will remain the same as formerly. Clerk McGregor was instructed to prepare a bylaw dealing with the rates.

This matter has been before the Commission for some time and the idea of a reduction originated with S. J. Abernethy, the chairman, who contended that in view of the large surplus that the Commission has on hand, the patrons of the system were entitled to some consideration. Mayor Kingston, the Council's representative on the Commission, was in favor of applying part of the surplus to a reduction of the general tax rate.

Commissioner A. L. Reindeau, the third member, was of the same way of thinking as the chairman and the question was settled on motion of these two.

It was decided to deposit the funds of the Commission in the local branch of the Royal Bank.

FRENCH WORRIED BY MUSSOLINI'S TRIPOLI SPEECH

Outbursts Might Inflame Patriotism of His Countrymen, They Say.

HONORED BY ARABS.

Mussulman Natives Turn Religious Festivals Into Great Demonstration.

PARIS, April 14. — (Canadian Press.)— Premier Mussolini's outbursts in Tripoli are causing some worry in certain quarters here. Without wishing to take his grandiloquent phrases too seriously, French politicians insist the Italian dictator's Napoleonic gestures might well inflame the patriotism of an excitable people like the Italians with disastrous consequences to the peace of Europe. It would be a grave mistake, therefore, to pay no attention to his utterances or acts.

ARABS WELCOME HIM.

TRIPOLI, April 14.—(Canadian Press.)—The festival of rejoicing in which the Islamic population of Tripoli was celebrating last night the termination of the austere Ramadan period of one month, was converted into a brilliant manifestation when Premier Mussolini decided to pay a surprise visit to the quarter of the city inhabited by Mussulmans.

The Premier's appearance at the gate of the ancient city, accompanied by a guard of honor, was followed by a great rush of Arabs through the narrow lanes. Parades in which huge flags were carried, the sacred green flag and multi-colored tribal ones with the star and crescent, comprising singers, dancers and flagellating fakirs, which had been flitting through the streets all day long, converged to meet the premier.

STORMY CLASH IN BINGO TRIAL

Crown Prosecutor Wrathy at Interruptions By Defense Counsel.

MYERS ON TRIAL.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 14 (Canadian Press)—Charges were made yesterday by R. A. Bonnar, K.C., senior defence counsel for Joseph Myers, that the Attorney General of Manitoba had allowed his office to be used in a conspiracy to ruin his client. Myers is facing trial on charges of making false statements in connection with the operation of the Bingo Gold Mines.

Stormy clashes between opposing counsel featured yesterday's hearing. R. B. Graham, K.C., crown prosecutor, became particularly wrathful at continuous interruptions. He threatened to "throw up his brief" unless the practice was discontinued.

"Never before in all my experience have I seen such disgraceful exhibition as has taken place today," Mr. Graham asserted. On several occasions he said he had been tempted to quit, but such a course he stated would be unfair to Myers and leave doubt in the mind of the public.

Harrison S. Coe, mining engineer, was the only witness examined. Objection was raised by defence council to evidence given by Harrison relating to the results of his assays made from samples taken from the mine. The witness was withdrawn pending argument as to the admissibility of his evidence.

ARBITRATION OF SOLDIER LAND VALUES BY COUNTY JUDGE URGED BY CRITICS IN COMMONS DEBATE

Hon. Mr. Stewart Proposes Three Arbitrators, Including County Judge.

SOME CHANGES.

Suggestions From Former Committee Discussion Incorporated in Bill.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14 (by Canadian Press)—In committee of the whole Tuesday afternoon, the House of Commons took up for the second time the Government's bill for the revaluation of Soldiers' Settlement lands.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, presented a revised bill to the committee embodying suggestions made by members of the house when the bill was debated previously. Mr. Stewart explained that the changes were to give every man who had been forced off his land on account of debt an opportunity to return; a slight change in the basis of compensation of revaluation, and the appointment of a county court judge together with a representative of the Settlement Board and a representative of the soldiers to act as district arbitration committees.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, pointed out that the representative of the Board and the settler would in the first place endeavour to settle on a revaluation and if they agreed, there would be no need for a committee. As the committee stood, under the revised bill, it was simply mummery because the judges would be the sole one who would determine revaluation in any event, and the minister himself would be free of all responsibility. Nothing ould be gained by having the two representatives on the committee. The whole responsibility should be placed upon the judge.

Meaning Vague

J. A. Clark (Conservative-Vancouver-Burrard) thought that the phrasecology of the bill was somewhat vague respecting the appointment of the representative of the soldiers on the various district arbitration committees. What course would be pursued, he questioned, where there was no soldier organization in the particular district in which the soldier settler was residing. If for instance, the person applying for revaluation was the only soldier settler on some island on the British Columbia coast, would this man be his own representative on the arbitration committee. The bill, he reiterated, was very indefinite in its clause determining who should represent the soldiers on these committees.

General Clark said he thought the Minister would be well advised to leave questions of arbitration with the county court judge, eliminating the two other members of the arbitration committee as provided in the bill. This he thought, would be the fairest method for all parties concerned.

Would Save Fees

W. A. Boys (Conservative Simcoe North) agreed with General Clark. He suggested that the minister change the bill so as to give to county court judges the power to act as sole arbitrator in disputes over the valuation of soldier settlers lands. This would mean a saving of possibly $20 a day for each arbitration committee. This money might be turned over to soldiers for the purpose of assisting them in preparing their cases.

Hon. Charles Stewart said he thought that the arbitration committee as provided for in the bill was preferable to the county court judge acting alone.

J. L. Brown (Progressive, Lisgar) consider that district arbitration committees, composed of three members as now proposed, would make a greater appeal to soldier settlers.

C. G. Power (Liberal, Quebec South) believed that a county court judge alone should compose the tribunal adjudicating upon cases of revaluation. Considerable money had been "squandered" on the scheme of soldier settlement, which had been "badly conceived and badly administered." The country should therefore endeavour to get out of this matter as cheaply as possible, by the appointment of a county court judge instead of an arbitration committee of three members.

Mr. Meighen advocated having every case of revaluation dealt with by a judge of the county court. The responsibility of assessing the value of the land should be placed on the shoulders of the judge.

Too Cumbersome

T. L. Church (Conservative, Northwest Toronto) said that the machinery proposed in the bill was entirely too cumbersome. The provision for arbitration was as elaborate as that required for the acquisition of a great line of railway.

"If this is the best the country can do for the returned soldier, the quicker the bill is withdrawn and the men get off the land the better," said Mr. Church. He thought the "red tape" should be cut out and the claims of the men dealt with quickly. Instead of having the arbitration committees, why not appoint a commission with powers to go through the country and deal with these claims.

Several opposition members, including Brigadier General J. A. Clark of Burrard, and Col. James Arthurs of Parry Sound supported the proposal that a county court judge might very well be the sole arbiter in any disputes arising out of the revaluation process.

W. A. Boys (Conservative, North Simcoe) suggested that if the minister was "bent on this arbitration business" each soldier settler having a grievance should be able to name his own representative on the arbitration board.

Mr. Stewart asked if that meant that every individual soldier could name his own representative.

"Absolutely," retorted Mr. Boys. He thought that the soldier who had everything he possessed tied up in a farm deserved more consideration than anybody else. His interests should be protected by every possible precaution.

Mr. Boys also suggested that by the time the bill became law, there would be considerably less than the six months' notice tentatively promised by the minister. The soldier who had abandoned his land as a hopeless venture under the old valuation shrould get at least six months' notice of his right to reclaim it under the new valuation. If the time limit was arbitrarily fixed as October 1 next, this would not give anything like six months in which the disappointed soldier settler could arrange to return to his farm.

HURONIAN MINE IS TO OPERATE AGAIN

Montreal Company Unload Two Cars of Machinery.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 14. —(Canadian Press.)—The Shields Improvement Company of Montreal has commenced work in connection with the re-operation of the old Huronian mine near Kashabowie. Two cars of machinery and effects were unloaded Monday augmenting other material received about a week ago. Construction of buildings for the men will commence immediately. J. Harkness, mining engineer, is in charge of operations for the Montreal company. Thirteen claims in the field have been staked and it is probable many more will be registered when working conditions are satisfactory. The Huronian mine was a first class gold property forty years ago, but operations were discontinued owing to transportation difficulties. Approximately 3,000 acres in mining claims have been taken up around Kashabowie.

Options On Claims.

Announcement is made of the negotiation of options on eight more claims in the Beardmore gold area, the price in each case is ten thousand dollars. The buyers are the same syndicate as has secured options on a number of other claims in the same vicinity recently. Substantial payments were made on the signing of the agreements. Bruce L. Morrison acted as agent for the negotiating parties.

Peggy Joyce Has Rival Wife Claims Comstock

CHICAGO, April 14.—(Canadian Press.)—Stanford E. Comstock, real estate dealer, who Peggy Joyce yesterday announced would wed her, was claimed last night by Mrs. Evelyn Comstock of Chicago, as her legal husband.

Mrs. Comstock said that attorneys had advised her that the divorce from her obtained by Comstock last fall in Florida was invalid because he did not give her legal notification of his intention to file proceedings.

Furthermore it was asserted by Mrs. Comstock, who is employed in a clothing shop here, that she and Comstock had lived together after the filing of the suit for divorce, that she had spent the winter with Comstock in Florida and that three weeks ago they were in New York together.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

In the course of interviews while the story was being picked up, Morton told the writer:

• • •

"There is nothing so killing to a woman as indifference."

• • •

"Is she a bad woman? It is only those who hurt others intentionally, because of malice, who are "bad."

"A man may be fond of a woman—even be in love with her—but if she is always exploding emotional dynamite under him making scenes, and keeping him acutely uncomfortable, he is going to wander away.

That Harry Morton a few days ago was reported as saying at a dinner party "Women Love Trouble."

The despatch quoted Morton as declaring: "Women Love Trouble." If they haven't any they go out and make some for themselves.

This opened up a wide question—a question that is answered in the story The Examiner will publish on Saturday. It is the story of Morton and "THESE WOMEN" and their life.

Do you agree with these statements by Morton?

"You meet them and smile, and don't pay any further attention. That makes them crazy with curiosity, and they go right after you. Women do that way."

• • •

"I ought to have learned by this time never to debate with a woman."

• • •

"As you get older you will find that you have enough to do to look after your own morals, without sitting in judgment on the morals of others.

• • •

"You can't win a man's love, or hold it, by keeping him in hot water."

THE FULL STOP PLAN.

The citizens who declared that Peterboro is not large enough to need a full stop policy as a means of preventing traffic accidents may be surprised to learn that the town of Lindsay has adopted such a plan, requiring motor cars entering Kent street to come to a stop before doing so.

Members of the Lindsay Council took that step because they were convinced from what they had seen elsewhere that a regulation of this nature has a very marked reaction on driving conditions, materially reducing the number of accidents.

If such a precaution is considered necessary in Lindsay, what is to be said of the situation in Peterboro with its much heavier traffic and with street cars, motor buses, etc., supplying a further element of danger than exists in Lindsay?

AN OBSOLETE POLICY.

The members of the Peterboro County Council may be a live, aggressive body of representatives, but they are living in the past in the treatment they accord the press in connection with the publication of their deliberations. They have adopted a policy which excludes press representatives from their committee meetings.

When it is remembered that the great bulk of county business is transacted in committee, this action on the part of the county legislators deprives the people of the county of the privilege as well as right of being informed regarding the activities of those who are elected to serve and represent them.

Victoria County Council is more progressive in this particular. All committee meetings of the county are thrown open to the press. The members of the Council have confidence in the good judgment of the press representatives, and this confidence is respected.

The deliberations of the county body are reported in full, and there never has been any attempt to exclude the press or blue pencil any of its reports. —Lindsay Post.

ASHBURNHAM'S COMPLAINT.

Mr. Jos. A. O'Brien does his fellow-citizens of Ashburnham a good service in calling attention in a letter to the Examiner to the manner in which that section of the city has been more or less neglected in the matter of municipal improvements and services.

While this is by no means a new grievance, yet the "corroborative detail" with which Mr. O'Brien outlines some of the matters in which Ashburnham has been passed by makes his letter an indictment of conditions that should not go unnoticed by members of the Council.

There are advocates of the ward system of electing Aldemen, who claim that the failure of East City to receive everything in the way of improvements that its residents would like is proof that the ward system is superior.

For some years that portion of Peterboro has been without representation in the Council, and that fact may perhaps be responsible for the failure of the Aldermen to recognize the claims of Ashburnham to consideration.

At all events there is no doubt that Mr. O'Brien's communication accurately voices the sentiment of his fellow-residents of East City, and the facts he has brought to the attention of the Council should receive consideration.

THE Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN.

In calling attention to the campaign being conducted on behalf of the Y.M.C.A., it is scarcely necessary for the Examiner to stress the value of this organization to the community.

The Y.M.C.A. has been a strong factor for good ever since it was first organized here.

Its headquarters is a rallying point for the boys and young men of the community, not to say for some of the older ones as well, and it is impossible to estimate the benefit derived from the institution by those who have learned to appreciate the opportunities offered by such an organization.

The financial burden of carrying on such an institution is necessarily heavy, and it is almost impossible to ensure a balanced budget.

The association provides many facilities for recreation and education, and all of these things represent a heavy outlay that cannot always be met by the revenue.

This year the association is endeavouring to raise $5,000, which just about represents the difference between the cost of the facilities offered the boys and the membership fee charged the latter.

Were the fee to be raised to a point at which it equalled the cost per member many boys, most of them in fact, would find it impossible to become members of the Y.M.C.A., and thus would lose the benefit of the Y.M.C.A. work.

The business men who are members of the institution, of course, pay their full per member costs, but it can readily be recognized that such a policy in the cases of boys would be prohibitive.

Hence the association appeals to citizens who are interested in boys and appreciate what the Y.M.C.A. is doing to come to the rescue and make it possible to carry on.

MORE THAN ONE OFFENDER.

It is but justice to the County Council to point out it is not the only public body to follow the practice of barring the press from its committee meetings.

Another offender in this respect is the local Board of Education.

Here is a body that spends a lot of our money —too much some people say, but that is beside the mark—and yet the ratepayers are given only a sketchy report of the proceedings because the important business of the Board is threshed out in camera and usually ratified without much discussion in the open Board meeting.

The Examiner is thus barred from providing its readers with a report of the discussion of important issues, seeing that this takes place in committee and reporters find the door closed to them.

The people who pay taxes surely are entitled to more than a bare report of the decisions of such bodies as the Board of Education and the County Council.

They surely have a right not only to know what is being done by such bodies but also to know how the decisions are arrived at, and there is no way open for the furnishing of such information.

A correspondent points out that he has been struck by the contrast between the complete reports given by the Examiner of the meetings of the County Council of Northumberland and Durham and the meagre articles dealing with the meetings of the Peterboro County Council.

Precisely.

The Examiner representative who covers the meetings of the United Counties Council is welcomed at every committee session, and the result is that the ratepayers of those counties who read the Examiner —and the number is rapidly increasing—find a bright, newsy, accurate report of the debates and proceedings.

Here at home there is no chance for the same service.

Most of the business is transacted in committee —and the Peterboro County Council, different from the municipal government of Northumberland and Durham and of Victoria, refuse to permit a reporter being present.

The Examiner is sure that public opinion is strongly in favour of opening the doors of County Council and Board of Education committee rooms to representatives of the press.

THE MAPLE SYRUP REGULATIONS.

A contributor to the Farmers' Sun protests against the new regulations governing the labelling of maple syrup upon the ground that it constitutes one more of the apparently one-sided restrictions imposed by the Government upon farmers. The new regulations require that the containers of maple syrup shall be labelled with the name of the article, the name and address of the individual or firm assuming responsibility for the package, and the volume and net contents. There are similar regulations governing the sale of honey; eggs, cheese and butter are graded; cream is to fall under the same heading; while all seeds must be inspected before being offered for sale. This correspondent makes the claim that the restrictions are too one-sided and that the farmer should also be given protection against faulty wire-fencing, poorly-manufactured agricultural implements, shoddy clothing and shoes, and the like, it being held that the producers of these and other articles which the farmer requires should also be required to label them.

This writer misses one or two points which differentiate the products of the farm from those of the factory. In the first place, maple syrup, in common with eggs, cream, butter, cheese, honey and practically everything else that is produced upon the farm, is destined for human consumption. Upon its purity a great deal may depend. If it is of poor quality or adulterated, it is the human mechanism which may suffer. The compulsory labelling of containers is another safeguard towards assuring the purity of maple syrup and enabling inspectors to trace cases of adulteration to their source. The placing of the maker's name upon the package is a guarantee of his responsibility, just as the placing of a label upon a can of condensed milk, of prepared meat or of vegetables is a guarantee of responsibility. The consumer, being in possession of the maker's name, has some recourse in the event of the product being found unsatisfactory and it will be an incentive to the producers of maple syrup to maintain quality at its highest peak.

There is also the consideration to be remembered that the labelling of maple syrup will be good business upon the part of the producer. If the consumer is satisfied that the article he buys is genuine and if it bears the certificate of its maker as to that genuineness, he will be ready to pay a little more for it than he would for an article which is uncertified. This has been the experience in other branches of industry which have adopted the same safeguards. The producer of certified milk is usually able to command a larger price than the producer whose milk is not certified. People are willing to pay more for it because they know that it is pure and can do no injury to them. Just so in other directions. The manufacturer of clothing who vouches for its quality obtains a higher price and increases the demand for it. Consumers know that the clothing is dependable and buy more of it. The manufacturer of shoes who similarly vouches for their quality shares the same experience. More and more manufacturers are discovering the wisdom of branding their products, and it would be a very good idea if still more would follow the same practice. It is the best guarantee that a consumer can obtain, and it is the best protection that a manufacturer can assume. The farmers will not be the losers through the adoption of the new regulations regarding maple syrup any more than they have been losers through the regulations governing the marketing of other farm products. They may cause them a little more trouble at the outset, but in the long run they will be found both advantageous and profitable. No information has been volunteered by the Government concerning the reason for their imposition, but it would not be strange to find that the demand has come from the maple syrup producers themselves as a means of bringing their product upon an equality with other farm manufactures.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Who is going to be the first citizen to complain because the streets have not been oiled yet?

These are the days when a good citizen proves his right to the title by refusing to take a short-cut over somebody's lawn.

Mederic Martin is again Mayor of Montreal, this time by 22,000 majority, which seems to indicate there is not very much in the old saying, "They can't come back."

Mayor-elect Martin's success in Montreal is likely to stimulate Tommy Church in a new drive for the Toronto mayoralty.

"Commanders maintain silence," says a contemporary in regard to the Vimy Ridge "inside story." And it would have been better had every one else done so.

Fascism is to spread to other countries, according to Mussolini. Still the Italian dictator may be wrong on this point as many people believe him to have been on others.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 13.—Rogers and Maybee bought 600 export steers and bulls on Monday and a car today will about complete this week's buy. The firm's purchase shows steers steady to 10 cents a cwt. lower and bulls quite steady. For export the top on choice steers was $8.25 a cwt. but Swifts paid $8.50 for a choice load of heavies. Light export steers sold on a parity with butchers at $7.50 to $7.75 a cwt. Export bulls averaged a little over $5 a cwt.

Owing to the carry-over trading was not too good this morning and only good to choice butchers' cows were in immediate enquiry. Some export steers are being carried and local butchers are taking part at $7.50 to $7.65. There is around 2500 head of cattle for sale today and unless trade broadens out later another heavy carry-over will result. On this morning's sales prices were about steady but the prospects are not good, especially for the less desirable butchers. One load of feeders averaging 925 lbs. sold at $6.10 a cwt. Baby beeves sold easier at $8 to $8.25 a cwt.

Buffalo is not too good a market for calves at present, and this market is left pretty much to itself. Choice and fancy calves are steady, but medium and poor calves are not a good sale. Top calves were 12 to 12½ cents and bunches of dairy calves sold at 8 and 8½ cents a pound.

With only a dribbling of domestic yearling lambs prices are keeping steady and any good lambs are worth 14 cents a pound. Spring lambs sold at $15 each.

Packers did not get all their own way on Monday and the proposed cut of 25 cents a cwt. was not effective. The same bid of $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b. is being made today but no sales were made during the morning.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 13. — Canadian Press. — The demand from the continent and the United Kingdom for Canadian grain on the Montreal market to-day was good, but owing to the sharp rise in prices at other grain centres the volume of business was checked to some extent. The only sale made was a few loads of Manitoba wheat and oats for April shipment.

The feature of the domestic trade was the demand from New York exporters for spot supplies of Manitoba wheat and Canadian western oats, and sales of round lots of No. 2 Northern wheat were made at 14c per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, and No. 2 Canadion western oats at 12c per bushel over, c.i.f. Montreal. The spot market for oats was stronger and prices were advanced ½c to 1c per bushel.

While a stronger feeling prevailed the flour trade prices for spring and winter wheat grades were unchanged.

The feature of the millfeed trade at present is the great scarcity of shorts, which is attributed to the small production for the season of the year and millers are finding it difficult to fill orders. The market for standard grades of rolled was firm. A steady feeling continued to prevail in the local egg situation owing to the fact that receipts have not increased sufficiently yet to be a bearish factor. The consumptive demand is steadily increasing and in consequence the volume of business in a jobbing way was more active. The receipts to-day were 3121 cases, as against 2139 for the same day last week, and 6778 for the corresponding day a year ago. In a wholesale way sales of odd cars of western eggs were made at 28½c per doz. for extras, at 26 1-2c for first, and at 23½ f.o.b. Edmonton.

The receipts of butter in Montreal were 349 packages, as against 5087 for the same day last week, and 336 for the corresponding day a year ago. The firmer feeling that prevailed in the trade on Monday developed into strength and prices scored another advance of ½c per lb. There was a steady demand from local buyers for 100 and 200 package lots and an increased volume of business was done with sales of Australian No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter at 37½c to 37c per lb., and small lots of Canadian fresh made No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at the same figures.

The receipts of cheese were 378 boxes as compared with 205 for the same day last week and 1640 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the condition of the market.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 13. Canadian Press.—Rushes to buy to ovoid being trapped through chance exhaustion of Map supplies of wheat here, forced the wheat market up 5c a bushel today. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 2 3-8 to 4 3-4c net higher, May (new) $1.63 3-4 to $1.63 7-8 and July $1.39 1-8 to $1.39¼, with corn at 1½ to 1 7-8c advance; oats 1-8 to ¼ to 3-8c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 5c.

Word that a blizzard was putting a stop to the seeding of new spring wheat in Canad gave emphasis to scarcity of old wheat here and to reports which were circulated that shipments of any great amount of wheat to Chicago from other large markets within the next month appeared improbable. Delays to spring seeding south of the Canadian boundary were also given attention and notice was likewise taken of sharper inquiries from domestic millers for wheat in Canada gave emphasis to els in the world's available this week was another stimulating influence. Besides, export purchasing of North American wheat to-day was estimated at well above 1,000,000 bushels.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

CLEAN-UP NEEDED.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—"Club Man's" letter in your paper last night shows just the necessity for a story such as you promise to publish on Saturday. The fact that there are men in Peterborough who are afraid that their goings-on will be given the light of day indicates that some clean-up is needed.

Yours truly,
CHURCH MAN.

MEN HAVE OTHER OBLIGATIONS.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Mr. Editor,—The statement made by "Club Man" in your issue of last night that what a man does in his private life is his own concern is beside the point. What a man does in his private life to HIMSELF may be his own concern, within certain limits, but what he does to others is a public matter.

If, as your statements seem to indicate, there are men who are menacing the lives of women, then they should be shown up. Tell the story honestly, and leave the people to judge.

If your aim is true you can stand a little back-fire.

Yours faithfully,
HURRELL McKENZIE.

"NERVE" IS NEEDED TO DO CIVIC BUSINESS.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The letter by Mr. Elliott printed in last night's Examiner is nothing short of foolish in the opinion it expresses. Does Mr. Elliott speak for the County Council of Peterborough; or is this his private opinion as "commission clerk"?

His remarks about the Aldermanic Board of the city would indicate that he is not on the best of terms with that body. Why have they specially "sacrificing" nerve? And who wants a Councillor without nerve? By saying the City Council shows nerve by throwing its committee meetings open, does he imply that the County Councillors are lacking in the courage to place their business before the people? Surely his authority does not go that far!

The question does not involve a matter of Parliamentary procedure. The people want to know their own business. Durham, Northumberland, Victoria—all counties around us—make their business public.

That is the issue—why are the voters of Peterborough County shut out?

Yours truly.
RATEPAYER.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TWO CLASSES.

There are two classes, those who serve and those who merely work.

Those who serve are always enthusiastic, because they like service. Those who merely work for wages are almost always agitators. Perhaps not official agitators, but agitators, nevertheless.

The individual who is interested in an industry will give the best evidence in all the world of his interest by what is called enthusiasm.

Enthusiasm is the most important element in human service. And in order to have this enthusiasm it is absolutely necessary for you to like your service.

Whatever you do, if you expect to do well, do it with all your enthusiasm.

Verdict of New York Mayor's Wife in London.

NO COMPARISON.

LONDON, April 14.—Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor of New York, has found "wet" England more sober than "dry" America.

Mrs. Walker arrived in England on Friday, and since then has had opportunities to observe the conduct of Londoners who can walk a block in almost any direction from where they happen to be and find a "pub," as the English call their saloons.

"Although I am not a 'wet'," Mrs. Walker told the United Press, "yet I am forced to admit that there is no comparison between the sobriety of 'wet' England and the intoxication of 'dry' America.

"I have not seen a single intoxicated person in England, although I have been up and around at 2 a.m. and have attended large banquets at which whisky and wine were served. The English appear to know how to take drinking judiciously.

"I do not recall having seen a single emptied glass at the end of a banquet at which there were 200 persons."

Mrs. Walker rested Monday from a strenuous week-end of sightseeing, and yesterday planned to accompany the American hotelmen's delegation on a special train which will take them to York and Liverpool, returning to London Thursday by way of Stratford-on-Avon.

COLONEL WAS NOT FULL OF COCKTAILS

Court Martial Investigates Alleged Drunkenness at Dinner.

MARINE BASE, San Diego, Cal., April 14.— Colonel Alexander S. Williams had "stomach trouble," on the night of March 6, and was not "full of cocktails," as charged by General Smedley D. Butler, according to the accused officer's defense, which opened Tuesday at his court-martial here. He is charged with intoxication.

General Butler's accusations, made in open court-martial, were directly controverted by testimony of defense witnesses, who declared Colonel Williams had a sudden attack of stomach trouble at the Hotel Del Coronado, which necessitated he be assisted home.

General Butler told the court-martial that he saw Colonel Williams "intoxicated," declaring vigorously that he was "so drunk he had to be carried from the hotel."

CUSTOMS GUARD PREVENTS LOOT OF SILK CARGO

Drove of River Pirates at New York—Tobacco Stolen.

$25,000 WORTH.

Five Armed Robbers Escape With Truck Load in Street.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(Canadian Press).—Theft of $25,000 worth of tobacco in a sensational street hold-up and the frustration of a million dollar silk robbery by a lone customs guard, who engaged single-handed in a gun battle with a band of river pirates looting a cargo awaiting shipment to France on a North River pier, were outstanding crime developments here Tuesday.

Five armed robbers held up an automobile truck loaded with tobacco owned by P. Lorillard Co., forced the driver and two helpers from the truck and drove away with the load and three men. The truck men were kidnapped in a closed car while the three drov away with the silk.

Martin Carroll, a guard, heard a noise beneath the pier where $1,000,000 worth of silk was stored, and investigated. He found a 30-foot motor skiff with a ladder leading to the pier. He immediately opened fire with his revolver. The pirates returned his fire but when he stood his ground, pulled in their ladder and sped away. A few bales of silk were in the skiff when the pirates were frightened off.

RUBBER PRICES BREAK SHARPLY

Heavy Selling of Futures—Price Maintenance Agreement Reported Broken.

SLIGHT RALLY.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(Canadian Press).— The breaking of an alleged "gentlemen's agreement" to maintain the price of rubber in London brought about heavy liquidation of futures contracts in the commodity Tuesday in both London and New York markets, prices on the rubber exchange of New York breaking 1½c a pound, and then rallying slightly on short covering. Transactions on the local exchange broke all records for volume when 454 lots, or 1,135 long tons, changed hands.

The market opened down in sympathy with the lower prices prevailing in London. May contracts, which closed at 51 cents a pound Monday, were hammered down to 49.40c, but rallied to 49.80c at the close. Among the distant options, March was traded in at 47c, a decline of only 20 points from the previous close, but the best bid at the end of the day was 45.30c a pound.

SEEKING CAUSE OF C.N.R. WRECKS

Four of Eastern Division in Few Months, Says Conservative.

OTTAWA, April 14 (Canadian Press).—F. P. Quinn (Conservative, Halifax) drew the attention of the Government to the fact that there had been four wrecks on the eastern division of the Canadian National Railways within the last few months. When the House of Commons assembled yesterday, he wished to know if the Minister of Railways had made any investigation into the cause of these wrecks and would use his influence with the management of the system to have further wrecks averted.

Hon. Chas. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, stated that he was aware of the fact that there had been a number of wrecks on the eastern division on the Canadian National recently, and that an investigation to ascertain the causes was under way. He had received no report yet on the wrecks. He thought that specific measures for the prevention of such wrecks must be left to the officers of the railway who were qualified to deal with such matters. The investigation was under way.

"Might I suggest a Royal Commission?" interjected Mr. Quinn as the member laughed.

PLEDGE VOTES TO DRY NOMINEE

United Church Officials of Warkworth Will Not Follow Party.

MASS MEETING.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, April 14. — The managers and elders of the United Church of this village have placed themselves on record with regard to the question of prohibition, as it is likely to figure in the next Legislative election, which everyone here seems to take for granted will be held in June. At a recent meeting at which there was a good attendance, this matter was thoroughly discussed, and a resolution was introduced by one of the officials providing that all pledge themselves to support a bona fide prohibitionist candidate, regardless of party.

A standing vote was called and every official in the room, with the single exception of William Smooker, rose to his feet. Mr. Smooker refused to commit himself without further consideration.

There will be a mass meeting of the temperance people of the village and district on Sunday afternoon at four oclock in the town hall, at which the principal speaker will be Rev. Dr. Bailey of Toronto.

Cheese Factory Opens.

The local cheese factory opened for the season on Tuesday and a number of dairy farmers were on hand with milk. It is expeteed that in about a week this, the leading industry of the village, will be in full swing.

MANITOBA MINE WEALTH GREAT

Projected Development Will Put Province in the Lead.

NO ASSISTANCE.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 14 (Canadian Press). — Manitoba is on the verge of a mining development that will put it in the lead of the mining industry, according to G. C. Bateman, secretary of the Ontario Mining Association, who has just concluded a survey of the Red Lake and Central Manitoba mining area.

From a geological standpoint he stated Central Manitoba and Northern Ontario were rich in mineral wealth and particularly gold-bearing ore. What Manitoba needed was to hove the mining industry put on a permanent basis.

"Mining is the only industry I know of at the present time that does not get some concession and assistance. There is a greater risk, it is true, but when a mine proves successful, it is the most beneficial industry a country could have," Mr. Bateman said.

AVIATOR FOUND.

Spanish Captain 200 Miles East of Amman.

LONDON, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Captain Estevez, missing leader of the Spanish aviators, has been found 200 miles to the east of Amman, an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Bagdad reports.

Early despatches received here from Amman, Palestine, in the region where Estevez' plane was found, said British aviators scoured the desert all day without result, but that they will start out again today.

A note attached to Estevez' plane which had apparently been forced down by motor trouble, said the two airmen were proceeding on foot for Amman, about 100 miles distant.

CIGARETTE TAXES CAUSE SMUGGLING

Dealers Say Impost Causes Loss To Dominion Treasury.

OTTAWA, April 14. (Canadian Press).—The excise and sales taxes on cigarettes in Canada make the retail price so much higher that more than a billion cigarettes are smuggled from the United States every year, the Customs Inquiry Commitee was told yesterday. Tobacco dealers from Toronto and Montreal testified to the effect of cigarette smuggling on their business. It was H. S. Bourque of Montreal who gave it as his opinion that this quantity of smokes is smuggled in at border points, chiefly by people who sell lower-priced United States cigarettes as a side line to their work. The Canadian treasury was actually losing money through its high tax, he thought. All imposts on cigarettes together totalled about $7.80 a thousand. In the United States it was about $3 a thousand. The disparity should be greatly reduced if smuggling was to be prevented.

Mr. Bourque was asked by Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, what effect a reduction of $2 a thousand in the excise tax would have. Mr. Bourque said it might be possible to sell the twenty-five cent package of cigarettes for twenty cents at least and the eighteen cent package for fifteen cents. He suggested a cut of $2.50 a thousand to make the adjustment easier. Mr. Boivin did not promise anything.

LINDSAY SURE OF CASKET COMPANY

Will Begin Operations With Staff of Ten.

LINDSAY, April 14—The citizens of this town are walking on air today. Their long-cherished dream of industrial expansion is, they believe, about to be realized. The announcement was made Tuesday that the Northeastern Casket Company, formerly of Toronto, had decided to try its fortunes on the banks of the Scugog, and had secured the premises formerly occupied by the Sinclair Carriage Company for the manufacture of caskets. Little is known of the new firm, but their intention is to start operations at once with a staff of ten men.

Simultaneous with the announcement of the operations of a coffin industry is the statement that the Riverside Cemetery Company had purchased a fifty acre farm adjoining the cemetery south of the town. Of course there is no truth in the rumor that a brisk demand is expected locally for the product of the new industry.

COBOURG COUNCIL IS STRIKING RATE

Committee Estimates Are Now Being Prepared for Council.

COBOURG, April 14.—The council of the Town of Cobourg with other urban and city councils, is now up against that yearly and unpleasant duty of "striking the rate." The councillors have announced that "economy" must be written large upon all their doings for the year, and the first matter with which they dealt was the requisition of the Finance Committee of the Public School Board. After some discussion they cut $500 from that, so that now $21,653, from which a government grant of about $150 will be deducted, is the Public school estimate for 1926.

Last year the Public school requisition was $21,280, when $400 additional was required for repairs. The $500 which the Council cut off the Public School estimates was to have been paid towards the salary of a Public Health Nurse. At the municipal election three years ago, a vote was submitted to the ratepayers as to whether a public health nurse should be engaged, and the vote was an adverse one.

There was considerable discussion as to whether the $500 should be granted towards the nurses' salary, but the majority of the council was not in favor, the statement being made that the people's wishes should be respected.

Collegiate Institute Estimates.

The C.C.I. Board wrote saying it had done all possible in the way of economy. This year the board had fire insurance to pay and additional expense owing to sickness. The board asked for $18,000, $1,000 less than last year. The revenue from the counties, it is stated, is also reduced by $1,000.

The Streets Committee.

The streets committee is asking for $8640 this yar.

Of this total amount the ratepayers whose properties front on the main streets pay $2250 for street cleaning and watering of streets.

Market and License.

The requisition of the market committe includes $600 salary of market clerk and $100 for sundries.

Thirty-one hundred dollars for salaries of chief of police, night watchman and police magistrate is the biggest item on the requisition of the town hall and the police committe, which is $6025.

The estimates of these three committees were adopted.

The estimates of the Fire, Water and Light committee will be between $11,000 and $12,000 it is expected.

Deer Views Civilization Experience Proves Fatal

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 14. (Canadian Press.) — "Fright, over - exertion, and shock" brought death to a deer that had wandered in for a view of civilization. Its fatal trip from the woodlands to the city was full of excitement. First it was found feeding near one of the grain elevators by workmen this morning. Becoming frightened, it started to cross Thunder Bay and crashed through the ice into the cold water. Finally the deer was rescued by the workmen after it had struggled in the water for 15 minutes, and when it was set free it toppled over and died.

COBOURG MARKETS.

Poor Condition of the Roads Leaves Produce Scarce.

COBOURG, April 13.— Produce on the Cobourg market brought high prices to-day. Butter, however, is a little scarce. Merchants state that more is coming in; from 35c. to 48c. is the price. Eggs are very plentiful and sell from 25c. to 35c. a dozen, according to grade. Potatoes are not very plentiful and are higher, selling for $3 to $3.50 per bag. There were none offered on the farmers' market to-day, but dealers are getting a few in to meet the needs of citizens. Choice seed potatoes are rated as high as $3 a bushel. Owing to the condition of the roads there was not the usual amount of produce offered to-day. There were very few fowl or chickens. Maple syrup has not made its appearance either. Large baskets of spy apples were 35c and 40c. Other varieties sold for less. Meats brought the usual prices and cream was 30c. a pint.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEAGUE.

Programme Under the Direction of Senior Group—Organization Completed.

Millbrook, April 13.

The Young People's League made a good start on the new church year at its first meeting this week, 28 members and visitors being present, and a good programme being presented under the direction of Group A, composed of 17 of the Senior League members.

Mrs. S. Hetherington, President, was in the chair, her talk on "The Stewardshp of Money," being most instructive. Miss Gladys Tucker of Orono presided at the organ.

A duet by Mrs. G. W. Sayles and her daughter, Miss Marjorie, Easter reading by Miss Margaret Luxon.

Organization of the groups responsible for the programme each month was completed, points to be given as follows: Church attendance, 1 point; Sunday School attendance, 1 point; League attendance, 1 point; punctuality and bringing a visitor, 1 point each; bringing a new member, 5 points.

Contests and a social time completed an interesting and enjoyable gathering.

C.G.I.T. Group

The Easter meeting of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group was held on Wednesday evening at the leader's home, nine members being in attendance. Miss Gladys Tucker of Orono, who was a charter member of the group, was a welcome visitor.

The president, Jean Burnham, took the chair and conducted the business period. It was decided to have a set of slides on "Indians of Our Do-

April, when the girls are responsible for the League programme. The new password was used for the first time, Wilma Fallis supplying the place of "Herald," in the absence of the one regularly appointed to that position.

During the devotional period a talk on "The Significance of Calvary," was given by the mentor, and a reading, "The All-Transforming Cross," by Elsie Spence made a fitting climax to the topic.

A social hour, when all took part in two contests, was enjoyed at the close, the winners, Gladys Tucker, Jean Burnham, Margaret Howard, and Elsie Pence, having to cut for the prize, Jean drawing the lucky number.

The unfavorable state of the roads made it impossible for members living in the country to be present. The group has 16 members, though 10 is supposed to be the limit according to the constitution, it being considbe done with 8 or 10 rother than with a larger number. Local conditions, however, must largely determine this, and other details, of the group work as it is carried on in each community.

Personals

Mrs. A. H. Barnes and two children, Margaret and Owen, have been in Keene for Easter week visiting her son.

Miss Grace Stewart of Otonabee was the guest of Mrs. Walter Harkness this week.

Jean and Jack Stinson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Winslow during Easter week.

Master Bobby Collins of Kitchener who is attending St. Alban's School, Brockville, spent Easter week with his grandmother, Mrs. T. B. Collins.

Miss J. M. Barry, investigator for the Mothers' Allowances' Board for this district, was a visitor in town on Thursday.

Miss Olive Elson, who is on the public schools, has been home for the Easter holidays.

Messrs. J. McKnight, of the trustee board of Fallis Line School, and George Berry, Jr., of Fairview School Board, were in Toronto this week attending the convention of the Ontario Education Association.

The initial meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Cobourg Presbyterial will be held on Tuesday, April 20, in the United Church, Cobourg. Millbrook was formerly connected with Peterborough district but since Union has been joined with Cobourg. Peterborough Presbyterial meets in Cambridge Street Church, Lindsay, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 21 and 22.

INSTITUTE MEETS.

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 13.—The Mount Pleasant branch of East Durham Women's Institute held its April meeting at the home of the treasurer, Mrs T. C. Morden. Owing to the unpleasant condition of the weather, the attendance was not as large as usual. There were twelve members present.

The president, Mrs. Ira Lowes, was in the chair and conducted the meeting, which opened by singing "O Canada," after which the Lord's Prayer" was repeated in unison.

Among the correspondence read by the secretary was a letter announcing the second annual girls' conference to be held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario, May 5, 6 and 7. This conference is open to any young woman from a rural community, whether she be sent by a local organization or whether she goes "on her own." The programme is planned for young women from about sixteen to twenty-eight. The college can accommodate 185 girls in one of the college residences. If more than this number apply the staff will undertake to find rooms in private houses for an additional number up to 225. This is the maximum number that can be taken care of. Applications will be accepted in the order in which they are received, and should be sent to Ethel M. Chapman, Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. All names must be in before April 20.

The committee in charge of the programme, Mrs. Winslow and Miss Finley, were unable to be present.

Mrs. Rutherford contributed a reading on "Habits," one of the subjects, and Mrs. Thomas Graham gave a reading in her usual capable style, "Aunt Sarah's Rebellion," which added greatly to the amusement of all.

A collection was taken, and the meeting brought to a close with God Save the King.

A flock of blackbirds was noticed around the Court House this morning, uttering their noisy chatter.

Some of the prominent residents of this city are wondering if the Department of Highways is going to enforce the overloading law on the Provincial Highway this year, as it is reported that some large trucks are coming into the city which are destroying the road south of Fraserville.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Rayne

Attractively Simple

An interesting return to the modes for the younger generation, is that of the old-time and delightful challie. A practical frock for the little miss from 2 to 8 years is pictured here, fashioned from challie. The dress is so simple it can be made in a few hours. The sleeves have raglan shoulders, and the neck has gathers at both front and back, and may be finished with a round collar as illustrated, or a narrow band. An attractive touch of color is given to the front by two rows of colored thread, run in long-and-short-stitch from the neck to the outer edge of the tabs, which simulate pockets. The bloomers are gathered into bands at the knees and waist. No. 1308 is in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 years requires 2¼ yards 32-inch material for complete dress. Price 20 cents.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

RETRIBUTION

"Although Buddy Tremaine had never spoken a word of love to me I had known for some time that I was in love with him. If a day passed when I did not see him the world turned gray.

"His attentions to me had been such lately that I was sure he was in love with me and I fully expected he would soon tell me this and ask me to be his wife.

"It did not seem possible to me that, if he had any other interest in me, he would take me into his mother's box at the opera and other most public places.

"I expect his wife had seen me many times with him and probably thought I was just like all the rest. I was so humiliated and hurt, Julie, that I thought I could never face any of Madame Seria's patrons again.

"At the thought of Madame, I blazed up with anger, for of course she must have known it all. She must have known that Mr. Tremaine was married, and I didn't doubt for an instant that she had only done this because she was being paid for all the gorgeous gowns and hats that she said she had given me for 'advertising purposes.'

"Then and there I made up my mind that I would not stay with her another day.

"I went to the models' dressing room and got into my own little suit frock and I left a note with one of the girls for Madame saying that I thought she had treated me very badly in not telling me that Mr. Tremaine was married and letting me publicly accompany him to all the restaurants and public places in town when she knew that even with her as chaperon, my reputation in town was being blasted.

"I told her I could not understand her conduct as that of a woman who respected herself and me. Consequently I was leaving her employ.

"As I knew that Buddy Tremaine had bought all my fine clothes, I sent them all back to him with a note saying that I had just found out that he instead of Madame Seria had given me all the beautiful clothes that I had been wearing lately and so I was sending them back to him, and, although I appreciated his kindness, I was sure he could not expect me to take such valuable presents from any man not my husband.

"I felt so utterly broken about Tortentio that I could not go to see him. It seemed to me that I had lost more than my reputation when I realized that I could not go on with my music lessons. It was like covering up an open grave and leaving that which I loved best there.

FUNNY HATS

Cubist hats are all the rage in London. Funny brims and crowns. Zig-zag braiding in silver and gay colors. Ribbons lopping over the brim. Violent color contrasts. Purple hats with henna suits, and the ilk. Tigers and lions embroidered on new frocks.

London may know how to cook roast beef to a turn, but the least said on its styles the better!

THE CLUB

"The Nobel Prize Winners in Literature," by Mrs. Anne Russell Marble, has been placed on the summer reading list of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, and recommended as an invaluable book in the study of the world's literature.

FOOD CHATTER

Table jokes were frequent in ancient days. "Four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie," and all very much alive, was a common occurrence! And the modern cabaret vogue of having lovely maidens hop forth from a pie harks to the day when Buckingham presented the court dwarf to King Charles I and his queen.

Another cute little table trick was to have the court jester take a running jump and land kerplop in a huge custard on the table, bespattering the guests. Perhaps the movie world borrowed its custard pie comedy from this!

BRIDAL LORE

In days of yore when bridegrooms stole their brides, each groom was accompanied by a strong warrior to assist him. Today we have the best man, merely a relic of this custom. The newly married twain hid from the girl's kinsman until anger had died down. This gave rise to the honeymoon custom.

BRIDAL ETIQUET

The bride's father pays for the wedding invitations and announcements, gifts for the bride's attendants, church decorations, conveyance to church, wedding reception and caterer, music, bride's gifts to the groom. The groom pays for the wedding ring, bridal bouquet and attendants' bouquets, gifts for his attendants, minister's fee, conveyance for minister, conveyance from the church.

THINGS TO DO!

Movie manners are atrocious. How many times an evening have you stood to permit someone to pass and received neither an "I am sorry!" or "Thank you!" Only boobs take this prancing up and down as a matter of course.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

PRE-NATAL DIET

There is a phrase respecting Motherhood for every child a tooth—which is to say that during the period of formation of the little life certain changes take place in the mother's teeth causing them to decay and be more readily lost. And this is so! But why?

For the rearing of the little structure that is so quietly proceeding, the little bone-builders in their construction of the bones and teeth, depend chiefly on the calcium salts. Should the mother's diet be deficient in those building stones, the little workmen are obliged to go to the only other available sources of supply, the bones and teeth to meet their wants. Robbing Peter to pay Paul—if you will—yet the little structure must be reared at all costs. In such a case the mother's teeth are so structurally weakened as to invite disease.

Not only to avert this disaster to herself but keeping uppermost the welfare of the coming infant, and remembering that she must contribute generously towards the influences that will make for normally developed teeth in her offspring, the expectant mother should select her diet with the utmost care. Hence she should choose plenty of lime containing foods—milk, eggs, cereals, the leafy-topped vegetables and fresh fruits.

Following birth also, the demand for calcium in the mother's diet is still high since, with the infant feeding naturally as it should the mother's milk, requires large amounts of these salts. An inadequate diet on the mother's part certainly affects, harmfully her own teeth as well as those developing in the nursing child.

Moreover, it should be stressed that if the teeth are to be of good quality the infant should at this time be naturally fed. The ravages of tooth decay have been found to be much greater among children who as infants had been artificially fed.

The expectant mother should take at least a quart of milk a day in addition to her other food. This will ensure a proper start of the teeth in the jaws of the infant at birth, and as well the proper boney development of the child generally.

We are inclined to believe those we do not know because they have never deceived us.—Johnson.

THESE WOMEN!

Examiner's Story Will Go Long Way Toward Settling Controversy.

Harry Morton's statement recently that "Women Love Trouble" started something.

The Examiner received several letters on the subject, some protesting, some commending the statement, and this story is the result, written for The Examiner by Malcolm Duart.

After a survey of present-day conditions, and an effort to ascertain whether women really do love trouble or whether men force it upon them, the writer has reached some interesting conclusions. And the real inside of the gay life is told.

It is the story of women—their troubles and temptations—and the title, "These Women," has been chosen for it.

Gas Causes a Serious Condition

Brooklyn, Mr. O. Hinricks writes:—"I want you to know that no day passed for months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains through my stomach. I felt hungry at times but as soon as I started eating I became bilious. My tongue was coated and I always had a bad taste. I never thought this could all be from constipation. It must have been for the very first day after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills I felt fine."

CLOTHING AND TOBACCO CHAPTER WRITTEN INTO CUSTOMS ENQUIRY REVEALS BIG LOSS TO TREASURY

Montreal Manufacturer Tells of Shipments When He Had Factory in U.S.A.

MANY CHANNELS.

"Everybody Doing It"—Billion Cigarettes a Year Smuggled.

OTTAWA, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Clothing and tobacco merchants held the floor at the customs probe Tuesday. The former, represented by a dozen business men from Eastern and Western Canada, testified that organized smuggling of silks, textiles and made-up garments is making it almost impossible for Canadian dealers in these articles to carry on.

H. S. Bourke, of Montreal, estimated that 1,000,000,000 cigarettes, worth about $60,000 at American prices, were brought into this country annually. There were people who made a living selling smuggled cigarettes in office buildings and factories and even in the universities.

Witness declared that there was hardly a branch of the train service which was not engaged in smuggling cigarettes. In addition they were being smuggled extensively on motor cars. On Sunday night cars crossing at Lacolle averaged 1,000 smuggled cigarettes each. Men, women and children—respectable people—all smuggled them.

"Do you think," asked Mr. Kennedy, "that some of those respectable men who smuggle cigarettes would object to the smuggling of silks."

"Well smuggling is a human weakness," said the witness.

Lower Duty Would Help

There were several ways in which the situation might be remedied. One was to remedy the extreme difference in price. Canadian products went back as the tax went up and one year the tax went so high the government actually lost revenue. The smuggling became serious in 1919.

"What would be the effect of a reduction in the excise tax?" asked Mr. Bennett. "There is no doubt it would have a good effect," replied the witness. "Our cigarettes are of a superior quality. Their excise tax is $3 per 1,000; ours is $7.80."

Witness declared that the customs of cigars did not amount to much. "Our cigars are of far better value and the price is the same. Also our tobacco is better. If our excise was the same, the smuggling would be the other way."

Witnes declared that the customs service was under-manned.

H. B. Hyman of Toronto, representing the tobacco trade, declared that recently cigarette smugglers had on recent dates visited the dealers and offered cigarettes in truck loads at ridiculously low prices. In his opinion, however, wholesale smuggling of cigarettes was not so great as that done by individuals.

Merchants "Stabbed in Back."

Jas. M. McDonnell, a member of the Montreal Board of Trade, said there was indignation and alarm in Montreal over the start of affairs. This vicious competition stabbed the merchants in the back and could not be met face to face. There were huge losses of revenue and if ever half were collected it would pay the income tax. They wanted the committeed to make recommendations that would enable decent men to do business in a decent way. He quoted from the prime minister's speech in the House last year and of the legislation passed.

"We have been grievously disappointed in that legislation," he said. "Its effect has been worthless and we understand that of the 67 special officials appointed half have had to be discharged. The business men of Canada are looking to this committee to redress this wrong and to make an effective report—not like some committees we have seen."

Secret Service

G. Laffoley, of Montreal, representing the wholesale woollen trade, recommended that the preventive work be handed over to the R.C.M.P., who would be responsible only to the minister of justice. In addition he advocated the establishment of a secret service in conjunction with the R.C.M.P., with men in England and in New York to watch shipments to Canada. He laid special stress on under valuation which he declared was almost as bad as smuggling.

Arthur J. Doherty, president of the Doherty Manufacturing Co., of Toronto, said that smuggled silk goods were being sold all over the country from trunks. "A man leaves a trunk in a store on Saturday. It is full of silk dresses. He tells the merchant to sell what he can and returns several days later and collects the trunk and the money from whatever dresses have been sold. No duty or taxes of any kind had been paid on these dresses," said witness. "and I pay all the taxes on the board and have to meet that competition.

"I want to tell this committee," declared Mr. Doherty, "that we would be tickled to death to take the sales tax as our profit this year. With this ruinous competition we cannot make 5 per cent. on our turnover."

Silk Smuggling

Under-valuation of silk brought from the United States is the most vicious form of silk smuggling at present, Herbert Piper of Montreal told the committee.

As a silk merchant, he thought the people who ran the risk of detection by running silk as contraband were less obnoxious. The importer who under-valued took less risk and invoked the aid of the government's organization itself. He said it was impossible for any appraiser to check up on the correct value of silk unless he was an expert in silks. Efforts of the silk men to get action through the customs department had not been successful.

Visiting customs warehouses in Montreal, he had been struck with the lack of respect that customs men had for Collector of Customs Weldon there. "His authority was practically nil," said Mr. Piper.

Silks were offered to retailers by the "smuggling fraternity at ridiculous prices," and he thought that the traffic could only be carried on with the connivance of customs officers. It was significant that these silks usually came in in trunks. Smugglers, "because emboldened to the point of indiscretion" in offering silks at prices less than they could be bought for in New York. The implication of a previous witness was that such silks were stolen before they were smuggled.

Dresses From France

Expensive dresses from France also are being smuggled on ships from France, said Mr. Piper.

Appraisers were overworked, he said, in Montreal. The staff should be increased.

As a measure of prevention, Mr. Piper sugested that the Mounted Police be given the right to arrest and bring to trial anybody caught smuggling.

J. A. Haugh, Toronto overall manufacturers, said that the retailers of textiles in Canada were handicapped by the competition of United States prison-made garments, smuggled chiefly through Rock Island, Que. Children's one-piece dresses were smuggled in large quantities.

Like overalls, they lent themselves particularly to prison fabrication. Canadians ought to know that they ran the risk of clothing their babies in garments made by jail inmates who might be diseased.

A. J. Doherty of Toronto, was recalled and said that dresses imported from France constituted an unfair competition, under the depricated franc, even if the full legal duty was paid. Canadian makers could not compete with French makers and pay reasonable wages to their girls.

He was opposed to the exemption, up to $100, or wearing apparel brought by returning Canadians into the Dominion. He could import $100 of goods for his factory without duty and he thought no "true Canadian" would bring goods into the country without paying toll to the treasury. People who smuggled any description of goods should go to jail for three years, and he would make no exception of women.

Factories Crippled.

J. Love, overall manufacturer of Winnipeg, said that several wholesalers in the West, to his knowledge, brought into Canada through Rock Island, Que., the Milton F. Goodman shirt, which he believed to be prison-made. Unless smuggling was stopped, a dozen garment factories in Western Canada would have to close down. He knew of one man who boasted of getting $94,000 worth of goods through Rock Island without duty in a year or so. Textiles were offered in Western Canada at prices which indicated that they could not possibly have paid duty.

Max Jacobs, overall manufacturer of Montreal, expressed the opinion that overall factories at Rock Island and Beebe, Que., were "just blinds" for smugglers. They held more machines than there was population there to operate. But his principal reason for asserting that the garments sent out of these border points were smuggled was that for many years he had been in business in the United States and he himself used to ship the goods to the Canadian "factories," which were afterwards marketed as Canadian-made garments. He described how wagons picked up the goods at Johnsburg, Vermont, the money was paid—and away they go."

Mr. Jacobs estimated that 25 per cent of the cotton garments sold in Canada were smuggled through Beebe and Rock Island.

"But this is not a new thing," gentlemen," exclaimed Mr. Jacobs. "This has been going on for 30 years to my knowledge. I have been in business on both sides of the line for 44 years. You have eleven of these so-called factories down there now. You will have 25 if you let it go on. It is a going business, organized on a profitable basis."

Could Increase Business

If smuggling was stopped, he thought he could increase his business at least 35 per cent., and the same probably applied to other manufacturers of cotton garments. Once business was "fairly good, but when this crowd appeared, they took up the surplus.

One extraordinary statement made by Mr. Jacobs was that certain fabrics could be purchased in Montreal cheaper than it could be bought at the English factory where it was made.

"There must be something back of it," said Mr. Jacobs. He suggested that the system of appraising bales of cloth be more rigid in Canada.

A letter was read from the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association asserting that footwear was being sold at prices less than fair market value of the country of origin and asking that appraisal of such goods be placed on a basis more equitable to the Canadian dollar.

An interesting return to the modes for the younger generation, is that of the old-time and delightful challie. A practical frock for the little miss from 2 to 8 years is pictured here, fashioned from challie. The dress is so simple it can be made in a few hours. The sleeves have raglan shoulders, and the neck has gathers at both front and back, and may be finished with a round collar as illustrated, or a narrow band. An attractive touch of color is given to the front by two rows of colored thread, run in long-and-short-stitch from the neck to the outer edge of the tabs, which simulate pockets. The bloomers are gathered into bands at the knees and waist. No. 1308 is in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 years requires 2⅛ yards 32-inch material for complete dress. Price 20 cents.

HER OWN WAY

A GIRL of TODAY

RETRIBUTION

"Although Buddy Tremaine had never spoken a word of love to me I had known for some time that I was in love with him. If a day passed when I did not see him the world turned gray.

"His attentions to me had been such lately that I was sure he was in love with me and I fully expected he would soon tell me this and ask me to be his wife.

"It did not seem possible to me that, if he had any other interest in me, he would take me into his mother's box at the opera and other most public places.

"I expect his wife had seen me many times with him and probably thought I was just like all the rest. I was so humiliated and hurt, Julie, that I thought I could never face any of Madame Seria's patrons again.

"At the thought of Madame, I blazed up with anger, for of course she must have known it all. She must have known that Mr. Tremaine was married, and I didn't doubt for an instant that she had only done this because she was being paid for all the gorgeous gowns and hats that she said she had given me for 'advertising purposes.'

"Then and there I made up my mind that I would not stay with her another day.

"I went to the models' dressing room and got into my own little suit frock and I left a note with one of the girls for Madame saying that I thought she had treated me very badly in not telling me that Mr. Tremaine was married and letting me publicly accompany him to all the restaurants and public places in town when she knew that even with her as chaperon, my reputation in town was being blasted.

"I told her I could not understand her conduct as that of a woman who respected herself and me. Consequently I was leaving her employ.

"As I knew that Buddy Tremaine had bought all my fine clothes, I sent them all back to him with a note saying that I had just found out that he instead of Madame Seria had given me all the beautiful clothes that I had been wearing lately and so I was sending them back to him, and, although I appreciated his kindness, I was sure he could not expect me to take such valuable presents from any man not my husband.

"I felt so utterly broken about Tortentio that I could not go to see him. It seemed to me that I had lost more than my reputation when I realized that I could not go on with my music lessons. It was like covering up an open grave and leaving that which I loved best there.

FUNNY HATS

Cubist hats are all the rage in London. Funny brims and crowns. Zig-zag braiding in silver and gay colors. Ribbons lopping over the brim. Violent color contrasts. Purple hats with henna suits, and the ilk. Tigers and lions embroidered on new frocks.

London may know how to cook roast beef to a turn, but the least said on its styles the better!

THE CLUB

"The Nobel Prize Winners in Literature," by Mrs. Anne Russell Marble, has been placed on the summer reading list of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, and recommended as an invaluable book in the study of the world's literature.

FOOD CHATTER

Table jokes were frequent in ancient days. "Four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie," and all very much alive, was a common occurrence! And the modern cabaret vogue of having lovely maidens hop forth from a pie harks to the day when Buckingham presented the court dwarf to King Charles I and his queen.

Another cute little table trick was to have the court jester take a running jump and land kerplop in a huge custard on the table, bespattering the guests. Perhaps the movie world borrowed its custard pie comedy from this!

BRIDAL LORE

In days of yore when bridegrooms stole their brides, each groom was accompanied by a strong warrior to assist him. Today we have the best man, merely a relic of this custom. The newly married twain hid from the girl's kinsman until anger had died down. This gave rise to the honeymoon custom.

BRIDAL ETIQUET

The bride's father pays for the wedding invitations and announcements, gifts for the bride's attendants, church decorations, conveyance to church, wedding reception and caterer, music, bride's gifts to the groom. The groom pays for the wedding ring, bridal bouquet and attendants' bouquets, gifts for his attendants, minister's fee, conveyance for minister, conveyance from the church.

THINGS TO DO!

Movie manners are atrocious. How many times an evening have you stood to permit someone to pass and received neither an "I am sorry!" or "Thank you!" Only boobs take this prancing up and down as a matter of course.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

PRE-NATAL DIET

There is a phrase respecting Motherhood for every child a tooth—which is to say that during the period of formation of the little life certain changes take place in the mother's teeth causing them to decay and be more readily lost. And this is so! But why?

For the rearing of the little structure that is so quietly proceeding, the little bone-builders in their construction of the bones and teeth, depend chiefly on the calcium salts. Should the mother's diet be deficient in those building stones, the little workmen are obliged to go to the only other available sources of supply, the bones and teeth to meet their wants. Robbing Peter to pay Paul—if you will—yet the little structure must be reared at all costs. In such a case the mother's teeth are so structurally weakened as to invite disease.

Not only to avert this disaster to herself but keeping uppermost the welfare of the coming infant, and remembering that she must contribute generously towards the influences that will make for normally developed teeth in her offspring, the expectant mother should select her diet with the utmost care. Hence she should choose plenty of lime containing foods—milk, eggs, cereals, the leafy-topped vegetables and fresh fruits.

Following birth also, the demand for calcium in the mother's diet is still high since, with the infant feeding naturally as it should the mother's milk, requires large amounts of these salts. An inadequate diet on the mother's part certainly affects, harmfully her own teeth as well as those developing in the nursing child.

Moreover, it should be stressed that if the teeth are to be of good quality the infant should at this time be naturally fed. The ravages of tooth decay have been found to be much greater among children who as infants had been artificially fed.

The expectant mother should take at least a quart of milk a day in addition to her other food. This will ensure a proper start of the teeth in the jaws of the infant at birth, and as well the proper boney development of the child generally.

We are inclined to believe those we do not know because they have never deceived us.—Johnson.

THESE WOMEN!

Examiner's Story Will Go Long Way Toward Settling Controversy.

Harry Morton's statement recently that "Women Love Trouble" started something.

The Examiner received several letters on the subject, some protesting, some commending the statement, and this story is the result, written for The Examiner by Malcolm Duart.

After a survey of present-day conditions, and an effort to ascertain whether women really do love trouble or whether men force it upon them, the writer has reached some interesting conclusions. And the real inside of the gay life is told.

It is the story of women—their troubles and temptations—and the title, "These Women," has been chosen for it.

Gas Causes a Serious Condition

Brooklyn, Mr. O. Hinricks writes—"I want you to know that no day passed for months that did not find my stomach bloated with gas and shooting pains through my stomach. I felt hungry at times but as soon as I started eating I became bilious. My tongue was coated and I always had a bad taste. I never thought this could all be from constipation. It must have been for the very first day after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills I felt fine."

CLOTHING AND TOBACCO CHAPTER WRITTEN INTO CUSTOMS ENQUIRY REVEALS BIG LOSS TO TREASURY

Montreal Manufacturer Tells of Shipments When He Had Factory in U.S.A.

MANY CHANNELS.

"Everybody Doing It"—Billion Cigarettes a Year Smuggled.

OTTAWA, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Clothing and tobacco merchants held the floor at the customs probe Tuesday. The former, represented by a dozen business men from Eastern and Western Canada, testified that organized smuggling of silks, textiles and made-up garments is making it almost impossible for Canadian dealers in these articles to carry on.

H. S. Bourke, of Montreal, estimated that 1,000,000,000 cigarettes, worth about $60,000 at American prices, were brought into this country annually. There were people who made a living selling smuggled cigarettes in office buildings and factories and even in the universities.

Witness declared that there was hardly a branch of the train service which was not engaged in smuggling cigarettes. In addition they were being smuggled extensively on motor cars. On Sunday night cars crossing at Lacolle averaged 1,000 smuggled cigarettes each. Men, women and children—respectable people—all smuggled them.

"Do you think," asked Mr. Kennedy, "that some of those respectable men who smuggle cigarettes would object to the smuggling of silks."

"Well smuggling is a human weakness," said the witness.

Lower Duty Would Help

There were several ways in which the situation might be remedied. One was to remedy the extreme difference in price. Canadian products went back as the tax went up and one year the tax went so high the government actually lost revenue. The smuggling became serious in 1919.

"What would be the effect of a reduction in the excise tax?" asked Mr. Bennett. "There is no doubt it would have a good effect," replied the witness. "Our cigarettes are of a superior quality. Their excise tax is $3 per 1,000; ours is $7.80."

Witness declared that the customs of cigars did not amount to much. "Our cigars are of far better value and the price is the same. Also our tobacco is better. If our excise was the same, the smuggling would be the other way."

Witnes declared that the customs service was under-manned.

H. B. Hyman of Toronto, representing the tobacco trade, declared that recently cigarette smugglers had on recent dates visited the dealers and offered cigarettes in truck loads at ridiculously low prices. In his opinion, however, wholesale smuggling of cigarettes was not so great as that done by individuals.

Merchants "Stabbed in Back."

Jas. M. McDonnell, a member of the Montreal Board of Trade, said there was indignation and alarm in Montreal over the start of affairs. This vicious competition stabbed the merchants in the back and could not be met face to face. There were huge losses of revenue and if ever half were collected it would pay the income tax. They wanted the committeed to make recommendations that would enable decent men to do business in a decent way. He quoted from the prime minister's speech in the House last year and of the legislation passed.

"We have been grievously disappointed in that legislation," he said. "Its effect has been worthless and we understand that of the 67 special officials appointed half have had to be discharged. The business men of Canada are looking to this committee to redress this wrong and to make an effective report—not like some committees we have seen."

Secret Service

G. Laffoley, of Montreal, representing the wholesale woollen trade, recommended that the preventive work be handed over to the R.C.M.P., who would be responsible only to the minister of justice. In addition he advocated the establishment of a secret service in conjunction with the R.C.M.P., with men in England and in New York to watch shipments to Canada. He laid special stress on under valuation which he declared was almost as bad as smuggling.

Arthur J. Doherty, president of the Doherty Manufacturing Co., of Toronto, said that smuggled silk goods were being sold all over the country from trunks. "A man leaves a trunk in a store on Saturday. It is full of silk dresses. He tells the merchant to sell what he can and returns several days later and collects the trunk and the money from whatever dresses have been sold. No duty or taxes of any kind had been paid on these dresses," said witness. "and I pay all the taxes on the board and have to meet that competition.

"I want to tell this committee," declared Mr. Doherty, "that we would be tickled to death to take the sales tax as our profit this year. With this ruinous competition we cannot make 5 per cent. on our turnover."

Silk Smuggling

Under-valuation of silk brought from the United States is the most vicious form of silk smuggling at present, Herbert Piper of Montreal told the committee.

As a silk merchant, he thought the people who ran the risk of detection by running silk as contraband were less obnoxious. The importer who under-valued took less risk and invoked the aid of the government's organization itself. He said it was impossible for any appraiser to check up on the correct value of silk unless he was an expert in silks. Efforts of the silk men to get action through the customs department had not been successful.

Visiting customs warehouses in Montreal, he had been struck with the lack of respect that customs men had for Collector of Customs Weldon there. "His authority was practically nil," said Mr. Piper.

Silks were offered to retailers by the "smuggling fraternity at ridiculous prices," and he thought that the traffic could only be carried on with the connivance of customs officers. It was significant that these silks usually came in in trunks. Smugglers, "because emboldened to the point of indiscretion" in offering silks at prices less than they could be bought for in New York. The implications of a previous witness was that such silks were stolen before they were smuggled.

Dresses From France

Expensive dresses from France also are being smuggled on ships from France, said Mr. Piper.

Appraisers were overworked, he said, in Montreal. The staff should be increased.

As a measure of prevention, Mr. Piper sugested that the Mounted Police be given the right to arrest and bring to trial anybody caught smuggling.

J. A. Haugh, Toronto overall manufacturers, said that the retailers of textiles in Canada were handicapped by the competition of United States prison-made garments, smuggled chiefly through Rock Island, Que. Children's one-piece dresses were smuggled in large quantities.

Like overalls, they lent themselves particularly to prison fabrication. Canadians ought to know that they ran the risk of clothing their babies in garments made by jail inmates who might be diseased.

A. J. Doherty of Toronto, was recalled and said that dresses imported from France constituted an unfair competition, under the depricated franc, even if the full legal duty was paid. Canadian makers could not compete with French makers and pay reasonable wages to their girls.

He was opposed to the exemption, up to $100, or wearing apparel brought by returning Canadians into the Dominion. He could import $100 of goods for his factory without duty and he thought no "true Canadian" would bring goods into the country without paying toll to the treasury. People who smuggled any description of goods should go to jail for three years, and he would make no exception of women.

Factories Crippled.

J. Love, overall manufacturer of Winnipeg, said that several wholesalers in the West, to his knowledge, brought into Canada through Rock Island, Que., the Milton F. Goodman shirt, which he believed to be prison-made. Unless smuggling was stopped, a dozen garment factories in Western Canada would have to close down. He knew of one man who boasted of getting $94,000 worth of goods through Rock Island without duty in a year or so. Textiles were offered in Western Canada at prices which indicated that they could not possibly have paid duty.

Max Jacobs, overall manufacturer of Montreal, expressed the opinion that overall factories at Rock Island and Beebe, Que., were "just blinds" for smugglers. They held more machines than there was population there to operate. But his principal reason for asserting that the garments sent out of these border points were smuggled was that for many years he had been in business in the United States and he himself used to ship the goods to the Canadian "factories," which were afterwards marketed as Canadian-made garments. He described how wagons picked up the goods at Johnsburg, Vermont, the money was paid—and away they go."

Mr. Jacobs estimated that 25 per cent of the cotton garments sold in Canada were smuggled through Beebe and Rock Island.

"But this is not a new thing," gentlemen," exclaimed Mr. Jacobs. "This has been going on for 30 years to my knowledge. I have been in business on both sides of the line for 44 years. You have eleven of these so-called factories down there now. You will have 25 if you let it go on. It is a going business, organized on a profitable basis."

Could Increase Business

If smuggling was stopped, he thought he could increase his business at least 35 per cent., and the same probably applied to other manufacturers of cotton garments. Once business was "fairly good, but when this crowd appeared, they took up the surplus.

One extraordinary statement made by Mr. Jacobs was that certain fabrics could be purchased in Montreal cheaper than it could be bought at the English factory where it was made.

"There must be something back of it," said Mr. Jacobs. He suggested that the system of appraising bales of cloth be more rigid in Canada.

A letter was read from the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association asserting that footwear was being sold at prices less than fair market value of the country of origin and asking that appraisal of such goods be placed on a basis more equitable to the Canadian dollar.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 13.—THE BUTCHER WHO BROKE INTO PIECES.

"I know where to look for those Gazookumses," said Nick, when Mister Tingaling had recovered from his dizziness and was able to walk. "At the candy-store."

"Of course," said Mister Tingaling, his face brightening like the sun coming out after a storm.

And suiting the action to the word, off started the fairyman as fast as his short fat legs could carry him.

Nancy and Nick followed, for they felt as bad as Mister Tingaling did about losing the pocketbook with the rent money in it.

Mister Tingaling and the Twins rushed into the candy-store and Mister Tingaling shouted, "Mister Bags, oh, Mister Bags, did you see any rascally little——"

But he stopped right there, for a horrible sight met his eyes. Mister Bags was sticking upside down in a barrel!

It was a pop-corn barrel, half full of sticky pop-corn, and by the time the new-comers had pulled him out, you may well imagine what he looked like.

They had to sandpaper him almost to get the pop-corn off. As soon as the poor fellow could open his mouth he shouted, "Where are those Gazookumses?"

"That's what we'd like to know," said Nancy indignantly. "Aren't they here?"

"They'd better not be," bellowed Mister Bags. "They got mad because I wouldn't sell them any more candy, so they seized me and threw me into the pop-corn barrel and nearly smothered me.

"Dear! Dear! Dear me!" wailed poor Mister Tingaling. "I greatly fear we have lost them."

"Ah, ha!" cried Mister Bags suddenly. "I have a hunch, Mister Tingaling. Gazookumses like bologna almost as well as candy. I bet you, you'll find them at the butcher shop."

All Mister Bags heard in answer to this remark was the door banging.

For the little fairyman and the Twins were so anxious to be gone they didn't even say "thank you" to the candy-store man.

Off they went to the butcher shop.

"Say, Mister Butcher," Nick almost shouted, for Mister Tingaling was too much out of breath to say a word—"Say, Mister Butcher, did three little boys come here and buy some bologna?"

The butcher was a big tall butcher, oh, ever so tall! And he had his back to them. He had on a long white apron and a big white cap that almost completely hid his head.

He went on working his sausage machine and never turned around.

"What's that you said?" he asked. "I'm a leetle hard of hearing."

"I said, did you see three little boys?" said Nick. "Did three little boys come in here to buy bologna?"

"What did they look like?" asked the butcher, still without turning around.

"They looked like each other," said Nick. "They have pink eyes and pointed ears and sharp noses and they like candy and bologna."

Suddenly the butcher began to laugh. He seemed to laugh all over, clear down to the ground.

And then he crumpled up and broke into pieces, the butcher did. His long white apron and white cap flew off, and the three Gazookumses jumped out of the window. They had been standing on each others' shoulders like clowns do in circuses. Under the long apron no one could see them.

Nancy and Nick couldn't follow, for Mister Tingaling had fainted into the sausage machine.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, says:—

THAT the splendid crops promised in all parts of Canada this year should go far towards making that country prosperous.

THAT Canada has still plenty of room for the right sort of people and much to offer them.

THAT railroad rates have to pay something more than operating costs and interest charges if services are to be developed in pace with the growth of the country's trade.

THAT the perfect understanding existing between the United States and Canada is in no danger of impairment if one may judge from the tremendous number of American tourists now thronging the Canadian Pacific Rockies, Quebec province, Nova Scotia and other Canadian tourist resorts.

The Canadian Pacific operates 20,000 miles of railroad, steamship lines on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, giving a regular service from Europe to Hong Kong, telegraph lines all over Canada, and operates thirteen large hotels scattered between the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans.

ARREST BROKER ON FRAUD COUNT

C. P. Dow Charged With Illicit Use of Mails.

BANKRUPT IN JULY.

BOSTON, April 14.—Charles P. Dow, founder and former president of the C. P. Dow & Co., investment brokers, was arrested here yesterday, after a federal grand jury had returned a secret indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud.

The firm of C. P. Dow & Co. went into bankruptcy last July, with liabilities aggregating $6,000,000.

Following his arrest Dow was arraigned in federal court before Judge E. N. Brewster. He pleaded not guilty to charges contained in the twenty-four counts of the indictment.

His counsel, John P. Feeney, asked that he be allowed a week to study the indictment and Judge Brewster granted the request. No date for hearing was set.

Dow was released under $5,000 bonds.

When the Dow firm went into bankruptcy, it was operating in most of the nation's principal cities.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

THURSDAY, APRIL 15.

The planetary movements for this day point to satisfactory progress in business, publicity and contracts. There is some presage of an unplanned change or journey which should bring definite advantage. In all that pertains to social, domestic or affectional matters, however, adverse conditions are in sway, threatening the harmony of personal affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a lively and interesting year in business but matters may not be so satisfactory in all pertaining to domestic, social or romantic affairs. An unplanned change, removal or journey may be looked for. A child born on this day should be versatile and clever, with a strong bent for invention and research into the finer forces of nature. Its personal affairs should be preserved from inharmony.

REVUE TO BE STAGED AT EXAMINER DANCE

Miss Perry and Her Pupils Will Repeat Their Dance Programme.

The Examiner Softball Club has been successful in securing for their dance at the G.W.V.A. Hall on Friday night Marion May Perry's Rotary Dance Revue which was one of the outstanding features of the Peterboro Rotary Club's concert at the Grand Opera House. Miss Perry needs no introduction to Peterboro dance lovers and her Rotary Revue will lose none of its charm in the presentation at the Examiner Club's dance on Friday night. Assisting Miss Perry will be practically the same clever company that delighted the Rotarians.

Miss Perry and her company appear in costumes of her own design, and the whole Rotary Revue feature will undoubtedly be one of the most entertaining divertissements of the local dance season.

QUARTERLY REPORT OF UTILITIES COMMISSION

Interim Report.

R. L. Dobbin, the commission superintendent, have his report as follows on the activities of the Waterworks and Electric Departments for the first three months of 1926:

Pump House.

Improved sanitary conveniences were installed and some of the usual painting has been done.

There have been no ice troubles since the first of the year and indications are that we will get through the Spring without having to use the steam plant.

Filter Plant.

The walls and ceiling of the operating room have been cleaned and some painting has been done.

The suction well has been cleared of an accumulation of sand and dirt, which has been drawn in through the intake. All the alum feeding apparatus has been thoroughly overhauled.

No alum has been used since the middle of last December on account of the purity of the raw water. However, we expect to start its application in the near future, as the river shows signs of the spring freshet.

The use of a gas tar paint on some troughs in the filter plant beds caused a taste on the water for about a week in February. The taste appeared to be greatly increased by the small amount of chlorine we are using at this time of the year, and was quite noticeable in certain parts of the city. We immediately discontinued the use of this paint and by considerable flushing were able to get the taste out of the water.

Tests of the water which tasted of the tar paint, showed no harmful pollution, although it was very disagreeable.

Pumpage.

The amount of water pumped per day continues to decrease. The table below gives comparative figures for last three years:

January, 1926, 2,310,000 gallons per day 1925, 2,832,000 1924, 2,699,000.

February, 1926, 2,263,571 gallons per day 1925, 2,732,000 1924, 2,705,000.

March, 1926, 2,246,000 gallons per day 1925, 2,650,000 1924, 2,557,000.

Distribution System.

The usual routine inspection of fire hydrants was carried out during the cold months. New meters were set in all the schools and nearly all meters in use were inspected and tested.

Only one leak developed on the system. This was on the five-inch main at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets on January 7. The pipe proved to be of Scotch manufacture and was very thin on one side. It was repaired with a split sleeve.

While repairs were in progress it was necessary to shut off four blocks on account of insufficient number of valves. This is a situation that should be remedied as the discomfort caused was considerable.

Electric Department.

Four hundred and three meters have been taken out for routine inspection and re-set. This is about half of the required number, and we expect to have this operation complete by the end of April.

Four power meter installations have been inspected and tested and found to be correct.

The portable duplex graphic meter has been kept moving from one power consumer to another so as to cover all of them as soon as possible. The following factories have been covered:

Brinton Carpet Co., Otonabee Woolens, Canadian Packing Company, McDonald Lumber Co., Canadian Woolens (three factories), Jos. Gray, Campbell Flour Mills, Westclox Company, Colonial Weaving Co.

In addition, we have installed it on several of the feeders in the substation.

Interruptions to Service.

On Saturday, March 27, at 3.28 p.m., a 44,000 volt switch at Auburn power house on the Peterboro' tap blew up, shutting off all power and light for about half an hour. By that time we were able to get some power from the Hydraulic Power Company which enabled us to give part service until temporary repairs were made. At 6.45 p.m. full power was turned on.

We have not yet received a report as to the cause of the failure of the switch and repairs have not yet been completed.

Street Lighting.

The new street lighting system in East City is now completed and is operating in good shape. The cost of installation was about $7,000.00.

There are now 264 100-watt lamps, and eight 300-watt lamps, operated by a time clock situated at Mark and Hunter streets. There are, in addition to the above, five 60-watt lamps at Downer's Corners, which are not operated by the clock. They are isolated and it would cost considerable to wire them so that they might be turned off and on. Owing to a more intelligent arrangement of lights, we have been able to supply parts of East City with street lights which previously did not have this service. This was done without increasing the total number of lights over the former installation.

Tree Trimming.

Some trimming was done on the trees on George street, north of Smith, which will increase the efficiency of the street lights in this vicinity.

Pole Removal.

The work of taking down the empty poles purchased from the Machine Telephone Company, and also a considerable number of our own, has progressed rapidly and we have now lowered over 200 of these. They are all being drawn to our yard, where they will be trimmed and made ready to re-set.

Magnetite Arc Lamp Changes.

An order was given for the necessary material and we expect to start to change the magnetite arc lamps to incandescents about the middle of next month.

Inspection of Commercial Loads.

We have completed 250 of these inspections out of a total of about 800, and expect to finish in a few weeks. The net decrease in connected load is 2331 K.W.

System Loads.

The monthly peaks are as follows:

	January.
	1925	1926
Peak, H. P.	5136.7	5189
Date	12th	26th
Time	16.42	16.33
K.W. hours daily	50064	46523
Load factor, per cent.	54.4	54.2
	February.
	1925	1926
	5174.3	4593.8
	4th	25th
	8.20	11.16
	50100	46521
	54.0	58.7

	27th	23rd
	11.40	11.40
	48419	44606
	54.0	56.3

There was no large drop in power load which would reduced our demand in February and March.

SPURIOUS BANK NOTES SEIZED

Machinery For Making U. S. and Canadian Bills in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 14 (Canadian Press).—Seizure of counterfeit Canadian and United States banknotes with a spurious face value of several hundred thousand dollars by the police here Tuesday culminated the efforts of authorities to break up a counterfeiting ring which has been flooding this section of the border with fake money.

Frank Palmeretti, a photographer, was arrested in the Prospect Avenue flat, where the police found the counterfeit money. A quantity of machinery used in manufacturing the bills was seized.

The raid was the result of information gleaned from Joseph Aplermo, who was arrested two months ago while attempting to pass a counterfeit bill in a restaurant. He had $300 in fake money on his person.

Police said Palmeretti confessed that he had passed several thousand dollars' worth of his home-made bills in cities along the Canadian border.

Most of the Canadian bills passed were of $20 and $50 denominations. The United States' were chiefly for $1 and $10.

Federal authorities and police continued their search for alleged "higher ups" in the plot. They said the ring evidently had a highly organized system for disposing of their bills, by means of which they had reaped huge profits in several Canadian and United States cities in recent months.

CHARACTER TELLS THE STORY!

People throughout this country are giving more thought to hygiene and to the purity of remedies on the market, but no one doubts the purity of Doctor Pierce's vegetable medicines, for they have been so favorably known for many years that everyone knows they are just what they are claimed to be. These medicines are the result of long research by a well-known physician, R. V. Pierce, M. D., who compounded them from health-giving herbs and roots long used in sickness by the Indians. Dr. Pierce's reputation as a leading and honored citizen of Buffalo, is a sufficient guarantee for the purity of that splendid tonic and blood purifier, the Golden Medical Discovery, and the equally fine nerve tonic and system builder for women's ailments, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Send 10c for trial pkg. tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

HEAVY FIRING EAST OF PEKING

Opposing Armies Are Still Holding Same Battle Lines.

CONSIDER TUAN. . .

By Randall Gould
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PEKING, April 14.—Heavy artillery fire to the east of the capital to-day showed that the opposing Nationalists and Allied armies were still engaged in combat for the control of the city, but there were no indications that the battle lines had changed materially.

The diplomatic corps has decided to evade the issue involved in the presence within the Legation quarter of the ousted President Tuan Chi-Jui. The diplomats will consider the four members of Tuan's Cabinet still remaining in Peking proper to be carrying on a provisional government.

They would not consider the problem raised by Tuan's presence unless he forced the issue by endeavoring to function as President of China while under foreign protection.

FIGHT OVER WOMAN MAN STABS RIVAL

HAMILTON, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Quarrelling over a woman, it is said, Mike Sinoff is believed to have been fatally stabbed by a compatriot, Woko Menoff. Sinoff was stabbed several times about the neck, chest and back. He was removed to the General Hospital and was unconscious. His condition is said to be grave.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief for Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomachache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purposes.

Young People's League.

The Young People's League, of Trinity United Church, met in their weekly meeting on Monday evening, Mr. Harold Lang was in charge of the meeting. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Christina Connell and a piano selection by Floyd Parsons was enjoyed by all. The chief item of interest on the evening's programme was an address by Miss G. M. Meredith on her trip abroad last year. Miss Meredith piloted her hearers in fancy aboard the great ocean liner on which she sailed, and the life on the ocean wave was graphically described by the speaker, after which the audience was conducted on a most interesting and inexpensive tour of Scotland, England and France. Miss Meredith had a splendid series of colored views with her which added much interest to the address.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Meredith at the close of her address to which she graciously responded in a few well-chosen words.

During the evening, Mrs. Mahood and Rev. E. W. Rowland rendered a vocal duet entitled "God's Way is The Best Way," which was well received.

WESTERN TEAM IN FINAL GAMES

New Westminster "Adanacs" Given Chance at Basketball Title.

PLAY IN WINNIPEG.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 14 (Canadian Press)—President Boyd of the Canadian Basketball Association in a statement issued last evening states that the New Westminster Adanacs will be given a chance in the Dominion Basketball finals. Due to negligence on the part of officials of the British Columbia Basketball Association the fees were not mailed to the secretary of the Dominion Association in Ottawa, but were sent to vice-president Page in Calgary after the latter had left town on a tour with the Edmonton graduates basketball team.

As the season is too far advanced for home and home games as the constitution of the Association calls for and as it would not be fair to ask Winnipeg to finance the Vancouver team as they have already financed a series with Regina, while British Columbia have not played Alberta, the following decision was forwarded to the New Westminster, Winnipeg and Montreal clubs last evening. "New Westminster will play Winnipeg a two game series in Winnipeg on April 23rd and 24th, with each paying half the expenses of the trip of the Vancouver team and that the winners will play in Montreal against the Montreal Eastern Canada champions on April 30 and May 1st in the Dominion finals. This is final."

It is hoped that the three teams concerned will agree to the conditions. Montreal has been ready for some time, and the unfortunate mix-up in the west has delayed things.

JOHN M'GRAW LAUDS MEUSEL

BOB MEUSEL

"Bob Meusel should begin where Ty Cobb has left off," is the way Manager John McGraw of the Giants sizes up the tall New York Yankee outfielder.

"Meusel has everything but initiative. I would like to have him on my ball club, despite his lack of aggressiveness. I might be able to supply some for him.

"Meusel is very fast. He has the greatest arm in baseball. He has a deceptive slide. No fielder can go any farther after a ball. He is a fine batsman.

"With every physical and mental asset necessary to be one of the most talked about stars in the annals of the game, he has never gained the prestige he deserves because of lack of initiative.

"He could be a second Ty Cobb if he had it."

MAJOR LEAGUES' OPENING GAMES PROVIDED THRILLS FOR 212,000

Weather Cold For Start of Pennant Race—Hornsby's Perfect Day.

RUTH HITS THREE.

Approximately 212,000 fans braved generally chilly weather to see the major league baseball races get away to a thrilling start.

Sensation pitching featured the opening battles yesterday. Walter Johnson started his twentieth season with Washington by blanking the Athletics, one to nothing, in a fifteen inning battle, while Jess Petty, Brooklyn southpaw, shut out the Giants with one scratch hit before a Polo Grounds crowd of 45,000, the largest of the day.

George Uhle, returning to form with a victory for Cleveland over Detroit, and Ted Lyons, twirling the White Sox to triumph over St. Louis also figured in fine mound performances which opened up room for further debate over the effects of the so-called resin ball.

The Yankees and Red Sox, on the other hand, went to free-hitting extremes, Babe Ruth getting away to an auspicious comeback start by contributing three bows toward the New Yorkers' 12 to 11 triumph.

The world's champion Pirates, meanwhile, fell before the onslaught of the Cardinals in a game which saw the St. Louis chieftain, Rogers Hornsby, start his drive toward a seventh straight National League batting championship by registering a perfect day at bat.

ORIOLES AGAIN PICKED TO WIN IN LEAGUE RACE

International Circuit Under Way To-day With Many Changes.

LEAFS AT READING.

Baltimore Are Favorites For Eighth Consecutive Championship.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(Canadian Press).—With at least four clubs casting menacing shadows on the seven year supremacy of the Baltimore Orioles, the International League opens its 1926 campaign today with expectations of as keenly fought a pennant race as any in the 35 years history of the circuit.

Getaway games will be played on the southern end of the wheel with Rochester at Baltimore, Toronto at Reading, Buffalo at New York and Syracuse at Jersey City.

In spite of the best balanced array of clubs the league has had in years, Jack Dunn's Baltimore outfit is favored by critics to extend the winning streak it started in 1919. The champs face their most formidable opposition in Toronto, 1925 runner-up, and three clubs which have greatly strengthened their lineups, Newark, Syracuse and Jersey City. Rochester also is regarded as a powerful threat but Buffalo and Reading are conceded small chance of rising above the second division.

Dunn's Team Changed.

On paper, the Orioles appear somewhat weaker than in 1925 due to inroads made by major league clubs and the refusal of Infielder Dick Porter to sign his contract. Alphonse Thomas, Dunn's 1925 twirling star, is wearing a White Sox uniform, but George Earnshaw is the ace of another strong pitching staff. Archdeacon, fleet outfielder, back after a trial with Washington, and Shortstop Joe Boley, another start who has been sought in the majors, are leading cogs in the Oriole machine.

Pitching trouble face Rochester. George Stallings has assembled an untried combination of rookies and veterans by strategic trades during the winter season which has shown unusual hitting power, but without mound reinforcements the Colts are considered pennant possibilities.

Bert Shotten's Syracuse club has been rebuilt, with the pitching staff probably the strongest in the circuit. Shotten has gathered Dickerman, Grabowski, Miller and Frank House for his twirling corps and he is to receive another box artist from the Cardinals soon after the major league campaign starts.

Jersey City has been strengthened by advantageous deals with Brooklyn and Manager Donovan believes he has repaired the defect in the machine which cracked in mid-season last year. However, Donovan is dickering for a relief first baseman and a pitcher before he will be satisfied with his club.

How Leafs Look.

Dan Howley's Toronto club looms as the best assembled across the Canadian border since the Maple Leafs won pennants in 1917 and 1918. Despite the los of pitcher Myles Thomas to the Yankees, Pitcher Jess Doyle and Infielder Gehringer to the Tigers, and Outfielder Joe Kelly to the Cubs, Howley obtained Pitchers Owen Carrol, Hubbell and George Smith to augument his staff. Babe Dye, the former Buffalo outfielder, fills the gap left vacant by Kelly. In addition, Lionel Conacher, the Pittsburgh hockey star, will attempt to earn his spurs in the outer garden.

Reading, the last place team transferred from Providence, has few bright prospects. Manager Shaughnessy will start with a make-shift outfit but he expects to strengthen the club as the season goes along. The outfield is strong but the infield weak and the pitching uncertain.

Buffalo Uncertain.

Bill Clymer will lead an uncertain quality in Buffalo. The team appears to have a batting wallop but the pitching corps is weak. Failure of Mike McNally to report from the Yankees caused an infield problem which Clymer has been unable to solve satisfactorily.

Manager Fred Burchell appears to have revived interest in baseball in Newark with an aggregation of former major league stars, the best the club has had since it won a pennant in 1913. A new stadium rapidly is nearing completion, and financial troubles apparently have been ironed out by the aid of public subscriptions. With such stars as George Burns, Chick Shorten, "Chicken" Hawks and Lew Fonesca, the Bears appear sure of a first division ranking.

HE'S UP AGAIN

TOM GULLY

One of the most promising of the newcomers on the Chicago White Sox payroll this spring is Tom Gully, outfielder. He's fast afield and a good hitter. In 1925 he was a clouting sensation with Little Rock in the Southern Association. Gully had a tryout with Cleveland a few seasons ago.

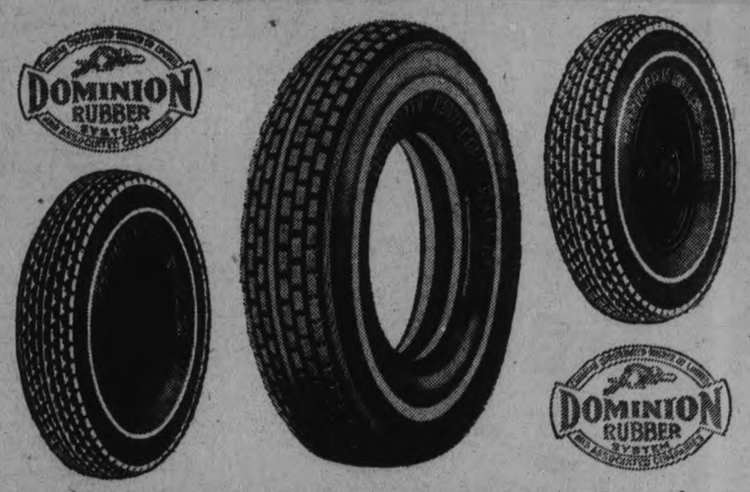
Three Outstanding Improvements in Balloon Tires



The most advanced and important improvements that have been made in tires during the past five years are represented in Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires. These outstanding improvements are:

First— LATEX-TREATED WEB CORDS—eliminating internal friction and heat.

Second—SPRAYED RUBBER—the purest and most lasting form in which rubber is used.

Third—LOW-PRESSURE TREADS—for Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires, which give maximum comfort, to be had only from low inflation, without undue wear

These improvements, exclusive features of Dominion Royal Cord Balloons, result in greater mileage, more tire value and greater comfort in driving.

Latex-Treated Web Cords

Patented and used exclusively in Dominion Royal Cord Tires. Each cord is saturated with pure Latex (milk of rubber) and the cords are held together flat and evenly in a web of Latex without cross-tie threads. Friction and internal heat, the greatest enemies of tires, are eliminated. Latex-Treated Web Cords add to the life and mileage of Royal Cord Tires and this extra advantage costs the user nothing.

Liverpool Market Gives Wheat Values New Strength

CHICAGO, April 14.—(Canadian Press.)— Wheat scored fresh upturns in prices to-day, but new crop deliveries were inclined to lag, as compared with May. The fact that to-day's Liverpool quotations reflected yesterday's rise of values on this side of the Atlantic was materially strengthening influence. Chicago opening prices, 1-2 cents off to 3-4 cents up, May 1.64 to 1.64 1-2, and July 1.38 7-8 to 1.39 1-4, were followed by bulges that lifted May well above 1.65 1-2.

Corn and oats responded to wheat strength. Besides corn arrivals here were meagre, 64 cars to-day. After opening unchanged to 3-8c. higher, May 73 5-8 to 73 3-4, the corn market receded a little and then made a moderate general advance.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c. higher, May 42 to 42 1-8. Later all months showed some gains.

Provisions were without any decided change.

TORONTO, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Weakness in Dome, consequent on the annual report, was again the feature of the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The stock was sold down to a low mark of 13.25, from which it recovered only five cents at the noon close, a loss of a dollar and twenty-five cents since Yesterday and $2.50 in the past two days.

Tough Oakes lost 3½ at 38½, but elsewhere the list, though soft, was not remarkably weak. McIntyre eased 5 at 24.95, and Hollinger 5 at 18.25. Consolidated West Dome one at 19, and Vipond five at 165. In the silvers, Noranda eased five at 15.60, and Keeley three at 161.

Lower Level Set To-day By Dome Mines at Toronto

TORONTO, April 14 (Canadian Press)—Decline in Dome Mines was the feature of this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, which saw that several erratic movement was further sold down to a low level of 13.30, at which mark it closed morning, a dollar and thirty cents below yesterday's drop. British Empire Steel, second preferred issue, lost three points at 22, but other losses were slight. Bareclona strengthened five eighths to 28 1-8, and Brazilian was unchanged at 90. Winnipeg lost a point and a quarter at 48, Atlantic Sugar a quarter at 23 3-4, Brompton three-eighths at 32 and Steamships preferred one-eighth at 17. Mines were not affected by Dome's weakness.

LABOR ESTIMATE TAKEN IN HOUSE

Government Annuities First of Items To Be Considered.

RATES UNCHANGED.

OTTAWA, April 14 (Canadian Press). — Shortly before eleven o'clock last night the House of Commons, after spending all day in consideration of land settlement revaluation, went into committee of supply on the estimates for the Department of Labor. Hon. J. G. Elliott, the new Minister, was greeted with Government applause when he took a seat on the front bench. The first item to come before the committee was one of $5,000 for the administration of Government annuities. This was a reduction of $15,000 from the estimate of last year. Mr. Elliott explained that it was the purpose of the Department to dispose with extensive advertising this year.

Replying to a question by W. A. Boys (Conservative, Simcoe North) Mr. Elliott said that while revision of rates had been suggested, it had been found that they were "as nearly as possible correct." Consequently as far as he was aware, there had been no revision.

LADIES ARE TOLD OF THREE CITIES

Sir Robert Falconer Gives Interesting Address at Library.

Impressions of London, Paris and Geneva, gleaned from recent visits to all three cities, were given to the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon, at their meeting in the auditorium of the public library, by Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto. There was a large attendance at the lecture, delivered by the speaker in an attractive style, with a cool, scholarly manner of address that made his talk very pleasing. Mrs. F. D. Kerr, president of the club, voiced the appreciation of the audience in a few well-chosen words at the conclusion and also spoke of the attendance at this meeting of several members of the Ministerial Association and of the Women Teachers' Guild.

Speaking first of Paris, Sir Robert Falconer alluded to the gradual slipping away from the French people of the prestige once enjoyed by that nation. "One meets this point of view in France: Can France maintain her position in Europe as she once held it?' Paris was for centuries the great city of Europe. Everything turned to Paris. The French people regarded themselves not only as people of refinement, but as quite the most so in all Europe. They had a tremendous prestige in the 16th and 17th centuries, and the great Napoleon gave them a place of tremendous power. The illusion was not broken until 1870, when the Germans came, with their wonderful powers of organization, their thoroughness and application, their ability to wrest from a comparatively reluctant soil industrial results far beyond anything known elsewhere, while at the same time they were gathering together the broken pieces of an old Empire into a people of strong national spirit. Then France began to lose her place, and we see her now as a people in whose Parliaments there are no majorities, and where constant quarelling has led to a condition of incapacity. It has become a disease, this forming of governments in France, and many people think that what is required is a Mussolini, a strong man to knock this disease out of them."

Paris, said the speaker, always reminded him of a lady decked out in her best garments, showing herself off to the world and trying to appear always at the best advantage, a city which desires to be considered as the leader of fashion and also a leader in intellectual matters, displaying all her best points to the casual visitor, and striving to cater to the pleasure of a cosmopolitan population and to make it possible for all who come to enjoy themselves.

London, unlike its gayer sister city, to which it presented a tremendous contrast, was predominantly English and was built primarily for the English. London does not care for outward appearances. The stranger within its gates is received in a reserved sort of way, but, while Paris believes that a lot of her welfare depends upon the way she receives her visitors, London is not of this opinion at all. London says you may come to see her if you like, but you must look after yourself.

"Anonymous power" was the way in which the speaker designated the type of reserved, withdrawn authority of men who were at the head of large affairs in London. He also spoke of the quiet fashion in which affairs of momentous import to the nation and the world at large are conducted in the Houses of Parliament, and to the widespread influence of the English press, as typified in the great London Times.

Sir Robert Falconer spoke briefly with regard to Geneva, alluding to it as a beautiful little city, claimed to be the second most intellectual city in Europe, and famous the world over because of its intimate connection with the League of Nations. Here, said he, one is not overpowered by the patriotism of any one people, as in Paris and London, as it is more or less international in character.

Speaking of the predominance of the great European nations at the council table of the League, and of the efforts of the smaller countries to get a place equally important for themselves, the speaker asserted that it was in the hands of the larger, more powerful nations that the peace of the world rested. The smaller countries did not feel the same sense of responsibility to the rest of the world, and there was no guarantee when they said a thing, that it would be done.

Canada was ably represented in Geneva, said the speaker, alluding to several Canadians who are intimately associated with the work of the council of the League of Nations, and of the respect accorded them in its sessions.

Concluding his interesting address, the speaker remarked: "One does not feel that Europe is dead by any means. It is a living country, and forces are moving there, the outcome of which may be almost anything. Guidance is necessary. We in Canada are fortunate in belonging to the British Empire and in our share in the League of Nations, the one great institution that appears to be affording some help in maintaining the good order of the world. It cannot be a failure. The recent developments with regard to the admission of Germany to the League are only a setback. Germany will come in, and even if the United States does not, she will help at least in the great work of trying to stop war, to be able to be powerful enough to say to these certain foci that are breeding disease: "You must clean that up." It is a great thing to be able to say that. Therefore, instead of with depression, one must think of the League with a sense of optimism."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

In the name of public merriment and excitement Fred Thomson and Silver King have committed entertainment in the first degree! Once more this popular star and his famous horse come to the screen with an offering which is a riot of laughter and a panic of thrills. In "All Around Frying Pan," F. B. O.'s latest release featuring the western actor and athlete, there is really two shows in one. The Alturas Round-up which was actually shot for the picture supplies one show and the story of Frank Richardson Pierce, which has been made to include this famous cowboy contest, supplies the other. Director David Kirkland himself adapted the story to the silver sheet, and he made a distinctive job of it. The new production will be seen here to-morrow when it opens a 3-day run at the Capitol Theatre.

AT THE REGENT

"THE MERRY WIDOW."

(N.Y. Evening Jorunal).

"If I could reproduce here a bar from the waltz of 'The Merry Widow' it would describe better than words the lilting romance and the provocative charm of the photoplay which opened at the new Embassy Theatre last night. It's the kind of love story of which you imagine yourself the hero or heroine when you shut your eyes and dance to an alluring melody. Had I a hat on I'd take it off to Erich von Stroheim for the delightful picture he made of 'The Merry Widow.' Mae Murray's performance in the title role justifies one's use of that trite expression—she gives the best performance of her career. And another piece of priceless acting is done by Roy D'Arcy, who plays the villainous Crown Prince. And one could almost leave one's happy home for John Gilbert, who gives to his part an understanding that is absolutely arresting. How that boy can make love! The typical von Stroheim directorial touches are fascinatingly deft, and the settings, the costumes and the royal customs are splendid."—Rose Pelswick.

SHAREHOLDERS GIVEN BAD NEWS

Old Workings at Dome Mines Nearly Worked Out, Says Manager.

HAVE NEW FIELD.

TORONTO, April 14.— (Canadian Press.) —Optimism and pessimism were blended at the annual meeting of the Dome Mines Ltd., which was held here yesterday afternoon. President Bache afforded the silver lining to the cloud, while Gen. Man. Depencier developed the lowering effect. Mr. Bache still looks for better developments in the old workings at South Porcupine, but Mr. Depencier gave it as his opinion that these were practically worked out. Mr. Bache said that he had been much disappointed over the year's showing, and Mr. Depencier did not hesitate to confirm the shareholders present in that view. Considerable hope for the future of the company is still found in its Red Lake acquisition, and this may yet tide over the less attractive developments in the older field. The old board of directors was re-elected without change.

Mr. Depencier, in an address to the shareholders, said that the old workings at Dome were now getting into slate formation, from which no results could be anticipated. Owing to the fact that the ore being found on 15th level was not sufficient to maintain the mill at its present size, it was not likely that the profits accruing from each ton of ore in 1926 would equal that obtained in 1925. Drifting done on the 15th level had passed through the zone where it had been confidently expected that ore would be found, but these expectations had not been realized. Some of the assays encountered in the drift mentioned had been $13 over 8 feet, $10.88 over 6 feet, $8.80 over 20 feet, $12.05 over 12 feet and $10 over 21 feet. In response to an inquiry from one of the shareholders, Mr. Depencier said that there were still favorable areas to be explored, but it was his opinion that there were no large ore bodies in sight on the lower levels.

Negotiations incident to the acquisition of the Red Lake property were outlined by Mr. Depencier. In addition to $500,000 which had to be paid for the vendors' shares, Mr. Depencier said that if the option was to be kept alive, Dome would have to put $10,000 per month into development work, for which it would be entitled to receive treasury shares of Howey at 40 cents a share. That being the case, the Dome, if it exercises its option in full, will have acquired for the sum of $1,500,000 a 75 per cent. interest in the capital stock of the Howey Red Lake Gold Mines Co.

Upon the question of the cutting of the dividend, which has been rumored in the street for some time past, Mr. Bache said no action would be taken in that regard this year.

POPULAR CONCERT IS GIVEN BY LADIES

Female Voice Choir Gives Good Programme at St. John's.

The Female Voice Choir, under direction of Mrs. R. Bugg, gave one of its popular concerts last evening in the parish hall of St. John's Church, under the auspices of the Women's Friendly Bible Class. There was an exceptionall, good attendance and the audience was extremely appreciative of the efforts of the choir and assisting artists, according enthusiastic encores in every instance. Mayor W. T. Holloway acted as chairman, and spoke in commendation of the efforts of the choir, and Mrs. Bugg, commending especially the splendid training in music given the children who form part of the choir's personnel. The vote of thanks moved by His Worship, was seconded by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, also on the platform.

The programme rendered was excellent, every number being encored heartily, the selections by Mrs. Woolgar being accorded especial entusiasm and repeated encores at every appearance. Mrs. Woolgar and Mrs. Cook received pretty floral tributes last evening.

The programme opened with the singing of "O Canada," by the choir, followed by "Annie Laurie," this number, along with the other choral efforts, being rendered in very tuneful style. Following were a pianoforte duet by Mesdames Woolgar and Cooke; the "Rendezvous," a scene ararnged by Mrs. M. Brealey and Miss Kitty Brealey, who were prevented by illness from being present. At the last minute, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland very kindly consented to take the principal part in the sketch, earning much appreciation from the choir and its director. Others assisting were Mesdames Puttick and Berwick, with little Phyllis Pink as Cupid, and Mrs. Murray as the Gardener.

Annie Fletcher gave a song and recitation, "Nursery Rhymes," and "I used to be the Baby;" Barbara and Jean Grey gave "The Bells of Canterbury" with good effect; and a dance by midgets, Victor Scott and Myrtle Heath was accompanied by Mrs. Scott on the concertina. This number was encored heartily. Miss E. Harrison sang "Ukelele Lady," Mrs. Liddell, "Sing me to Sleep," and Mrs. A. Nicholls recited in her usual capable manner. Little Phyllis Pink sang "Down in the Butterfly Meadow;" Miss Harrison and choir gave the very entertaining "Campdown races" selection, and Mr. J. H. Flowers in fine voice, sang "The Trumpeter." Mrs. Woolgar, who was one of the hits of the evening, in male impersonations, assisted by Miss E. Cook, sang "Angelina," "Good Bye, Mignonette," and "Take me Back to London Town." Mrs. Woolgar was compelled to respond to several encores.

"The Newsboys," a sketch arranged by Mrs. R. Bugg, and featuring newsies selling The Examiner, had solo portions by Winnie Francis and Madeline Fletcher; two dances, performed through the kindness of Miss C. Littlefield of the Y.W.C.A., were a Spanish number by the Misses R. Puttick, L. Gregory and A. Bradley, and a Russian dance by the Misses Rumary and Tillcock, and selections by the Children's Choir, which were exceptionally well done, were "Show me the way to go Home," and "Abie." Mrs. Woolgar, who received a double encore, sang "An Old-Fashioned Town," and "Two Litle Girls in Blue," was sung by the Misses Scholey, Pink, Annie Fletcher and Margaret Fletcher. Mrs. Scott followed with a concertino solo. Miss M. Flowers played accompaniments for the majority of the solo numbers, Miss M. Willis playing for the interpretive dances and Mrs. Scott for the childrens dances.

Mrs. R. Bugg, leader of the choir, to whom much of its success is due, spoke briefly, mentioning the absence through illness of several of the mebers, occasioning substitution of members and of selections, and also spoke of the kindness of Mrs. McClelland in substituting on short notice.

The personnel of the choir is as follows: Mesdames Jackson, Cheu, Pink, Farthing, Murray, Dainton, Brealey, Buckton, Murray, Gardiner, Woolgar, A. McKinley, F. McKinley, Liddell, A. Nicholls, Portsmouth, Scott, Falconer, Murray, the Misses M. Allen, E. Harrison, G. Nicholls, A. Barton, M. Murray, A. Berwick, M. Berwick, K. Brealey, E. Cook, B. Cain, E. Wilson, E. Parkin, J. Parkin; children: S. Scholey, W. Francis, G. Murray, A. Fletcher, M. Fletcher, Margaret Fletcher, Vina Fletcher, Rose Rumary, J. Grey, Barbara Grey, P. Pink and Masters Scott and Heather.

NATIONAL SYSTEM OF BANKS FOR CANADA ADVOCATED IN COMMONS BY WOODSWORTH, LABOR MEMBER

Winnipeg Member Says Private Banks Virtually Dictate Policy of Canada.

CONTROL BUSINESS

Hon. R. J. Manion Contends Canada Has Enough Nationalization Now.

OTTAWA, April 15 (By Canadian Press).—Private members' day in the House of Commons was devoted to discussion of a resolution declaring that the time was ripe for the establishment of a national system of banking in Canada. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre, was the mover. He made it clear that he did not expect the House to declare itself on such an important resolution without ample investigation. He hoped, however, that the Minister of Finance would agree to its reference to the banking and commerce committee of the House. This, Hon. J. A. Robb made no objection to, only stipulating that witnesses who knew nothing of banking should not be summoned to appear before the committee.

Mr. Woodsworth said that private banks in Canada had reached a point where they could practically dictate the financial policy of the country. He outlined the privileges granted to the banks.

They issued currency and controlled credit. Through interlocking directorates they were able to assume control of many large and supposedly independent business corporations. Currency, he believed, should be isued only by the Government.

"Banks in Good Shape."

Mr. Robb took the ground that the Canadian banking system was adequate to the requirements of the country. Banks in Canada were "in pretty good shape," and giving the Government much less worry than in some previous years.

Objection to the proposal was voiced by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative of Fort William. There was danger of paralyzing private enterprise by such measures, he said.

Debate was adjourned by C. H. Cahan, K.C., Conservative member for St. Lawrence—St. George.

Three Kinds of Money

Mr. Woodsworth said there were three principal kinds of money in use in Canada. The first was gold, the second bank notes, and the third cheques. Over 90 per cent of the business of the country was carried on by means of cheques.

Economists, Mr. Woodsworth said, stated that the value of money was determined by the quantity in circulation. It followed that those who controlled the quantity of money in circulation controlled the value of commodities. Under the present system of banking, there had been handed over to individuals and corporations the privilege of actually making money.

Mr. Woodsworth divided the privileges accorded to banks into four different classes. In the first place banks controlled the savings of the people; secondly, the private banks had the very important function of issuing currency. Again, they had the still more important function of issuing credit. Finally, they did the financing for the Government, to a very considerable extent. The banks were in a position where they could practically dictate the financial policy of the country. Through interlocking directorates they were in a position to control other large corporations and businesses. The conclusion he had reached was that they should be taken over by the people for the benefit of all instead of a few.

Efficiency Doubted

Mr. Woodsworth said that business men as well as farmers' organizations were beginning to doubt whether the present banking system was the last word in efficiency.

He mentioned one large farmers' organization in the West which has endorsed his resolution moved last year along similar lines as the present one.

Mr. Woodsworth quoted Sir Clifford Sifton who had said during the recent election that Canada was ap-

625 PER CENT. ON RED LAKE FOOD

Young Prospector's $2 Supplies Sold for $12.50 in Mining Camp.

STAKED 9 CLAIMS

WINNIPEG, Man., April 15. — (Canadian Press.) — Housewives who complain of high prices should be content after learning the cost of food products in the Red Lake area, Ontarios' newest mineral find, according to W. Hall, a 19-year-old prospector, who has just returned from the mining field.

Profits running as high as 625 per cent. are being made in the Red Lake district on food supplies. This may not be general, he said, but it was his experience.

He entered the district with $2 worth of food supplies, consisting of a piece of bacon, some ship's biscuits, half a pound of tea, and some chocolate. He sold his supply for $12.50. The bacon brought $4, and the tea, which cost him 30 cents, realized $1.50.

Hall assisted members of a Montreal Exploration Company in staking claims. He made a flying visit, making the round trip in ten days, and staked mine claims. He travelled by tractor, horse and sleigh, "mushed" a few miles, and returned by aeroplane.

Centenarian Liked "Little Drink": Smoked 60 Years

OTTAWA, Ont., April 15.—(Canadian Press).—John Thomas Derby, of this city, is today celebrating his 100th birthday in the local home for the aged. Mr. Derby has smoked for the last 60 years; he likes a little drink occasionally, according to his own statement, and he did not, when young, retire early at night.

When asked to what he attributed his long life, Mr. Derby said the only method was to "take care of yourself and mind your own business."

HON. E. C. DRURY RE-ELECTED BY ONTARIO PROGS.

Let Voters Decide Liquor Question Is Plan Of Progressives.

MEET IN TORONTO.

Want Legislative Powers Restored To Private Members of Parliament.

TORONTO, April 15.—The officers of the Ontario Progressive Association elected yesterday were: President, E. C. Drury, re-elected; first vice-president and organizer, R. H. Halbert, Uxbridge; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. W. M. Glenn, of Hansell; secretary-treasurer, J. M. Warrin; directors: Maj. E. C. Barrett, F. M. Chapman of Pickering; H. Taylor, Cheltenham; J. G. Fitzgerald, Toronto; J. G. Whitmore of Woodbridge; J. Little and Mrs. S. Banks, of Shelburne; J. Mahan, of Guelph.

Planks of Party.

When the association was formed, a year ago, twenty-six resolutions were submitted. These were given over to a committee with the ruling that the first annual convention of the association would decide concerning their adoption. The committee boiled them down to thirteen resolutions.

The thirteen plans under discussion, several of which have already been adopted (including Nos. 3, 4 and 13), are:

1. Provincial banks and rural credits.
2. Government encouragement of co-operative marketing of farm products.
3. Restoration to parliament of legislative powers now unconstitutionally usurped by the cabinet.
4. Prohibition in accordance with the expressed will of the people.
5. Autonomy of constituencies in the selection and control of candidates for parliament.
6. Strict economy in carrying in of public business.
7. Reasonably good roads for all districts.
8. Electoral reform, including the single transferable vote.
9. Adequate and just return in the sale of public resources.
10. Hydro-Electric development with a view to availability in all parts of the province.
11. Local option to municipalities for the exemption of improvements from taxation.
12. Availability of educational advantage to all classes and localities.
13. Reference to the people of appropriate questions of great public importance and an honest and democratic regard for popular decision.

Resolutions Passed.

Provincial savings offices as a plank in the Progressive platform, was coupled with rural credits. The resolution was carried without opposition.

"Government encouragement of co-operative marketing of farm produce," was another resolution carried.

"Strict economy in government," was also accepted and "reasonably good roads for all districts."

"Electoral reform, including the single transferable vote," was presented and Mr. Roebuck thought the association was ready to endorse the single transferable vote. He explained how the system is operated and said it would do away with minority representatives getting seats through the putting of third parties in the field.

"Adequate and just returns in the sale of public resources" was also carried without comment.

A resolution, passed unanimously, expressed unbounded admiration for the parliamentary leadership of Income Tax Reduced All Along the Line Says Hon. J. A. Robb

Exemption For Married Men Is Increased—Total Tax Reduction in All Classes Estimated at $25,000,000 — Distinction Between Earnings and Investment Revenue.

FAVORABLE TRADE BALANCE INCREASED TO $402,000,000 IN LAST FISCAL YEAR

Striking Increase in Cattle Exports Since Removal of Embargo in United Kingdom — Number Jumps From 25,000 Head To 86,000 Head.

OTTAWA, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, this afternoon brought down the Budget, in which he announced tax reductions, affecting all classes, estimated at $25,000,000. Chief among the tax reductions came income tax. In this, Mr. Robb announced "reductions all along the line." Exemption for married men is increased. In a revision of the Income War Tax Act, a distinction will be made between yearly earnings and income derived from investments.

Trade Development

Mr. Robb continued, "May I direct attention of the House and of the country to remarkable development which has taken place in Canada's trade. We closed the fiscal year with a favorable balance of over $402,000,000, which constitutes a record for any year since the war period. Unrevised figures for the fiscal year ended March 31st last, show our total trade to be $2,258,534,453, an increase of $330,000,000 over that fiscal year which ended March 31st, 1925. Our exports have continued to exceed our imports, and for the year under review these exports totalled $1,330,000,000 as against $1,081,000,000. This is an increase in our export trade of $249,000,000. Our imports during the fiscal year totalled $927,000,000 as compared with $796,000,000 for the previous year, or an increase of $130,000,000.

Empire Trade Growth

The most striking feature of our Empire trade's rapid growth, since the removal of the embargo on April 1st, 1923, is our cattle exports to the United Kingdom. During the year preceding the lifting of the embargo, our exports of cattle to Britain were valued at $2,809,796, while for the eleven months ending February last they were $11,283,007, or over four times as great. The growth of this trade in the past three years is indicated by the fact that for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1923, 25,758 cattle were exported to Great Britain while for the last fiscal year, the number was 86,245.

Favorable Balance, $402,000,000.

The budget statement pointed out that the growth of Canada's favorable trade balance had been steady and at the end of the fiscal year exceeded $102,000 000.

The actual ordinary revenue received up to and including March 31st last amounted to $367,958,495 and would total about $376,800,000 when all accounts for the year were closed. This was an increase of revenue of about $29,965,520 over the previous year's revenue. Customs duties show an increase of about $19,000,000. Revenue from excise taxes is estimated at $95,500,000, an increase of $9,689,000.

Surplus Revenue.

Taking the estimated revenue for the year ending March 31st, 1924, as $374,800,000 and the estimated expenditure chargeable to consolidated fund as $321 800,000, there will be a surplus of revenue over ordinary expenditure of $55,000,000 available for capital, special and other obligations.

The capital expenditure for public work, including that of the Marine Department will amount to $4 930,000, and for railways and canals is $12,005,000, of which $11,942,000 is for the Welland ship canal. The total net capital expenditure will therefore be $16,935,000. Special expenditure will amount to $4,155,000 in connection with the adjustment of war claims, the cost of flotation for refunding loans, and other items.

Some of the big items of expenditure for the fiscal year just closed were: Interest on public debt, about $131,000,000; war pensions, $36,160,000; soldiers' civil re-establishment $7.705,000; subsidies to provinces $12,375,000; national defence, $12,450,000; and public works chargeable to income $13,500,000.

Debt Reduced.

Other features of the budget statement were:

A surplus of $33,910,000 on Government services.

Special war tax revenues, $154,580,000.

Total expenditures attributable to war, $163,097,000, or $9,417,000 more than receipts.

Debt reduced during the year by $22,353,000.

Canadian National Railway earnings for the fiscal year, $33,000,000 in excess of operating and income charges, exclusive of interest.

Government assistance to Canad-

Adverse Trade Balance In U. States Continues

Dog Goes To Cemetery And Lies Down To Die

BELLEVILLE, April 15 (Canadian Press).—With its head pillowed on a headstone, a full grown English bulldog was found dead on a grave in Belleville Cemetery yesterday. There were no signs of ill treatment on the body when it was examined by Superintendent Thomas, and apparently the animal, weary of the vicissitudes of life, had simply crawled on to a grave and died. The dog has not been seen in the neighborhood before. The grave is that of a person whose body was brought from another city.

BRITISH HOUSE SUSPENDS 13 CAUSING DELAY

Labor Members Refuse To Pass Tellers on Vote.

IN COMMITTEE.

When the House Resumes Chamberlain Moves For Suspension.

LONDON, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Thirteen Labor members of the House of Commons were suspended during an all-night sitting of Parliament for wilfully obstructing business. Right Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Conservative, named the offending members and moved that they be suspended.

His motion was carried by a vote of 163 to 76. Thereupon they withdrew from the House.

The House was in committee discussing clauses of the Economy Bill, when at six o'clock this morning J. H. Thomas, former Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Laborite member for Derby, moved the adjournment of the debate. Discussion on the motion proceeded normally, but after the prescribed time the tellers had not returned with the figures. It was reported that certain members in the "ayes" lobby had refused to pass the tellers.

Committee Chairman Hope demanded the names of those abusing the rules of the House, and the following members were named: Rev. Herbert Dunnico, Durham; John Scurr, Stepney; Thomas I. Mardy Jones, Glamorgan; George Lansbury, Poplar; John J. Lawson, Durham; R. A. Taylor, Lincoln; John Wheatley, Glasgow; Joseph Compton, Manchester; Hugh Dalton, Camberwell; George D. Hardi, Glasgow; Col. Harry Day, Southwark, and Messrs. Sheppard and Purcell.

When the names were given proceedings were suspended and the Speaker of the House was summoned from his bed. Upon the resumption of business, Mr. Chamberlain moved the suspension of the members and his motion was carried.

MYERS HONORABLY ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF SALTING BINGO "MINE"

Crown Abandons Prosecution on Court's Ruling That Evidence Regarding Analyses Must Show Samples Were From Place Alleged.

"HOUNDED TO DEATH," MYERS STATED

WINNIPEG, Man., April 15 (Canadian Press) — Joseph Meyers, managing director of the Bingo Mines, Limited, was found not guilty by Mr. Justice Curran in court of king's bench late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Meyers was charged with making false statements with intent to deceive.

No evidence was offered by the defence after R. B. Graham, K.C., brought the Crown's case to a close.

The case closed with dramatic suddenness. Several crown witnesses who had been subpoenaed were not called to the witness box.

All along R. A. Bonnar, K.C., senior defence counsel, had argued there was no evidence against his client and made a counter-charge that Myers was being hounded to death. The trial lasted just eight days, and all through the proceedings were marked with considerable "liveliness."

Ruled Out Evidence

Mr. Justice Curran at the start of the case ruled that he would allow no evidence to be given of analyses made from ore taken from the Bingo Mine unless it could be proved that the samples were taken from the exact spot as those which the Crown charged had been "salted." Yesterday Crown witnesses were unable to prove that a sheet of oil paper produced in court and which the crown alleged was used by H. Dowson, a plumber, to catch the metal filings was the actual article. This in turn made impossible the calling of other witnesses whose testimony could not be used unless this first fact was established.

It was at this point that Crown Counsel announced he would close the case.

R. A. Bonnar, K.C., then made formal motion for discharge of his client.

R. R. Graham, K.C., when asked by the court if he had anything to say, declared he had no further evidence to offer.

His Lordship remarked that he could not understand Mr. Graham's statement. "I am not preventing you from calling whatever witnesses you like all I have done is to rule out testimony which I do not believe to be relevent, he said.

Mr. Graham said he had nothing to add to his previous statement.

Honorably Acquitted

In discharging Mr. Myers, Mr. Justice Curran said: "So far as this court is concerned, it is my duty to find you not guilty. There has been adduced before me no evidence that could reflect on your character as an honest man, and I want to tell you as some compensation for a long drawn out trial that you leave the court honorably acquitted and without a stain on your character. I do not want these remarks to be taken as any reflection on R. B. Graham, Crown Counsel. I have known him for a long term of years, and have always found him honorable, fair and capable prosecutor."

In a shaking voice, Myers then addressed the court: "I thank your lordship. I have been subjected in this case to the most unwarranted, vicious and despicable persecutions such as few men have ever been called to meet. I have been the victim of persistent, malicious and dishonest propaganda, which has been broadcast by those who sought my ruin to gain their own ends."

Exchange Compliments

Characterizing an objection made by R. P. Graham, Crown counsel, as "nonsense," Mr. Justice Curran started an exchange of "compliments" at the trial yesterday.

"I don't think such language is proper on the part of your Lordship to address counsel of my experience," declared Mr. Graham when his objection was called "nonsense."

"If your lordship thinks that my conduct is "nonsensical" there is the law society to whom my conduct should be referred."

Mr. Justice Curran: "I do not understand your argument."

Mr. Graham: "That is your Lordship's misfortune, not mine."

At this stage the exchange ceased, and the evidence of M. A. Parker, chemistry expert, was continued.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

MAY OFFER YORK POLISH THRONE

Monarchist Idea is Gaining Ground in Present Republic.

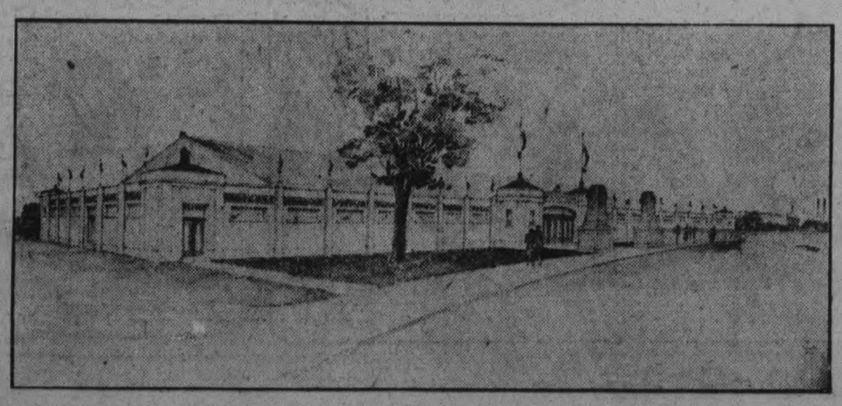
DUKE FAVORED.

LONDON, April 15 (Canadian Press).—The conversion of Poland into a monarchy, with the Duke of York, second son of King George, as king, is the aim of a section of the Polish people, says a despatch to The Daily Mail from Warsaw.

The correspondent says the idea of giving Poland, now a republic, a king is gaining ground there, and the monarchists hope if the nation adopts their view, to persuade the Duke of York to accept the crown.

WINNIPEG, April 14 (Canadian Press).—Purchase of an option on a group of mining claims in the Little Bear Lake district of Manitoba by local interests was announced Tuesday. The amount involved was said to be $100,000. Development work will be started immediately.

PROPOSED RIVERSIDE ARENA



RIVERSIDE ARENA NEWS.

The building of the new Arena has been made possible by the showing made by the senior hockey team.

The erection of the building marks another stage in the development of the City of Peterboro.

The campaign for subscriptions will be made in such a way that every citizen will be given an opportunity to subscribe.

Payments of subscriptions will be made easy to meet, but in a business-like way.

When sufficient subscriptions have been secured to warrant the calling for tenders, a call will be made for one-third of the stock subscribed for. The second payment of one-third will be made 30 days later, and the remaining third at 60 days.

All subscribers, however, paying in full will receive his stock certificate.

In calling for tenders, all local contractors will be given an opportunity except possibly for the steel work and the ice-making machinery. Employment will therefore be given to many men.

$150,000.00 of stock will be issued. All common stock at $10.00 per share. No bonus of stock will be given to any person, nor will any commission be paid to any person for securing subscriptions, providing the response is successful.

The effort will be purely a community one, in which it is expected each citizen will do his duty.

The campaign will open on Monday, April 19th.

A meeting of citizens is called for to-morrow night at 8 o'clock at the Council Chamber.

THE WEATHER.

The weather still keeps unseasonably cool, especially at night. Both yesterday and the day previous the temperature reached 50 degrees, but last night it fell to 10 degrees. In Alberta temperatures of 60 and 70 degrees prevail in some places. — W. P.

PROVINCE TO BUY 230,000 H. P. DELIVERED AT QUEBEC BOUNDARY

Agreement Authorized With Gatineau Power Co. For Power.

STARTS IN 1928.

Construction of Ontario Transmission Lines To Start Right Away.

TORONTO, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Announcement was made last night by Premier Ferguson that upon recommendation of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, the Government has authorized the completion of an agreement for the delivery to Ontario by the Gatineau Power Company, at the Ontario-Quebec boundary, in the vicinity of Ottawa, of 230,000 to 260,000 horse-power of Hydro-Electric energy, at a price of $15 per horse-power.

The delivery will commence with a block of 80,000 horse-power in 1928. The total delivery is to be completed by 1931. Contract binding delivery is for 30 years, dating from 1928.

The addition of this block of power ensures provision for Ontario's power requirements for the next five or six years.

The Gatineau Power Company, from which the new block has been secured, is a subsidiary of the International Paper Company, which is at the present time constructing power plants on the Ottawa River, at Chelsea and Farmers Point, from which developments certain amounts of power will be delivered under the above-mentioned contract. They also contemplate developing at Paguan and other points on the Ottawa, including storage on the Gatineau and its tributaries.

The transmission lines to convey this power from Ottawa to Toronto will be approximately 230 miles in length, and will require an expenditure of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Construction of these lines will be commenced immediately, a $500,000 appropriation for primary work in connection with the same having been voted at the recent session of the Legislature.

According to Premier Ferguson, the estimated cost of the above-mentioned power delivered to the Niagara system at Toronto will be from $7 to $8 per horse power less than the cost of producing a similar quantity of power from steam plants at present prices for coal and equipment. In other words, the power will be delivered in Toronto at about $22 per horse-power.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission has also under consideration a development scheme at Chats Falls on the Ottawa River.

KIWANIS GREET PRESIDENT MOSS

Peterborough Club Represented at Big Function in Toronto.

"If we cannot do all, we are not excused from doing all we can to create a betterment of society by a betterment of each individual citizen," was the challenge of International President John H. Moss, at the banquet given in his honor by the Toronto Kiwanis Club, in the Great Hall of Hart House last night. "It is our duty," continued Mr. Moss, "that as individual citizens, we must establish a high standard of conduct in the business and social world."

Regarding the frivolousness of the present generation, the International President remarked, "Too many people are reading account books instead of reading good books by reliable authors; too much time is spent in the dining-room instead of the library; too many serious problems are treated as trivial and trivial problems are treated as serious problems; too many people are dancing the Charleston instead of the minuet."

Two hundred and twenty-five Kiwanians attended the splendidly planned banquet in honor of the visiting International President, which was presided over by George Paton, president of the Toronto organization. Mayor Foster was called upon to open the programme in which he expressed his appreciation of being present and also complimented the club on its effective work amongst the boys in Toronto. George H. Ross introduced the speaker of the evening.

Peterborough Kiwanis Club was represented at the banquet by President John J. Craig, Vice-President Isaac McNabb, Harry Huffman and Rev. J. D. Paterson.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Regular Business and Devotional Meeting is Held.

The regular monthly business and devotional meeting of St. John's W.A. was held on Tuesday, with the president, Mrs. W. A. Turner, in the chair.

There was the usual large attendance, although the prevalence of the 'flu was responsible for quite a number of absentees.

Dr. Blagrave opened with hymn and prayer and spoke briefly on the mission work and its relation to God's Word.

Reports were read and business was discussed; the chief being the choosing of the two official delegates to go to the Annual W.A. Conference, to be held in Toronto, starting May 10. Mrs. Dr. Cameron and Mrs. George Melton are the delegates this year, while most of the officers are attending unofficially and a number of members also.

The literature readings on the W.A. Work were continued, after which the meeting closed with the Members' Prayer and Benediction. Tea was served by the refreshment committee. Convenor, Mrs. Budd.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., April 14 (Canadian Press)—The feature of the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was the continued good demand from the United Kingdom for oats and as cables in most cases were stronger at an advance in prices a very fair number of orders were accepted for May shipment. Continental buyers were also in the market for Manitoba wheat and sales of a few loads were made.

The trade in cash grain was more active owing to the increased demand from exporters for Canadian Western Oats which resulted in sales of some round lots being made, including No. 2 C.W. grade at 62 1-2c per bushel, C.I.F. Montreal, No. 1 feed oats at 1-2 cent per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, C.I.F. bay ports, and sample grades at one to two and half cents per bushel over the May option, C.I.F. Montreal. The tone of the market for car lots of spot supplies was very firm and a moderate amount of business was done.

Spring Wheat Flour Up

On account of the strength that prevailed in the Canadian cash wheat situation, a stronger feeling developed in the local spring wheat flour market and prices were advanced twenty cents per barrel. Winter wheat grades were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of mill... were advanced $1.00 per ton, which was attributed to good demand of late. The undertone to the market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm under a fair enquiry.

Potatoes Advance 25c

The feature of the potato trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market and prices scored another advance of 25c per bag. The demand for supplies continues good and as the offerings from the country are increasing some at the present level of the market an active trade was done.

The receipts of butter were 192 packages, as compared with 1,575 for the same day last week and 879 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market opened steady under a moderate demand for supplies and 37c per lb. was bid for Australian No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter with none offering at this figure, and at the same time sales of Canadian fresh made No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter were made at 36 1-2c to 36 3-4c per lb., but ... wards the close of the day a weak... feeling developed in the situati... owing to the pause in the dema... and round lots of the Australian N... 1 pasteurized creamery butter we... offered at a decline of 3-4c per l... at 36 1-4c per lb. and Canadian ... the same fiure.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Apirl 14 (Canadian Press)—Wheat prices made a fresh general advance today but slipped back at the last. In some quarters the late downturn was explained on the ground that the oversold position of the wheat market had been largely corrected and thus buying power had been lessened. Closing quotations on wheat were irregular at 3-4c net decline, to 1-2c advance, May (new) $1.64 to $1.64 1-4 and July $1.38 7-8 to $1.39, with corn 1-4c to 7-8c off, oats unchanged to 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents lower.

CAMPBELLFORD HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

Pessimistic Talk Deprecated in Open Letter to the Mayor.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 15.—T. J. Horkins has addressed the following open letter to Mayor Kingston and the members of the Town Council:

G. A. Kingston, Mayor:

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE MAYOR OF CAMPBELLFORD

As I listen to the pessimists telling of people out of work and of so many empty houses in town, I feel that it would be well to start a Booster Club here. As I see it, Campbellford has a great many natural advantages and the Hydro has spent a lot of money building power houses and developing electric power along our river.

Our taxes, of course, are high, partly owing to the building of the new High School and to the money spent on our sewerage system. The sewers were necessary from a sanitary standpoint and the High School gives us prominence over other towns along educational lines, and not only that, it converted a frog pond and sink hole into a beauty spot.

Campbellford is fortunate in owning her own power plant which if rightly handled, should pay half the taxes of the town. The town is also fortunate in having several good industries and I feel the Council is taking the proper course in assessing the woollen mills at cash value until the dye room, the designing room and the finishing room are restored to their former usefulness, so that Campbellford Woollen Mills will again be complete and not merely an adjunct to the company's factory at Toronto.

As we have five Hydro power houses in our vicinity developing power from our river, it is up to the Council and our legislative representative to camp on the trail of the Honorable Robert Cooke until he does good business and justice to us by having the head offices of the Hydro from this district removed from Belleville to Campbellford.

It would also be in order for the Council and our representative at Ottawa to ... the Railway Commi... that we get jus... nd that we have ...om the west in ... We ... o bad to have ... stranded at ...ings after 1

SMYTHE GUILTY OF CONCEALING ARSON CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN SUSPENDED SENTENCE IS GIVEN

Bethany Man Pleads Guilty To One of Two Charges.

MUST REPORT.

Charges Arise From Fire Which Destroyed His Home Last Fall.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, April 15 — William Smythe, charged with setting fire to his farm buildings near Bethany and with concealing part of his household effects with the object of defrauding an insurance company was up for trial in the County Court here yesterday, His Honor Judge Huycke of Peterboroupgh presiding. Smythe pleaded not guilty to the first and guilty to the second charge. The first was dropped and on the second Smythe was allowed to go on suspended sentence on condition that he report to Chief Newhall of Peterborough once a month for at least a year.

The trial, originally set for 10.30 a.m. was delayed until the afternoon as Joseph Wearing of Peterboro, who appeared for the defendant missed a train and did not reach Cobourg until one o'clock. The case for the Crown was conducted by W. F. Kerr, Crown Attorney.

There was no formal opening of the the Court as Sheriff D. J. Nesbitt is ill in bed and Captain W. H. Smith died recently, and no successor has yet been appointed. Governor McLaughlin of the County Jail, sat in the seat usually occupied by the sheriff, on the right of the presiding Judge.

Judge Huycke, in graceful terms, referred to the late Capt. Smith, who, he said, had been deputy sheriff for so long that he had been almost a part of the court. Crown Attorney Kerr, spoke of the late official in complimentary terms. Before the days of the Provincial police Captain Smith's services in that capacity outside of town had been invaluable. He was a competent and obliging officer.

Consults With Client

Mr. Wearing asked that he be allowed a private conference with his client as he felt that in five minutes he might be able to shorten the proceedings. This request was granted.

When Smythe was placed in the dock the charges against him were read by the Crown Attorney who informed him that he had the privilege of electing to be tried at once before Judge Huycke or at the June sessions. Mr. Wearing on behalf of his client chose the former course. Mr. Wearing then put in a plea of not guilty to the first and of guilty to the second charge.

First Charge Dropped

Mr. Kerr said that in view of the plea of guilty of concealing goods and as the Crown felt that there was a lack of sufficient evidence to convict on the first charge, he asked that the latter be dropped. He then explained the case in detail to the court. The defendant was a farmer, living on a farm that was heavily mortgaged, with no crop to speak of. A fire broke out in the Smythes home, the neighbors gathered but could give little assistance. The house was a total loss. A great deal of sympathy was felt for Smythe at the time as he was known to be in straitened financial circumstances and the fire took practically all that he had.

Some time after the fire a neighbor going past the place saw evidence of digging and examined the place. He reported what he had found to another neighbor, and they laid the matter before the local magistrate at Bethany. A report of the case was sent to the Provincial Fire Marshal, and Deputy Fire Marshal Cowan went to Bethany from Toronto to investigate. This official made a thorough examination and found valuable household effects buried on the premises. He also searched the ruins of the house but all he could find was some trifling articles, such as broken cups and saucers.

"It is possible," concluded Mr. Kerr, "that after the house took fire Smythe conceived the idea of concealing part of the furniture and putting in a claim for it to the insurance company."

Insurance Was Cancelled.

A peculiar feature of the case brought out by Mr. Wearing was that at the time of the fire there was no insurance on the buildings or contents, but Smythe did not know of this. The policy had been cancelled by the company as Smythe and his wife had not been living on the property steadily, and the company did not consider it a good risk. Smythe, it seems, did not know this, but believed that the insurance was still in effect.

Mr. Wearing's Plea.

Mr. Wearing said that he had been connected with this case from different angles as he was the legal adviser of William Taylor of Peterborough, who owned the mortgage on the Smythe farm. The land was not worth over $1,000, but good buildings had been put up and this made all the difference.

When Mr. Wearing was notified by the insurance company that the policy had been cancelled he wrote to Smythe and told him to come to Peterborough to renew it, and with that Mr. Wearing dismissed the matter from his mind. The letter to Smythe went by mistake to a brother who never delivered it to the person for whom it was intended. Six weeks after sending the letter Mr. Wearing heard of the fire, which he believed was an accident.

Wooden Headed Crime.

Mr. Wearing was of the opinion that the only crime was wooden headedness. Smythe had hidden the goods in a hole in the ground because he was going to leave the place with his wife, and as he could not take the furniture with him, he was afraid some one would steal it if it was not concealed. Smythe put in a claim to the insurance company for these goods, but there was nothing coming to him in any case as the policy had been cancelled.

Mr. Wearing asked that the defendant be allowed to go on suspended sentence. Smythe, who comes of a good South Monaghan family, has lost everything he had. He had been in jail for six weeks, a considerable punishment for a piece of stupidity. The man who holds the mortgage on the property has now no security, since the buildings have been destroyed. Smythe has been married a little over a year and has one child. His wife, who was formerly Miss Margaret Dyna Lyles of Peterborough, is in poor health, and is now being taken care of by relatives in that city. Smythe, if allowed out on suspended sentence, would go to work for a farmer near Peterboro, and would take care of his wife and child.

Suggested Light Sentence.

Crown Attorney Kerr said that if Smythe were allowed to go without sentence, that the case would not act as a deterrent to others disposed to commit a similar serious offence. He believed that the defendant should be given some punishment.

A Serious Offence.

In addressing the prisoner, Judge Huycke said that arson was one of the most serious crimes in Canadian and British law. It may be more serious even than murder, as it may result in a double crime. He was glad for the sake of the defendant, and for the reputation of the neighborhood in which he had lived, that Smythe was not guilty of the crime of arson. Arson may be punished by imprisonment for life, and you are fortunate that you are innocent of this grave crime. If he had been convicted on this charge, the Judge said, he would have sentenced him to a long term.

The maximum penalty for the offence to which Smythe had pleaded guilty, concealing goods with the object of defrauding an insurance company, was two years in the penitentiary. People must not fraudulently remove their goods, but the Judge said he inclined to the view that Smythe did not realize the seriousness of what he was doing.

Judge Huycke added that if Smythe was given a short sentence, people would not be impressed by it, but would say that he had got off lightly. He was disposed to let the defendant go on suspended sentence ,but made it clear to him that if he did not conduct himself in a lawful manner he could be brought before the court and sentenced for the offence to which he had pleaded guilty. Consideration was given to the financial condition of the defendant, who had lost his equity in his farm, and to the condition of his wife and child.

"How can we keep track of you if I let you go?" asked Judge Huycke of the defendant.

"I will be working around Peterborough," was Smythe's reply.

Judge Huycke told the defendant that he must report to the Peterborough Chief of Police once a month, this arrangement to continue for at least a year. Mr. Wearing is to explain the case to Chief Newhall.

Witnesses Not Called.

Smythe's wife was in court and wept silently during the proceedings. A number of witnesses from the vicinity of Bethany and Deputy Fire Marshal Cowan of Toronto were on hand, but none of them was called upon to testify.

HIGH SCHOOL WORK PLEASES INSPECTOR

Mr. Roger Says Class Work and Equipment Are Up To Mark.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 15. — High School Inspector Roger has just completed a two days' inspection of the Campbellford High School and his report will probably be received at the next meeting of the Board of Education. To some of the members of the Board, Inspector Rogers stated that he had found the school, both as regards class work and equipment up to the mark, but suggested some additions to the outfit of the gymnasium. The Inspector added that he always enjoyed his visits to the Campbellford School as in no other place did he find a finer spirit of co-operation among the teachers, or students who are better behaved or more interested in their work.

Advice As to Gymnasium

Inspector Roger was asked by some of the trustees for his opinion of the idea of throwing the gymnasium open to the athletes of the town, a matter that was raised at the meeting of sportsmen held in the Regent Theatre Sunday evening. The Inspector advised against such a course, and added that if the Board did comply with the suggestion that in a short time the members would find it necessary to cancel the concession. He cited the case of the Collegiate Institute in London, where the gymnasium was thrown open to the public, but after a trial was closed again on petition of the ratepayers.

Chairman O'Sullivan's Stand.

Chairman George O'Sullivan of the Board of Education, speaking for himself, says that he would be in favor of permitting other than the students to use the gymnasium provided a satisfactory arrangement could be made. There should be some understanding as to the time when outsiders were admitted and that some responsible person should be in charge. If the person selected for this duty was the regular caretaker, he would have to be paid for this extra service and the Board of Education could not be expected to meet this expense.

IF U.S. SHOULD GROW RUBBER.

If the United States should undertake to grow rubber on a commercial basis, using the Philippine Islands as the base for its operations, it would require about 500,000 workers to grow a supply sufficient to meet the demands of the country at this time. A rubber orchard can be brought into bearing in about five years though the best results come from trees approaching twenty years of age. An individual tree may be expected to produce from four ounces to a pound of rubber sap a season.

A SPRING TONIC AN AID TO HEALTH

You Can Lay the Foundation of Good Health Now By Building Up Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the Springtime, like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon sound common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time for those who are not in rugged health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on reserve strength they have stored up during the sunny summer months, and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting color in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine, there is no safer or better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills tone and enrich the blood which circulates through every portion or the body, strengthening jaded nerves and rundown organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men, women and children.

Miss K. Sirois, Kamouraska, Que., says:—"I would feel that I was neglecting an opportunity to help some other poor sufferer if I failed to tell you how much benefit I had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before taking the pills I was in a badly run-down condition. I was very weak, pale and breathless at the least exertion. I often had headaches and my appetite was poor. I began taking the pills and they restored me to better health than I had enjoyed for a long time; in fact, my health is now the best, and I am sure that what this medicine has done for me it will do for all weak, ailing people."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAPT. W. H. SMITH.

COLBORNE, April 15.—The funeral of Capt. W. H. Smith, deputy sheriff of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, took place from his late residence at Cobourg, on Monday. Service was conducted at 2.15 by Rev. Temple Stannage Boyle, rector of St. Peter's church, after which the cortege left for Trinity church here, where a service was held, conducted by Rev. Dr. Boyle, assisted by Rev. T. McKim. It was largely attended by Colborne Masonic Lodge and by citizens generally.

Captain Smith was a son of the late Mr. John Smith of Bloomfield and was born in Prince Edward County 74 years ago. He came to this village when a young man, and later married Miss Elizabeth Peebles, who predeceased him by about three years. Nearly twenty years ago Captain Smith was appointed deputy sheriff with the late Sheriff Proctor and went to Cobourg to reside. He held this position until his last sickness. Three weeks ago Mr. Smith entered Cobourg hospital for an operation. This was performed and a second operation became necessary, after which his strength failed.

Captain Smith was a former officer in the 40th Northumberland Regiment and later was quartermaster in the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons. A great grief came to him during the great world war, when a son, Lieut. William Alfred Smith of the Canadian Rifles, was killed overseas. Surviving their father are one son, Rev. Canon D. Russell Smith of Oakville and three daughters Mrs. Wm. Seeds of this village, Miss Ethel Smith, a teacher in a Toronto school, and Miss Lulu Smith of the Cobourg Branch of the Standard Bank.

BETTER TERMS.

The assurance given by Mayor Holloway that sympathetic treatment of the baseball team at the hands of the Council can be expected will be gratifying to the many citizens interested in this form of sport.

While the expected entry of the Ottawa club into the circuit did not materialize, the reason for better terms for the lease or rental of the Stevenson Park still remains, inasmuch as it is doubtful whether a three-team league will prove as successful from a box-office viewpoint as was the Central Ontario in other seasons, while the expenses of the teams will remain heavy.

The Examiner called this matter to the attention of the Council because it felt that senior baseball was entitled to consideration in view of the advertising it gives this city and the pleasure it affords a large number of the ratepayers.

The city fathers will find public support behind them in according generous terms to Peterboro's representatives in major baseball.

ABOUT SMUGGLING.

An angle of the smuggling problem that should not be overlooked is that most people who have occasion to go across the international line seem to regard it as perfectly natural that they should try to bring back articles with them that they imagine are cheaper over there.

The moral side of the question does not seem to give the least concern, even to those who are inclined in other matters to walk in the straight and narrow path.

A good citizen—that is, good in every other respect—who would not think of stealing a cent's worth will put on a pair of new boots just p_ hased in Buffalo or Rochester and attempt to stroll calmly past the customs inspectors on the Canadian side, perfectly oblivious of the fact that he is stealing a portion of revenue from the treasury of the country.

Was it not Hon. Geo. P. Graham who said in an address recently that such conduct was no different in principle than if these smuggling citizens put their hand into the pocket of the Minister of Finance and extracted a sum of money?

That is a condition of affairs that makes it extremely difficult to check smuggling operations because with almost everybody indifferent to the law and apparently able to assure his conscience as to the probity of his conduct, there is created a problem of serious proportions.

HELIUM IN CANADA.

"Engineering," the British technical publication, says that during the war work was done on extracting helium from natural gas, with the object of using it for filling balloons or dirigibles. Though helium was twice as heavy as hydrogen and had correspondingly less lifting power, it had the advantage of being non-inflammable, so that a Zeppelin if filled with this gas could not have been set on fire.

The British Board of Invention and Research accordingly asked Professor McLennan of Toronto whether any Canadian source could provide the gas in the quantities needed. Helium was found in small quantity in the gases escaping from the springs at Bath, England, but in much larger proportion—up to as much as 2 per cent.—in the natural gases which were used on a large scale for industrial ends in Canada and the United States. One of the best of the Canadian sources were the natural gases occurring near Edmonton. This gas contained helium to the extent of 0.36 per cent. In addition, there was 91.6 per cent. of methane, 1.9 per cent. of ethane, and 6.1 of nitrogen. Hence the helium constituted about 1 part in 300 by volume. It was accordingly determined to separate this out by condensing the less volatile constituents by means of liquid air.

In the first stage of the process a gas was obtained containing 5 per cent. of helium. This was passed through further rectifying columns, the final result being a gas which contained 80 per cent. to 90 per cent. of helium. This could be further purified by passing it through cocoa charcoal cooled in liquid air. The charcoal retained all the less volatile gases and practically none of the helium. The United States took up the process just before entering the war and is now getting helium from the natural gases in Texas, but it is reassuring to know that Canada has an independent supply for engineers, and flattering to national pride to learn that Canadian scientific initiative attacked and solved so important a problem.—London Advertiser.

THE RIGHT OF THE PEOPLE.

In a letter which appears on this page today, County Clerk Elliott returns to a discussion of the question of the press and committee meetings of the County Council.

His communication does not make a bad case any better.

Any attempt to make capital out of the Examiner's reference to the fact that the press has always been ready to co-operate with City Council committees in preventing the publication of anything injurious to the city's interests will not red-herring anybody away from the real issue of whether or not the people of the county of Peterboro are entitled to know how their representatives in Council arrive at their decisions.

Talking about "gross manipulation" on the part of City Council Chairmen will not succeed in beclouding the issue under discussion.

There is no "gross manipulation," no muzzling of the press at city committee meetings.

The people of this city who pay the taxes are able to read all about the debates and discussions of the committees.

The Examiner believes that county taxpayers are entitled to the same information about county committees.

It sometimes happens that a matter arises in the city committee premature publication of the details of which would be harmful.

It may be a case of negotiating with a manufacturer who is considering locating here, and it can readily be seen that were the outside world to learn of the matter through the press the chances of Peterboro's landing the plum might be seriously interfered with, if not killed altogether.

In such cases the press has always been ready to co-operate, and the citizens will agree with the wisdom of such a policy.

But that is a very different matter from barring the reporters from all committee meetings, and in so doing saying to the people, "Here are the reports of our committees; how we arrived at these decisions is nobody's business."

The Examiner believes that the closed doors policy is just what the Lindsay Post called it—"obsolete"—and that the people generally believe that it is their right to know more about the deliberations of their elected representatives.

And after all, County Councils and county officials are the servants of the people, not their masters, no matter how often that fact seems to be lost sight of by those "clad in a little brief authority," and it is the privilege of those who pay the piper to call the tune.

HIGHWAY THROUGH FRASER CANYON.

The already enormous revenue annually derived from the tourist trade has but whetted the appetite of Canada's Pacific Province. Having provided a splendid highway by which American tourists may easily, pleasingly and speedily travel to Vancouver, the British Columbia Government has embarked on the expenditure of millions of dollars to enable these tourists to reach in the same manner the grandly beautiful regions in the interior. British Columbia is capitalizing its scenery, making the wildest regions accessible, systematically and optimistically preparing for the day when the revenues from the tourist trade will make the huge sums already coming into the Province look trivial.

A party headed by Hon. Dr. Sutherland, Provincial Minister of Public Works, has just completed a tour on foot and by motor car over the new section of the Cariboo highway through the magnificent scenic district of the Fraser Valley Canyon. The Vancouver Province prints an illustrated article by a member of its staff describing the wonderful country which is being opened up to automobilists this summer and outlining some of the staggering obstacles which have had to be faced in the construction of the road. The new highway, he says, is "the final triumph of human ingenuity over a most forbidding expanse of rock and river."

"The Indians began it with a tortuous trail over crag and shingle, gulch and flood, to link the coast with the interior through miles of hurtling mountains. Traders and miners in their haste towards gain, straightened and strengthened the frail thread. Later came railroad men, many and powerful with shovel and shot, making a path for smoother steel, and now it is demanded that progress shall march on the softer tread of rubber, and that these fierce Titans of cloud and storm shall be entwined with a ribbon of artificial silk, over which their puny conquerors shall run to and fro.

"The Cariboo Highway, now nearing completion, is second only to the transcontinental railways in magnitude of effort and magnificence of vision, and there are places where it seems to exceed these both in idealism and construction.

"The ancient Indians took the least difficult way through the montane maze; two transcontinental railways took the best route for their grades; and when the Province demanded a highway of its engineers, to casual observers there was nowhere to put it. Objections, difficulties and 'impossibilities' were raised on every hand; thousands knew it 'could not be done,' and simple justice will require that these thousands shall now go over it, and that the engineers shall see them.

"A journey afoot through the 'impassable' miles from Yale to Lytton is an experience unrivalled. There is scenery unlimited, unsurpassable, indescribable, varying continually. There is a combination of history and endeavor that will stimulate the imagination, for the past life of the Province has flowed through this Fraser Canyon, and vestiges are strewn on the rocks for those who may read them."

The photographs show the highway cut out of the face of the mountain in places 1,170 feet above sea level and 500 feet above the line of the Canadian National Railway, in sections hewn out of solid rock, in one spot an eyelet punched through Tunnel Bluff said to be the first highway tunnel in the Dominion.

"The impression grows that the engineers had in mind the most nervous of drivers, and she or rather he—will have no tremors. The valley side of the road is lined with a parapet where rock is available, a wall two feet high and two feet thick—four cubic feet of solid comfort which no swerving can dislodge. Where there is no parapet there is a guard-log of fir, drift-bolted and interlocked, sure and comforting, and where the heights are giddiest the rails are highest. No grade is steeper than 8 per cent., and these climbs are never sudden; they rise and fall from two to four, from four to six, to make a rolling grade easy and smooth. The difficulties of construction are hidden by guards and are buried under smooth surfacing; they will never be felt by the autoist."

The writer thus concludes a fine description:

"It is a highway through the wilderness that has beauty beyond gold, the isolated are now linked, barriers of awe and destruction terrific are now to be parks and places of friendliness. Valleys are united and domains are joined in a gracious path through splendor."

It is interesting to note that Mr. A. P. Bowland of Eganville, Ont., has just completed a contract for the building of a part of this highway.—Ottawa Journal.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Our opinion is that we have enough rain in April without people trying to give picnics.

A brute is a man who brings company home for dinner without calling and letting his wife know.

A big bum seems to be a man who gets in the way while his wife is trying to spring-clean the house.

Polished floors will not be scratched if you will make the family go barefoot.

Autos and radios, you can't look at either and tell what distance you will get.

Sour cream will not be noticed in coffee if you throw it out the window.

As ye sow, so shall ye have to keep on working with it if you don't want to reap weeds.

Never be too pleasant at breakfast. It makes you eat so much you feel badly the rest of the day.

Do not be alarmed too easily after washing your ears. All noises naturally sound greater then.

Among the strange things in this life are bald barbers, skinny cooks and lazy married men.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

LETTERS TO BE PUBLISHED UNDER THIS HEAD MUST BE RECEIVED AT THE EXAMINER OFFICE ON THE DAY BEFORE THEY ARE DESIRED PUBLISHED.

Peterboro, Ont., April 14, 1926.
To the Editor of The Examiner:
Dear Sir:—

Will you allow me space in your valuable paper to draw to the attention of your readers the inconsistency of some people. I am referring to a letter, written by one who signs himself "North Monaghan". He is writing commending you on your stand on the question of reporters at County Council Committee Meetings, and says in part "some step should be taken to let us know what Councillors in favor of publicity for their doings, and what ones are eager to hide their actions from the people who elected them." Note he says "to hide their actions from the people" and yet he is afraid to sign his own name to his letter.

Yours truly,
H. B. RYE,
Reeve of North Monaghan.

"THE GAG OF SMALL OFFICIALDOM.

The Editor of The Examiner:
Dear sir:

"An Obsolete Policy" is right! For once we can admire something from Lindsay! The progressive councillors of Victoria County show us up. The muddy Scugog runs cleaner than the filtered Otonabee.

"The deliberations of the county body are reported in full," says The Lindsay Post.

And therein lies all the difference between the ratepayers having their eyes open and having them blindfold; between the right of free speech and the gag of small officialdom.

Peterborough county should demand and insist that it be informed of the manner in which the councillors are conducting the people's business.

Let's have some action from the councillors immediately.

Yours truly,
A. F. D.

DOESN'T WANT HAND-OUTS.

The Editor of The Examiner.
Dear sir:

In commending your agitation to open up County Council committee meetings to the public through the press, I wish to suggest as an alternative that you cease to report any proceedings. You have in the past given generous space to lengthy reports that were almost unintelligible to the layman. Reports full of "such" and "therefore" and "resolved" have no interest and convey nothing. These do not appear in your reports of City Council proceedings, and, of course, your recent editorials explain why. The County Council report is what one of your correspondents called a "hand-out." It is prepared, presumably, by someone on the Council or by the Clerk. It is smothered in words and as ambiguous as can be. And one almost wonders, in view of the revelations you have made, whether these reports are not designedly dense. Evidently the people are not to know their own business.

We do not want "hand-outs." It is the function of the press to keep us informed on such matters. If we are so foolish as to put into office men who refuse to allow the press to keep us informed, then it is time we were shown the error of our ways—and a lot of us are waking up.

And I suggest that on every occasion in future when you are refused the privilege of reporting you just mention the fact so we will see it, and make a recapitulation at the end of the year.

Yours truly,
C. W. LYNCH.

DEMANDS OPEN SESSION.

The Editor of The Examiner
Dear sir:

Your editorial of last night must have added to the mystification of many readers in connection with the star chamber methods of the County Council. Telling us a few days ago that the County Council barred reporters from its committee meetings, you now enlarge it to take in the Board of Education. How many more civic organizations similarly conduct their business, and ours, in secret? Does the Utilities Commission? I notice that nothing much is told us about that business unless there is an election coming. Does the Board of Health? Or the Charity Board? Or the City Trust? We do not read much from any of these except the Board of Health.

May I suggest that to clear up the situation you tell just what these bodies do about allowing reporters to be present.

I think that if it is shown that these bodies, or any of them, insist upon hiding their works behind meagre reports of committees, the people will have something to say when given the opportunity. May I also suggest that you ask every member of the County Council, when available, for his stand on this question? Star chamber methods are to be deprecated at any time in any organization, but for the elected representatives of the people to transact the people's business in secret is, despite the puerile arguments of Mr. Elliott, a travesty upon our open-minded Canadian way of doing business, and an insult to the electors.

Yours faithfully,
THOMAS MOLONEY.

THE PRESS REPRESENTED AT COMMITTEE MEETINGS OF BODIES CORPORATE

To The Examiner:

Dear Mr. Editor.—The Editor who penned the article in Tuesday's edition certainly displayed intense anxiety in order to press his views upon the reading public. But he displays poor judgment of the comprehensive ability of such readers from the fact (in the first place his comment appears three columns in advance of my letter in the same edition). Then again he purports to make insinuations with regard to the system carried out by the County Council, then states that referring to the City Council, "Often there might arise a question the public discussion of which might well be injurious to the County's interests." Then he states, "In such cases a word from the chairman to the reporter would be all that was necessary to prevent publication of the matter in question," and further states, "Such an arrangement has long been in force with the City Council committee meetings and there has never been a charge of broken faith on the part of the press."

Committee reports are read on the floor of the open Parliament or open Council, and there discussed from every angle generally clause by clause with the reporter present with no strings attached to him.

Every committee report of the County Council for January session last was procured by the reporter and published in The Examiner together with his report of open Council dealing with such reports and all other matters that came before the Council.

He insinuates that the taxpayer is deprived of some of the actions of the committee as a result of the system of the County Council. Which he claims is unfair. Then he purports to say that a chairman of a committee in the City Council can suppress any part he may desire, and that faith has never been broken.

It looks to me like upsetting his egg basket in his anxiety to obtain a seat of prominence in the Market Hall.

Such anxiety sometimes [illegible] the father of a pipe dream and I am candidly of the opinion that the Editor who attaches such gross manipulation to a respected chairman of a City Council committee should apologize.

Respectfully Yours,
ED. M. ELLIOTT,
Clerk, County.

WORLD COURT FOR[illegible] GIVEN NOMINATION

Col. F. E. Smith Is Republican Senate Nominee in Illinois.

CHICAGO, April 15. (Canadian Press).—Col. Frank E. Smith, for[illegible] of the world court, has been nominated by Illinois Republicans as their senatorial candidate over Senator Wm. B. McKinley, who voted for the measure in the Senate. He will be opposed in the November election by George E. Brennan, Democratic chieftain, and an avowed wet, who distanced his two rivals by an overwhelming vote.

Senator McKinley's vote for the United States adherence to the world court was made the chief issue of Colonel Smith's campaign and the latter's aides attributed his victory to his stand against the measure. It was the first opportunity the voters have had to register their feelings toward the proposal since anti-world court forces started their campaign to defeat the Senators who voted for adherence.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

BUSINESS FRIENDSHIP

When the hour comes that prevents my promoting the good of some business friend, then the time will have arrived when I can be of no further service to myself or to the world.

The word "friendship" means more than mutual esteem or human harmony.

So many people seem to regard friendship as a semi-fraternity that calls for frequent dues and many personal sacrifices. The friendship that is started for this end will end—and end much sooner than we calculate.

The friendship that represents a league or a confederacy of vice will wind up by owing room rent.

Business friendship is a serious matter—twice as great as kindness and several times more important than common courtesy. Business friendship of the lasting kind, of the permanent brand, means this:

Make your service necessary to some one.

This last thought is worth repeating in your mind frequently.

When you make your service necessary to some one, you will soon discover that there is a lot of satisfaction to yourself in such service—you will soon enlarge your circle of business acquaintances, and by this simple process of multiplying your efforts to earn the confidence of more business friends, you will just naturally grow bigger and better in every way.

NORGE STARTED FOR LENINGRAD AFTER MIDNIGHT

Amundsen's Dirigible Remained at Oslo Wednesday Afternoon and Evening.

FLEW OVER HOME

Norwegian Holiday in Honor of Country's Intrepid Polar Explorer.

OSLO, Norway, April 15. Canadian Press. — The dirigible Norge started for Leningrad at 1:10 o'clock this morning.

OSLO, Norway, April 15. — The dirigible Norge, of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar expedition made fast to her mooring mast here at 3.15 o'clock Wedsesday afternoon, after an eventful flight from Pulham, England. The Norge started on this journey shortly before midnight on Tuesday night.

The whole city was agog with excitement from early in the morning. The weather was beautiful somewhat misty in the morning, but clear by noon, with bright sunshine and without wind.

Over Amundsen's Home.

The Norge dipped her flag in greeting when passing Amundsen's house on the fjord, six miles from the capital. Every available place on the roofs was utilized as a point of vantage to atch the great ship coming in, King Haakon made observations from the windows of the palace, while the members of parliament —Premier Lykke, former premier Mowinckel and other prominent officials—were on the roof of the Storting. It was a holiday for the school children, while thousands of automobiles stood in long files on the roads leading to the landing place.

Royal guardsmen were ready to assist in the landing under the direction of Italian air officers and engineers, while a squadron of cavalry kept the spectators at a safe distance.

Saluted the King.

At 1.30 o'clock the Norge came soaring over the landing field, accompanied by three naval airplanes, which circled the huge ship like gulls. The dirigible turned and faced the palace, saluting the king, then flew thrice over the capital for the purpose of geting low enough for mooring. Without difficul., the Norge tied up to the mooring mast and a welcome was extended by War Secretary Wefring.

Immediately the engineers got busy refilling with hydrogen from the big tanks.

The next stop of the Norge will be Leningrad. The start was scheduled for eight o'cloock last night, but postponement became necessary.

TRAMP ASSAULTED REABORO FARMER

R. J. Thorn Struck With Heavy Stick By Stranger.

LINDSAY, April 15.—Robert J. Thorn, a well-known resident of Reaboro, was the victim of a dastardly assault on his farm on Tuesday night. Mr. Thorn was about to enter the gate of his farm when a man approached him and struck him on the head with a stick. He attempted to close in on his assailant, who beat a hasty retreat. The blow left its mark on Mr. Thorn's head, but the injury is not serious. He came to Lindsay yesterday afternoon and reported the affair to Provincial Officer Storey.

Mr. Thorn's assailant is described as a young man of medium height and rather stout. The stick he used in the assault is believed to be part of an oar, and is of sufficient weight to cause serious injury. The man is believed to be one of a number of tramps who are sleeping in barns and causing farmers considerable annoyance.

SHOT IN FOOT WHILE HUNTING

Norham Man Sustains Painful Injury by Accident.

NORHAM NEWS

NOHAM, April 15.—Gerald McAlister had the misfortune on Monday while out hunting to accidently discharge his gun, the bullet passing through one of his feet. When about two miles from home Mr. McAlister met a neighbor and as he stopped to chat a moment he rested the barrel of the gun upon the toe of his boot. Somehow it was discharged, resulting in a bad wound to his foot.

At a Trustee meeting held in the church hall, on Monday evening, Lorne Evans and Samuel Gummer were appointed to engage a caretaker for the church. Norman Gummer was appointed to secure a supply of wood and Lorne Evans, Oscar Laver, Clarence Brenton and David Evans were appointed to look into the matter of renovating the church. It was decided to sell half the lamps formerly used in the church.

The box social held in the hall on Wednesday was well patronized. There was a good program of music, singing and recitations given by the members of the Sunday school. Arthur Meneilley acted as auctioneer. The highest price paid for a box was $3.75.

An At Home was given by Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Evans, on Friday evening, and attended by the immediate relatives and a few invited guests in honor of the birthday of Mr. George Evans. The table was heavily laden with good things, the central attraction being a beautiful birthday cake decorated with candles, was spread in the dining room, which glowed with radiant hues reflected from the electric bulbs.

Mr. Evans was born in Warkworth, 69 years ago and has spent his whole life within a few miles of his birthplace. He has been a life long Conservative and Methodist and is at present a member and trustee of the Norham United church. Since his boyhood he has rendered valuable service to the church, being for fifteen years recording secretary of Norham circuit and relinquished that task about three years ago on account of ill health.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans (nee Ella Laver), observed the 40th anniversary of their marriage in January, 1925, at the home of their son-in-law, Fred Patt, upon which occasion, John Wesley Platt, the second of their two grandchildren, was baptized.

SMUGGLERS AND THIEVES WORK TOGETHER AGAINST BUSINESS

Jewelers and Manufacturers Supplement Statements To Customs Committee.

BRIEF SESSION.

OTTAWA, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Thieves and smugglers work together to compete with Canadian wholesalers and manufacturers of wearing apparel. Prices which preclude any probability that Customs duties have been paid, are quoted up and down Canada by travellers who really represent the smugglers of stolen goods, and legitimate dealers are deprived of a large part of their potential business.

This was the evidence which was given to the Customs Probe Committee yesterday. A succession of businessmen from different parts of Canada corroborated the testimony given Tuesday, that makers and wholesalers of clothing, from baby's rompers to evening gowns, were being steadily forced to the wall by the unfair competition of goods which frequently were stolen or made by prison labor in the United States before being smuggled into Canada.

The loss to the Canadian treasury through the non-payment of duty, the loss in wages to Canadians deprived of employment, and the menace to legitimate business in Canada through price cutting were emphasized by the witnesses. A representative of Labor, W. Bush, of the Garment Workers, promised co-operation to put an end to the smuggling.

The question of working clothes prison-made in the United States and smuggled into Canada in the teeth of the prohibition of prison products came up again. Mr. W. Bush said that such goods have been smuggled for years through Rock Island.

"I think they are all in it there," added Mr. Bush. He said the garment workers were ready to cooperate with the Government and with manufacturers to stamp out this smuggling.

Yesterday's sitting of the committee was short, most of the quota of witnesses confining themselves to prepared and written statements tabled in the committee.

Jewellers' Complaint.

Walter J. Barr, president of the Goldsmiths Company, and representing the wholesale jewellers, told the committee that jewellery smugglers took down into the United States diamonds and Swiss wrist watch movements and brought back jewellery. There was also smuggling by visitors who went abroad.

"The extent to which the jewellery trade of Canada has suffered from the illicit importation of goods is very difficult to estimate," he stated, "but that it has suffered severely has been brought home very clearly to our Canadian manufacturers. It has been their common experience to find the market flooded with merchandise offered at a price with which they have been utterly unable to compete, while the few cases that have been brought to light indicate that the smuggling of jewellery and allied lines has been a large and lucrative business.

"We desire that offenders be treated in a manner that would give full publicity to their actions and that private or secret settlements should not be permitted. We are furthermore of the opinion that no proportion of the fine should be paid as a reward or fee to the official detecting the crime. We consider that it is not in the public interest that this should be done, but that it is in every way detrimental to the proper enforcement of the law."

He cited instances in which self-confessed smugglers had been allowed to go unpunished, after surrendering their contraband. He urged greater vigilance in scrutinizing the luggage of persons returning from abroad.

Joseph A. Caron, of Montreal, representing the Canadian Jewelers' Association, and himself a manufacturer of jewelery, declared that his travellers frequently returned stating that their goods were being undersold to the extent of from 35 to 50 per cent. Unset rings and brooches were being smuggled in large quantities. He would say that the jewellery business had been affected by smuggling to the extent of at least one-third. The smuggling was both commercial and personal, the first being the worst.

"Allowing a man to pay a fine and get out of his trouble," said the witness, "is probably the cause of so many being in the business. I would suggest imprisonment and publicity as a deterrent."

"You know that there is a law already providing for imprisonment where goods smuggled exceed in value $200?" asked Mr. Bennett. "Yes, but we know of no instance where it has been enforced," replied the witness.

2,000 RESIDENTS OF HULL NEGLECTED TO REGISTER FOR PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

Carelessness or Lack of Interest Will Cause Their Disfranchisement, City Clerk States—Population Increases 1,000.

HULL, Que., April 15 (Canadian Press).—Carelessness or lack of interest will cause 2,000 or more residents of this city to be disenfranchised as far as their right to vote at the next Quebec Provincial election is concerned, according to a statement made by City Clerk Honore Boulay.

The electoral roll to be used in the next Provincial election was deposited in January and remained accessible until April 6, when according to law it had to be closed and forwarded to Quebec. During the three months, only thirteen persons came forward to be registered on the roll. During the past two years the population of Hull has increased by over one thousand, and there are many who have attained the right to vote who did not take advantage of the opportunity to register.

Last night there are gloomy predictions as to what may happen May 1 unless the Government's efforts at mediation are successful.

The Prime Minister will have another conference with the owners and miners today in an effort to settle the differences over the proposed wage reduction.

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR INEVITABLE

Powers May Clash Over Manchurian Control.

LONDON, April 15.—The Evening News yesterday printed an interview with Marshall Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, saying that a Russo-Japanese war for control of Manchuria is "perhaps inevitable."

"Anyhow," Chang is quoted as saying, "Bolshevism cannot be tolerated in Manchuria."

Chang said he intended drawing his troops northward to the great wall in order to devote himself entirely to Manchurian affairs.

The interview printed by the News was obtained in Mukden, Manchuria.

Some of Chang's troops now are engaged in laying siege to Pekin. Chang is rated as a pro-Japanese leader whose actions largely depend upon the desires of Tokio.

That DreamHouse is Finished at last!

THE furniture is being moved in at last and the home is now ready for the young couple who will breathe into it something of their own character.

They must take their world as they find it; not so their home. That is a world for their modelling that can be made to assume much of their own gladness of spirit.

What a big part paint and varnish play throughout the years in maintaining that home; more so to-day than ever before, now it has been discovered what beautiful indoor decorating may be carried out with their use. More light, color, health, protection and happiness are, literally, spread with the paint brush in modern homes.

Here again the Paint and Varnish industry contributes towards the greater development of other industries, as has been pointed out in connection with Canada's mines and chemicals, her agriculture, timber, labour and architecture. This time it contributes its share to that great industry of each one of us—healthful, happy living.

A FINE ADDRESS.

Evangelist Harold Harper, a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, spoke last night in the Gospel Hall to a fair audience on "Luke 2," dealing with Simeon and his announcement concerning the "Child Jesus."

Mr. Harper said the reason Simeon got such a profound secret revealed to him was that his ear was "opened." The reason there are so many spoon-fed Christians to-day is that their spiritual ears are plugged up with things going on around them, and unless they are opened to the Divine Spirit they will remain in weakness and no testimony for God.

Mr. Harper gave many useful and helpful proofs of Divine authorship of the Gospel narratives, and he will continue to-night and to-morrow night.

RUSSIA OFFERS TO TREAT WITH BORDER NATIONS

Overtures Made To Baltic States For Mutual Guarantees.

AS WITH TURKEY.

Non-Aggression Pledges and Strict Neutrality Are Included.

GENEVA, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Russia has again shifted her programme of propaganda from the Orient to Eastern Europe, according to information received by the League of Nations intelligence agencies. Russia has made definite offers for mutual security to Finland, the correspondent is informed. These offers are similar to the treaties negotiated between Soviet Foreign Minister Tchitcherin and Foreign Minister Tewfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey.

Russia has also made overtures to Latavia, Esthonia and Lithuania, and negotiations with Poland are under consideration.

At least one Baltic state has consulted the League regarding the proferred Russian treaties. The emissary of this country, declared M. Tchitcherin's offer is trilatoral. The first part includes non-aggression pledges; the second provides for strict neutrality and refraining from political, economic or military alliances with powers hostile to either party. The third feature creates concilation boards to deal with future disagreements which might lead to war.

Drop In Dome Checked Market Generally Weak

TORONTO, April 15 (Canadian Press)—The market remained weak in the Standard Mining Exchange this afternoon, but the losses were not heavy, most outstanding being those of McIntyre and Noranda. Noranda declined 50 at 15.00 and McIntyre 40 at 24.50. Dome's sensational decline was checked, it closing the morning ten cents higher at 13.30. Vipond lost four at 159, Teck Hughes two at 318 and Hollinger 15 at 18.10.

Sharp Rise At Liverpool Affects Chicago Markets

CHICAGO, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Owing largely to a sharp advance in Liverpool quotations, all deliveries of wheat here advanced to-day to the highest level yet in the present movement. Chicago opening prices, 3-4c to 2½c higher, May (new) 1.65½ to 1.66¼, and July 1.39 3-4 to 1.40, were followed by something of a re-action, but then by fresh upturns.

Corn rose with wheat, opening 1-8 to 5-8c up, May 73¼ to 73 3-8. The market eased a little, and then scored decided gains all around.

Better weather for seeding held the oats market down. Prices started unchanged to ¼c higher, May 42 to 42 1-8, and held near to the initial limit.

Provisions were a little easier, notwithstanding an upturn in hog values.

INCOME TAX REDUCED

ian National in the fiscal year limited to $10,000,000 advanced in cash. No guarantee given of floating indebtedness incurred. The $10,000,000 charged to the net debt of the Dominion as a non-active asset.

The Railway Situation

"In the budget speech last session, I announced assistance to the railways, during the fiscal year 1924-25, to the extent of $74,000,000. Exclusive of an issue of bonds for refunding purposes, this $74,000,000 was made up of cash advances from the government $10,000,000, bond issues guaranteed $64,000,000. In the year just closed, financial assistance to the railways has been limited to $10,000,000 advanced by the government in cash from our revenues. No guarantees have been given or floating indebtedness incurred. This situation is attributable partly to substantial increase in earnings and partly to reductions in the purchase of materials and supplies and by the use of working capital. In addition there were unspent balances of guaranteed bond issues of previous years amounting to $2,700,000 odd which have been utilized.

The advance of $10,000,000 has been charged to the net debt of the Dominion as a non-active asset, in the same way as all railway cash loans have been treated. This advance covers the loss of $7,400,600 referred to and leaves $2,600,000 for capital purposes. It will therefore be seen that the public accounts for the year will include not only all Government expenditures but also the total loss of the railways, and an amount of $2,600,000 available for railway capital purposes, over and above which no further financial assistance was given.

Big Earnings Improvement

Our total payments in respect of these railway corporations now reach $601,000,000 actual cash outlay charged to our National Debt. This is exclusive of accumulated interest charges, as well as the capital cost of the original Canadian Government Railways. A large part of this sum represents provision for losses incurred adding no value to the road. A very substantial amount, however, has been devoted to improvements in the road and equipment, which have materially enhanced the value of the lines. The improvement of $43,000,000 in earnings within a period of four years speaks for itself.

One estimate of the value of the Government's investment in the Canadian National Railways exclusive of the Canadian Government Railways is $375,000,000. This figure is arrived at after eliminating deficits and such over-valuations and inflations as were established on the occasion of the royal commission investigation of 1917 and subsequent investigation proceedings.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food but not until we perfected "ironized yeast" —which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

LAKEFIELD COUPLE ENTERTAIN ON 25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne Hosts To Nearly Hundred Guests.

LAKEFIELD EVENTS.

LAKEFIELD, April 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Payne entertained between seventy-five and one hundred of their friends and relatives on Saturday evening, the occasion being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The house was decorated very tastefully, green and white being the color scheme. There were also quantities of potted plants and spring flowers, the effect being particularly attractive. Mrs. Payne, who wore a very handsome gown of black silk crepe and black cut velvet, received her guests in her hospitable manner, making every one feel at home. She was assisted by a number of young girls who devoted themselves to the welfare of the guests.

The evening was spent in music, games and conversation, with several novel contests. On a peanut contest, Mrs. S. S. Spence and Mr. Percy Spence won the prizes after a run contest with more than thirty other couples.

A unique feature of the evening was that two other couples present also celebrated their wedding anniversaries on the same night. Mr. and Mrs. David Payne of Warsaw were married the same day as Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne, and by the same minister, Rev. Mr. Fusee, of Warsaw. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frankish of Douro, were married eighteen years on Saturday, so that the party was really a triple celebration and was marked by two wedding cakes (one for Mr. and Mrs. D. Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Frankish and the other for Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Payne).

The dining table was centred by a bride's cake of generous proportions, over which hung a huge bridal bell, suggestive of the happy occasion.

The fact of its being a silver wedding was evidenced by the nature of the gifts which were numerous and very handsome and included some very valuable pieces.

During the evening three dainty little girls passed delicious candy, wearing bandeaux of silver and Easter lilies. Refreshments were served by a bevy of pretty young girls (nieces and cousins of Mr. and Mrs. Payne), all wearing fetching little daisy aprons and daisy caps to match. After the bountiful repast had been partaken of and the three brides and grooms showered with confetti by the young folks, Mr. J. H. Payne made a brief speech, thanking their friends for their good wishes and their beautiful gifts and assuring them of the appreciation of Mrs. Payne and himself. Mr. David Payne nad Mr. Charles Frankish also said a few words of thanks for the good wishes tendered them. The celebration was really a re-union of many old friends and included practically all ages, who united harmoniously for a happy evening which will long be remembered by all priviledged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawless.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawless celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday and received congratulations and best wishes from many friends. Owing to Mrs. Lawless' recent illness, there was no elaborate celebration, but they attended Mass in St. Paul's Church in the morning and a few intimate friends were invited in later. Good wishes for complete restoration to health and many years of continued happiness were extended by a large circle of friends.

The meeting adjourned.

Two Fire Alarms.

The Fire Brigade responded to two calls on Sunday for chimney fires, the first was at William Watson's, and was not serious, and occurred about 9 a.m. the second at 6.30 p.m., at the residence of Mr. J. F. Lillecrap was more serious and there was some slight damage to two of the rooms in the upper floor. Prompt measures saved what might have been a serious blaze.

Buried on Friday.

The funeral of William George Allan Irwin took place on Friday afternoon from Hunter and Webster's undertaking rooms and was attended by a number of friends of the deceased. As the cortege drove slowly down Queen St., the street was lined with people who quietly paid a tribute of respect to the young man, whose tragic death had cast a gloom over the entire community. Interrment was made in the Lakefield Cemetery.

Just one week previously a similar scene was witnessed when the funeral of Guido de Marsimo passed through the streets on its way to St. Mary's cemetery, Young's Point, where he was buried. Two young men's lives cut short in such a tragic manner in such a short space of time was a record for this entire district and one we hope will not be repeated.

Male Voice Choir.

The second visit of the Male Voice Choir of Peterboro on April 27th is a musical treat in store for the music lovers of the village. It is to be hoped that these visits will become annual events.

Pan Cake Social.

The members of the Woolen Committee of the Ladies' Aid of the Regent St. Church held a successful Pan Cake Social and Concert on Thursday evening in the basement of the church.

After the Social, at which the C.G.I.T. girls served the guests, a splendid programme was rendered as follows:—

Hymn—"Oh God, Our Help In Ages Past."
Prayer.
Piano Solo—Miss Phyllis Charlton.
Duet—Miss Eva and Master Jack Hendren.
Recitation—Miss Mildred Root.
Solo—Mrs. McMillan.
Address—Rev. J. E. Grant.
Recitation—Miss Ada Riel.
Trio—Mesdames F. H. Richardson, H. Girvin and D. H. McMillan.
Recitation—Miss Janet Charlton.

The recitation given by Miss Ada Riel was entitled "Spring" and was of her own composition.

The ladies of the committee who arranged this successful function are: Mrs. John Charlton (convenor), Mrs. Robert Bullock, Mrs. Gordon Scriver, Mrs. Frank Darling, Mrs. H. Ingrram, Mrs. Robert Little and Mrs. Murphy Mrs. G. A. Melbourne assisted the committee.

The "King of Timbuctoo," a musical farce will be one of the events of next week and will be put on in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday, April 20th by the Lakefield Cheerios.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. are holding an afternoon tea and Sale of Cooking in St. John's School Room on Saturday afternoon of this week.

Miss Loretta Gibson entertained about forty of the younger set at her home on Bridge St. on Friday evening when a delightful evening was spent.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Cox entertained a number of friends at afternoon tea on Saturday afternoon at the Rectory.

The roads in the village and country are in very bad condition, particularly in the country. In the village the roads are fairly bare of snow except on the side streets, but the country roads are very bad, snow is four feet deep in some places. This has caused delay in bringing in maple syrup. The season is in full swing and the farmers who are lucky enough to own a sugar bush are very busy. Most of the local supply comes from Dummer and is of excellent flavor and quality.

The small boy is busy with marbles and his little sister has her skipping rope which are two certain signs that spring is here and, combined with discordant notes of the crow makes the his lawn mower sharpened.

DRURY CRITICIZES FERGUSON POLICIES

Redistribution and Holding of Portfolios Attacked By Ex-Premier.

LIQUOR QUESTION.

TORONTO, April 14 (Canadian Press)—The stand of the Ontario Progressive party is that the will of the people must prevail in the liquor question and every other question, declared E. C. Drury, former Premier of Ontario, addressing the first annual convention of the Ontario Progressive Party which opened here yesterday.

A lengthy and detailed criticism of the policies and administration of Premier G. Howard Ferguson was made by Mr. Drury. He declared that the redistribution scheme was a "gerrymander" by which the smaller ridings in the province were curtailed so that the Toronto ridings might be enlarged, and that Toronto was cut up into electoral districts in such a way as to give the "wet" foreign element in each district a preponderance over the "drys." Premier Ferguson's handling of three portfolios was also objected to.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ARTHUR PRIMEAU

(Cobourg World)

Good Friday was a very sad day in two homes, in that of Mr. Arthur Primeau, Peterborough, where the passing of a much loved wife, and a loving mother is mourned with sadness unspeakable, and in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bowen, Cobourg, where the same deep sense of loss and loneliness is felt because a dearly beloved daughter has been called away. But not alone in these family circles is her loss sadly felt, for in this town where her childhood and girlhood were spent, Mrs. Primeau had very many friends by whom she was highly esteemed and well beloved. In family, in social, and in church circles, a deep sense of loneliness is felt, because her loved presence is no longer there.

Mary Albina Bowen was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bowen, Cobourg. Almost eight-and-a-half years ago she was married to Mr. Arthur Primeau, and went to Peterborough to make her home. There her many graces of heart and character drew around her warm friends. Three years ago Mrs. Primeau had an operation for goitre from which she never quite regained her strength. She was up and around as usual until two weeks ago, when she became seriously ill and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment. She continued to grow weaker, until her death on Good Friday.

Her remains were brought to the home of her parents at Cobourg, and the funeral took place from there on Monday morning at eight o'clock to St. Michael's Church. It was largely attended. The interment was in the family plot in St Michael's cemetery.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Primeau leaves four little children, Anne Marie, Robert, Betty and Bernice, bereaved of the kindly care of a loving mother. She ois survived also by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bowen, six brothers, James of Peterborough; Bryson of Saskatoon; Ernest and Stephen of Montreal; Hilary of Woodstock; and Clement at home; and by one sister, Miss Lena Bowen, at home. With all very much sympathy is felt.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral, were deceased's sister-in-law, Mrs. James Bowen, Peterborough; Mr. Bowen being unfortunately too ill to come; Mrs. John Primeau Sr., Miss Grace Primeau, Peterborough; Mr. Alex. Primeau, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Geraghty, Peterborough; Miss Jackman, Toronto.

The pall-bearers were the late Mrs. Primeau's three brothers, Stephen and Ernest Bowen of Montreal and Clement of Cobourg; and Charles, Jack and Joseph Primeau, Peterborough.

ASK TRUNK ROAD FOR NORTHLAND

Deputation Wants Huntsville-North Bay Road Improved.

TO GET CONSIDERATION

TORONTO, April 15. (Canadian Press).—Consideration of their request was promised by Premier G. H. Ferguson to a large deputation from the Parry Sound and Muskoka districts, who urged construction of a trunk road from Severn to North Bay. The deputation was headed by George Ecclestone, M.L.A. for Muskoka, and George Harcourt M.L.A. for Parry Sound, and they declared that the road from Huntsville to North Bay should be widened and made into a trunk road, as it was very narrow in places and was widely used. The Premier promised that the work would be done if possible.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

SPRING NOVELTIES

By HEDDA HOYT

(Writen for t he United Press)

NEW YORK, April 15 (United Press) —The latest handbag in Paris is called the "cloche." It bears no resemblance to the flat cloche hat since it is melon-shaped and is almost as long as the new short umbrellas. It narrows toward either end having gores extending lengthwise from top to bottom which form the melon effect. Round ring handles finish the top while a silk tassel is used at the bottom. All of the bright new shades of suede are used to make this bag popular.

Over the Easter holiday we saw many evening shawls of Spanish derivation made of plain silk with hand-painted designs. The long fringe which bordered the square matched the background. One model with an orange background and orange fringe had huge black storks painted at the center back and at the sides. Another gray model worn by a young girl was painted in three different shades of orchid in floral design. These lovely shawls are not nearly as heavy as the embroidered Spanish shawls and it is predicted that Spring and Summer will see much of them.

Dagger-shaped pins are being worn on hats this season. They are made of dull metal or of rhinestones and are stabbed through the hat wherever the draped effect is required. Rhinestone monograms are also frequently used as hat ornaments. Animals, birds, etc., of rhinestones are not used as generously as these more tailored effects.

Stockings studded with brilliants to form an ankle bracelet effect are sold in several smart shops. The brilliants are set into the stocking in the same manner that they are studded into dress material. Since one ankle should be without the bracelet effect. One buys a pair of brilliant-studded stockings and a pair of matching plain stockings and wears one of each set at a time.

Earringed-hats are the latest things for evening wear. Brilliants set in huge loops or pendants are sewed at the sides of the small hat to give the earring effect. A large flat brimmed hat has but one huge earring at the left side giving the Italian vendor idea.

Northern Lights Interfere With Telegraph Messages

NEW YORK, April 15 (Canadian Press).—The aurora borealis, which interfered with telegraph communication to an unusual extent even into the far south last January, made itself felt again last night in New England and Northern New York State. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies, as well as the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, reported considerable interference on their lines.

A French Cape Shirrs Its Shoulders Below a Yoke

BUTTERICK 6815

HAVE you a small daughter, a purse with many demands on it and a day that should be about eight hours longer? Then consider the cape for Betty's Spring outfit. It is very smart in light-weight flannel so that it makes an inexpensive wrap. It is straight—an easy and direct cut if your time and skill are limited. It doesn't have to be lined if you want to make it simply and inexpensively. Taffeta makes a charming "best" cape in a light color if it is for parties or dancing-school. Soft shantung would make a smart ensemble with a frock to match.

The Examiner does not handle these patterns.

DUTY ON PAPER TO BE IMPOSED

Policy Definitely Decided By the British Government.

16 2-3 P.C. TARIFF.

LONDON, April 15. Canadian Press Cable. — The Baldwin government has definitely decided to ask Parliament to authorize the imposition of a duty of 16 2-3 per cent. on packing and wrapping paper, according to a statement made yesterday by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, to a deputation of British manufacturers who waited on him protesting against the proposed tariff.

The deputation represented 14 different industries.

Duty on wrapping paper was recommended by the board of trade committee under the safeguarding of industries act in December, 1925, but the matter was deferred by the government. On that occasion the duty proposed was 17½ per cent. ad valorem, this to be extended to wrapping paper in manufactured articles, when ever the cost of such paper exceeded 15 per cent. of the value of the article of which it was a componet.

It was stated at th: time that if the imperial pereference of 33 1-3 per cent. were given to the Canadian product as expected, the proposed duty would result in considerable advantage to Canadian paper manufacturers competing with Scandinavia and the United States.

COMFORTABLE CHAIRS — By Annette Bradshaw

THESE CHAIRS ARE PARTICULARLY SUITED FOR LIVING ROOM AND BOUDOIR

What a relief to call on a friend and find that you actually have a comfortable chair to sit in! I always utter a mental prayer of thanksgiving on entering a room to find that the chairs are chosen with an eye to the comfort and wel-being of the inmates of the house, rather than with a view to a beautiful decorative effect. Mind you I'm not saying that a very lovely, high backed chair is out of the question entirely, but the best place for a chair of this type is to ornament a hall—where there is one.

It's so easy to purchase a chair that will be a joy to look at and also a comfort to the one who sinks into its comfortable depths to enjoy a book or a chat, or just to rest.

Usually one finds a miscellaneous collection of chairs in a living room, which, while useful and mostly ornamenta, are far from comfortable.

The illustration above gives three chairs of various types which may be used in the living room, or boudoir.

At the left is a Colonial wing chair, which will be found extremely comfortable and attractive in a living room.

In the centre is a boudoir chair covered in glazed chintz, which, of course, matches perfectly the hangings of the room.

At the right is a deep, comfortable arm chair, with an extra stool upholstered to match the chair. Where one hasn't room for a chaise lounge, this will be found practical and useful, as the stool being of the same heighth as the chair can be utilized in an emergency as a bench.

Mohair, velour, tapestry or cretonne may be selected as coverings, but no matter what the covering, be sure the shape is comfy. And, too, take care that you don't have a heterogeneous collection of colors. Make everything conform to the general scheme—and you will be blessed by your family and friends for the comfort of your home.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

DESPAIR

"Of course I know now, Julie," said Mamie, somewhat hysterically, "that both these notes were very 'high-hat,' but I did not know as much about the life of 'a poor woiking goil' as I do now.

"Sometimes I think that it is all the bunk to try to keep straight.

"Here I am all broken up because tonight at the restaurant I saw Buddy Tremaine, well dressed among charming people, eating the most expensive viands on the menu.

"I thought to myself, if I had not been so grand and virtuous, I might have been for the last two years in all places where Buddy Tremaine could be found. I could be reveling in love and luxury.

"Beside all that I might be almost ready for grand opera instead of without hope of ever taking another voice lesson."

Mamie could not speak for paroxysms of sobs.

I let her cry for a while and then she raised her tear-stained face to me and said:

"Julia, do you think it's worth it? Up to date I've not found any great reward in being strictly virtuous."

I, Julia Dean, sat there stunned. For the first time in my life I realized the temptations a girl had to face. I was almost sure I would not have come through Mamie's unscathed.

Poor, poor Mamie!

I truly wondered if she were not right when she said that she had made a great sacrifice and had not even got out of it the satisfaction of feeling that she had made herself a martyr to a particularly good cause.

"What am I now, Julie?" she asked despairingly.

"I'm just a hat-girl in the Beaux Arts Restaurant in Chicago. Who cares what I am or who I am? Who cares, beside myself, whether I am virtuous or not? I will probably hold this position until I grow old and ugly and then what is there for me for the rest of my life?

"Every night I see women come into the restaurant, eat the finest food, laughing and seemingly happy. They are covered with jewels, and the men and yet I know in my heart that these women are not what the world calls 'good.'

"I'm getting sick of that word 'good.' I am sure if I had not run away from New York and come out here to Chicago, I could have held Buddy Tremaine's love and some day I could have given to the world a glorious voice and added to the pleasure of thousands of music lovers."

LET HER HANG!

Once upon a time when knighthood was in flower, the Queen of Spain fell from her horse and hung by one foot in the stirrup, with her prancing steed ready to bolt for the open spaces any moment. And there she had to hang, in the presence of her entire retinue, because the job of assisting the queen on or off her horse was that of the Grand Equerry, and he was away in the fields. But an innocent yokel, who wotted not the divinity that doth hedge a queen, ran to the assistance of the lady. For his temerity in breaking the laws of court he was banished.

RINGS THEN AND NOW!

In olden times a betrothed couple broke pieces of raw gold or silver, each keeping half, as symbol of their troth.

This year's wedding rings feature platinum circlets set with square-cut diamonds. Engagement rings continue to use platinum, and the stones are set high.

HAT STYLES

A famous architect once wrote a ponderous tome upon the relation of a nation's hats and a nation's homes. He pointed out that the very word "hat" evolved from the word "hut" which they first resembled. The Hawaiian hat is like Hawaii's grass huts. The turbans of Eastern church dignitaries like the mosque domes of the east.

And by the same token, the compact, tiny, close-fitting little turbans of America, 1926, are modeled after the compact efficiency suites with every jot and tittle of space considered and conserved!

YOU MUST READ IT!

If you're a parent, what do you know about your own child? I am about to quote from a book which is not on the spring book list. Not a new book, but one of the very best books in years—Christopher Morley's "Thunder on the Left."

This book abounds with the usual parent who, when confronted by his child's questing for knowledge, says, "You keep still and eat your beans." George is the husband of the female parent who is prone to chant the bean-and-keep-still ukase.

"One evening he passed gently by the children's door about midnight and heard a quiet little cough. Janet was awake. That small sound suddenly, appallingly, reminded him that these poor creatures too were human. She must be lying there, thinking. What does a child think, alone at night? He went in, in the darkness, put his arms round the surprised child, and whispered encouragements to her."

LESS OPTIMISM ABOUT MOROCCO

Believd Natives Will Insist on Independence For Riff.

SCENE SHIFTED.

PARIS, April 15 — (Canadian Press).—Latest reports from Morocco have cast somewhat of a shadow over the optimism which has prevailed concerning the coming peace negotiations at Oudjda.

It was strongly insisted in quarters closely in touch with native Moroccan sources that the delegates of the tribesmen will represent Abd el Krim as the "Pretender," and that they will insist on Riffian independence. In official circles, however, it was maintained that the tribes will be represented independently of Krim.

The scene of action in the peace negotiations will shift for a couple of days to Madrid, where Henri Ponsot, one of the French delegates, will confer with the Spanish authorities before going to Oudjda. It is affirmed in political circles that the French delegates have been instructed to obtain peace if possible on any terms that Spain will agree to.

PULLMAN DERAILED.

Five Leave Track Just as as Express Pulls Into Station.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 15. — Canadian Press. — Five Pullman cars of the Chicago-Toronto express, a Lehigh Valley train, were derailed here last night, but all the passengers were reported to have escaped injury.

The accident happened within 200 yards of the station, when the train was moving slowly.

SENATE ADJOURNS.

Will Meet Again on May 4 —No Legislation Ready.

OTTAWA, April 15 (Canadian Press).—The Senate will adjourn today until May 4. Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government leader, in giving notice of adjournment, expressed the belief that there would be no legislation from the Commons until May 4. He hoped, however, the Senate would receive legislation on that date, as he felt a desire that Parliament should prorogue before July 1.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

DENTAL HEALTH PILLARS

'Sugar and spice and everything nice' may be what little girls are made of, but certainly such a diet would never build strong, healthy little girls and boys.

With the child properly started on the road to health, through the mother's careful dietary habits, there must be no slackening in this regard, if it is to continue safely along the way.

Proper diet from the nursing period up through adolescence has much to do with teeth and health. It is not that nutrition plays the chief role in the formation of healthy tooth tissues or in their early degeneration and decay. But hand in hand with this must go the maintenance of cleanliness through training the child in the best and most thorough mouth hygiene.

The notion that the deciduous teeth being replaced by successors can therefore be allowed to go without the care necessary to keep them sound and comfortable is most mischievous. Too early loss of these little teeth from any cause, leads to disturbances of the permanent dentition with consequent general disorders.

It would be better for the young child not to know the taste of sweets too soon, thereby avoiding their craving at this early age when they may be harmful both to the teeth and body health. Plain wholesome foods should be the rule including plenty of milk which, because it is both rich in nutrient qualities and easily assimilated, is the perfect food for the young child.

Parents should be reminded too, that the child should be brought to the dentist at about three years of age and thereafter at stated intervals. Preferably the first visit should be made before there are any cavities in order to establish the confidence of the young child in these services. Much of the dread of dental treatment, with its consequent neglect of mouth conditions among adults has arisen through recollections of a painful first visit during the tender years.

It may be further noted that the susceptibility to tooth decay is greatest in youth, most cavities appearing before the twenty-fifth year, and that the period of adolescence and between the twelfth and sixteenth years, marks the high-water mark of dental decay—due to the rapid physical changes demanding an increased calcium supply present in the diet.

Diet, mouth hygiene and systematic dental examinations are the three pillars of dental health.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

CORINNE GRIFFITH Charming Film Star Secret of her beautiful hair

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensie, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER 14—THE TWINS IN THE BUTCHER SHOP

Nancy and Nick were so busy getting Mister Tingaling out of the sausage machine (into which he had fainted when the three Gazookumses jumped out of the window) that they never noticed the things the little rascals had left behind.

It was Mister Tingaling who saw them first.

The minute they lifted the little fairyman out of the sausage machine and stood him on his feet, he saw them.

"Oh look!" he cried, his eyes as round as his hat. "Looky there! Whoop—eee! Hurrah!"

There on the floor lay the big pocketbook, the rent-book and the lead pencil as nice as you please.

Nancy was the first to run and open the pocketbook.

"It's empty!" she cried. "The Gazookumses stole the money."

"Where's the butcher?" asked Nick looking around.

"Here," said a strangling voice up near the ceiling.

And as sure as I am writing on paper, there hung the real butcher on a hook like a piece of beef or pork.

"Oh, you poor thing!" cried Nancy. "Get the ladder, Nick."

Nick went to the cellar and got the ladder, and Nancy got a big sharp knife, and they got the butcher down.

But there wasn't enough left of his coat to make a patch-work quilt or a hooked rug.

"Won't you tell us your story?" asked Nick.

"Story!" shouted Mister Tingaling. "What is this anyway, a tea-party or rent-day, I'd like to know."

"Well, it's no tea-party, so it must be rent-day," said the poor butcher. "Is this your money? I took it from those bad little—little what did you call them?" said the butcher. "That's what they chased me for. Then they stole my long apron and cap. I never saw such awful creatures as those Zagookumses are."

"Gazookumses," corrected Nick.

"Gazookumses," corrected Nick.

"That's what I said—Kagoozumeses," said the butcher.

"No—Gazookmuses," said Nick.

"Didn't I say so? Sazookugses," declared the butcher.

"No, that's not right, either," said Nick. "It's Ga-zook-um-ses. There!"

"That's what I said all along," said the butcher. "Ga-ga-ga-say, what did you say their name was? Eh?"

"Oh, the idea!" said Nancy. "Let's be going."

"Yes, indeed. I should say so," remarked Mister Tingaling. "All this Gazookumsing when there's so much to be done! I want to thank you, my dear fellow, for your kindness in getting my money for me."

"There you go!" said the butcher, "calling me a dear fellow. Everybody thinks I am dear and I'm not. Beef is six shillings tuppence, and pork is two bits a pound. That's not dear."

They left the butcher still talking about the price of meat.

"Now let's see," said Mister Tingaling. "Where are we? And where did we leave off?"

"We were at the owl's house, when we started to chase the Gazook—" began Nick.

"Don't say it," said poor Mister Tingaling, sticking his fingers in his ears.

A Pimply Face Is Unsightly

Miss C. C. M. Smart, South Battleford, Sask., writes:—"A while ago I was troubled with facial blemishes, especially pimples, and was really ashamed to go out with such a bad looking face.

I tried 2 or 3 different remedies, but they didn't help me any, so one day a friend, who had been troubled the same as I was, advised me to use

Burdock Blood Bitters

After I had taken two bottles there wasn't a pimple of any kind left on my face, and I now have a clear, smooth and velvety complexion."

NATIONAL SYSTEM OF BANKS, ETC.

proaching the position where two or three banks would control the credits of the country. Certainly Canada was coming to a condition of highly centralized finance.

Federal authority should be the only power permitted to make or destroy money, yet today banks were in that position.

Mr. Woodsworth declared that there were some people who were of the belief that our gold standard gave permanency to the value of our money. He quoted, however, several authorities to the effect that the gold standard did not give permancy or stabilization to our currency.

In respect to his advocacy of a national banking system, Mr. Woodsworth urged that "Currency should be issued only by the Government." He believed also that "our post office savings banks should be developed and modernized and freed from red tape."

Provincial Banks

Provincial savings banks were being operated successfully in Ontario and Manitoba.

"These provincial savings banks, said Mr. Woodsworth, should be given "full banking privileges.' He was of the opinion that the Federal Finance Act should be amended, so as to provide larger facilities for co-operative credit. Such a system would enable producers' organizations to secure advances on security similar to that accepted by the banks.

Mr. Woodsworth said he would like to see the establishment of a central bank board along the lines of the Federal Reserve Board of the United States. This board would be responsible for the issuance of currency and would control discounts. He favored taking away the right to issue money from any but the Government. There was no reason why the issuance of notes of the higher denominations should be left to private banks.

Other countries were moving along the lines suggested by him, and doing so successfully, Mr. Woodsworth said. There seemed no reason why Canada should not also advance. He appreciated the fact that the matter was too big a one to be disposed of in a brief discussion. He hoped, however, that the Minister of Finance would agree to having the resolution referred to the committee on banking and commerce, where it could be thoroughly threshed out.

Progressive Support

H. E. Spencer (Progressive, Battle River) supported the resolution. He said that the subject of a national bank was becoming more TWO—National System .... widely discussed all the time.

Banks represented perhaps the greatest power in the Dominion today. Not a man who was indebted to financial institutions could call himself free. Even the Government itself was to some extent in this position.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, said that Canada had, in effect, a national banking system which adequately met the requirements of the country. Canada was on a gold basis and the money of the Dominion was as good as any country in the world.

Mr. Robb quoted from evidence given before the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons in 1923 and 1924, approving of the Canadian system of banking. Banks in Canada today were "in pretty good shape," and were giving much less worry to the Minister of Finance and to the Government than they did in 1921, 1922, 1923. The minister accepted the suggestion that the resolution be referred to the banking and commerce committee, but he accepted it with one reservation—that the members of the committee should not summon any pay the travelling expenses of men who knew nothing about banking.

Hon. R. J. Manion

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William) said that at the basis of all resolutions of this kind was the suggestion that the ordinary banking facilities were not adequate for the needs of the country. One of the curses in the Dominion had been the giving of to much credit. This was done during the real estate boom, which when it broke, had carried considerable injury to the West.

Dr. Manion said he opposed the nationalization of our banks. The function of the Government was to govern and not trade in money. While he had no objection to the banking and commerce committee dealing with the matter, as suggested by Mr. Robb, he was strongly in opposition of incurring expense in again investigating this question.

There was sufficient nationalization at the present time. "If you go on nationalizing things, you will take away the personal incentive and initiative necessary to build up the country and also paralyze private enterprise," he said. The nationalization of banks might also leave the way open to political favoritism.

Railway "Deadheads."

Dr. Manion remarked that he had observed the number of "deadheads" travelling on the Government railway.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, enquired if the persons referred to were travelling with transportation issued contrary to the law.

Dr. Manion retorted that this phase was a matter for the Minister of Railways and Canals. He had no doubt that the minister in view of the "thoroughness and thrift that was shown in that famous Saskatchewan political machine of his" would be able to clean up anything.

Mr. Dunning thought that any suggestion that the law was not being complied with in respect to transportation issued, should be treated in a more definite way.

Dr. Manion said he objected to any further government ownership or management than obtained at the present time.

Control of Business

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) said that it was not fair that the contraction or expansion of business in any community should be controlled in Toronto or Montreal by men who used the power of the banks for private gain. It could not be denied, he thought, that all credit in Canada was controlled in these two cities. The people of the Maritime Provinces like the people of Western Canada, was "long distance tenants of the banks of Central Canada."

Mr. Garland was not prepared to recommend the adoption of any particular system of national banks. He could not help realizing that the Federal Reserve Bank of the United States was a bankers' organization, nevertheless. It might be some time before any drastic change in the Canadian banking system could be effected. But the necessity for a change existed nevertheless. He insisted that the bankers of the East did as they pleased with all financial matters in Canada. They ignored the provision in the Bank Act which limits legitimate interest on loans to 7 per cent because, said Mr. Garland, there was no penalty for infraction.

Development Delayed

It was all very well for the bankers of Toronto to control the credit of the farmers of Ontario, he said in answer to a question, but he thought it ridiculous that the problems and requirements of Western farmers, separated by "untold miles of rocks and Christmas trees," from the bankers of Toronto should be under their thumb. Mr. Garland expressed the conviction that the development of Alberta's natural resources had been held up because of this state of affairs, and because the development of Eastern Canada had been made a prior consideration by the bankers of the East.

C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence—St. George), in a five minute speech before the House rose at six o'clock, declared that there was no strong reason why the resolution should go to the banking and commerce committee. He referred to the "wild and irrelevant proposals which we had heard," and also to the "incomplete statements and erroneous ideas which had marked the speeches during the afternoon.

The Federal reserve system of the United States was no more a national banking system than the Canadian system of today. Its entire banking capital was provided by private banks, and the Federal Reserve Board was merely supervisory. Mr. Cahan adjourned the debate.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

Carl C. Magee, Editor of The Albuquerque, New Mexico State Tribune, says:

THAT selling ourselves, or our product, to our community is the chief business of everybody.

THAT the pat of baby fingers on a mother's breast is the instinctive effort of the child to bind its mother tighter to it—to sell itself to her.

THAT lovers try by every unconscious art of salesmanship to sell themselves to those they love.

THAT the doctor, lawyer or dentist finds selling his personality and his ability to the public to be his great problem.

THAT the teacher tries to sell his ideals of character and achievement to his pupils.

THAT the preacher tries to sell to the public the merits of the salvation he offers.

THAT salesmanship is life's great art.

THAT the underlying secret of it all is to have something to sell which is worth selling. If the public is cheated, life becomes a fraud; if value received is given, living is worth while.

THAT selling yourself the right ideals of life is your one big personal task. Otherwise you defraud yourself and finally find that life has cheated you of all permanent satisfactions.

You had better Learn More about Honest Salesmanship.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

FRIDAY, APRIL 16.

A particularly active and important day is the prognostication based on the leading aspects of the moon to powerful planets for enterprise and large undertakings. Under the trine of Mars there may be a desire to plunge. With Jupiter the planet of finance and great ambitions, similarly aspected, there is encouragement for following the inclination. These potent sidereal forces are fortified by another urge to new ventures in the sextile of Luna to Neptune.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to a year of great endeavor toward the goal of their ambitions, and may be imbued with the spirit of enterprise to push for them. New projects are favored as a means to this end. A child born on this day should be enterprising, resourceful, ambitious, free and generous. It should rise to high position in life.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

HON. E. C. DRURY

Hon. W. E. Raney. "We recognize his leadership and ability and we assure both him and his parliamentary following of our continued and hearty support."

Mr. Raney is in Washington investigating the Volstead act.

Mr. Drury said that Toronto was "cut up" into electoral districts for the purpose of representation in the Ontario legislature, and that the chief aim in such "cutting up" was to give the wet foreign element in each district preponderance over the drys.

He charged in Toronto "a gerrymander within a gerrymander." He declared that the smaller ridings in the province were curtailed while the Toronto ridings were needlessly enlarged. Fifteen members was too big a bloc for a capital city which was quite capable of having its needs looked after.

Mr. Drury insisted that the stand of the Progressive party must be that the will of the people must prevail in the liquor question and every other question.

In cutting up Toronto for representation "the dice were loaded," he said.

Mr. Drury criticized Premier Ferguson on his handling of three portfolios — the first time such a thing had ever been done, he said.

As for wet and dry municipalities under local option, he pointed out that no one ever came from a wet municipality and got roaring sober in a dry municipality.

There was a menace to all Ontario in any big city being a wet centre in a dry province.

Will of the People.

"Prohibition in accordance with the expressed will of the people" was the wording of the liquor resolution placed before the convention.

Dr. Coyne declared he was getting fed up with camouflage. "I haven't any use for a crawfish," he said. "Put this thing out in the open. Why not put the spikes in the front of it. Show the people we're against booze absolutely. You know where the government stands—on two legs, one wet and the other dry. Sinclair tried to lead his men to water and half of them went to drink. Let's not be equivocal. Come right out and say we're absolutely against liquor and if we lose our fight we'll lose honorably."

"There's never been any crawfishing here and there's not going to be," countered Mr. Halbert.

That brought ex-Premier Drury to his feet. He asked Halbert to take his chair—he wanted to say something.

No Place For a "Wet."

"I always took a drink and I hope I always will," cut in Col. Barrett of Kingston. "It looks as if this is no place for a wet man. I think we'll lose a lot of support if we go in absolutely for prohibition."

Dr. Coyne countered that if there wasn't a dry resolution he wasn't going to remain in the party.

Then Mr. Drury took the floor. "What is the sense of elections if a man can not say what he stands or before he is elected?" he said. "You'd have a dictatorship like Mussolini—a multiple dictatorship."

He thought he had the right to educate the people to prohibition. If Major Barrett wanted to educate them otherwise he had the same right. But if the majority of the people were in favor of prohibition no one had the right to gainsay them, and with prohibition merged in the larger question of making the will of the people prevail, he thought he and Major Barrett could draw together on that.

The present premier's preaching of British parliamentary practice was more or less bunk. The liquor question should be determined by direct vote of the people.

TORONTO AND BALTIMORE WIN OPENING INTERNATIONAL GAMES

Only 3,500 Saw Leafs' Victory at Reading—16,000 at Newark.

JERSEY CITY WIN

READING, Pa., April 15 (Canadian Press).—Toronto defeated Reading, 8-2, in the opening International League game here yesterday. The smallest crowd in the history of opening baseball here attended, about 3,500 being in the stands. Erwin Brame, former Athletic pitcher, who started the game for Reading, was wild. Toronto scored five runs off him in the 4 1-3 innings he worked. The Leafs played smart ball in the field behind steady pitching by Walter Stewart, the club's leading southpaw twirler. Layne was especially good in left field, and Steve O'Neill gave Stewart splendid support behind the bat. Howley's team showed a good attack and made the most of their opportunities. Reading used three pitchers, Brame, Brown and Young, in that order. The last named looked the best. He had a fast-breaking curve ball. Hubbell or Carroll will pitch to-day's game for Toronto.

The weather turned out fine and warm after threatening rain early in the afternoon. Score:

Toronto	11014100	0—8	11 0
Reading	01000100	0—2	10 4

Stewart and O'Neill; Brame, Brown, Young and Lyons.

Baltimore 7, Rochester 5.

BALTIMORE, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Baltimore's champion Orioles got off to a winning start in the 1926 International League race here yesterday by trouncing Rochester, 7 to 5, before 7,000 fans. Governor Ritchie tossed out the first ball. Score:

Rochester	20020001	0—5	11 3
Baltimore	23200000	x—7	8 2

Horne and Devine; Earnshaw and McKee.

Newark 7, Buffalo 6.

NEWARK, N.J., April 15 (Canadian Press).—Pounding Proffitt's offerings to gain an early lead, Newark opened the International League season with a 7-6 victory over Buffalo before 16,000 here yesterday. Buffalo also used Keefe and Brice to stem the tide and evened the score with a four-run rally in the fifth, but Newark backed Mamaux well in the pinches and sulled through by bunching hits in the seventh for the winning margin. Score:

Buffalo	00014100	0—6	10 1
Newark	02301010	x—7	13 1

Proffitt, Keefe, Brice and Lake; Mamaux and McCarty.

Jersey City 5, Syracuse 4.

JERSEY CITY, April 15 (Canadian Press).—The Jersey City Skeeters opened the season yesterday with a 5-4 victory over Syracuse. Syracuse stung Guy Cantrell for four runs in the third frame, but the Skeeters came back with three in the fifth to sew up the game. Score:

Syracuse	00400000	0—4	8 2
Jersey City	00203000	x—5	8 1

CHAMPIONS PAY TRIBUTE TO CAT

Manager of Calgary Canadians Says It Brought Luck.

CAPTURED AFTER

WINNIPEG, Man., April 15.—(Canadian Press).—Is there such a thing as an omen of good luck or a "jinx?" Eddie Poulin, manager of the Calgary Canadians, 1926 junior hockey champions of Canada, believes in both. The victory of his proteges after losing the first game of the title series to Kingston, he attributes in no small measure to the influence of a playful black cat.

This particular dusky feline, which had worked up a purring acquaintance with the Calgary boys, suddenly disappeared before the first game of the dominion finals. The Canadians lost the game. In trying to discover how it happened, Poulin thought of the cat.

After searching all through the Amphitheatre rink, Poulin discovered Tony Rettinger, guardian of the arena, fondling the renegade pet in his office. It developed that the pussy was a pedigreed specimen and Rettinger turned a deaf ear to the pleas of Poulin that the cat be given to him.

The Calgary manager departed but returned a few minutes later with the ultimatum that Canadians refused to take the ice again without the cat. Rettinger finally capitulated and Poulin proudly returned back to the Canadian dressing room with the much-prized cat.

This according to Poulin, instilled the Calgary team with confidence and the Broncho Busters went out and captured the next two games, and the championship.

So enthused was the entire Calgary team that the boys prevailed upon Rettinger to sell them the lucky mascot.

"Nothing doin'," the latter retorted, and the wrangle continued until a few minutes before the Canadians were ready to entrain for home.

It was decided to flip a coin to decide the ownership of the cat. Up went a half dollar silver coin. There was a scramble. Tony watched the coin turn over in the air. "Heads," he yelled. The coin finally hit the ground—but Tony was alone. The Canadians had gone. So had the cat.

"I knew that Caigary bunch was a smooth-working gang," mused Tony. "However, we're not broke yet," he laughed as he pocketed the half dollar.

Whilst it is erroneous to press when using the iron club, it is advisable to let the club go well through without too much hindrance and check, as checking will have the effect of shortening your distance. In the up-swing the right leg should be steady, while the left ought to move inward a trifle.

In the down-swing I generally contrive to make the club-head meet the ball just before the club has reached its lowest point, so that the effect is that the club, more or less, swoops down on the ball, though, at the same time, I always endeavor to get a certain amount of pith into the stroke. Once the ball has flown away from the iron, the left leg should bear your weight.

If you are confronted by a bunker, there is no necessity to make your ball, in a measure, emulate an aeroplane, and here I would suggest taking the stance rather in front of the ball, or by a more acute swing.

Occasionally an iron club will be found useful in the playing of the tee shot, and personally I believe in the use of a very small sand tee.

HOCKEY STARS SCATTERED FAR

Blake Watson, in Vienna, Has Honor of Being the Farthest Away.

LEADS VIENNA TEAM

WINNIPEG, Man., April 15.—(Canadian Press).—Hockey material developed in Winnipeg has gone far afield to bolster up amateur and professional teams in many parts of the dominion and the United States, but to Blake Watson, member of the Tiger-Falcon seniors last year, goes the honor of being probably the most distant emissary of Canada's national winter pastime.

Taking a post graduate course in medicine at the University of Vienna, Watson has so enthused other students at the Vienna institution of learning that hockey has become a popular sport in the old Austrian capital.

According to a copy received of a sporting journal published in Vienna, Watson is heralded as the best player ever seen in action in those parts. He has mustered the best skaters attending the university and taught them the rudiments of stickhandling, combination play and has trained the team into a smooth-working machine.

Since Watson joined the Vienna hockey club, the students have not lost a game against the teams from Berlin, Munich, Czecho-Slovakia and Switzerland, the journal states.

Blake is credited with a high goal average in the inter-sectional series and as a result of his prowess, has been offered contracts to play exhibition games in several European cities.

In Germany, Watson was presented with a silver cup by the Berlin sportsmen in commemoration of his brilliant performances before crowds there.

Watson was a member of the Varsity junior hockey champions of 1923 was regarded as one of the most promising players ever developed in a city otherwise proud of its ho graduates.

CELTICS CHAMPIONS

Victory Over Greenock Decides Title.

GLASGOW, April 15.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Championship of the First Division of the Scottish Soccer League passed yesterday from the Rangers to the Celtic, when the latter defeated Greenock Morton at Celtic Park by three goals to one. The victory thus gave the Celtic an aggregate pointage of 54, two more than Airdrie can possibly get even if they should win their two remaining games. Rangers were champions for 1924-1925.

In a Second Division game Albion Rovers played Third Lanark to a scoreless draw.

Inspector Mead's chief mission in the long "mush" was to search for an insane Indian, who had been terrorizing the small Indian community in the northland. He brought back his man.

The NUT Cracker

By JOE WILLIAMS

Boys will be boys but it takes the mixed ingredients of Houdini, Sherlock Holmes and Pussyfoot Johnson to find out what the girl friend wants to be these days.

Style posters, chronicling latest crimes in feminine foolishments, show the little dippy-dappies wearing suspenders recruited to full war strength, with nautical limitations.

Parlor slogan for 1926 will be, "You keep us in suspenders and we'll keep you in suspense."

Anybody with slightly used glass eye can see that what the cuddling Cinderellas are wearing for skirts these days can be held in place by power of suggestion or old stamp deftly removed from 1902 seed catalogue.

Suspenders aren't only masculine heritage the girl friend has confiscated. She's wearing tuxedo coats, smoking pipes and having her hair chiseled in the roundhouse manner.

This all dates back to early squawking days of suffrage when Mama Pankhurst and sweet child Emma Goldman climbed up on exclusive soap cases and demanded equal rights and two bases on all hits into the crowd.

This proves that what is sauce for goose is applesauce for gander, and that rags when worn for virtue's sake are not at all attractive to editors of confessional magazines.

As Mr. Wilson said back in the war days, "Thank Allah for Gillette, he kept us out of feminity."

They dress like us, smoke like us and walk like us. . . . We don't know whether they are coming down to our level or up to it.

ROAD CONTRACT PROBE INVITED

Challenge in New Brunswick Legislature By Opposition Member.

FORMAL CHANGE.

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 15 (Canadian Press).—A definite challenge from the Opposition to the Government for a formal investigation of charges that there had been manipulation of tenders in connection with the awarding of a contract for the Campbellton - St. Leonard Highway, featured the speech of Hon. A. A. Dysart, Kent, in the Legislature Tuesday.

The charge was a sequel to the charges by Hon. D. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, of alleged irregularities in the conduct of the Department of Public Works under the late Government on behalf of ex-Premier Veniot, who had been Minister of Public Works until a short time before the general elections. Hon. Mr. Dysart asked for an investigation into the method of awarding the contract referred to. He asked that the investigation be held by any judge of the Supreme Court the Premier might name, and said that the ex-Premier had advised him to say that "should it be found that there was any ground for the statement made touching any arrangement as hinted at by the Minister, he will immediately resign his seat in the Legislature, providing that on the other hand if nothing of that nature can be proved, the Minister making the charge will do likewise."

Tender Increased.

Hon. Mr. Dysart said that the Minister of Public Works' own annual report proved his (Stewart's) accusations false. It had been stated that B. M. Hill, former chief engineer, had caused Sullivan and Adams to advance their tender $10,000, whereas the figures showed the tender of Sullivan and Adams was approximately $30,000 above the figures at which the job was awarded to the Concrete Builders, Limited. Hon. Mr. Dysart also on behalf of ex-Premier Veniot, invited the Minister of Public Works to formulate definite charges of wrongdoing in connection with the Copeland Bridge. It was true, he said, that the contract had not been awarded to the lowest tenderer. That was not infrequently the case for good and sufficient reasons.

GOOD SAP RUNS NEAR WARSAW

Buggies and Carts Appear in Place of Sleighs.

FARM AUCTION

WARSAW, April 15.—There have been good runs of sap since Thursday. Saturday's wind cut the snow away rapidly and bare fields are showing stubbles. One buggy from the Scotch line came into Warsaw on Sunday and a cart came down what is used for the boundary at noon on Monday. A cutter had gone right up the boundary over the snow drifts on Sunday night; in only a few places did the horse cut through.

All last week the thermometer registered from 80 to 20 F. at six in the morning. The crust carried any one easily in the mornings.

Mr. Patrick Fitzpatrick's sale of machinery and stock on Monday, April 12, drew a very large crowd. A few came in buggies. His goods sold well. One horse brought $190 and the others good prices. Calves went at $24 each, and all cattle sold well. A good binder went for $99. Mr. Fitzpatrick is letting his farm rest for a year or two.

Women's Institute.

The regular Women's Institute meeting was held on Friday afternoon. Mr. McCrae came from Norwood and gave a most interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on "Beautifying the Home Surroundings." He spoke of the joy and pleasure, as well as financial worth, of a good, well-kept lawn with trees, shrubs and flowers judiciously planted. Vines alone can make a place more beautiful by covering defects and taking off rough corners, he said. He showed several slides illustrating lonely looking houses which in a short time were transformed into beautiful homes, simply by vines, a tiny lawn and a few flowers. He spoke of the use of hedges and of trees as a background. Barns and outbuildings are also wonderfully improved by a little tidying up.

The entertainment to be held by the Institute will not be until June 3, on account of the late season.

Easter Services.

The beautiful Anglican Easter service was held in St. Mark's Church on Sunday morning. Rev. Walter Cox officiated. The church was very prettily decorated with Easter flowers. Mr. Cox will hold another service there on Sunday, April 25.

Rev. H. B. Herrington gave his final discourse on Amos on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Herrington took the missionary program in the morning and told of some special Sunday school work she had done on a former charge. At first she had it all to do, but after a time there were other teachers and an organist. The boys and girls were very interested. The primary class sang "When Mothers of Salem."

What the Young Fans Have to Say About Their Favorite Hockey Players

(Essays submitted in The Examiner Competition)

Frederick Meagher, 14, of 27 Crescent Stret, chose "Mr. Ray Rose."
(Special Mention.)

Mr. Ray Rose was born in this city and educated in one of our schools, where he at that age demonstrated he was going to be a great hockey player and would at some future date bring honor and glory to this city. The time has now arrived when he has played his part in winning the Senior O.H.A. 1925-1926 Championship for Peterborough.

He has always been an ideal skater, tricky stick-handler, with an accurate shot, and is known to use good judgment in out-guessing an opponent. He has always played to the best of his ability, whether at home or on foreign ice. He is the ideal build for a hockey player and is known as one of the most resourceful, uncanny and clever puck-carriers in the game.

Few players could show his ability. When subbing for the forwards, he played all positions and never at any time weakened the speediest and most formidable line in the O.H.A. To add greater laurels to the above qualities, he undertook to uphold the team spirit "when shattered by the injury to Mr. Parker," by changing from the attacking to the defensive end of the team, a feat which he handled in a most creditable manner, and "as some sporting writers claim, a new defence star has appeared." ....

EXAMINER WINS THE GORDON CUP

Last Year's Mercantile Champions Come Through For Second Time.

HARD FOUGHT GAMES.

The Examiner Mercantile Bowling team won the G. N. Gordon Cup on Tuesday night for the second time in succession, having won out last year against the Bell Telephone.

The Examiner team, after finishing the second series near the bottom, showed their real class by coming back and winning two out of three from Brintons in the play-off. Examiners won the first game, Brintons the second, and in the third game The Examiner won out by 11 pins. George Johnson, in the last frame, left the 4-pin standing on the first ball, missed it with the second, but the third ball proved the million-dollar baby. Had he missed it, Brintons would have won the game by one pin.

The personnel of The Examiner team was: Geo. J. Johnson (captain), H. Tedford, R. Holyman, G. Taylor, George Cairns, Charlie Clarke, Gordon Logan and William Zeihr.

Cairns turned in high three for the match with 631 and singles of 196 and 266. Martin had 234 for one. Anderson 221 and 240. Tedford 239, Holyman 235, Taylor 223, Leether 232 and 220.

The courts will be put in shape and the usual painting and brightening up done as soon as weather permits.

Y.M.C.A. REPORTS ARE ENCOURAGING

Indicate That Citizens Are Endorsing Good Work of Institution.

Very encouraging reports were made at the report supper at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Reports of increases in subscriptions and new ones received seemed to be the order of things and all of the workers present were filled with optimism and enthusiasm. With half the period of the canvass over the half-way mark has been reached with spirit shown by the canvassers there is no reason why the result should not be all that is desired by the directors.

Some of the captains of the different teams were not in a position to report last night, but it is expected that all available reports will be in by Friday evening, when the final report supper is to be held at 6.15 o'clock.

Each worker should realize that the ultimate success of the whole effort rests upon the thoroughness of his work, no matter how few names of friends he may have to interview.

The results so far would seem to indicate several things; first, that the friends and citizens of Peterborough heartily endorse the work of the Association and express their confidence in the immediate future that seems to be very noticeable this year compared with the feeling met with in other canvasses.

The directors appreciate greatly the subscriptions of those friends who have already subscribed for the current year and ask that those who have yet to be seen give the representative of the Association the same hearty reception and send him away with the most generous possible subscription.

The gratitude of hundreds of boys and young men will be ample reward.

FIND DEAD COWS IN BUILDINGS ON CALEDON FARM

Neighbors Attracted By Cries of Stock Find Gruesome Sight.

20 DEAD CATTLE.

Many Others Nearly Dead in Stable Muck—Owner To Stand Trial.

ORANGEVILLE, April 15 (Canadian Press). — With about twenty dead cattle and fifty-three others nearly dead, the farm of Hilton Dale, in Caledon Township, half a mile west of here, on the town line, is a gruesome sight. Neighbors, attracted to the farm buildings by the cries of the stock, notified the local police.

The stable was nearly a foot deep in muck, and the dead cattle were lying about. Five carcasses had been dismembered by dogs. The stock still alive presented a pitiful sight.

Officials, on returning to town with Dale, had a large dray of feed rushed to the farm, and two men are in charge for a month. Dale was taken to Brampton, where he will stand his trial.

GAME WARDENS CONDEMN CROW

Urge Active Campaign To Reduce Number of Crows.

HOLD CONVENTION.

OTTAWA, April 15. — Canadian and Provincial game officials have declared war on the crow.

At the concluding session yesterday of a conference of these officials, gathered from all over Canada to discuss the conservation of wild life, a resolution was passed condemning the crow as one of the most destructive factors in respect of game and general bird life, and urging "an active and persistent campaign by all efficient means, crow shoots, destruction of nests, employment of hunters, and the use of trap devices, and that the offer of bounties be maintained in the respective provinces to reduce the stand of these birds to less formidable numbers."

Another resolution adopted urged the government to enact legislation so that deer hides, hitherto a prohibited export, can be exported during the open season, and for three weeks thereafter in such provinces as agree with the legislation.

Still On Wheels Found Ready For Quick Shifts

MOUNT AIRY, N.C., April 15 (Special by United Press).— A moonshine still on wheels has been captured near here by Deputy Sheriff J. C. Jones. The outfit consisting of a big copper still, complete; two boxes, eight bushels of meal and a half bushel of malt and even the clothes the operators wore when stilling were towed on a Dodge truck, evidently with intention of moving the outfit quickly from one place to another.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain resort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, thrcugh the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devils Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation, are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrate booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

DEATHLESS STORY OF YPRES LIVES AGAIN ON THE SCREEN.

(Written by Gregory Clark)

Now, old gravel-crushers, you can show the folks what you mean when you say those dumb words, "machine gun," "bomb", "pill box."

Now, fathers, sisters, old folks, you will understand the marks like the welts of unseen whips that lie upon the souls of your men who were soldiers.

Now, little boys who are the gun-fodder of tomorrow come see why the conflicting flames leap in your daddies eyes when you take your drums to play soldier.

"Ypres" is a great motion picture because it points no moral. It shows the plain, stark horror of war. It shows the simple, flaring glory of war. It must have been an almost irresistible temptation to the assemblers of this great war picture not to introduce a veiled and mysterious figure to go brooding through these scenes and so make the photoplay an anti-war epic; or to introduce a symbolic and valiant shade that would make it a militaristic fiery cross.

"Ypres" consists of two kind of reels. The makers were given access to the official war records films and they were given by the British war office 850 troops of various arms to use on the plains of Aldershot to reconstruct the twenty or more undying episodes in the war history of the Ypres Salient which an unimaginative G.H.Q. failed to have filmed on the spot.

"Ypres" has no hero and no plot. It consists of eight reels of unadorned and unconnected story—unconnected save by the fact that British, Canadian, Australian, French, Senegalese and Belgian took over from one another through four long years of the bloodiest warfare that was waged on any part of the long front.

Deathless Story.

Old soldiers will blush in the darkness of the theatre for some of the gallantry. For example, battlesl are shown as valiant charges across the open in broad daylight by spotless and athletic troops, whereas in reality the troops went across at a painful crawl in the dim and terrible murk of dawn. But as the makers of this picture explain, for motion picture purposes, they have had to dramatize the greatest drama of the ages, they have had to liven up the liveliest incident in human history. Who, for example, would be willing to sit through eight reels of the darkness of Vimy relieved only by the baleful and flickering lights? What a motion picture would be made of a patrol encounter in No Man's Land at midnight with two flashes and a burst of drums to denote the terrific clash between twenty lone men out in the slush?

Tommy Holmes, V.C.

Tommy Holmes, V.C. is shown—by actors, of course—performing his headlong, single-handed assault on the cement pill-box containing twenty-nine live and wild-cat Heinies. Toronto regiments—actual war records films, these—are shown tramping through Belgian ruins.

Be Prepared.

There is this caution: If you let your boy take you to see this picture, "Ypres," at the Capitol theatre, be prepared to sit up till morning over the tea cups and cake when you get home, for it will get him going over many a long mile of paved roads, up forgotten communications, remembering old friends.

AT THE REGENT

A CAPTIVE BRIDE.

Heroine of "Green Archer" to be Forced into Marriage with Her Abductor.

In the sixth chapter of the Pathe-serial, "The Green Archer," showing to-day at the Regent Theatre, it is shown how Coldharbor Smith, that crafty henchman of the cruel Abel Bellamy, plans to make his fair prisoner, Valerie Howett, his bride. When she attempts to escape—when she slaps his face, beats at him with her fists, and then scores him with caustic tongue, he warns her to treat him right, or she will disappear from sight for 20 years, as Elaine Holding did! Elaine Holding—the woman Valerie seeks—the woman she believes to be yet alive!

Allene Ray and Walter Miller are featured in "The Green Archer," adapted from Edgar Wallace's mystery novel, and important roles are played by Burr McIntosh, Frank Lackteen, Wally Dettel, Walter Lewis and others.

AT THE GRAND.

NO, NO, NANETTE

Take a story funny enough to stand by itself as a plain comedy without music. Add to it a musical score full of tuneful numbers, mix in some of the cleverest dancing imaginable, embellish it with a bevy of beautiful girls in bewitching costumes, season it with bright quips and lively dialogue and serve with plenty of dash and pep, and you have "No, No, Nanette," the super-musical comedy presented at the Grand twice yesterday. Peterboro playgoers who had long heard of the sensational success of this production and for the first time had a chance to see and hear it for themselves had not trouble in locating the reason for its triumphal career. "No, No, Nanette" has everything—plot, comedy, wit, music, dancing, beauty, brightness and a company of capable artists, and what more could one ask?

It can be said of this offering—and of few others in the musical comedy world—that its plot contains enough material to succeed without music at all. The story of the wealthy Jimmy Smith, whose chief sorrow in life is that he cannot persuade his wife to spend money, and the troubles he gets into with three other women who think that life exists for no other purpose is funny to the extreme. Mrs. Smith is hopeless. "When I want to go and see the Follies or a worth-while musical comedy," Jimmy laments, "she choose a movie show. Why I've seen that guy Tom Mix ride twelve million miles on horseback," and Pauline, the comedy cook, adds her testimony that Mrs. Smith provides the servants with rough-bottomed cups so that when they attempt to stir their tea they imagine they feel the sugar at the bottom of the cup. How she is eventually cured as a result of the trouble in which Jimmy lands as a result of his innocent mix-ups with the three sirens and with Nanette, his wife's protege, forms the action of the comedy and there is a rich outcropping of laughter throughout.

The company was headed by John Hyams and Leila McIntyre, well remembered here for their fine work in "Girl of My Dreams," a hit of yesteryear.

Mr. Hyams proved once more that he has few peers as a musical comedy comedian. He was irresistibly droll in every line, in every bit of business, and his portrayal of the part of Jimmy Smith was a masterpiece of delicious fooling. Miss McIntyre was of invaluable assistance as the wife who did not know how to spend money. Mary Vaughan the Nanette, not only acted splendidly but she sang with a rare charm, and her dancing was delightful. Roland Woodruff as Jimmy's lawyer friend, who attempts to rescue him from his entanglements, contributed effectively to the comedy of the production and even more successfully to the dancing. His eccentric acrobatic dance in the third act was one of the high lights of a wonderful productions. Eulalie Young scored a personal triumph in the rich comedy part of Pauline, the cook, who can't be corrected because she's always leaving. Helen Case was another principal who scored heavily as the sophisticated Lucille.

A handsomely gowned chorus of clever dancers, whose clean-cut work was a treat, was of great assistance in making the production memorable.

"No, No, Nanette" is plentifully studded with song hits of which several have been popular since the first night of the offering. The lilting "Tea for Two," and the most catchy "I Want to Be Happy" were the numbers most appreciated by last night's audience, although "Who's the Who," sung most delightfully by Helen Case, was not far behind the others. The "Tea for Two" number was most effectively rendered by Floyd English and Mary Vaughan, while John Hyams scored his biggest song hit in "I Want to Be Happy."

An augmented orchestra under the direction of Russell Tarbox did full justice to the score.

"No, No, Nanette" proved a most delightful oasis in as dreary a theatricial desert as Peterboro playgoers have encountered.—F.D.C.

DRASTIC ACTION NEEDED TO STOP LIQUOR RUNNING

Customs Preventive Officer Tells Probe Committee About Smuggling.

TELLS OF SEIZURE.

Vessel, Cargo and Fine Taken In One Case All Remitted.

OTTAWA, April 15. — Canadian Press. — "The law does not meet conditions in the liquor smuggling business to-day. It will take drastic action to overcome the present conditions," declared W. F. Wilson, the Chief of the Customs Preventive Service, at the Customs probe today.

Mr. Wilson was being cross-examined concerning the seizure of the Lunenburg schooner W. C. Kennedy, in the Straits of Northumberlond in June, 1923. She carried liquor from St. Pierre, Miquelon, billed to Nassau. She was short 188 cases when she was seized and it was admitted that this amount had been taken off by a motor boat eight miles from Pictou, N.S., which returned to Canadian shores.

The Kennedy's cargo and the penalty of a $400 fine imposed by Ottawa, were all eventually returned to the owners, because it could not be proved that the Kennedy had infringed any customs regulations, being outside the three-mile limit.

BUDGET BLACK EYE TO LABOR AND MAY BE A DEATH BLOW TO MOTOR INDUSTRY SAYS HON. H. GUTHRIE

Sir Henry Drayton's Substitute Opens Attack on Robb's Programme.

ONTARIO INJURED.

Many Factories in Province Share in Business of Motor Making.

OTTAWA, April 16 (Canadian Press). — Immediately Mr. Robb concluded his budget statement on Thursday, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative, opened the budget debate.

"We welcome the cut in income tax," said Mr. Guthrie; "it should have come years ago." He added that if the administration of the Customs Department had been what it should have been, the tax reductions could have come three years earlier. "There was no reason to congratulate the Government on the prosperity of the country. It was a matter of a beneficient crop."

It was a matter of great regret that Sir Henry Drayton, who usually acted as financial critic for the Opposition, was absent through illness.

"There is apparently much jubilation on the Government side of the House this afternoon. We on this side are prepared to tender our congratulations on any real achievement."

If the Opposition refrained from extending its congratulations upon the financial statement which was in some ways satisfactory, it was because the benefits spoken of were more due to the virility of the Canadian people than to anything that the Government had done.

"We realize, as well as the Government, that this country has been blessed in the abundance in the crop it has yielded. In that fact is the most important secret of our commercial success, and we are reaping the benefit of it to-day. As a result we have had some return to a rational prosperity which has not existed in Canada during the past four years. Conditions are better to-day than in the past four years, and we on this side of the House congratulate the people of the Dominion on this happy condition."

Prosperity Retarded.

The country had come back in spite of the Government. The prosperity of the Dominion had been retarded by the present Government.

While there was an apparent balance of $22,300,000 it should be remembered that the expenditure of last year was greater than the year before, and the expenditure of this year was greater than last. "The Government is on an ascending scale of national expenditure," declared Mr. Guthrie. Year by year there had been an additional expenditure by the public service.

"You can go through page after page of the estimates and find millions of dollars which might be cut without any ill result to the Dominion of Canada. Now the Minister has started to reduce taxation. I commend him for what he has done. The Minister is a member of the Government which should reduce taxation; it increased under this Government." The sales tax had been increased twice during the last Parliament. The cheque tax had been increased. The tax on receipts had been a device of this Government. Now this tax was coming off. It should never have been put on. Was there any reason to congratulate the Government for maintaining this burden for four years and now removing it? The time had come when the people demanded these reductions and the Voluntary statement was ordered for April 22.

General Motors Plant Shut Down By Tariff Says Morning Notice

Entire Factory Suspends Operations "Until Company Is Able To Arrive At An Intelligent Conclusion" As To Its Future Course, Says Placard.

PUNGENT COMMENT MADE AT MEETING OF MEMBERS OF AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY

Three Thousand Employees in Oshawa Are Temporarily Out of Work as Result of Action — Notified When They Reported For Business This Morning.

TORONTO, April 16 (Canadian Press).—The plant of the General Motors Corporation at Oshawa suspended operations today, and three thousand employees were temporarily out of work. On arrival at the factory they found the following notice displayed:

"On account of tariff changes the entire plant is closed indefinitely until the company is able to arrive at an intelligent conclusion as to what future course may be considered advisable."

R. S. McLaughlin, President of the company, declined to make any comment.

Comment of motor car manufacturers on the tariff changes which they claim will result in a crisis in the Canadian motor car manufacturing industry, was strictly withheld, pending the outcome of a meeting which assembled at Lumsden Building today, of members of the automotive industries of Canada. T. R Russell, president, was in the chair.

Toronto Statement.

TORONTO, April 16 (Canadian Press).—"It is the unanimous view of those present that the budget is disastrous to the industry and threatens both domestic and export trade. An analysis of the situation discloses first that the whole of protection afforded to the automobile industry has been wiped out in one stroke, because the reduction of duties is greater than the margin that existed between the duties paid by the manufacturer on his material and that collected on cars imported. The automotive industry finds itself to-day with the entire protection removed against mass production of American factories and with an actual premium on imported cars."

The foregoing were the principal points of the statement handed out this afternoon after a lengthy discussion by the directors of automotive industries of Canada, representing all motor car manufacturers, and the principal accessory and tire makers, following the budget announcements of yesterday by Hon. J. A. Robb, Finance Minister of Canada.

Dealers Lose.

The statement said in part: "The operation of the new tariff will result immediately in certain cars and models which have heretofore been manufactured in Canada being forthwith imported. The effect of this will be felt in a wide number of centres of Canada during the present week, and the unemployment which will result cannot be accurately forecasted.

"The change has been made at a time when dealers' stocks of new and used cars is greater than at any other time of the year, and auto mobile dealers will take losses of millions of dollars on their stocks of used cars."

THREE ITALIANS ARE FOUND SLAIN

One Identified as Bandit—Two Others Murdered.

IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 16 (Canadian Press).—The bodies of three slain Italians were found in Chicago yesterday. One of the dead, found in a ditch, was identified as Santon Calabrose, one of the two bandits who shot and killed a deputy sheriff, Walter Fisher, of Mokena, Ill., in a gun fight after the robbers had stolen an automobile. The police believe that he died of bullet wounds inflicted by Deputy Fisher.

The other two, victims of a double murder, were identified as Frank De Laurentis, 33, and John Pricoll, 31, missing from their homes since Saturday. The police believe the men were murdered in a beer war or gang feud.

WOUNED CHILDREN.

Man Attacked Four at La Tuque.

QUEBEC, Que., April 16. (Canadian Press).—Leandre Lejeune, of La Tuque, pleaded guilty yesterday before the Court of King's Bench to the charge of wounding with intent. Lejeune was arrested at La Tuque some time ago and charged with attempted murder after he had attacked and wounded four children in a house in which he was boarding.

The defence asked for clemency on the grounds that Lejeune had never been arrested before and was not in complete control of his mental faculties. Lejeune will be sentenced at the end of the term.

Order Of Bath Imposed On Vagrant By Montreal Court

MONTREAL, Que., April 16 (Canadian Press) — Edward Mann, of no fixed address, was sentenced to wash his face and hands when he appeared before Recorder Semple Thursday on a charge of loitering.

"I'll let you go, but you must wash your face and hands, or better still, take a complete bath when the weather gets warmer."

Mann's hands, face and hair, were of such a dusky hue that the recorder first thought him to be a mulatto. He is a natural blond, he told the court when questioned.

SUSPENSION OF LABOR MEMBERS CREATES SCENE

Obstruction Tactics Renewed Last Night as Protest Against Action.

BIAS ALLEGED.

Closure Applied On Economic Bill Debate—Thirteen Suspended.

LONDON, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Because of their obstructive tactics, thirteen Labor members of the House of Commons were suspended early Thursday on motion of Neville Chamberlain. Their suspension was voted, 163 to 76.

A further scene occurred in the House last night, arising, as did the suspension of the Laborites, out of resentment against the Right Hon. James Fitzalan Hope, the chairman of committee, who was accused by the Laborites of displaying bias in favor of the Government.

Possibly because of the all-night session, the members were in a state of nervous tension. Mr. Hope was again in the chair, and his every ruling was challenged by the Laborites. Scenes persisted, and the chairman finally closured the debate on the economic bill. This produced new protests that the chairman and the Government in supporting him were "treating the House scandalously."

J. H. Thomas, voicing the Laborites' anger, announced his intention of proposing a vote of censure on the chairman because of his "partial and biased conduct."

INCREASING SUCCESS OF UNITED DAIRYMEN'S CO-OPERATIVE SALES EMPHASIZED AT ANNUAL MEETING

43,000 Boxes of Cheese Sold in 1920 and 166,000 Last Year.

ITS SIXTH YEAR.

Directorate Increased To Eleven Members—Protection To Producers.

The sixth annual meeting and conference on Marketing of Dairy Products, of the United Dairymen Co-operative Company commenced yesterday in the G.W.V.A. Hall. Delegates are here from every county in Eastern and Central Ontario and a few scattered counties in Western Ontario.

The U.D.C. was formed in 1920 to improve the methods of marketing cheese and other dairy products. Since then, the company has gone ahead very fast and today it has two main auction centres for selling the cheese, at Belleville and Montreal, with its head office in Peterboro.

Many noteworthy speakers are here from Wisconsin, Quebec, Ottawa, and Toronto and the addresses have been very illuminating to those interested in the dairy business. Canada has made wonderful progress in this industry in the last 25 years and today she is one of the leading cheese and butter exporting countries of the world. R. W. Ireland of Wellington, Ontario, occupies the chair, and H. B. Cowan is the secretary.

Chairman's Address

The year 1925 was a banner year for the dairymen of Canada in general and particularly so for those of us in Ontario, who are interested in the cheese industry. Conditions for the production of milk were favorable throughout the season and prices were higher than they have been for the past five years. Several causes contributed to the higher range of prices, but the two principal ones were a reduction in the make of cheese in Great Britain and the New Zealand shipping strike, which held back a large quantity of cheese during our main season of production.

Our own company experienced a very successful and satisfactory year. As will be shown by the report of our general manager our business showed a very substantial increase over the year 1924, and the returns received by the factories who were associated with us in the co-operative marketing of our cheese gave general satisfaction. During the past year our company was also able to render material service to the industry at large by resisting the attempt made by the railway companies to largely increase the freight rates of cheese from shipping points in Ontario to Montreal.

The railway companies made an application in May, 1925, to the Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, to set aside the special commodity rates on cheese, which had been in force for a number of years between April 15th and November 30th, and to put class rates in effect, which would have meant increases ranging from 40 to 60 per cent. Our general manager appeared before the Board of Railway Commissioners at the time the hearing took place and gave effective evidence in opposition to the proposed increase. He also appeared before the Parliamentary ocean freight rates committee and made a plea for the reduction in the freight rates of cheese between ports in Canada and the United Kingdom. I am referring to these two questions in order to illustrate the advantage to the dairymen of this province in having a strong organization which is directly concerned in promoting the best interests of our dairy farmers. I must also refer to the very successful banquet that was held by our company in Belleville last fall for the cheese makers of the Central Ontario district. There was an attendance of over one hundred and an enjoyable and profitable evening was spent. Gatherings of this character serve a useful purpose as they bring together those who have a common interest in the welfare of the dairying industry, which on the

LOCAL DEALERS PROTEST CUT AS BEING BLOW TO BUSINESS WHEN MANY CARS ARE STOCKED

Buyer of New Car Who Wishes To Trade Old One Will Suffer.

MANY RETICENT.

"Sold One New Car and One Used Car This Morning" —Charles Ellott.

The general opinion of the local automobile dealers with respect to the announcement of reduction of the tariff on automobiles was one of uncertainty. The Examiner interviewed several of them this morning with a view to ascertaining the effect on the proposed reductions and in every case they were reluctant to talk on the grounds that they had nothing definite to give.

Most of them, while they would not say it for publication under their names, expressed considerable dissatisfaction at the reduction being announced at this particular time of the year when they have on hand the greatest suply of new and used cars and especially this year on account of the late spring.

C. L. Brewer of the Brewer Motor Sales stated that he was not in a position to state his opinion at present. He said that he would have to wait until he obtained something tangible as to whether it is approved by the house or not. As the tariff changes on automobiles are only proposed and not yet law, it naturally is premature to discuss their effect. The reduction if it does come into effect, will approximately reduce cars of $1200.00 and less about 8 per cent. and the more expensive cars about 5 per cent. in selling value.

These changes will not materially affect the price to purchasers, who trade in used cars as naturally their cars will be worth less on account of tariff reduction. The people who will benefit are those involved on the clear sale of new cars and the clear sale of used cars.

The losses involved on cars at present in stock will likely have to be absorbed by the dealer and will mean quite a loss.

J. J. Duffus, Duffus Motor Sales, stated that he had not investigated the matter as yet and was in no position to give a studied opinion.

J. P. Pulkinghorn was of the opinion that the reduction would hurt the prospective buyer of a new car who had a used car to trade as well as hurting the dealer with a large stock of used cars on hand.

"I can give you no definite information," was all that A. Brown had to say.

W. A. Howson was in no position to give any definite information, he said, and produced a wire that he had received from Oshawa this afternoon which read "Owing to tariff changes plant closed indefinitely—your shipments postponed," signed General Motors.

Business As Usual

C. Elliot was of the opinion that there was no use in crossing the bridge until he had to—"I have sold one new car and one used car this morning," he said.

OUDJA, Morocco, April 16 (United Press)—It is rumored here today that the Peace Conference to end the war in Morocco may not take place.

It is believed that the preliminary agreement between the French, Spanish and Riffian negotiations which is essential to opening the conference is still far from complete.

SHADOW LIFTED FROM ROMANCE

Court Action Abandoned For Custody of Browning's Bride.

HAPPY EVER AFTER.

NEW YORK, April 16—A "happily ever after" ending to the whirlwind courtship of Edward W. Browning, a gay blade, despite his 51 years, seemed more than likely Thursday.

One shadow that had befallen his marriage to 15-year-old Frances "Peaches" Heenan was lifted when the Children's society announced that court action instituted before the wedding to have Mrs. Heenan displaced as guardian of the gir would have to be abandoned.

Accordingly, Judge Franklin C. Hoyt, in children's court today, dismissed the proceedings.

None of the principals was in court, although the Brownings had left their rooms in the Hotel Gramatian, in Bronxville, early in the morning, bound for New York.

NATIONAL ARMY DEFEATS ALLIES

Harrassed Troops Turn Upon Opponents and Beat Them.

SERIOUS AIR RAID.

TIENTSIN, April 16. (Canadian Press) — The Allied Manchurian-Shantung forces are reported to have sustained a serious reverse yesterday in severe fighting with the Kuominchun troops which have been supporting the Peking Government recently overthrown. The conflict took place at Tungchow-Chi six miles east of Peking, and has resulted in the capital being cut off by wire and railway.

The allies are believed to have attacked Kuominchun troops hastily when they received news of the coup d'etat by which Chief Executive Tuan Chi-Jui was outsted from office.

The harrassed Kuominchun forces turned upon them, punishing them severely. Large reinforcements have been dispatched to the aid of the allies.

Briefs report by wireless from Peking state that yesterday's air raid upon the capital by the allies was the most serious experienced. Numerous Chinese are reported killed.

AUTOMOBILE MAKERS EXPECT NEW PROVISIONS OF TARIFF TO CLOSE ASSEMBLY PLANTS

Changes Are Staggering Says President of Automotive Industries.

MAKERS TO MEET.

Better To Import Finished Cars, Says One Maker of Parts.

OTTAWA, April 16 (Canadian Press).—"The changes are so staggering, and the results so far-reaching to the 600 firms and their 22,000 employees producing materials and parts, and complete cars and trucks, that it is impossible even for those in the industry to forecast the results at present."

This statement was officially handed out last night by T. A. Russell, president of the Automotive Industries of Canada, when asked for his views of the probable effect of the changes announced in the budget on motor car and truck tariff items.

Mr. Russell, in addition to being head of the Association of Motor Car Manufacturers, is also president of the Willys Overland Company. With him when he gave out the statement, was W. R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Car Company of Canada.

Manufacturers Meet.

Those interested in the Canadian motor industry and allied industries will meet in Toronto to-day.

They will consider the new tariff changes and their effect on their industries and will then issue a statement.

J. D. Chaplin and A. D. Chaplin, members of the House, respectively, for Lincoln and Kent, are the heads of factories making parts for motor cars, principally wheels. They see in the new measure giving a 25 per cent. drawback on the duty on imported parts entering into certain cars, a great menace to their industry and others like it. Only those parts going into cars, 50 per cent. of the cost of which is spent in Canada, get the benefit of this draw back. That shuts out all the assembling plants. It will be better for them to import finished cars than to assemble them here, it is thought.

May Forego Drawback.

TORONTO, April 16 (Canadian Press). — The drawback of 25 per cent. on the materials used in the manufacture of motor cars in Canada will be paid provided that at least fifty per cent. of the cost of the finished vehicle represents Canadian production and workmanship. This provision, it is understood, will practically cut out the assembling plants.

Interviewed here to-day, E. P. Clarkson, manager of Dodge Bros. of Canada, Limited, pointed out that Canadian parts often cost more than United States articles, because of the mass production facilities south of the line, so that if the Canadian manufacturer decided to buy fifty per cent. of Canadian materials in order to get the 25 per cent. drawbacks, he might find in the end that he could have saved money by foregoing the drawback and buying his parts in the States.

PENSION MOVE UNDER ATTACK

Rt. Hon. A. Meighen Says It Is Meant To Get Votes.

MR. HEAPS SPEAKS.

OTTAWA, April 16 (Canadian Press).—With the budget debate deferred till Tuesday, the House turned last night to the discussion of the Government old age pension scheme. At the time the House was in committee on the old age pension resolution, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen declared that the resolution was born of a compact to get the vote of the Labor members. It would not get the old age pensions but it might get votes.

In effect, the Government was saying to the provinces: "Here is the mechanism, you operate it."

A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North) said the legislation had been asked for by Labor forces in all parts of Canada.

Hon. H. H. Evans remarked in the course of his speech that the desire of the Government was that the bill would go to the Senate and be rejected.

ART STUDY CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Interesting Paper on "The Alhambra" Read By Member.

FINAL MEET.ING.

A meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association was held this week at the home of Mrs. R. A. Brown, Rubidge Street, when an interesting paper on "The Alhambra" was given by Mrs. J. Mackintosh. The response to the roll call was a proverb.

The last meeting of the Art Study Club for this season will be held on Tuesday, April 27th, at the home of Mrs. F. C. Neal, when a paper on "Zuloaga" will be given by Mrs. E. Shirley, and the response to the roll call will ze a quotation regarding Spain.

Mrs. Mackintosh preluded her talk on "The Alhambra" with a brief review of the history of Granada, first peopled by the Phoenicians, then the Romans, the Goths and Vandals, and then the Moors, who occupied the district for nearly eight hundred years, before they finally surrendered to the Spaniards.

The Moors were wonderful builders, but the chief of their majestic feats in this direction is the Alhambra, which they regarded as a miracle of art, and had a tradition regarding it that the king who founded it dealt in magic and was versed in alchemy, by means of which he procured the immense sums expended in its erection. The name of this monarch, inscribed on the walls, was Abu Alahmar. He was proclaimed king in 1238 and ruled wisely and well. The palace of the Alhambra was commenced towards the middle of the thirteenth century by this ruler and was completed by a successor, Yusuf Abu Hagig, in 1348, when the beautiful "Gate of Justice" at the entrance to the fortress was constructed. Immediately after the expulsion of the Moors in 1492, their conquerors began by successive acts of vandalism to spoil the marvellous beauty of the Alhambra. The openwork was filled up with whitewash, the painting and gilding effaced, and the furniture soiled, torn or removed. Charles the Fifth, in the sixteenth century, re-built portions in the modern style of the period, and destroyed the greater part of the Winter Palace to make room for a modern structure which has never been completed. Philip the Fifth, in the eighteenth century, completed the degradation by running up partitions which blocked up whole apartments, gems of taste and ingenuity. In the nineteenth century, this masterpiece of Moorish art was still further defaced by some of the towers being blown up by the French, while the whole buildings narrowly escaped the same fate, an earthquake adding further damage. The work of restoration was undertaken in 1828 by the architect, Jose Coutreras, and continued by his son and grandson.

The Alhambra is situated upon the northern brow of a steep hill. To the right are the Spanish Alps, the Sierra Nevada, rising twelve thousand feet into the air. On the other side is the city of Granada. The word "Alhambra," signifying in Arabic "The Red," is probably derived from the color of the sun-dried bricks made of gravel and fine clay. Some authorities, however, claim that it commemorates the red flare of the torches by whose light its construction was carried on nightly for many years. The Alhambra Park, planted by the Moors with roses, oranges and myrtles, has a distinctive feature in the dense wood of English elms brought there in 1812 by the Duke of Wellington. The park is also celebrated by the multitude of nightingales which abound there. To reach the park from the city one passes through the Gate of Pomegranates, a massive triumphal arch dating from the fifteenth century. The fortress itself is surrounded by a wall five feet thick and thirty feet in height. Twelve or more towers dot it at intervals. Access to the fortress is gained through the Gate of Justice, so called because of the tribunal held within its porch during the Moslem domination, for the immediate trial of petty causes, a custom common to Oriental nations.

Mrs. Mackintosh concluded with a very illuminating description of the various halls and courts and buildings contained within the Alhambra, giving a good idea of their delicate and beautiful architecture, their costly and elegant decorations.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

THIRD PETERBORO TROOP.

The Third Vimy Troop held its weekly meeting last night. The meeting opened with flag break and inspection. Later a game to test the quickness of eye and thought was played, the players being blindfolded, and at a whistle from the scoutmaster the bandages were whipped off. Two boys had been taken from the room and each patrol had to tell which boy was missing from the other patrol. The Hounds won.

After a short instructional period a knot-tying competition took place, the Wolves and Chickadees winning. On account of lack of time the Council fire had to be cut out of the programme. The Scouts dispersed at 8.45. Later a court of honor was held and various matters of business disposed of.

INCREASING SUCCESS

authority of the Dominion Dairy Commissioner, was responsible in the year 1925 in adding three hundred millions of dollars to the wealth of Canada.

The business of our company for the year ended November 30, 1925, will be set before you in greater detail by our general manager and in this connection I wish to say that we are fortunate in having a very efficient staff in charge of the very large volume of business which our company is now transacting.

I extend to you all a cordial welcome and trust that our meetings today and to-morrow will be successful in every respect.

Address by Mr. Swoboda

F. G. Swoboda of Plymouth, Wisconsin, general manager of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation, spoke on The Problem of Developing an Interest Among the Farmers for Co-operative Marketing of Cheese.

Wisconsin produces about 80 per cent of the cheese made in the union, stated the speaker. His federation found it difficult to keep the cheesemakers and patrons in the federation and selling to the federation even after they had united with it, as there are many competitive boards in the State and the patron never thinks that it is the federation which forces the price up and then sometimes, when the federation pays a fraction of a cent less for cheese than the boards pay, there is trouble.

The speaker stated that the only way co-operative marketing would prosper would be when the farmers looked upon selling cheese co-operatively as to their advantage. In Wisconsin he has found it easier to get prohibition and religion than co-operative marketing. It means a lot of work to get new factories into the federation and the only way it can be done is by going around to the different patrons and showing them the advantage of co-operative marketing. This plan takes money and then you are expected to sell your cheese for more and pay the patrons more than the boards, who are not at this expense. There is no better way of advertising the co-operative plan and its workings than by giving the press full reports, stated the speaker. In Wisconsin the federation is greatly troubled with the untruths that are spread by the cheese boards, but sentiment is changing very gradually and the cheese federation is doing better every year.

The only method of success is by keeping in contact with the people, and he emphasized a manager who would go round to the district meetings encouraging the patrons to sell to the co-operative company.

Financial Statement

H. B. Cowan, the secretary-trasurer, gave the financial statement, showing a profit at the end of 1925 of $5,568.26, after paying a dividend of six per cent.

The company's finances were never in better shape, as they did over three millions dollars worth of business in 1925, an increase of 58.39 per cent in value over 1924.

Report of General Manager

W. W. Moore, general manager of the United Dairymen, in his report stated that the past year had been the best year ever for the company, over three million dolars worth of cheese had been sold. In 1920 when the company was formed, 43,000 boxes of chese were sold; in 1925, 166,000 boxes of cheese were sold, and there is every prospect of 200,000 boxes in 1926 being sold.

In the six years of the operation of the company over 11 million dollars worth of sales have been made. The company has no bad debts and does a considerable supply business with the different cheese factories.

The outlooks for the future are bright, the capital subscribed is small and dividends are absolutely assured. This year daily markets will be received from Great Britain and as in the past, auction sales will be held in Montreal, stated the speaker.

Stanley Josse, the Belleville manager, stated that the increase of 22 factories which are going to sell to the co-operative board this year is due to the fact that there is developing much dissatisfaction with the old cheese boards throughout the country.

Bylaws Passed

Several bylaws were passed; the annual year is to close on December 31, instead of November 30. The number of directors are to be increased to eleven. On the board five directors are to be elected by the shareholders.

Several of the representatives spoke about the work of the co-operative board in their respective counties.

New Directors Appointed

Messrs. H. B. Cowan and W. R. Shields were appointed for Peterboro County; W. W. Moore of Montreal and J. Webster for Leeds, the board is to appoint another member for Western Ontario.

Convention Banquet

The evening session took the form of a banquet. The Sedgwick Orchestra supplied the music and Harold Snelgrove gave several very acceptable vocal selections.

H. B. Cowan proposed the toast to the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation. Mr. Cowan stated that he had known Mr. Swoboda for some years, the two of them being connected with a dairy paper in the New England States. Wisconsin, stated the speaker, produces more cheese than Canada and New Zealand together, and Mr. Swoboda was head of a great co-operative marketing scheme in that State.

Mr. Swoboda Speaks

F. G. Swoboda, in his opening remarks, stated that it was the first time, he had been in this part of Ontario, and although the weather is not favorable for getting a good impression of the country, he was very favorably impressed by this section. In Wisconsin, the federation feels that by co-operative marketing it can help the farmer along the road towards greater production and better financing. Too many farmers look upon co-operative marketing as a rainy day proposition and are thus not very enthused over it, as they do not enquire into its benefits. Co-operation and co-operative marketing is an all-year proposition and the large majority of farmers are still in the infant stage of knowing anything about it, so it is up to the leaders to educate them, and as the speaker stated in the afternoon, this can be done by having picnics, banquets, private conversations and through the press. There are three kinds of farmers—the man who will take hold of a proposition and give it an honest trial; the man who will sit on the fence and not give it a fair trial, and the man who is satisfied to let things go as his father had them.

When any new thing comes out there has always been opposition.

Opposition was raised when silos were introduced and progress was very slow at first in Wisconsin, but today every two out of three farmers have a silo. The same thing was true about the growing of alfalfa. Co-operative marketing has had a few failures and these failures always seemed to be more impressed upon the human mind than failures of some private concern.

In the United States 100 billion pounds of milk are produced annually and Wisconsin produces ten billion pounds of this product. Last year Wisconsin produced 330 million pounds of cheese and 157 million pounds of butter; they also manufacture 60 per cent of the condensed milk made in the States, and the total value of their dairy products exceeded 250 million dollars.

The Wisconsin Cheese Producers' Federation was started about 13 years ago by Henry Crumery, as a protest against the high-handed manner which the dealers used in buying cheese on the cheese boards in that State; at first, things went very well, for the dealers expected them to fall through, but as they prospered, considerable opposition developed. In that State few of the factories are co-operatively owned and this added to their troubles. The first year they handled six and one-quarter million pounds of butter and every year since then the amount handled has greatly increased. Today they have twelve warehouses and a supply department, which pays a five per cent patronage dividend, they buy cream and sell it to privately-owner creameries. The cream is bought on a sliding scale of commission and this end of the business has been paying a cent and a half per pound dividend to the individuals. In Uhite States the marketing question is different, as it is a home market, and thus to compete with the cheese boards they have to give a better service to get the trade. But they have built up a market in 42 States, and their chief buyers are wholesale grocers and large meat packing plans.

The federation so as to get the cheese have formed plans for quality contests and distributes prizes to cheese makers. By this plan many makers who were against co-operative marketing have fallen in line and on the whole the quality of the chese has been increased.

G. H. Gillespie proposed the toast to the Ontario Department of Agriculture and it was responded to by W. B. Roadhouse, deputy minister of agriculture.

W. B. Roadhouse.

The department, stated Mr. Roadhouse, endeavors to be of assistance to companies who are carrying on co-operative marketing by furnishing the company with all the statistics and statements which the department has gained from other countries, but the success of the company depends upon the members and the fundamental things which makes the cooperative marketing a success are sound business principles. In co-operative marketing the producer contributes a large share to the success of the principle; he must have faith in and must realize that benefits are to be had in this scheme. Progress in these matters are necessarily slow because of the ramification of the principles involved.

In 1925 we completed the first quarter of the 20th century. At the beginning of this century we were told that it would be Canada's in the line of making progress. In this period we passed through a war, prices have fluctuated, the dollar today does not buy as much as before the war, but when we compare 1925 with 1900 the value of the field crops have increased from 114 million dollars to 216 million dollars. So even with a smaller buying power for the dollar there is still quite an increase.

The dairy industry has decreased in the number of pounds of cheese made, but the value has greatly increased. In 1900, 127 million pounds of cheese were made valuing at 13 million dollars, and last year 109 million pounds of cheese were made valuing at 22 million dollars; butter, 25 years ago, 9 million pounds were made valued at $1,819,500; last year 60 millions pounds were made valued at $22,500,000; thus the amount made has increased six times and the value of this twelve times. In this same period the western provinces have developed a butter industry equal to that of Ontario. Today 10 million dollars worth of condensed milk is made annually along with a marked increase in ice cream. There is no phase of the agricultural industry that has shown such great increases as the dairy part.

The big outstanding phase in this period is the attention paid to the marketing and the grading of all our agricultural products, which is a development in the right direction. To-night we are on the threshold of the spring of another quarter of our history and I firmly and fervently trust that we will not be interrupted by the turmoil which we have recently passed through. We may expect more attention paid to the quality of production and there must be a continuation of marketing the products of the farm on a grading basis, on a quality basis. There will be dificulties, our food supply has to be sent to a foreign market and we must supply what these markets need and when they need it, said the speaker.

May we not find some encouragement at the way problems have been met in the past, and let us look forward to the future to make a still better record in the next 25 years.

William Newman of Lorneville Junction responded to the toast to the Eastern Ontario dairymen; in which he stated that wonderful progress had been made in the dairy industry in the past 50 years. The United Dairymen Co-operative was the first to start the grading of cheese and since then it has been followed up by Federal and Provincial legislation making grading compulsory.

CHANGES ASKED IN PENSION LAW

Veterans Would Give More Scope To Appeal Board.

DISCUSS DETAILS.

OTTAWA, April 16. —(Canadian Press. — Requesting that the scope of the Federal Appeal Board should be enlarged to include appeals as to the amount of pensions in addition for questions of entitlement, the national officers of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, the new unit d organization of war veterans in Canada, placed a number of legislation proposals before the members of the Cabinet today.

Most of the suggestions were designed to adjust difficultics arising in both pension and appeal procedures.

A special plea was also made for the enactment of a section to provide a pension for widows who within a year after discharge, married the soldier subsequent to the appearance of the disability from which he died.

The Legion officers, who have been meeting in Ottawa since Monday, spent the remainder of the day in discussing details relative to the work of adjustment bureau, which is being taken over from the G.W.V.A.

BUDGET BLACK EYE TO LABOR

Government had heard the demand during the election.

Customs Losses.

Millions of dollars had been lost through lack of administration and carelessness in the Customs Department. Had the Department been properly administered, the people of Canada could have received these reductions earlier, instead of the money going into the pockets of smugglers.

Mr. Guthrie stated that the reduction in the postal rate was one which should naturally take place. The Post Office Department had shown a favorable balance for some time; and the increase in postage had been brought about during the war. The Department should be operated for the convenience of the people, and not as a money-making agency for the Government. The reduction in rates should therefore have taken place sooner.

Fiscal Changes.

The portions of the budget which attracted most people were those in which the Minister sought to interfere with the fiscal policy. Ontario was especially interested in this respect in view of the fact that it contributed a very large sum towards the expenses of running the country. On this point he wished to draw attention to the fact that while Saskatchewan had three representatives in the Cabinet, Ontario had only one. While he had known the Minister of Labor as a corporation lawyer, Mr. Guthrie had never "dreamed of him as a man to represent Labor." Neither had he ever dreamed of him as an administrator of the Department of Health or the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The great Province of Ontario was not fairly represented in the Government.

Mr. Guthrie enquired if the Minister of Labor considered he represented the views of Labor in respect to the reduction of the tariff on motor cars. Had Mr. Elliott placed the views of Labor before those members of the Cabinet who had talked of sounding the "death knell" of protection and "the great chamnion from Saskatchewan—the new Minister of Railways and Canals. Mr. Dunning had stated in Western Canada that he was going to get even with some of the Eastern provinces for some of the wrongs done to the West.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, denied ever having made the statement.

Mr Guthrie quoted from Hansard the newspaper report in question. In view of Mr. Dunning's denial, he was prepared to withdraw the remark. Mr. Dunning commented that he was not in the House at the time the article was quoted on February 10, otherwise he would have then made a denial of the newspaper article.

Many Jobs at Stake.

Mr. Guthrie then read a newspaper report of the views of Labor in opposition to a reduction of the duty on motor cars. The article stated that any reduction would be for the purpose of appeasing the Progressives, and that the jobs of 20,000 operators were at stake. The Government, the report stated, had appointed a tariff board. Why should not such a question be referred to this board, and consideration given for the jobs of the operators engaged in the industry and their dependents.

Had the Minister of Labor, enquired Mr. Guthrie, laid this article before his colleagues when the reduction in duty on automobiles was decided upon? He would also like to know whether Mr. Elliott was "protecting" the interests of Labor men or whether he was overborne by Western men favoring the trade.

What else, said Mr. Guthrie, could be expected from a Government that had been defeated at the polls. "The first thing Labor gets is a black eye it never got before," he stated. Scores of centres in Ontario were depending on the motor industry which "this Government is striving to kill."

May Be Death Blow.

Mr. Guthrie said that the reduction of fifteen per cent. was lower than the profits of these companies in Ontario who were manufacturing automobiles. They could not stand the reduction and operate at a profit. This decrease might prove the "death blow" to the industry.

Why had the reduction been made, when the Government had appointed a tariff advisory board? The Government had intimated during the election that it purposed by the appointment of the board "to take the tariff out of politics." Why had the Government appointed a board and then in its first effort sought to "stultify and repudiate" the board. "There is something deeper in this matter than we know of; there is something beneath the surface," said Mr. Guthrie. Only ten days after the appointment of the personnel of the board the Government had "flouted" it.

Mr. Guthrie said he was not a very great worshipper of a tariff board; but his views on this point were in accord with those expressed by the Conservative leader, Mr. Meighen. He thought that the purpose of the Government in appointing this board was so as to "evade responsibility itself." The appointment of this board was a "subterfuge." If this board were only to be a body of "glorified civil servants," why had not its appointment been left to the Civil Service Commission?

Graham Not An Expert.

He had the highest esteem for the chairman of the board, Hon. George P. Graham, but he had never considered Mr. Graham as a "tariff expert." Mr. Graham had been engaged exclusively in the operation of railways. "He knows as much about the Customs tariff of this country as I know about the differential calculus," said Mr. Guthrie. Yet the Government had expressed a desire to take the question of tariff out of politics. Mr. Guthrie had very little confidence in this tariff board.

Mr. Guthrie reviewed the history of the woollen tariffs which had been put on by Sir Wilfred Laurier, not for revenue, but for protection. These tariffs had been maintained through the administrations of Laurier, Borden and Meighen, but after a year in office, the King Government tinkered with tariffs and reduced it from thirty to twenty-four per cent., and the woollen imports jumped until last year twenty million dollars worth of woollens came from the United Kingdom, all of which could have been made in Canadian mills. Other instances were quoted of tariffs fixed by the Fielding - Laurier administration, maintained by the Conservatives later, but cut by the present Government. Every time the Government had put its hands on the Fielding-Laurier tariff it had worked to the detriment of the country.

Facing Free Trade.

The Government's face was resolutely set toward free trade. With three Ministers from Saskatchewan, what hope had the Province of Ontario with only one little Minister in the Cabinet, capable though he was. Mr. Guthrie quoted official trade bulletins of the United States, in which it was pointed out that the goods upon which tariffs had been reduced by the King Government were mostly goods which were sent to Canada by the United States. In concluding, Mr. Guthrie said that if there was any man to whom tribute should be paid, now that the National Railways was approaching the point where it could carry itself, it was Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Premier King then moved that the debate on the budget have precedence over all other business after to-day. He said that it was not the intention to take Monday from the private members, but simply to postpone private members' day until after the budget had been disposed of.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, said that the Conservatives were not prepared to give up next Monday as a private members' day. It was their intention to proceed with an important resolution on that day.

Mr. King agreed that his motion be amended so that the budget will have precedence over all other business after next Monday. The motion carried as amended.

WE WANT TO SERVE THE PEOPLE.

The Examiner in pressing for the admittance of reporters to meetings of County Council committees, Board of Education committees and all other committee meetings of public bodies has no axe to grind in the matter.

We simply ask that we be allowed to contribute as complete a news service for our readers as possible, and in this desire we know that the Examiner has the support of the people.

The right of citizens to know all about the deliberations of public bodies is so clear that it is surprising to find it denied, even though that denial does not come from the County Council itself but from a county official.

In fact, there is a certain amount of curiosity as to just what are the views of the individual members of the County Council in regard to this issue, and the Examiner would be very glad to hear from any or all of them on the subject, either for our own information or for publication as the Councillor may see fit, but preferably to be published.

This year's Council is, of course, not responsible for the policy; it has been handed down year after year, and it is possible that in the face of the very evident pressure of public opinion in favour of a change there may be a throwing open of the doors.

"SAVE-THE-FOREST" WEEK.

Next week has been set apart by a proclamation of the Governor-General as "Save-the-Forest" Week, the campaign being conducted simultaneously with a similar effort in the United States, the international aspect of the problem being recognized.

The people of both countries are being appealed to to recognize the necessity of co-operation on the part of everybody in protecting the forest wealth from destruction.

It is the experience of all forest authorities that the problem can be solved only as the proclamation expresses it, "With the full sympathy, assistance and active support of all the people, practically expressed by increased individual care with fire in the woods and an insistent public demand for proper precautions against fire on the part of all workers or travellers in or adjacent to the forest."

In this effort settlers are urged to observe the fire laws, travellers in forest regions are asked to realize that cigarette or cigar butts, live pipe ashes and unextinguished matches are a very fruitful source of forest fires, and campers are reminded that a neglected camp-fire may often result in disaster.

These and other points will be brought to the attention of our readers by the Examiner during the week in the hope that the people of this district will do what they can to make the campaign mean something.

LAST NIGHT'S BANQUET.

The honours paid the members of the Peterboro Hockey Club at the complimentary banquet tendered them by the City Council last night were richly earned, and the Council's action in arranging for this well-merited tribute will be endorsed by the citizens.

The Peterboro team in its two years in senior hockey has made a wonderful showing, advertising its home community from one end of the country to the other.

Starting the season of 1924-25 as an intermediate team, the Peterboro club was promoted to the senior ranks by the O.H.A. Executive, won the S.P.A. Cup by defeating such well-known teams as Niagara Falls, Preston, Parkdale and Sault Ste. Marie, and followed this initial success by reaching the O.H.A. finals.

During the season that has just closed the team not only reached the finals, but captured the senior championship, and then, by defeating the intermediate winners, proved themselves to be the best team in the whole O.H.A., a record upon which every player and those responsible for the management of the team deserve every credit.

The watches and medals presented to the players last night and the nice things said about both by local speakers and the representatives of the Ontario Hockey Association who were present represent the feeling of Peterboro citizens generally and of thousands of hockey fans throughout the Province toward the senior winners.

Last night's successful function was a fitting wind-up to a season crowded with triumphs.

THE BUDGET.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, undoubtedly brought down a popular Budget yesterday.

The people of Canada not only find a measure of relief in taxation along lines that had been foreshadowed, but also receive some surprise announcements.

Chief of these is Mr. Robb's statement that on Dominion Day Canada will return to penny postage.

There had been little hint of any change in the postage rates, and the announcement that the Dominion is going back to the old scale will be received with delight throughout the country.

The pre-war postage will mean relief for almost every citizen of the Dominion.

The vexatious tax on receipts, which was resented by every one, has been abolished—another popular move.

In regard to the income tax, Mr. Robb has provided for material reductions that will ease the burden off the shoulders of those who felt it most, and will go a long way towards putting Canadians on the same footing as their neighbors in the United States.

The exemption in the case of married men has been raised to $3,000, a difference of $1,000, while single citizens who hitherto had to pay income tax on anything in excess of $1,000, have another $500 to work on now, the minimum being placed at $1,500.

These are changes that will be most welcome to wage-earners who have found the tax, on top of their other expenses and levies, most annoying.

A substantial cut has been made on automobiles selling at less than $1,200, and a fair-sized slice taken off the duty on higher-priced cars, thus ensuring cheaper automobiles to the people of this country in recognition of the fact that the motor car has passed beyond the luxury class and is now a necessity.

At the same time Canadian manufacturers are being given the advantage of a drawback on the materials used in the manufacture of automobiles.

Other tariff changes made by Mr. Robb affecting tropical fruits and other foodstuffs will reduce the cost of these articles, too.

All in all, the Finance Minister has succeeded in bringing down a Budget that represents considerable modification of taxation affecting the masses, and his proposals will be enthusiastically received.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

The Brockville Rotary Club is being asked to co-operate with the district agricultural representatives in conducting a potato club amongst the boys of the neighboring townships of Elizabethtown and Augusta as a means of indicating urban interest in and sympathy with the aspirations of the country boy.

This is a step towards the development of a greater intimacy between town and country which is worthy of wide extension. As townsmen, we can afford to take a much greater interest in the rural community than we do. For all of its assumption of superiority, the town is dependent upon the country for much of its prosperity as the country is in turn dependent upon the town. Neither could very well carry on without the other. The interchange of commodities between the two classes is so extensive and so necessary that one might imagine the understanding would be closer than is unhappily the case. It is to the town that the farmer turns for his manufactured articles as well as for his market. If he requires a new implement, new fencing, new clothing, or new boots, he is patronizing an urban factory; if he seeks an outlet for his products, he obtains it in the town. The demand for manufactured articles generated in the country keeps factories in operation and ensures steady employment to mechanics; the carriage of rural products brings business to the railroads and wages to railroad employees; rural patronage helps merchants to keep their places of business open; rural foodstuffs keep the town from starvation.

The country is under a similar debt to the town. If there were no large centres of population, the farmer would be at a loss to market his products and would have little opportunity for adding to his income. If there were no towns and no factories, the farmer would be under the necessity of returning to the state of domestic industry which prevailed before such towns and such factories did spring into existence. He would have to manufacture his implements, his clothing and all of his other requirements as best he might. The farmer cannot get along without the town any more than the townsman can get along without the country. Each is vitally necessary to the well-being of the other.

As has been said so often, if agriculture prospers, the country at large prospers, and never was the truth of this statement better exemplified than in recent months when optimism has succeeded despair in business circles, largely because of the influence of the millions of dollars released by a successful Western grain crop. That influence has been felt in every branch of Canadian industry. Because of the increased purchasing power of the farmer he has been able to assume greater obligations, thus generating industrial activity and improving employment. Similarly, an increase in employment improves the farmer's market, and the cycle of prosperity continues until an unfavorable crop year brings it to an end.

Such being the case, it is to the very great advantage of the town that the lot of the farmer shall be made as satisfactory as possible and that every encouragement shall be given to him. By a greater measure of co-operation between the town and the country this object can be attained. The townsman gains no more from being exclusive than does the farmer. Each can afford to show a little more consideration for the other. How many people in Brockville have made a serious attempt to understand the problems of the nearby farmer? How many have endeavored to investigate rural conditions at close hand? How many, when they meet a rural acquaintance, take the trouble to solicit information about his crops, or take the time to listen to his grievances and to offer him such assistance as lies in their power? The subject is a time-worn one, yet there is ground for its repeated discussion. In some committees great good has been done to the cause of co-operation by meetings and dinners promoted by Boards of Trade, service clubs and the like. A bank manager in Belleville holds an annual banquet to which representative farmers from the neighborhood are invited, together with representative business men. A point of contact is thus developed and each class learns a great deal about the point of view and problems of the other. The district agricultural representatives, too, perform a serice in the same connection which is proving of ever-increasing value. More and more, city dwellers are being invited to take an active interest in rural affairs to the end of lessening the cleavage which exists. It is a good work, one of the best that could be undertaken, and if the towns are wise they will not fail to accept the invitation. There are many ways in which the townsman may help the farmer, as he may also help the townsman, and the development of harmony and mutual confidence is not the least of the benefits which may accrue.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr. Robb's income tax reductions will be applauded by Canadians of all shades of politics.

Now that the Budget is down and the front and back benchers have recovered their second wind, Ottawa can look forward to another deluge of oratory.

From remarks made by Mr. Drury at the Progressive convention the impression seems to have been created that the ex-Premier does not altogether approve of Premier Ferguson.

All guesses as to the contents of the Budget are expected to be settled today.

Members of public bodies who are reluctant to let the public know how their decisions are arrived at are failing to realize their responsibilities as representatives of the people.

A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—"I had to lie, bribe and drink to put over prohibition in America."

These are the beautiful words of Pussyfoot Johnson himself in his personally written article in the April "Cosmopolitan."

It would not be offensive to the mentality of prohibitionists, I hope, if I suggested that Mr. Johnson be engaged as a Sunday School superintendent. The doctrine of force was not Christ's. It is the doctrine of shame. The man entitled to his freedom must have it if civilization is not to end in war and crime.

BOOST PETERBOROUGH GIRL

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Congratulations to Miss Mae Petrie for standing third at the end of the first period in the Farmers Sun competition, with 188 competitors.

First, Mrs. Walter Brien, Victoria county, 218,000 votes; second, Roy Avery, West Bruce county, 218,000 votes; third, Mae Petrie, Peterboro county, 216,000 votes.

Let every one boost till Monday next and let the big McLaughlin-Buick come to Peterboro. Don't forget to send her all the coupons you can spare. Peterboro won the Senior Hockey championship and can win the big car if every one boosts. Thanking you, I remain,

Yours truly,
W. H. MERRELL.

ANSWERS REEVE RYE .

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

The esteemed Reeve of North Monaghan aligns himself in tonight's paper with the speak-easies of the County Council in criticizing my letter to you of a few days ago in regard to the exclusion of reporters from County Council meetings. He says I should not hide my identity behind a pen-name while criticizing the action of councillors in hiding their actions from the people who elected them. May I ask the Reeve not to align me with the members of the County Council?

In the first place, I am a private citizen and as such am under no obligation to openly espouse any cause or to reveal my identity in supporting or denouncing any movement. Were I a member of Peterborough County Council I should be under the obligation to lay all my cards on the table for the benefit of the people whose money I was using in the game. Provided always, of course, that the interests of THE PEOPLE were not hurt by my action. You will notice that I take a different stand from that adopted by the County Clerk and Treasurer. He places the interests of THE COUNCILLOR on top—and expresses the fear that the Councillors' private interests and business might suffer. Why?

If any Councillor fears that what he is doing with the people's money and business would hurt him in their eyes if it became known—in my opinion—he is not fit to be the people's representative and is not honestly administering the office entrusted to him. And if a man is defeated because of something published as being done in committee—why shouldn't he be defeated, if he did the thing? Does it make an act that is intrinsically bad for the community better because it is done in Committee?

In case the County Clerk's statement has lapsed from your memory, allow me to recall it:

"In Committee the different members express an opinion which he considers in the best interest of the Municipality and if he is specifically reported as having assumed such stand, then some syndicate or part of the Municipality are disappointed and deal with him accordingly at next election which is only trivial compared with the effect it may have on his private business although as stated (it may have been the proper course to pursue in the interest of the Municipality at large.)"

This is taken from the County Clerk's letter in your paper of Tuesday. Out of all the mass of verbiage what do we find? Simply the statement that if the councillors' actions and speeches in committee were reported they would suffer in their private businessess.

Isn't that the smallest kind of small potatoes?

And the species of tubers handled by the Reeve of North Monaghan is even smaller. He answers nothing, explains nothing, apologizes for nothing, and is evidently not only unashamed of the mouse-hole methods of conducting business to which he is a partner, but aligns himself with the only exponents of star chamber methods in this district of Ontario.

I am too good a friend of the writer of that letter—in private life—to wish risking his friendship by revealing my identity, so I hope you will allow me again to sign myself

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 15 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian wheat on the Montreal market today was quiet but there was a good demand from foreign buyers for Canadian Western oats and as cables were stronger at an advance of fully 3d per quarter, quite a fair business was done for April and May shipment, principally the latter position.

The demand for cash grain was also quieter and the only sale of importance reported was a load of Canadian Western No. 4 barley at 7 3-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal. Spot prices for oats were unchanged.

Prices for winter wheat grades of flour were advanced 10 cents per barrel. The undertone to the spring wheat market was strong and prospects are that prices will go higher in the near future.

The feature of the butter trade was the pronounced weakness that prevailed and jobbing prices were reduced 2 cents per lb. with sales of finest creamery butter at 37c per lb. in solid packages, and at 38c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 311 boxes, as compared with 802 for the same day last week, and 406 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no new developments in this department of the trade owing to the continued absence of any important demand and in consequence stocks on spot are steadily accumulating and prices have a lower tendency, but at present local houses continue to pay 16c per lb for fodder made goods f.o.b. country points.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, April 15 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.84 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 3-8.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 15 (Canadian Press).—A good export demand and extensive short covering created a bullish atmosphere in wheat trading here today and prices showed an advance of 2c to 3 7-8c at the close. The final quotations were: May $1.56 5-8, a gain of 3 3-8c; July $1.54 3-4; October $1.34 3-8. The July future scored the advance of 3 7-8c on the extreme bulge, May touched $1.46 5-8, a gain of 3 3-8c, and October $1.54 3-4, an advance of 4 1-4c.

A feature of the trading today was the narrowing of the July discount under the May to about 2c, this month responding to heavy professional short covering, credited to Eastern interests.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, April 15 (Canadian Press).—Egg markets generally are unchanged today. Some centers report a keen demand for storage purposes.

Toronto—Steady with firm undertone. Jobbing, extras 31, firsts 29.

Montreal—Light receipts, demand good, price unchanged.

Winnipeg — Steady, receipts increasing. Country shippers are selling extras 26, firsts 24, seconds 18 cases returned.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO April 15 (Canadian Press).—Soaring prices in the wheat market resulted today from big export sales and from unfavorable conditions for the new crop of spring wheat northwest.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 3-8 to 4c net higher, May (new) $1.67 7-8 to $1.68, and July $1.41 5-8 to $1.41 3-4. Corn finished 1 3-8 to 1 3-4c up; oats 1-4c to 7-8c gain, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents. European purchasing of North American wheat for immediate shipment was estimated to aggregate 1,500,000 bushels and was accompanied by heavy general absorption of future deliveries.

At the day's top figures, Chicago May delivery of wheat showed an advance of about 12 cents a bushel as compared to prices current at one time last week. The premium for May over July widened to 26 1-2c. In this connection it was asserted by some authorities that Chicago July delivery is the cheapest wheat in the world, and that this market is on a shipping basis to Liverpool, all-rail to New York.

Corn and oats ascended with wheat. Buying on the part of previous sellers was a notable feature of the corn market.

Mrs. Wm. W. Card, Bancroft, Ont., writes:—"Last winter my three children had very bad colds, and they would cough all night long, which was very annoying to the rest of the family.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

I immediately got some, and after I had used four bottles of it my children became quite well again, thanks to Dr. Wood's."

A Product of Importance or Merely an Item

Which is Yours?

DOES the busy dealer look upon your product as an important one, or merely an item among two hundred or so lines of goods carried in stock?

Does he give it prominence in his store? Does he display it in his windows? Or is he more or less indifferent about it?

Many a good product is neglected, overlooked or treated with indifference by the busy storekeeper and his clerks, simply because it has not had national advertising to give it prestige and bring it into the limelight.

The dealer is human the same as the public. He responds to the influence and power of national advertising just as does the public.

In his experience, he has seen the sales of many a product jump ahead after it has been advertised judiciously, therefore he looks upon advertised products with an entirely different light than he views the unadvertised.

He looks upon advertised products with importance. He knows that advertising creates a reputation for a product that makes it sell more readily than the unadvertised. Therefore, he brings it more prominently to the notice of the public. He wants consumers to know he has it in stock.

He realizes, also, that the manufacturer who advertises has abundant faith in his product or he wouldn't spend money in advertising it. Faith begets faith. The dealer feels he takes no chances in giving an advertised product a prominent showing. He is confident it will make good with his customers.

• • •

If you make an unadvertised product or one that is not getting the prominence you think due it on account of its excellence, we would welcome a consultation with you. We have helped others to advertise successfully, and to get their products prominently before the public and the trade. We have confidence in our ability to be of real service to you, otherwise we wouldn't be spending our own money in advertising.

U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT DENIES REVENUE CUTTER FIRED ON CANADIAN RUM VESSEL

Probably Attacked By Rival Liquor Craft—Statement Replies To Charges of Canadian Schooner's Captain and Crew.

WASHINGTON, April 16—(Canadian Press)—Charges that the Canadian schooner Eastwood was fired upon by the coastguard cutter Seneca on February 15 have been found by the treasury to be without foundation.

The investigation was made upon an inquiry by the British embassy after the Eastwood's captain and crew members had filed affidavits with Canadian authorities asserting that the Seneca had fired on their ship and hit it many times.

In announcing its findings, the State department said it had information showing that for more than a year the Eastwood had hovered off the coast "with the obvious intention of landing liquor in the United States."

It added that if the Eastwood was fired on, the attack probably had been made by a rival liquor craft.

PERJURY ADDS JAIL TERM AND FINE TO MOONSHINER'S PENALTY

Ollie Kellett, of Lindsay To Serve Another Two Months in Jail.

TOTAL FINE $550.

LINDSAY, April 16.—At a session of the police court Thursday, Ollie Kellett, who was sentenced on March 27th to a month's imprisonment and also fined $300 and costs on a B.O.T.A. charge, faced Police Magistrate Bradford on the charge of perjury. He was sentenced to two months in the county jail with a fine of $250 and costs, and in default of payment an additional six months.

Kellett's house was searched some time ago by Provincial Officer Storey and License Inspector Porter, a uantity of alcohol was found in the furnace. Kellett swore that he went to Oshawa the day after the search in order to secure a position, returning to Lindsay that night. He went to the Motor City, he declared, the following day, and went to work for the Pedlar Co. The authorities investigated his story, and learned that the statement made in court was a false one.

Kellet was defended in court today by Mr. L. V. O'Connor, who made a strong plea in his behalf as well as on behalf of his family.

Police Magistrate Bradford referred to the prevalence of perjury in the courts at the present day. It was no trifling offence as the statute had fixed a severe penalty for those who were guilty of the crime. The courts were humane like individuals, but it was necessary that they be purged of these offences. As a police magistrate he had a serious duty to perform, and he did not intend to shirk it. After taking everything into consideration, he would take advantage of a clause in the statute which permitted the imposition of a sentence which was part fine and part imprisonment.

SCHOONER WITH BIG RUM CARGO WAS RELEASED

Customs Enquiry Equipment Demands Information of Seizure Three Years Ago.

EVIDENCE OF GUILT.

Suspicion That Cargo Was Destined For Sale in Canada.

OTTAWA, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Why was the Lunenburg schooner W. C. Kennedy, seized by the Canadian Customs with $35,000 worth of liquor aboard, afterwards released from penalties and her cargo restored?

This question was put to R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, at the Customs probe Thursday by Hon. R. B. Bennett.

Mr. Farrow and two other high Customs officials are to be called again to-day, when they have gone over the three-year-old files and refreshed their memories on the tarnsaction.

The W. C. Kennery was seized in June, 1923, eight miles from Pictou Island, N.S., with 806 cases of her original 994 cases of liquor from St. Pierre Miquelon, billed to Nassau. Her captain admitted that the other 188 cases had been transferred at sea to a motor boat, said to be operated by Messrs. Betts and Mead of Halifax, who owned the entire cargo. The Customs authorities suspected that the rest of the cargo was meant for Canadian consumption, but there was no proof that Customs regulations had been broken within the three-mile limit, or that the missing 188 cases had actually been landed.

Proof of Offence.

In the light, however, of some conflict in testimony given by the Kennedy's captain, and that of the cargo's owners, several members of the committee thought the vessel and cargo, worth in all $55,000, should have been forfeited to the Canadian Treasury. Mr. Bennett particularly drew attention to a letter, signed "R. B.," and intercepted by the Customs cruiser when it was being smuggled aboard the Kennedy after the seizure, which admonished the captain and crew of the Kennedy not to let the Customs people "bluff" them, not to answer "even one question" but to demand their lawyer.

Mr. Bennett thought there was ample proof that the Kennedy was breaking Canadian law and should not have been absolved from blame. Yesterday, Customs officials took the stand that crime had not been proved. The matter will be brought up again to-day.

Evidence showed that the W. C. Kennedy was originally owned by William Duff, M.P. for Lunenburg, was sold to the Kennedy Shipping Company of Lunenburg, and at the time of her enterprise was under charter to Mead and Betts. The captain of the Kennedy said that he was paid by Mr. Duff and also the crew, but that he took his instructions from the charterers.

PLENTY OF MUD ON SOME ROADS

Motor Traffic Held Up in Burnbrae District—Factories Open.

MAKERS STAND HIGH

BURNBRAE, April 16.—The roads of East Seymour and those of the Burnbrae district particularly are in the worst shape for motor traffic that they have ever been. The heavy snowfall, coming just as the frost was starting to leave the grounds, and the consequent floods, with alternate freezing and thawing, has resulted in road conditions which are deplorable. Washouts are frequent, culverts everywhere have caved in, and practically every piece of road which is not gravel surfaced has gone axle-deep in mud. Road Superintendent Brunton was looking over some of the bad places during the first of the week and making temporary repairs. The bad conditions this spring will mean an added expense for the Council.

Cheese factories are opening up again for the season. Prince of Wales and Menie factories are running four days a week, and the former is having a large spring make due to the fact that Brae factory is a week late in starting owing to the severe illness of the maker, Leslie Shillinglaw.

It is gratifying to note that two of the local makers stood high in the grading lists recently published by the United Dairymen's Co-operative, Limited. Mr. Frank Little of Menie had the high average of 99.1 per cent., firsts and specials, while Mr. Leslie Shillinglaw at Brae as a first-year man had a score of 98.4 per cent. firsts. In both cases a few vats of turnip flavor caused the only second-grade cheese, so that both makers should have been in the 100 per cent. class on their own merits. Mr. Remington, Hoards; Mr. Barton, Rylstone, and Mr. Brown, Stanwood, all stood high as well. Special engraved certificates were presented by the Co-operative to all makers with scores of 95 per cent. firsts or over in the factories selling their product through this agency.

Trapping has been a poor game here this year, due to the late opening of the creeks, and some of the leading trappers have been forced to content themselves with very small catches.

FARM HELP SOUGHT.

Great Demand at Cobourg For Men With Experience.

COBOURG, April 16.—There is quite a strong demand here for experienced farm labor, and several farmers in the vicinity have stated that they require a good man. As yet there has been no opportunity of getting at the spring work, and it looks as if the lateness of the season will accentuate the need of extra hired help.

No Maple Sugar Yet Offered In Cobourg Market

COBOURG, April 16.—An unusual thing has happened here this season and that is that no maple syrup has so far been offered upon the farmer's market. This is no doubt due to the heavy snowstorms of Easter week, and the fact that there has not been a good flow of sap. Farmers are hoping now that "good sugar weather", will not come this season, as they are anxious to see the frost get out of the ground, so that they can get on the land, and at the first seeding.

FRANC DOWN TO NEW LOW LEVEL

Quoted at 29.64 to the Dollar Despite Balanced Budget.

BRITISH "DUNNING."

PARIS, April 16 (Canadian Press) The franc fails to respond to the influence of the financial budget and the good start made by the movement for voluntary contributions to finance a sinking fund for France's debts.

The dollar reached the record figure of 29.64 francs last evening after the closing of the bourse. The official closing was 29.61. The explanation given in financial circles for the weakness of French exchange is that, despite the balm of the budget, the requirements of the French importing trade remains the same, and, payments coming due must be met. Many importers have delayed to cover themselves in anticipation of an improvement in the franc after the budget was balanced.

The resignation of Louis Malvy as minister of the interior after the recent speech of M. Herriot, president of the chamber, indicating that there is still determination on the part of the extreme radicals to insist upon collaboration with the Socialists, offset the favorable influence of a balanced budget.

The uneasiness in financial quarters was influenced by two succeeding unfavorable bank statements. This week's balance sheet of the Bank of France shows a better situation, but it is said that the harm has already been done and is aggravated by the insistence of the British that France make a payment on her war debts so that it can be inscribed in the forthcoming British budget.

ELEVATOR SALE SEEMS A BENEFIT

Will Eliminate Superfluous Competition Says Prominent Miller.

EQUALIZE PRICE.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 16. — Canadian Press. — The sale of the Saskatchewan Cooperative Elevator Company to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool should be warmly welcomed from a grain trade point of view, according to James Stewart, a nationally known grain and milling authority.

"The sale should be welcomed as elimination of superfluous competition in view of the Saskatchewan pool's apparent programme of ownership of elevators at every station irrespective of whether or not farmer-owned companies are already there," said Mr. Stewart.

"As far as I know none of the responsible pool executives expect to effect any improvement or saving in the physical handling of grain but rather to equalize the price. In any event the pools and the other farmers companies are visible expressions of the minds of the growers and owners of the actual grain and must be respected."

Continuing, Mr. Stewart, who is president of the Maple Leaf flour mills, said:

"In so far as any interests with which I am associated, we expect to continue the same cordial relationship which already exists."

NO SOLUTION IN COAL DEADLOCK

Will Continue Until Next Week at Least—Miners Seek Aid.

LONDON, April 16. — Canadian Press. — The deadlock over the question of the wages of the coal miners will continue at least until next week, when Premier Baldwin, who yesterday conferred with the executive of the Miners' Federation, will similarly get in touch with the mine owners.

There is another meeting of the Cabinet Thursday, but no sign of any advance toward a solution. In the meantime Herbert Smith, A. J. Cook and other miners' leaders started last night for Brussels to consult with the Miners' International for the purpose of getting support in withholding supplies of coal from England, in the event a coal strike becomes necessary. It is believed however, that the international organization will refuse such help.

FIND SAW BLADES IN BANDIT'S CELL

Tools Smuggled To Whittemore at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 16. — Hacksaw blades smuggled into the cell of Richard Reese Whittemore, alleged bandit and New York gang leader, were discovered by attendants at the Erie county jail yesterday.

The fine-tempered steel blades were concealed in an envelope, hidden in a package of stationery.

Written in a slanting feminine hand on the inside of a folded sheet of paper was written this message:

"Rich, fondest regards and best wishes from J. N. and S."

On the package were five two-cent stamps. The parcel had been mailed in Buffalo.

Whittemore is held under double lock and constant guard in an isolated section of the county jail. He is awaiting trial set for Monday on a first degree murder charge, in which he is accused of killing Louis Yarrington and Charles Clifford, guards of the Bank of Buffalo money van, when $93,000 cash was stolen.

Even though Whittemore had received the hacksaw blades, Jailer Leib believes that he would have been unable to use them in any attempt to cut his way to liberty. This is because he is never for one minute out of the gaze of a special guard, as he is shifted to a new cell daily and the one vacated thoroughly searched.

Lights Rob The Women of Beauty: Bobbed Heads Do Not Help Much

TORONTO, April 16.—(Canadian Press).—The dramatic critic of the Mail and Empire has been considering beauty or the lack of it as revealed in choral societies. He maintains that a choral society, massed on the banked seats of a stage, is not a pretty sight. "To us," he says, "it has always seemed that the white dresses and the lights rob the women of beauty. Here is a point that has always puzzzled us. There must be pretty women in every choral society, but for some reason you do not think so when you see them in the mass. Also, there must be homely women in a ballet, but somehow the massed effect makes for an impression of beauty. The editor of the Musical Times, London, England, holds a very different view. He thinks that nothing more beautiful can be seen in the halls of entertainment than the women of a choral society in their pretty white dresses. It may seem ungallant to continue the dispute, but after gazing very hard at three different choral societies inside of six weeks we are still unable to get a thrill from the loveliness like that which the Londoner enjoys. The bobbed heads do not help much either. They give you the impression that the Jack of Clubs and the Jack of Diamonds are present in very large numbers."

TOUCH KEPT WITH FLYERS TO NORTH POLE

Apparatus as Regular Equipment Will Be Taken By Every Expedition.

LOW WAVE LENGTHS.

Relay League Asks Amateurs To Watch For Messages.

Radio will face its supreme test this summer when it participates in the greatest series of Arctic expeditions in history.

Practically every expedition bound for the North Pole and nearby territories, and there are to be about a dozen from all over the world, will take radio apparatus as regular equipment. Not only will there be transmitting and receiving equipment, but even radio direction finders, in place of the old compasses, will be included, and the airplanes in some of the adventures will be guided along in the land of ice by earth induction compasses developed by engineers of the U. S. army.

Low wavelengths will predominate, in the radio communications between civilization and the North Pole, but there will be messages also on the higher wavelengths and on some directly above the broadcasting range.

One of the expeditions that will be followed up more keenly perhaps than all the rest, because of its radio tie-up, is that commanded by Captain George H. Wilkins and directed by the Detroit Aviation Society. This trip will have the concentrated attention of the 16,000 amateurs of America forming the American Radio League.

Use MacMillan Sets.

At the same time radio fans who last year built their own short wavelength receivers to listen in on news from the MacMillan expedition into the Arctic will have the opportunity to trot out these receivers and hook them up for reception of the reports from the Wilkins journey. For the apparatus taken on this trip will emit messages on the 20, 40 and 80-meter wavelenths for which the MacMillan receivers were made.

The apparatus to be used on this trip is similar to that taken by Lieutenant F. H. Schenell, traffic manager of the American Radio Relay League, on his cruise with the Pacific fleet last year. The only change made to the transmitter is in the power supply, the new set using four 50-watt tubes.

The base of operations will be Pt. Barrow, Alaska, where a novel station will be set up, for communication with the world to the south as well as contact with the airplanes on their way to the pole. The Burgess laboratories at Madison, Wis., have built a special portable receiver weighing 11½ pounds, and a transmitter weighing 17 pounds. The entire apparatus, receiver, transmitter and aerial equipment, weighs 45 pounds.

Two western amateurs have started out with Captain Wilkins to work the radio equipment ot Pt. Barrow. They're Howard Mason, operating station 7BU, and Robert Waskey, operating station 7UU, both of Seattle. They'll use the calls KFZH and KFZG, operating on 20, 40 and 80 meters.

Amateurs on Guard.

American Radio Relay League officials, anxious to keep in close touch with this expedition, have advised their 16,000 amateurs to stand watch for these calls and relay whatever messages they may receive. It is likely that, as in the case of the MacMillan expedition, schedules will be arranged with various amateurs after it has been determined in which part of the country best reception from the Arctic is possible.

This is merely an example of the thoroughness with which all the other polar expeditions have arranged their means of communications. The Amundsen dirigible will carry a new type of transmitter and receiver, designed by Senator William Marconi, the famous inventor. This will receive reports from government stations on meteorological conditions along the edge of the polar basin, and the final course of the airship will depend largely on these radio reports.

In addition, the ship will have a wireless compass to guide it, while the airplanes of other expeditions will be guided to the North Pole by means of the earth induction compasses designed by U. S. army engineers.

Reports from the Amundsen dirigible will go out on wavelengths of 450, 600, 900 and 1,200 meters through transmitters of 200 watts power.

FEW TRAPS SET.

Ice Delays Trappers Near Omemee.

OMEMEE, April 16.—Trappers in this vicinity are exceedingly disappointed with the weather man. The season for rat-trapping is almost over and as yet no one has reported a catch owing to the ice, very few traps have been set in comparison with previous years. It was not until Tuesday that the channel was opened all the way down the river and on other places the ice would carry one across.

The roads are fast breaking up, and buggies and cars are making their appearance into the village from a short distance. Mailmen are experiencing much difficulty in covering their routes as in some places the snow is five feet deep, while another stretch of road is bare.

Influenza

Now, when the germs of Influenza abound, physicians advise keeping the bowels open. Constipation poisons the blood, lowering your resistance to the germs of infectious diseases.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle and so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

DRUNKENNESS MORE WIDESPREAD THAN IN DAYS OF OPEN SALOONS

Statement of U. S. Wets Before Senate Prohibition Committee.

QUOTES FIGURES.

WASHINGTON, April 16—Drunkenness is more widespread now than in the days of the open saloon, Stanley Shirk, research director of the New York Moderation league, told the senate prohibition committee Tuesday.

Opening the final stage of the wet case, Shirk revealed results of his national survey, showing arrests for drunkenness had increased in 457 representative places, from 250,000 in 1920 to 550,000 in 1924.

Every state in the union was represented in the survey, from which Shirk concluded:

"When we consider that drunkenness generally has already increased to the pre-prohibition level, and that drunken drivers and drunken children have increased far above anything ever known before in this country, we cannot escape the conclusion that the Volstead act has utterly failed to do what it was intended to do, namely: promote temperance and sobriety.

Next Generation

"Conditions have become worse, not better, each year. With the 'next generation' drinking as never before, there seems to be no hope that the Volstead act, in its present drastic form, will accomplish its purpose in the long run.

"From the experience before national prohibition of the states which failed restrictive laws, from the experience of the whole country during the restrictive years 1918-1919, and from the experience of the Canadian provinces, we believe that a greater degree of temperance can be attained by a wise restrictive law than by a bone dry law, which does not comamnd the respect of a large part of the people.

Eliminate Corruption

"We are also of the firm conviction that such a policy of wise restriction would have the incident advantage of eliminating almost entirely the scandalous corruption and bigotry of public officials; would stop the growth of the bootlegging millionaire class; would check disrespect for law, and would in addition produce a handsome national revenue."

In former wet states drunkenness has been the same now as before prohibition, Shirk said, but in states which had their own dry laws before prohibition drunkenness is much higher than in 1914.

Drink in Class Rooms

Shirk read a letter from Chief of Police Stroebel, of Reading, Pa., stating there was an overwhelming increase in drunkenness among children. He said he knew of children being taken from class rooms "dead drunk," and that hip flasks were carried by young dancers at most parties.

Only Senator Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma, of the committee of five, was present at the first hour of the morning session.

Textile Workers' Children Picket White House Door

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(United Press).—Six children of strikers of New Jersey textile mill workers, accompanied by their parents and other strikers, marched to the White House today to picket President Coolidge in an effort to win his support for the strike.

The children, ranging from four to seven years of age, bore banners, the first of which said, "We want to eat."

Another said, "Our mothers work nights; our fathers days; who can care for us?'

A third asked the President to come to Passiac and see how we live.

ARBITRATE PRICE FOR ELEVATORS

W. G. Styles Nominated By Wheat Pool Board.

REGINA, Sask., April 16.—(Canadian Press.)—W. G. Styles, formerly manager of the National Trust Company and later of the Northern Trusts, has been appointed by the wheat pool to the board of arbitrators who will determine the price to be paid for the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company.

With a view of furthering negotiations for the sale members of the executive of the pool and the elevator company waited on the government yesterday. They proposed to the government the release of the shareholders of the elevator company from all liability in respect to the unpaid portion of their shares for loans hitherto made by the government to the company and the transfer of such physical assets to the two concerns as would be considered satisfactory security by the lenders. It is understood satisfactory arrangements to that end were agreed upon.

PROHIBITION IS ELECTION ISSUE

Bitter Senatorial Contest Seen in State of Illinois.

WORLD COURT, TOO.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Prohibition and the world court are to be the chief objects of attack during the bitter senatorial campaign that Illinois is facing as a result of Tuesday's state-wide primaries.

Democrats of this state voted their satisfaction with the "dripping wet" platform of their boss, George E. Brennan, naming him as their candidate for the United States Senate.

Brennan's greatest appeal for votes will be made on the fact that he favors—not modification — but repeal of the prohibition laws.

Republicans, in a primary contest of even greater national significance, refused to endorse the present senator, William B. McKinley, a so-called Coolidge Republican; voiced their disapproval of the world court, and selected Col. Frank L. Smith as their candidate.

Smith will not discuss prohibition but will ask for votes on his promise to fight the court to the limit.

MacDonald Says British Government Like Soviet

LONDON, April 16. Canadian Press. — It is somewhat of a novelty for a British Conservative government to be likened to the Russian Soviet Administration, yet Ramsay MacDonald, a former Labor Premier, lengthily catalogued the analogies between the two during last night's debate in the House of Commons, when a section of the economy bill transferring a surplus of over 7,000,00 pounds (about $4,86),300) from the army, navy and air force insurance fund to the treasury was dealt with. After a long discussion the House accepted the government proposal.

MANY CONTESTS FOR FIDDLERS

Ford's Lead Followed in Many Parts of the Continent.

FOR OLD-TIMERS

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 16. — (By Canadian Press).—Something more than a fickle fad was established when Michigan's champion old time fiddler was set up some time ago in an auditorium of his own and with his own orchestra. At least that is what Southern Saskatchewan is thinking as the result of the old-time fiddlers' contest staged here recently.

The contest which was conducted over a period of five days, brought into competition fourteen fiddlers, all more than 45 years of age. One of them was a woman. Large crowds were attracted to the novel event and it was left to the audience to select a winner.

Reviving the jigs, reels and schottisches of Canada's earlier days, the fiddlers provided entertainment of a kind seldom heard during the present-day dance progammes of Jazz and Charleston.

The championship was finally awarded to Malcolm Beaton, who despite his 78 years wielded a bow with great dexterity and thrilled the audience with his versatality.

Beaton, in addition to a varied repertoire of reels and jigs, standard more than forty years ago, offered several old Gaelic favorites which he learned as a boy. To the accompaniment of these numbers he executed a brisk step-dance, double shuffled smartly and performed the heel and toe dance to the delight of the spectators.

With the title of champion old-time fiddler, Mr. Beaton was presented with a silver trophy, a cash prize and a vaudeville contract to appear in three Canadian theatres.

Mr. Beaton was born near Hunt River, Prince Edward Island in 1848. In 1910 he moved West taking a homestead near Piapot, Sask. In Prince Edward Island, he was for forty years one of the best known fiddlers. He has been married twice and is the father of twenty-two children, fifteen of whom are living today. The youngest is four years old.

OLD MANITOBA DAYS DESCRIBED

Fish, Birds and Animals Were All Very Plentiful.

VETERAN SPEAKS

WINNIPEG, Man., April 16. Canadian Press. — Life in Manitoba nearly 125 years ago and the experiences of the pioneer settlers of the Red River valley were described by Dr. C. N. Bell, veteran medical practitioner of Winnipeg, in an address before the Natural History Society here.

Armed with volumes of historic data, Dr. Bell declared that when Alexander Henry came to the province in 1800 he found many wonders that have since disappeared.

There were shoals of fish in the rivers pelicans and wild pigeons in myriads and thousands of snakes. Great herds of bison roamed over territory which to-day serves as the business district of Winnipeg. Nations of wild Indians were camped near the banks of the Red and Assiniboine rivers.

Some of these things were still to be seen when Dr. Bell came to Winnipeg as a lad of 16 with the Wolseley expedition. The Manitoba capital then was a handful of log houses, quite separate from Fort Garry. Its population then was 241.

He witnessed the extinction of the passenger pigeon and told of seeing a herd of buffalo on the march, stretched over a distance of about 20 miles. He had eaten with the Indians, whose habit then he said was to get up three or four times in the middle of the night for snacks of 3 pounds or so of buff 'o meat. In his boyhood days the fields of Manitoba abounded with wild fruit, particularly grapes and plums.

Referring to the humorous side of life in the frontier days, Dr. Bell related how an old time Red river dance had been unexpectedly broken up. The dance, he said, was in progress in one of the town's best known homes. The evening was hot and all the windows has been thrown open. Suddenly the young ladies were screaming frantically, and fighting for the doors or jumping on the chairs or other furniture. Mice? No, merely an invasion of frogs, half a hundred or so anxious to demonstrate their own peculiar hops to the dancers.

"Yes! It rained frogs in those days. That was not all," Dr Bell asserted. "The old police station, where one of the city's principal banks now stands, was covered with creepers of grasshoppers, from four inches to a foot deep. Then there were snakes and one hole near Stony Mountain was so infested with these reptiles that it was necessary to dynamite the ground and wall it over. There were funny things in Winnipeg in those days."

UNITED CHURCH APPOINTS THREE MEN FOR BOARD

Six Now Named To Federal Commission on Union.

TO DIVIDE PROPERTY.

Members Named By Two Bodies Will Choose Three More Men.

TORONTO, April 16. (Canadian Press).—The appointment of the representatives of the United Church to the Federal Commission provided by the Act of Union has been made and the names were yesterday approved by the Chief Justice of Canada. The new commissioners are: Isaac Pilblado, K.C., LL.D., of Winnipeg; Walter Charles Murray, M.A., president of the University of Saskatoon, and the Rev. John Walker McMillan, of Victoria College, Toronto. The Federal Commission is to be composed of three representatives from the United Church, three representatives from the Continuing Presbyterian Church and three members appointed by the other six. It is empowered under the Act to make fair and equitable division between the former Presbyterians and the non-concurring body of all the properties of the parent Church and to allocate to the Continuing Church such colleges and institutions as it may see fit. The commissioners are also given power to secure adequate provision for the education and training of students to minister to the non-concurring congregations. Under the Provincial acts all orders of the Federal Commission in respect to property and civil rights within the province affected shall carry the weight of an order of the Supreme Court of the Province.

Representation from the Continuing Presbyterian Church, appointed some time ago, is composed of the Rev. Thomas Eakin, D.D., Thomas McMillan, and G. Tower Ferguson, all of Toronto. A meeting of the six commissioners will, it is understood, take place here on Friday, April 16th, when an effort will be made to arrive at the unanimous choice of their three colleagues. If no agreement can be reached with regard to the remaining three commissioners the Act provides that they shall be appointed by the Chief Justice of Canada.

If you would be loved as a companion avoid unnecessary criticism upon those with whom you live.—Helps.

BRITISH PLANES SEEKING FLIERS

Spanish Aviators, Missing Since Sunday, Not Yet Found.

LOST IN DESERT.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 16. Canadian Press. — Captain Estevez, leader of the Spanish air expedition from Madrid to Manila, and his mechanician, Calvo, are apparently lost in the Syrian desert. Their plane, which they deserted on Sunday, 100 miles from Amman, while on the Cairo to Bagdad flight, has been found, but no trace of the aviators.

Responding to the appeal of Silvio Vallin, the Spanish Minister to Egypt, the British vice air marshal here, declared that everything humanly possible was being one to locate the missing men. Numerous British aviators are flying low in every direction in their search, but it is possible that Estevez and Calvo may have become exhausted, either through the burning heat or the lack of food and water supplies, and it would be a difficult matter to locate their bodies.

At the same time there have been various rumours current that they have been located but thus far confirmation of this is lacking.

DOLL OLDEST KNOWN TOY.

Among practically all nations, from the remotest of antiquity, the doll is held to have been the oldest of toys. It seems to have figured as a plaything for the youngsters in every land and among all manner of peoples. Edward Lovett of London has made a collection of dolls and has one in it said to be 4,000 years old. It was found in an Egyptian tomb.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT MILLBROOK

Choir Renders Easter Hymns and Anthems in St. Thomas' Church.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, April 16. — The special Easter carols which were prepared by the choir of St. Thomas' Church, under the direction of the organist and choir leader, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, and postponed from Easter Sunday owing to the leader's illness, were sung on Sunday evening to the great pleasure of the congregation.

The selections included three anthems by the full choir, "O Joyous Easter Morning," "Come, See the Place Where the Lord Lay," "Ye Happy Bells of Easter Day"; carol, "Come With Flowers," by the eight choir boys, Ernest Lamb, Teddy Budd, Burton Russell, George and Henry Gray, Willie Todd, Cameron Vance and George Harkness; and a concluding number, "Easter Bells," the choir singing the verses and the refrain being taken by the younger girls, Eva Howson, Elizabeth Russell, Gertrude Gray, Pearl and Eloise Lamb.

Mrs. (Dr.) King of Peterboro, who was to have assisted with the music for the day, was unable to be present on account of illness.

Rev. D. R. Dewdney preached at both the morning and evening services, the rector taking the service at St. John's Church in the morning, and assisting at St. Thomas' Church at night.

Mrs. Allen has for some years followed the plan of giving some special musical training to the younger members of the choir during the Lenten season, particularly to the boys' voices, and bringing in one or more new members each year at this time.

The unfavorable state of the roads lessened the congregations in all the churches on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Fraser of Fenelon Falls, who is retired from the active ministry, preached at Centreville and in Grace Church on Sunday. Miss Myrtle Russell presided at the organ here in the absence of the regular organist, Miss Ethel Richardson. It is expected that the induction of the new pastor, Rev. J. Riddle, will take place on April 29.

The services at the United Church were in charge of the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, the subject in the morning being, "Daylight or Midnight Friendship," and at night, "Assurance From Believing." Mrs. G. W. Sayles and Miss May Byam took the duet in the anthem, "Jesus is Calling," which was sung at morning worship.

Beginning the first Sunday in May church will be at 11 a.m., the Sunday School changing then to 10 o'clock.

New Librarian.

The librarian at the Public Library has recently been changed, Miss A. Hampton, who had the position for several years, having resigned owing to ill-health. Miss Myrtle Russell has been engaged to take her place.

Mr. D. Hampton had fulfilled the duties of librarian since his sister's health made it impossible for her to attend regularly to its requirements.

The fact that Millbrook now has a free Public Library, up to date in its methods and established upon a financial basis, is entirely due to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. Hampton, who was for several years principal of the Public School and is one of the best known and highly respected citizens. Thirty-two years ago, in 1894, in face of very little encouragement, Mr. Hampton made a thorough canvass of the village, raising by personal subscriptions .. sufficient sum to begin a Mechanic's Institute, with a paid membership of 175. The following year this was changed to a free Public Library, and has continued ever since as a well patronized institution, subscribing to a large number of the leading newspapers and magazines, and having now over 3,000 volumes on its shelves.

There have been but three librarians up till now, Miss Russell making the fourth, since the library was instituted. Rev. S. H. Pickup of St. Giles' Church, Toronto, in his student days, was the first to hold the position, Mr. B. Van Homreigh, since deceased, following him, and Miss Hampton, assisted by her brother, taking the work ever since.

Sixteen years ago the "Dewey Decimal" system of keeping a record of the books given out was adopted, and has been found so satisfactory it has continued in use since first introduced.

Before the war Millbrook had substantial hopes of having a Carnegie library, but as considerable opposition was met with, the project was dropped and the original room over Bentley's store is still in use. Residents of both village and township take advantage of the reading room and library to a considerable degree, and in the fall and winter months, when most reading is done, at least 200 volumes per week are taken out. Subscribers outside the corporation pay $1.00 a year for library tickets, and local patrons buy these at 5c each, a new one being necessary when the space is filled, this system being a source of revenue for library funds, as are also the fines paid for keeping books out overtime, two weeks being the period allowed.

The younger element being among the greatest readers in the community, a speciality of juvenile literature of the best type has been made of late years, a part of the library being reserved for these books. Mr. Hampton has noted the fact that boys and girls of the 'teen age are not reading as much as formerly and suggests that this may partially at least be attributed to the movies where they have stories presented in attractive form. The cessation of movies locally may mark a change in this respect, particularly when examination time is passed.

The institution of the children's story hour since January of this year has proved a popular move with the young folk, over twenty being in attendance at the library each Saturday from 11 to 12 a.m. Interest has not seemed to flag at all since this innovation started, the story-tellers including Misses S. Muir, K. Sutton, B. M. Turner, K. Lancashire, M. Smith and P. Burnham.

Mr. Hampton, though no longer active in the secretarial duties of the library, will continue to take a keen interest in its welfare, and will be ready to give information or advice gained from long experience as necessity arises.

Young People's Society.

The first meeting of the Young People's Society since its re-organization was held on Monday evening, with a good attendance, and the Golden Links Mission Circle in charge of the programme.

Mrs. J. McKnight, President, took the chair, the Secretary, Wilma Fallis, reading the annual report. Nine meetings were held during the eleven months which made up the church year, with an average attendance of 16. A picnic was held at Miss Martha Lunn's home in June, and in February the C.G.I.T. group provided the programme. A public meeting was held in March and was addressed by Miss Paul, a returned missionary, and the circle presented a pageant, "Inasmuch," about twenty members taking part. Four new life members, Mrs. McKnight, Mrs. Weatherup, Mrs. D. Lunn and Miss Hattie Barnard, were added during the year.

The Treasurer's report showed a total of $72.61 raised and $68.00 remitted to the Branch Treasurer. Fifty dollars of this amount goes toward the salary of Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at the Wahstao Home and Boarding School in Alberta.

Mrs. V. C. Lambert, Honorary President of the circle, gave an interesting talk on "The Lord's Prayer and Missions," basing her remarks upon Matthew 6:9-15, and having a number of members read Scripture references in corroboration of the various points brought out. "Three things are essential to success—we must be students of the word, giving time to prayer, and about our Father's business. We must first have the missionary work as a living issue in our hearts if we are to co-operate with the living Lord. Consecration and putting first things first are imperative."

The Tuxis Square, under the direction of Mr. Howard, will present the programme next week, and the following Monday, April 26, a set of slides on "Indians of Our Dominion," with lecture notes, will be the feature of the evening, the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group being responsible for the meeting.

She Was Troubled With Chronic Constipation

Once your bowels become constipated you are in for a lot of trouble, as constipation is one of the most prolific sources of disease that the human race is addicted to, therefore a free motion of the bowels every day should be the aim of everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, Cloverdale East, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with chronic constipation, and became so bad I was almost afraid to eat anything.

One day I saw your advertisement of

Milburn's LAXA-LIVER PILLS

so I got three vials, and after taking them I have never been troubled since with constipation."

PLAN MERGER OF DOUKHOBORS

Movement is Rapidly Growing in Favor Among Colonies.

LEADER COMING

REGINA, Sask., April 16.—(Canadian Press).—The movement for amalgamation of all Doukhobor colonies in Western Canada under one control, is rapidly gaining favor, according to M. W. Cazakoff, acting president and general manager of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood Limited.

All existing colonies, he states have already sanctioned the proposed plan of amalgamation.

According to M. Cazakoff, Peter Veregin's arrival in Canada some time in May, will see the amalgamation effective. He declared that under the new order hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved for Doukhobors in the West.

Cooperative stores, warehouses, flour mills, elevators, ranches and saw-mills, were only a few of the institutions that Mr. Cazakoff prophesied would come into being this year.

The acting president said that despite the hardships experienced by Doukhobor communities in 1924, owing to crop failure, last year's crop had put them once more in sound financial conditions.

The advent of Peter Veregin, he asserted, would see many more Doukhobors arrive here from Russia. He stated that a general conference would be held and would decide the number of newcomers to be brought out.

The mass meetings of the Western Doukhobors Cazakoff said had been called on receipt of a communication from Peter Veregin, who is now in Russia. The communication expressed a wish that all Doukhobors in Canada unite under a single control.

The Care Of Her Baby Weighs on the Energies of the Mother

Hamilton, Ont.—"After one of my children came, my health was very poor. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep—would walk the floor nearly all night long. I was so weak I could not do my work. I suffered from backaches and pains in my side. I was just a physical and nervous wreck, but after I took a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription my nerves were completely restored, I grew strong and well and was able to do my housework. I never had any more trouble—was just fine."—Mrs. Wilfred Bendell, 123 Bay St., North.

OSHAWA BANKER SHOOTS HIMSELF IN BANK VAULT

J. C. Anderson of Bank of Montreal is Found By Messenger.

NO REASON KNOWN.

Books Are Reported in Good Shape—Inspector Makes Visit.

OSHAWA, April 16 — J. C. Anderson, manager of the branch of the Bank of Montreal at the corner of Bond and Simcoe streets, this city, was found shot through the head yesterday afternoon in the basement of the bank with the discharged revolver lying by his side. Mr. Anderson left his office about two-thirty and about three-thirty when the bank messenger was making his rounds, he found the body in the paper vault in the basement.

No report of the firing of the revolver was heard by the staff of the bank and the inspector who was paying a visit from the head office, and who were at work on the floor above which is accounted for by the heavy cement work in the walls and partitions of the basement and also that same might have occurred when a street car was passing which would materially help to deaden any report of the tragedy in the cellar. Mr. Anderson came to Oshawa from Ottawa about three and a half years ago, and has been in the employ of the bank for thirty-five years. For the past two years he has been treasurer of the Oshawa General hospital Board of Directors. Coroner Dr. J. F. Rundall, after making an investigation found an inquest not necessary. No reason can be given for the tragedy as his books in the bank are reported in good shape. Deceased, who is 61 years of age, is survived by his wife and three children.

RUSSIANS WOUNDED.

In Allied Drive Toward Peking.

TIENTSIN, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Numerous casualties, particularly among the Russians, resulted Thursday when the allied forces driving toward Peking engaged the defending Kuominchun troops. Many of the wounded have been brought to hospitals here.

Further Manchurian reinforcements have gone forward by rail from Lutai. The Manchurian commanders claim that an appreciable advance has been made on the Tung chow front, a few miles eastward of Peking.

No mail has arrived from Peking in four days, wireless being the only communication.

BOY SCOUT TROOP DEBATES ON VALUE

Comparison of Work With That of Sunday School is Made.

MILLBROOK, April 16. — The regular meeting of the Millbrook troop of Boy Scouts was held on Tuesday evening, with a debate as its leading feature, the subject being: "Resolved, that the Boy Scouts' Association does more for the good of the boy than the Sunday School."

The rector, Rev. Canon Allen, Messrs. R. Stone and H. Jordan were the judges, and brought in a decision in favor of the Sunday School. In resorting the judges' decision Canon Allen stated that so far as material was concerned they considered the sides were of equal standing, but considering manner and delivery, it was felt that the boys speaking for the Sunday School had the advantage.

Patrol Leader Barton Russell and Scout Henry Raper upheld the negative, while the affirmative was ably championed by Scouts Henry Gray and Gerald Raper.

Part of the evening was given up to games under the direction of Scoutmaster A. H. Barnes and the troop, the leaders being Robert Shaw and Lynden Russell, while talks on the Scout law, oath and motto were ably conducted by Assistant Scoutmaster H. Jordan and Patrol Leaders Piercy Pitt and Edward Nattrass.

For the purpose of study and practice three judges for the debate were also appointed from among the boys. At the close of the evening their report was delivered by Scout Edward Budd, who in a few well-chosen words announced that these "under study" judges had come to a similar conclusion with those serving in an official capacity.

Women's Missionary Society.

The first meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church for the current church year was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss S. Dean, about forty-five being in attendance.

The reports for the year were received during the opening business period, the President, Mrs. F. H. Howard, being in the chair. Mrs. C. W. Richards, Secretary, reported 63 annual members and one new life member last year, making a total of 18 now in this list; four members were lost by death, Mrs. A. Ferguson, Mrs. Crossley, Mrs. Hugh Kennedy and Miss Emma Krieger. Nine regular meetings were held and two public gatherings; four missionaries had been heard during the year, Miss Clazey of Korea, Miss Allen and Miss Porke of Japan and Miss Paul of British Columbia; 12 copies of the Missionary Monthly, the new W. M. S. magazine, were taken. The study book, "Building With India," was taken up at each meeting, a delegate was sent to the branch meeting at Oshawa, and the auxiliary took charge of one meeting during the week of prayer.

Miss M. E. Hetherington presented the Treasurer's report, the items being: Annual members' fees, $63; life members' fee, $25; donations, $4; mite boxes, $11.36; Easter thankoffering, $103.15; public meetings, $31.19; rest fund, $11; other sources, $4.60; total, $253.30; less expenses, amount sent Branch Treasurer, $240.00.

The Easter thankoffering was the largest in the history of the auxiliary. The Mission Band made its superintendent, Mrs. Offa Williamson, a life member of the auxiliary just before the year closed and a vote of thanks was tendered the boys and girls for this generous help in increasing the funds.

Mrs. J. McKnight report for the Mission Circle, a total of $80.99 being raised, and $68.00 remitted to the Branch Treasurer.

Mrs. Williamson presented the Mission Band report, showing $106.59 raised during the year, $30 of this amount going to the upkeep of the Millbrook Sunshine Cot in the Women's Hospital, Chentu, West China.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston gave the report for the group coming into the auxiliary from the Presbyterian Church after Union, a total of $119.97 having been raised since June, 1925, and a bale valued at $10 also sent to headquarters in Toronto to be forwarded to some needy field.

The conveners of the various groups then gave their reports, that of Mrs. T. H. Aiken coming highest with 120 points.

Group A, Mrs. F. W. Smith, convener, 30 points; Group B, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, convener, 89 points; Group C, Mrs. Weatherup, convener, 34 points; Group D, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, convener, 120 points; Group E, Mrs. H. Lang, convener, 57 points; Group F, Miss Mary Widdis, convener, 65 points; Group G, Miss A. Hampton, convener, 54 points; Group H, Mrs. G. C. Garside, convener, 42 points. Mrs. John Hatherly will be convener of Group A this year and Miss Nellie Finnimore of Group E.

Reports from the field were given by Miss Lottie Luxon for the Oriental work in Canada and for the world by Miss Burnham.

Mrs. (Dr.) Rea took charge for Group G, which was responsible for the programme: Rev. Mr. Howard led in prayer, and Mrs. G. W. Sayles sang a solo, "Go, Tell the Story." Mrs. L. S. Clarry took the study, "The Distinctive Opportunity in India," and Mrs. Johnston sang, "If We Walk With Him." A prayer on "The Consecration of Our Ability," prepared by Mrs. Wagar of Peterboro, was read by Mrs. Rea and proved inspiring and instructive.

Miss Dean, assisted by Group G, served tea, an executive meeting being held while the members were gathered about the tables. A delightful social hour brought an interesting and profitable gathering to a close.

The ladies of the Fallis' Line Church have invited the auxiliary to hold its May meeting at the church, when they will act as hostesses.

Delegates to the initial meeting for the Cobourg Presbyterial, held at Cobourg on April 20, are Mrs. Howard, Mrs. McKnight, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. O. Williamson and Miss P. Burnham.

WESTWOOD MAN FELL INTO POND

Cold Dip For R. J. Douglas While Removing Stop Logs.

SWAM TO SHORE.

WESTWOOD, April 16.—Robert J. Douglas, who operates the grist mill, had a narrow escape from drowning on Monday. While trying to remove the stop-logs from the dam, his arm was caught by a pike pole and he fell backwards into the pond and went over the dam. Owing to his ability as a swimmer, Mr. Douglas was able to make shore a few feet from the dam.

The rush of high waters made the feat very difficult and great nerve and strength were exhibited.

Beyond an unpleasant dip in the cold water, Mr. Douglas suffered no further injury.

Tuesday was the most spring-like day we have had. For the first time this spring frogs were heard.

Sleighing is practically gone, except on the north and south roads, where there are still great banks of snow. The east and west roads are already getting quite dry in places.

INDIANS ON RAMPAGE.

Reservation Under Own Jurisdiction in Oregon.

KIAMATH FALLS, Ore., April 16 (Canadian Press)—Klamath Indians at Beatty and Ely, two reservation towns, are on a wild rampage, drinking, gambling and carousing and fear is felt for the safety of white residents in the district. Local, state and county peace officers are powerless to cope with the situation, which is the outgrowth of a recent decision by Circuit Court Judge A. L. Leavitt in a habeas corpus action, holding that Indians on the reservations are not under the jurisdiction of the state and county laws, but come under federal jurisdiction as long as they remain on the reservation.

PROPOSE TESTED HERDS FOR HALIFAX

Report of Doctors Who Investigated Milk Supply.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 16 (Canadian Press)—The official report of doctors A. Grant Fleming and R. St. J. MacDonald, the Montreal physicians who were asked by the Massachusetts-Halifax Health Commission to make an impartial investigation of the milk situation in this city, was made public here Thursday.

Outstanding among the recommendations for improving the milk supply of Halifax are the following:

Tuberculin tested herds; properly equipped premises for production and distribution of milk; regular inspection of all farms and dairies.

Properly kept records; score cards for dairies; washed, sterilized and sealed cans for shipment; properly equipped pasteurization plants, with sterilized, sealed containers for delivery; proper and adequate equipment for testing milk; a diploma of public health for a city health officer and a dairy inspector, a practical veterinarian working under his direction.

Standards, says the report, should be adopted and producers and distributors required to live up to them.

THREE PORTFOLIOS FOR LABOR MINISTER

Hon. J. C. Elliott To Take Charge of D.S.C.R. and Health.

OTTAWA, April 16. —(Canadian Press).—The Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, it is stated last night, will very shortly be placed under the administration of the Minister of Labor, Hon. J. C. Elliott.

There is no intention, it is understood, to absorb the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in the Department of Labor. Official announcement in the matter will probably be made within the next week. The Department of Health is also being brought under the administration of the Minister of Labor.

This Department, though, will not be absorbed in the Department of Labor.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ELECTION SHORTLY

Election Printing Reported To Be Ready.

TORONTO, April 16.—Dissolution of the Ontario Legislature is expected to be announced within ten days. When the announcement is made it will be accompanied by a declaration that the ensuing election will be contested upon the issue of Government control of the sale of liquor. The G. C. plan to be put forward by the Ferguson Government will be similar to that now in effect in the Province of Manitoba.

Cabinet hanges.

It is expected that when the Government goes to the country, most likely late in June, at least two of the present Cabinet Ministers will not be running. Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, is expected to retire, and it is also stated that Hon. John Martin, Minister of Agriculture, is also seeking relief from the burdens of office. This will entail a considerable Cabinet reconstruction. Dr. D. Jamieson (South Grey), chairman of the Agricultural Inquiry Committee, might be the new Minister of Agriculture, and W. Finlayson, member for North Simcoe, is spoken of as the Minister of Lands and Forests.

It is also darkly hinted that Premier G. H. Ferguson is going to Ottawa. In that case, rumor says that Hon. Geo. Henry will head the new Cabinet.

OBITUARY.

EZEKIEL ALLEN HUBBLE.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 16. — Ezekiel Hubble, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Campbellford, died at his home on Front Street early on Thursday morning in his eighty-second year. The deceased came here from Belmont in 1889, and had followed his trade as a carpenter since that time. He had been in failing health for about a year previous to his death. He was a son of the late Peter Hubble, and was born at Wellman's Corners, where a brother still resides.

The late Mr. Hubble is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Sarah Ann Redden, and a family of three daughters and two sons. The daughters are Mrs. W. E. Dunk of Seymour, Mrs. Ira Bassett of Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. C. R. McConnell of town. Both sons, Edward and Stewart, reside in Campbellford. Two brothers, William of town and Thomas of Wellman's Corners, also survive.

The funeral services will be conducted at the family residence at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon by Rev. Wesley Elliott of St. John's United Church, of which the deceased was a member. The remains will be interred in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The late Mr. Hubble was regarded as a thorough master of his trade, and during his residence here had a part in the erection of some of Campbellford's leading buildings. These included the Public and the old High School, and the structure now occupied by the Weston Shoe Company and which was originaly a woollen mill. When he came to town the main building of the big woollen plant had been erected, but the late Mr. Hubble worked on several of the additions that have since been put up.

The deceased was well known throughout Seymour, as he had built some of the finest residences and barns in the township, and whenever there was any work of the kind to do his services were always in demand. In every department of his trade he was regarded as a successful designer and excellent workman.

APRIL FASHIONS

Georgette and Taffeta Are a Charming Combination in the New Frocks

The filminess of georgette set off by the crispness and newness of taffeta makes a delightful Frock for afternoon wear. Blues and tans in their wide ranges, all softly becoming, are the favored colors in this style of Frock.

Taffeta and georgette are a youthful combination, too, as you will note when you try the Frocks on. Many of them are cut with a slightly fitted bodice and full skirt, often with flounces edged with about an inch-wide piping of taffeta. Attend your next afternoon tea smartly clad in one of these Frocks.

$35 to $45

Cressman's—Second Floor.

Gray Is a Smart Color in Dress Coats

There is something aristocratic about the color grey which makes it especially suitable to the rather dressy type of Coat.
